An organizer wanted for every county.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

M. FAURE IS PRESIDENT.

FRANCE ELECTS A SUCCESSOR TO CASIMIR-PERIER.

French Politics Mixed—The Ex-President Breaks Down and Weeps—Paris Excited—An Unexpected Turn of Events.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Vendors of all kinds are forbidden to cry their wares before 8 o'clock in the morning, but yesterday and today newsboys were allowed to begin before daylight. Some of the newspapers say that Casimir-Perier was physically incapable, never having recovered from the shock he received from the death of his friend, M. Burdeau, president of the Chamber of Deputies.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon President Brisson, of the Chamber of Deputies, presented the message of Casimir-Perier to that body.

The reading of the message was followed by a regular babel. M. Fabre shouted "So much the worse for him." M. Garran de Balzean shouted: "It is desertion of the Republic." "Vive la Republique," chorused the members of the Left, and as the Chamber adjourned after a ten minute session the Socialists cried "Vive Revolution Sociale."

It is believed that the irresponsibility of Presidents is a thing of the past, and the resignation of M. Casimir-Perier will probably cause other radical changes in the constitution

PARIS EXCITED.

The provinces seem to be indifferent as to the situation, but Paris is greatly excited. The latest betting in the clubs is 5 to 1 against Dupuy, 11 to 2 against Waldeck-Rousseau, 100 to 4 against Loubet and 100 to 3 against Challemel-Lacour.

Upon his arrival at Versailles Challemel-Lacour, who, as president of the Senate, presides over the National Assembly, was conveyed to the palace in an open carriage. The friends of M. M. Brisson and Waldeck-Rousseau are confident in their claims that their respective favorites will receive 300 votes each on the first ballot, the remaining votes going to M. Faure. If this is true it is likely that M. Faure will retire on the first ballot, and request his friends to vote for Waldeck-Rousseau.

There was a great deal of canvassing in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday in behalf of Premier Dupuy, but wagers of 2 to 1 were freely laid against him in the clubs last night.

"VIVE LE ROI."

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The Royalist, whose activity is formented by the Duc d'Haussenville, received seven telegrams from the Duc d'Orleans during the night in regard to the latter's manifesto, which will be issued today.

Prince Victor Napoleon is reported to be preparing a manifesto, which, it is understood, will be given out today. Orders have been given at the frontier to prevent the importation of these documents into France.

POOR CASIMIR-PERIER.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says: When the report of the scene in the Chamber of Deputies on the occasion of the reading of the President's message of resignation reached the palace of the Elysee last evening, M. Casimir-Perier broke down completely and cried bitterly for some time. His physician says he will need several months of absolute rest before he will be the same man he was when he was elected President last June.

A force of 500 detectives has gone to Versailles and the strength of the police has been greatly increased, it being feared that the Anarchists will seize the opportunity afforded by the crisis to indulge in bomb-throwing and other outrages peculiar to the sect.

THE BALLOTING COMMENCES.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—The National Assembly was called to order at one o'clock. At 1.17 o'clock 36 scrutineers were drawn to supervise the balloting.

When Baudry D'Asson voted he shouted "Vive Catholic France. Vive le Roi."

SOCIALIST FURY.

Socialists are furious at the refusal of the Government to temporarily release Gerault Richard, who is in prison for insulting President Casimir-Perier and was elected a deputy while in prison. Deputy Carnaud, who was arrested in Roanne on Tuesday, was released today, and voted in the Assembly, as did also M. Rouadet and Jaures, who were recently expelled from the chamber.

When M. Toussaint, Socialist, deposited his vote in the urn he cried "Vive Social Revolution," and when the name of M. Aves, Social Revolutionist, was called he refused to vote but shouted from his seat "Abstention means dissolution—down with the Presidency."

RESULT OF FIRST BALLOT.

The result of the first ballot was officially announced as follows:—Brisson, 338; Faure, 244; Waldeck-Rousseau, 184. Total number of votes cast, 794. Necessary to choice, 398.

It is expected Waldeck-Rousseau will retire in favor of Faure, in which case the latter will probably be elected.

WALDECK-ROUSSEAU WITHDRAWS.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—M. Waldeck Rousseau has announced that he withdraws from the contest in favor of Faure, who will, without doubt, be elected in consequence of Waldeck-Rousseau's action.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—Faure is elected.

BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM KILLED.

While Returning from the Wedding Their Sleigh Was Run Down by a Train.

LEBANON, Ind., Jan. 17.—As a party of young folks were returning from the wedding of Jacob Moss and Miss Mary Overleese today their sleigh was struck by a passenger train on the Midland railway at a road crossing. The bride was killed instantly, and the bridegroom died about an hour after being brought to this city. The other occupants of the sleigh were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCabe, of Darlington, Ind., John A. Abrams and John McFadden. All were badly hurt.

Wanted Him to Get Out.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 17.—Lawyer Thos. Brown was the subject of a preliminary trial yesterday, on a charge of unlawfully attempting to defeat the course of justice by attempting to prevent Louis Ling from attending the trial of Mrs. Hartley at Brantford. Ling swore that Brown told him, "I want to give you advice, and I want you to take it. I think the best thing you can do is to leave the country, and go to Detroit or anywhere out of this country. You are just as free as any man. Nobody can touch you where you are. There will be money in it if you leave." Geo. Ling, a brother, swore that Brown called at his father's house and told Louis Ling that if he did not appear at the trial of Mrs. Hartley there would be money in it. The case was adjourned one week.

POISONED.

A Young Man Drinks Poison in His Tea—It Was Prepared by His Wife—An Investigation Will be Held.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 17.—A case of poisoning has occurred at Merritton that has caused some excitement.

It appears that Alfred Price, who works at the Riordan Paper Mills, was taken sick on Saturday evening after taking a drink of tea which had been brought to him by his wife.

After a severe fit of vomiting he lost consciousness and lay in a room alone till nine in the evening, when he regained his senses and managed to make his condition known.

Dr. Campbell, of Thorold, who examined the man at his home, said the patient was suffering from arsenical poisoning. He asked for the remains of the man's dinner, was told by the wife that she had thrown it out and washed the pail.

CANNOT ACCOUNT FOR IT.

Mrs. Price, who is a pretty woman, with large, dark eyes, cannot account for her husband's illness, and says she partook of a portion of the same brewing of tea which poisoned her husband.

Price and his brother George both think he was poisoned, and the latter declares he will have thorough a investigation.

The couple have always lived happily together.

SENATOR TASSE DEAD.

The Editor of La Minerve Succumbs After an Illness of Three Months.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—Senator Tasse died this morning at half past five o'clock, after three months' illness. He has been unconscious for nearly a fortnight.

He was 45 years of age, and leaves a wife and two daughters. For fifteen years he has been editor of La Minerve, and was an uncompromising Conservative. He formerly represented Ottawa city in the Commons and succeeded the late Senator Trudel in the Senate.

Mr. Tasse was unsuccessful in several elections. He was one of the Canadian Commissioners at Chicago at the World's Fair, and was the author of several books. The funeral will take place Saturday morning.

NO NEW CARDINALS UNTIL APRIL.

The Pope's Encyclical Regarding Spread of the Faith Sent to Paris.

ROME, Jan. 17.—The date of the next Consistory has not been fixed. If it takes place in February it will deal exclusively with the appointment of Bishops.

It is stated in the highest circles that the Pope will not create any new Cardinals before April.

The encyclical dealing with the spread of the faith was sent to Paris recently.

NO DESIRE FOR PEACE

JAPAN NOT ANXIOUS TO BRING THE WAR TO A CLOSE.

A Strategic Movement to Obtain Information—Japan Lost but 219 Men in Corea—Army Inspectors Meet with Difficulties—Affairs in the Orient.

VICTORIA, B.C., Jan. 17.—The additional Japanese advices by the Empress of Japan are:—Although the Japanese Government is guarded as ever in all its utterances, it cannot entirely conceal the fact that the prospect of speedy settlement is not so clear as it seemed to be three weeks ago. Then China proposed to be sincere in her desire to negotiate, and the two American Ministers who acted as mediums of communication between the contending parties believed that the few obstacles to a pacific understanding might be removed without serious difficulty.

ENTIRE JAPANESE LOSS 291 MEN.

Mr. Dunn having the Japanese side to deal with, knew precisely where he stood. Mr. Denby, to whom the task of formulating Chinese views was entrusted, was necessarily less sure of his ground for the opinions of those in power at Pekin were not only often discordant, but were subject to almost as many changes as there were days in the week.

Official reports of deaths in the Japanese army show that the casualties in battles have been remarkably few, owing to inability or unwillingness of the Chinese to fight. In Corea, Japan has lost 219 killed outright, and 36 who died from their wounds, while the deaths from disease have been 406. In China, 73 only have been killed, 21 have died from wounds and 24 from disease.

A STRATEGIC MOVEMENT.

Correspondence from Port Arthur describes an ingenious strategem to obtain information respecting the condition of the Chinese at Wei Hai Wei. One of the Japanese cruiser was repainted and equipped in Chinese style and started at high speed for the naval stronghold flying the flag of China and closely followed by a Japanese man-of-war. As she drew near the harbor several shots were fired by the pretended pursuer and she was admitted without opposition to forbidden waters. A very brief survey enabled her to ascertain that several ships, including Ting Yuen, were lying at anchor there and that the stranded Chang Yuen was, probably, irreparably damaged. Having accomplished her purpose, the disguised vessel retreated before the Chinese could recover from their amazement.

AN UNPROFITABLE WINTER.

The military experts, sent by various Western powers to observe the movements of the Chinese armies, are passing an unprofitable winter. The Chinese authorities afford them no facilities, the aim of the mandarins being to hide the feebleness and incompetency of their military system. Most of the inspectors from abroad are idling at Pekin, and the Government refuses to assume any responsibility for their safety.

DETECTIVE FLYNN ARRESTED.

A Scandalous Story that Resulted in a Charge of Perjury.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—The case of Maggie Connell, alias Matilda Flynn, charged with vagrancy, was before Judge Dugas this morning. The accused had stated in a recent deposition that she was an illegitimate daughter of Dective Flynn.

She told a different story this morning, when she said she had come from Pattison, Pa., some time ago at the instance of a friend who had told her she could earn from $6 to $8 a week type writing. Coming here, she had been unable to obtain employment and after three weeks or so her friend had suggested that she should do as other girls in her position did. She had taken the friend's advice.

Some time afterwards Grand Trunk Detective Flynn took her from the house where she had been staying, and kept her privately. Flynn's wife discovering what was going on, had left her husband and through the Society for the Protection of Women and Children preferred a charge of vagrancy against the girl.

Flynn was called in Court this morning but did not answer until a Bench warrant had been issued, which the officers were proceeding to execute, when they met Flynn coming to court, whither he accompanied them.

Judge Dugas ordered him to be detained on a charge of perjury. It appears Flynn has stated in evidence that the girl was his natural daughter.

MOB OF UNEMPLOYED.

Darlington's Anarchist Epistle—Mayor Villeneuve's Opinion.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—Three thousand unemployed workingmen gathered outside the Montreal City Hall this morning and threatened to invade the building and proceed to violence if their demand for work was not complied with. The demonstration was the third of its kind that has taken place in the city within the last few weeks.

Mayor Villeneuve expressed his sympathy with those who were out of employment. He pointed out, however, that many of those who posed as unemployed were not in need of work. They labored all summer and saved enough money to keep them all winter. The city had done its best to give employment. He suggested that the requisition be presented to him to him to call a mass meeting at the Board of Trade rooms tomorrow. A requisition was immediately signed and presented to the Mayor.

THE BOOT ON THE OTHER FOOT.

A Newspaper Recovers a Verdict for Libel Against an Ottawa Alderman.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—The Evening Journal opposed the re-election of Alderman McLean in the aldermanic contest of 1893. Ald. McLean secured his seat and published a letter hinting that the Journal was purchasable. That paper immediately instituted libel proceeding, and in March D'Alton McCarthy pleaded that the printing company was not an individuality and Judge Falconbridge non-suited the newspaper.

On appeal Ald. McLean pleaded in September that he had not mentioned the paper by name. The jury disagreed, and on a third trial judgment went today for the Journal for $300 and costs of the numerous trials, which will be very heavy.

Lord Randy's Illness.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The bulletin issued by Lord Randolph Churchill's physicians at 10.25 this evening stated that the failure of his heart is very marked and the patient's weakness is increasing.

A Handsome Ladv's Opinion

My head of hair, as you may observe, is perfect. Yours, if not, may become so by using Tully's Chemical Hair Grower. It will do just what is represented—it makes the hair grow when coming out; it cleanses the scalp of dandruff; restores the color when turning grey; prevents baldness, and is an elegant dressing, and the price is reasonable, 50c. a bottle. I am sure that there is no better preparation. Sold only at

THE TELEPHONE DOOR.

EXTRACTS FROM A PAMPHLET BY ANGUS S. HIBBARD.

The record made of the traffic of various exchanges has led, during the past year, to another record which has been of interest, more especially to the users of telephones. This is a traffic record of the subscriber's telephone, showing just how many times it is used each day on outward calls, and how many times the line has been called for others and found busy, showing also whether the "busy" calls were on account of the fact that the telephone was being used for outgoing or incoming business. In the Chicago exchange the records of about 3,000 lines have been kept in this manner. In one case a firm of packers, having six lines connected with the Yards exchange in Chicago, was found to use the telephone an average of 802 times in each day. It was found, also, that this firm was called for many times when all the lines were busy. The matter of this telephone traffic was taken up with the people in charge of this part of the firm's business, and it was found that frequently all of their telephones, or nearly all of them, were engaged by their own men at one time in making outward calls. It was shown that the telephone lines represented business entrances or doors for business to the firm's office, just as much, in a way, as the actual doors leading from the street or hallway, and, in fact, more so, because more people procured an entrance through their telephone doors—if I may use that term—than in any other way. It was then shown that if these telephones were blocked by the outgoing work of the firm's employes, it was naturally impossible for anyone desiring to do so to get in at the same time. In a way, it was as if, in a large retail store, at the time it was opened for business in the morning, an order should be given to the shipping departments to ship the goods out of the front doors, filling them with boxes, trucks and men. This it is evident, would immediately paralyze the retail business, because no one desiring to trade with the firm could gain admission through the usual entrances. Such a proceeding would naturally drive away the custom and very much interfere with the business of the retail store. This point being illustrated, it was arranged with the firm of packers that they should not allow their own people to use all of the telephones simultaneously, but endeavor, in every way, to leave at least one line open and available for the entrance of calls to their offices. The simple arrangement, which was merely an appreciation by the subscriber of what the telephones really could do, led to an immediate relief in the traffic. The 800 and more calls were handled as before, and the number of busy or unavailing calls was largely reduced. The record of the traffic shown and illustrated in this manner, without the addition of other telephones, but merely by bringing about a co-operation and better use of existing facilities by the subscriber, resulted not only in great benefits to him, but in the convenience of his customers. In other cases it was found that where a sinlge telephone was used one hundred or more times in a day, the busy or unavailing calls for the new line were very largely caused by the habit of subscriber in originating a large number of calls consecutively, and in that way blocking out, during a period often of one hour or more, all of the calls which had been made for his line. People who wanted to talk with the subscriber were knocking at his telephone door, finding it busy again and again, and finally, in undoubtedly very many instances, gave it up entirely or took their business to someone else. The door meanwhile, had been blocked by the voluntary action of the subscriber himself, just as much as if he had locked the door of entrance into his place of business and refused admission to all parties.

This record of telephone traffic upon the subscribers' lines is showing clearly every day that the final competition of a telephone call depends not wholly upon the telephone company or its agents, but very largely, and in many cases almost wholly, upon the intelligent use of the telephone by the subscriber.

In looking at the telephone as a door or entrance for business, which it certainly is, the user must understand that if his business is extensive in volume, it can no more enter by one door or one telephone, which is limited in the extent to which it can be used, than it is possible for an extensive trade represented by customers to enter by one narrow door. There must be telephones enough and people enough employed to handle the telephones to accommodate the business and the trade which enter in that way.

In a number of instances the blocking of business by the subscribers was found to have caused by unwarranted and unnecessary use of the telephones by employes, the "deadly office boy" once again figuring as an especial stumbling block. In other cases the blocking was found to be occasioned by the habit, when a call was received, of instructing the calling party to "hold the line," whereupon the clerk who had answered the telephone would hunt around for the individual called for, and perhaps at the end of five minutes or more bring him to the telephone. During this period of time perhaps twenty-five other correspondents desire to talk either with the subscriber originating the call or with the office at which instructions had been given to "hold the wire,' were entirely blocked out. They had been knocking at the two telephone doors, but found them blocked in this foolish way. It is impossible to make a general rule, or to advise in one general way in regard to the needs of all telephone subscribers. There are few suggestions, however, which will undoubtedly apply to all:

If the inward business is of any value—that is, if it is of any value to you to receive calls—do not block them out and make it impossible for them to get to you by originating a lot of calls consecutively; by "holding it, which merely means to tie it up and make it unavailable during long periods.

Answer the telephone just as promptly as possible.

If the party wanted is not near the telephone or is not in the office so that he may be called at most within a minute, get the number and nane of the party calling and say that the person who has been called for will be informed and will call up as soon as possible.

Watch the use of the telephone so that it may be restricted to your business needs.

Your line, during a long business day, may be made to satisfactory handle perhaps eighty calls if they are evenly distributed. If, however, your telephone work is congested into three or four hours, it is not possible to handle any such number on one telephone.

If one telephone is not enough to accommodate your business, use two or more. If this arrangement is not profitable, it would be well to instruct correspondents whose business is not of importance to avoid calling you by telephone.

Such an analysis of the traffic will be of benefit to every busy telephone subscriber, and his own action in relieving the pressure on his line will benefit him more than anything he can do.

To-day the telephone exchange is a great and important factor in the transaction of business in large cities. It is no longer a matter of one line to an exchange or one instrument in an office or warehouse; it is a means of doing business which must be fitted to the the business itself—not to the business of the telephone company, but to the business of the telephone user. It must be made extensive enough and broad enough to meet his uses and demands, and it must be used by him in a way in which it will best meet these demands. It is being shown throughout the country that the telephone exchanges do and will adapt themselves to the needs of the business of their patrons. Telephones are now being furnished in large exchanges to accomodate the lightest and most infrequent user as well as the heaviest, in one case a single instrument, in the other possibly a large private branch exchange operated by the subscriber. The determining quantity is the telephone traffic which the subscriber wishes to handle. On it depends the number and kind of telephone "doors" necessary for his exist and entrances. An appreciation of the facts of telephone traffic by telephone users will thus be of immediate benefit to them and to their correspondents. It will make the telephone door swing more easily and more frequently, and not often be found in that unsatisfactory condition "Busy now, please call again."

The largest permanent store of coined money in the world is said to be the imperial war treasure of Germany—a portion saved for emergencies from £200,000,000 paid by the French after the Franco-Prussian war, and locked up in the Julius tower of the fortress of Spandau. It amounts to the value of £6,000,000 sterling.

R. GRAHAM & SON
LAKEFIELD

HARD ON THE PATRONS.

THEIR MEMBER IN WEST WELLINGTON IS UNSEATED.

There Were Illegal Acts Proven—Too Much "Treating"—A Three-Cornered Fight in Hamilton—Hon. A. R. Dickey Nominated.

GUELPH, Ont., Jan. 16.—The West Wellington election petition was opened here this morning before their Lordships Mr. Justice Rose and Mr. Justice McMahon. The petitioner, Thomas McQueen, a retired farmer, sought to have the defendant Tucker unseated and disqualified on account of corrupt practices by himself and by agents with his knowledge.

There were originally 150 charges, which have been reduced to 16. Charge No. 11 was first taken up. It was to the effect that Tucker had said, prior to the election, he would see an account settled for blacksmithing, done on his father's account. Their Lordships held that there had been no violation of the law.

Charges 5 and 10 were then taken up. One Hambly, a clerk at White's grocery, Drayton, testified that Tucker threatened to withdraw his patronage from their store unless they supported him, and had not dealt there since the election.

Mr. White admitted in evidence that he said to Tucker that it was only right Tucker should support those who supported him, but that White had promised to vote for Allan.

Several other charges were investigated, including one of treating at a Clifford hotel, which was proven, and the election voided and defendant disqualified.

Tucker, Patron, defeated A. S. Allan, Reform, at the general election in June by a majority of 283, the vote standing:

Tucker 1718, Allan 1435.

TO RESUME THE TOUR.

At the time of the death of the late Premier a number of the Dominion ministers were engaged in addressing meetings in the western part of the province. A number of the meetings, which had already been advertised, as well as a number in the eastern part of the province, which had been arranged for, had to be abandoned. All the meetings which had been announced or promised at that time are now shortly to be held by several members of the Dominion Government. The first meeting will be held at Galt on the evening of Monday, Jan. 28. This will be followed by one at St. Mary's on Tuesday, the 29th; at Listowel, on Wednesday, the 30th; in South Essex, on Thursday, the 31st; at Blenheim, on Friday, Feb. 1, and at Chatham, on Saturday, Feb. 2. The remainder of the meetings will be held shortly after those named in the list already given.

BOOMING CHAPLEAU IN QUEBEC.

QUEBEC, Jan. 16.—The rumors of a general election are being circulated about town; special despatches from Ottawa received today fail to confirm the rumors. In the clubs and political circles the name of Hon. Lieut.-Governor Chapleau is mentioned as the future member of the Cabinet and a leader of the coming election. Government organs in Quebec unofficially give credit to this rumor.

THREE-CORNERED FIGHT IN HAMILTON

The Hamilton Herald says that there is every probability of a three cornered fight in that city at the next election. The candidates mentioned are: A. McKay, M.P., and F. C. Bleicher, Conservative; A. T. Wood and T. H. Macpherson, Reform; A. D. Stewart and William Hendrie, jr., Independent.

COMING CONVENTIONS.

The Liberals of West Elgin will hold a convention on Feb. 12, to choose a candidate for the Dominion Parliament.

A Liberal convention for Macdonald constituency has been called to meet at Portage la Prairie on Feb. 22.

HON. A. R. DICKEY BY ACCLAMATION.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 16.—Hon. A. R. Dickey, Secretary of State, was returned by acclamation.

TO UNSEAT KENNEDY.

Quo Warranto Proceedings Taken by Ex-Mayor R. J. Fleming.

TORONTO, Jan. 16.—All necessary documents have been prepared, and but few steps remain to be taken to legally test, by quo warranto proceedings, the election of Mayor Kennedy.

These charges are:

1. That polling booths were kept open by Deputy Returning officers after 5 p. m., the legal hour for closing.

2. That rigs were hired and paid for by Mayor Kennedy and his agents.

3. That Mayor Kennedy and his agents were guilty of corruption.

4. That Mayor Kennedy and his agents were guilty of bribery and undue influence.

Section five charges Mayor Kennedy and his agents with having influenced certain of the Deputy Returning officers not to place their initials on the back of certain ballots known to be in favor of R. J. Fleming, and that certain promises of gifts and promises of lucrative employment were made in case they should refrain from marking said ballots.

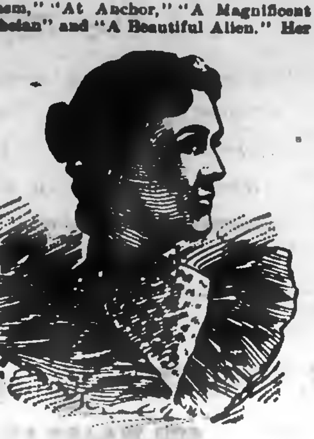
WOMAN AND HOME.

A YOUNG WOMAN WHO HAS WON SUCCESS IN LITERATURE.

The Japanese Woman's Toilet—Women Misers—A Model Nursery—The Lazell Girl—The Woman Growing Old—The Women of Ushant—Beds and Health.

Miss Julia Magruder is a native of the south, her home being in Virginia, in which state she was born. She is a niece of General J. B. Magruder and the youngest daughter of Allan Magruder, who practiced law in Washington for some years while Julia and her sister were receiving their education. Miss Magruder's best known stories are "Across the Chasm," "At Anchor," "A Magnificent Plebeian" and "A Beautiful Alien." Her work is much admired for its fine literary finish. She has written stories ever since she was a little girl, her first published effort entering the literary world when its author was 16.



JULIA MAGRUDER.

Miss Magruder is a careful reader and is inclined to read and reread authors that please her most, as in the case of George Eliot, whose writings she studies by the most critical tests, and of whom she is a constant and appreciative admirer. Her own method of writing is very simple. She gives the morning hours to the duty of composition, but does no more work for that day, resuming her occupation on the following morning. She delights in writing of the refinements of life and the development of character into a higher state, and she expresses herself with the greatest ease and elegance, characteristics possessed also by the people she creates. Miss Magruder has had all the advantages of travel, pleasant associations and unlimited opportunities for the studies and pursuits in which she delights, and her writings bear evidence of these congenial impressions.

The Japanese Woman's Toilet.

The Japanese woman's toilet upsets our ideas almost as much as the Australian's Christmas. Her very clothes would fit a European woman better back way foremost. She has such a ridiculously useful little figure 4½ feet high.... Until she gets her clothes ready made from Germany they never vary. The wife of the fallen Daimio skulking in his castle town, with his eyes as guarded from western innovations as the narrow limits of Japan permit, cuts her beautiful silks and silk crapes as her husband's ancestresses did in the days when they spent half the year at Iyeyasu's new court in Yeddo, and she generally does cut them herself. The clothes of a Japanese lady, even of the highest rank, are homemade and handed down from generation to generation.

Her silk skirt, or overpetticoat, may be as gay as she pleases—as gay as her irreproachable taste will allow. So may the broad, obe or sash of stiff and costly brocade tied into a great butterfly bow behind. But her kimono, a loose coat coming down to the knees, with a deep collar and wide, hanging sleeves, must be of the softest fawn or gray, and her glossy hair will have none of the gay pins dear to the soul of the bewitching little mousmee who haunts the temples of Shiba and Asakusa. Being a great lady, she will have a pallid, ivory complexion, a swanlike neck, a long, thin nose, an exaggerated oval face and beady eyes in narrow, oblique slits.

To the European the aristocrat is not half as pretty as her humbler sister, a rounder eyed, rounder faced creature, with the soft beauty of Greuze's "Girl at the Fountain," red lipped and damask cheeked, dressed most likely in a scarlet kirtle, with a scarlet obe round her soft and by no means slender little waist (the old fashioned Japanese jar, with a lid resembling a cooly's hat, was a conventionalization in porcelain of the female figure divine), and her hair adorned perhaps with scarlet and white camellia blossoms, perhaps with pins terminating in artificial butterflies, coral, mother of pearl or white metal beads of endless variety, gods and beasts and fishes.—London Graphic.

Women Misers.

Women are born misers, even the most lavish and generous among them. They hoard apparently for the mere sake of hoarding. They save empty spools and scraps of lining, bits of feather, small useless odds and ends of velvet and ribbon. Their scrapbags and sewing baskets reveal the instinct in its commonest form. The collection craze shows it at a higher point.

From the time when, as little girls, they go about with strings of buttons to the day when, as old ladies, they leave their collections of bric-a-brac to some art museum they are everlastingly collecting. The original ones collect with a certain degree of discrimination and judgment. The others collect whatever they hear it is proper to collect, from souvenir spoons to handkerchiefs. Sentimental young persons collect pebbles, mosses, twigs, keep old flowers, wornout veils, discarded gloves and the like as reminders of romantic episodes. This is harmless enough, as it costs very little and does not really burden the mind with memories any longer than the mind would be burdened any way. But once the collection craze passes this harmless stage it becomes pernicious.

The woman who makes a fetich of laces and collects them is laying up for herself a store of wrinkles and unhappiness. She will worry about the genuineness of the lace she buys. She will worry over the yellowing influence of time, the tearing of careless cleaners, the possibility of fire and thieves. The woman whose one idea on all her travels is to get a souvenir spoon or a souvenir cup loses all the joys of traveling, increases the difficulty of packing and frequently burdens herself with things valueless in themselves and not long valuable as mementos.

The collecting fad is one to be decried vigorously. It develops a miserly spirit. It adds burdens to life. It seldom, except in the case of those collecting genuine a policeman came up with the usual, 'Now, then, what's all this about?'

LUCK.

(Concluded from yesterday)

"I explained the facts. The poulterer stepped to the edge of the curb and apostrophized the universe generally.

"'Look at the shop,' he said. 'It's 20 minutes to 12, and there's seven dozen geese hanging there that I'm willing to give away, and this fool asks me if I want to buy another.'

"I perceived then that my notion had been a foolish one, and I followed the policeman's advice and went away quietly, taking the bird with me.

"Then I said to myself: 'I'll give it away. I'll pick out some poor deserving person and make them a present of the d——d thing!' I passed a good many people, but no one who looked deserving enough. It may have been the time, or it may have been the neighborhood, but those I met seemed to me to be unworthy of the bird. I offered it to a man in Judd street who, I thought, appeared hungry. He turned out to be a drunken ruffian. I could not make him understand what I meant, and he followed me down the road abusing me at the top of his voice, until, turning a corner without knowing it, he plunged down Tavistock place, shouting after the wrong man. In the Euston road I stopped a half starved child and pressed it upon her. She answered, 'Not me!' and ran away. I heard her calling shrilly after me, 'Who stole the goose?'

"I dropped it in a dark part of Seymour street. A man picked it up and brought it after me. I was unequal to any more explanations or arguments. I gave him twopence and plodded on with it once more. The pubs were just closing, and I went into one for a final drink. As a matter of fact, I had had enough already, being, as I am, unaccustomed to anything more than an occasional glass of beer. But I felt depressed, and I thought it might cheer me. I think I had gin, which is a thing I loathe.

"I meant to throw it over into Oakley square, but a policeman had his eye on me and followed me twice round the railings. In Golding road I sought to drop it down an area, but was frustrated in like manner. The whole night police of London seemed to have nothing else to do but prevent my getting rid of the goose.

"They appeared so anxious about it that I fancied they might like to have it. I went up to one in Camden street. I called him 'Bobby' and asked him if he wanted a goose.

"'I'll tell you what I don't want,' he replied severely, 'and that is none of your sauce.'

"He was very insulting, and I naturally answered him back. What actually passed I forget, but it ended in his announcing his intention of taking me in charge.

"I slipped out of his hand and bolted down King street. He blew his whistle and started after me. A man sprang out from a doorway in College street and tried to stop me. I tied him up with a butt in the stomach and cut through the Crescent, doubling back into the Camden road by Batt street.

"At the canal bridge I looked behind me and could see no one. I dropped the goose over the parapet, and it fell with a splash into the water.

"Heaving a sigh of relief, I turned and crossed into Randolph street, and there a constable collared me. I was arguing with him when the first fool came up breathless. They told me I had better explain the matter to the inspector, and I thought so too.

"The inspector asked me why I had run away when the constable wanted to take me in charge. I replied that it was because I did not desire to spend my Christmas holidays in the lockup, which he evidently regarded as a singularly weak argument. He asked me what I had thrown into the canal. I told him a goose. He asked me why I had thrown a goose into the canal. I told him because I was sick and tired of the animal.

"At this stage a sergeant came in to say that they had succeeded in picking up the parcel. They opened it on the inspector's table. It contained a dead baby.

"I pointed out to them that it wasn't my parcel, and that it wasn't my baby, but they hardly took the trouble to disguise the fact that they did not believe me.

"The inspector said it was too grave a case for bail, which, seeing that I did not know a soul in London, was somewhat immaterial. I got them to send a telegram to my young lady to say that I was unavoidably detained in town and passed as quiet and uneventful a Christmas day and boxing day as I ever wish to spend.

"In the end the evidence against me was held to be insufficient to justify a conviction, and I got off on the minor charge of drunk and disorderly. But I lost my situation, and I lost my young lady, and I don't care if I never see a goose again."

We were nearing Liverpool street. He collected his luggage, and taking up his hat made an attempt to put it on his head, but in consequence of the swelling caused by the horseshoe it would not go anywhere near him, and he laid it sadly back upon the seat.

"No," he said quietly. "I can't say that I believe very much in luck."—Jerome K. Jerome in Chicago Tribune.

"Little" Japan.

Possibly it is because Japan is a pet of the American public that she is so frequently spoken of as "little Japan." Among the nations of the earth Japan is not specially little either in area or population. The area of Japan, 147,655 square miles, is larger by 26,000 square miles than that of the United Kingdom. Furthermore, there are 41,000,000 people who are subjects to the mikado against 38,000,000 in the United Kingdom, taking latest census results in both cases. Japan's population is larger than Italy's by fully 10,000,000, while her area is 37,000 miles greater. No one speaks of Italy as "little Italy," although she is not so populous as Japan. Japan has nearly ten times the area and almost 20 times the population of Denmark. Japan is not a "little" country save as compared with such unwieldy masses as the Chinese empire or such a giant as the United States. That she is big enough to hold her own, and more, she has evinced in battle to the amazement of her great antagonist.—Boston Transcript.

Which Is the Cheaper?

When you are willing to pay for brains in your kitchens, the servant girl question will solve itself. Which is cheaper—to employ a girl at $3 per week, who will probably waste, spoil or throw away $10 worth of food, or to pay a competent cook $5 or $6 per week and have all the left overs saved and served up into the most palatable of dishes? One you can trust with your purse and the care of your refrigerator; one who will not only cook, but relieve you of marketing and the worry of each day contriving a new bill of fare.

Unfortunately the demand for such girls is far in excess of the supply.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

RENTING TYPEWRITERS.

The Business Is Profitable, Although Many of the Machines Are Stolen.

There are probably a dozen places in this city where the business of renting new and secondhand typewriters is carried on. Most of these concerns do an excellent business, and many of their lists of machines out on rental average from 150 to 200 names. Nearly all the machines rented are those of a high grade which have been tested by experience in business offices and in shorthand schools.

A strictly new typewriter seldom rents for less than $5 a month, while one that is only slightly damaged brings $4 a month. A machine that can be hired for $3 is considered fit for only a "plug" operator, and such typewriters are rented rarely.

There are upward of 70 shorthand and typewriting schools regularly conducted in this city, with classes of from 10 to 200 students. This does not include the public day and evening schools, numerous public libraries and general educational institutions where such things are taught and scores of private instructors all over the city. Typewriter manufacturers in many instances supply schools with complete outfits of their own machines free of charge as a means of increasing the number of operators thereon, for as soon as a graduate obtains employment he naturally prefers the same kind of typewriter he has used at school. Some operators have to provide machines for themselves. A large number begin by renting a machine, proposing to buy later. Frequently they fail to do so, and the books of a Barclay street house which derives a handsome monthly income from rents of machines show that it is a common occurrence for twice the value of a typewriter to be paid in monthly rentals.

It is not customary for these dealers to require security for the return of a typewriter other than a written agreement stipulating that it shall be delivered to the owners at the expiration of the period of rental in as good condition as when first received, barring the effect of ordinary usage. Hence it is not surprising that typewriter thieves are very common.

"Stealing a typewriter," said the man who looks after the rental department of a large typewriter house in Broadway, "is grand larceny and a state prison offense, yet this and the further fact that an immense number of these culprits have already been sent to penitentiaries in different states do not deter dozens of others every month from making like thefts. We have a standing list of from 100 to 200 typewriters that have been stolen from our branch offices and agents in various sections of the country. Every typewriter has its own number, which cannot be effaced, and whenever we hear that a machine is missing we immediately communicate its number to our representatives in this country and abroad, with instructions to seize the machine when found and to prosecute the person holding it. It is only a matter of time when any typewriter will need adjusting and repairing and will be taken to a repairer, and then the thief is easily apprehended. Thus we actually lose few or no machines."—New York Sun.

Railroad Speed.

In high speeds the United States seems just now to hold the world's records. Neither England nor any other country in the world has any trains as fast, for the distance, as the Empire State express, which runs 440 miles at 50.7 miles an hour, including four stops, or as fast for the distance as the defunct exposition flier of last summer, which ran 964 miles at 48.2 miles an hour, including nine stops.

Among the very fast special runs we find the following pretty authentic records of performances in the United States, which, so far as I know, have not been equaled in England since a run made on the Great Western, in 1848, of 53 miles at 66 miles an hour, and that was not up to the best of those given here: September, 1891, on the New York Central; New York to East Buffalo, 436 miles, at 50.6 miles an hour, including three stops; 1893, same railroad, 21½ miles at the rate of 79.7 miles an hour, no stops; Pennsylvania railroad, 1891, Jersey City to Washington, 227 miles, 54.3 miles an hour, two stops; New York Central, 1893, 60.4 miles at 69.5 miles an hour, no stops.—Scribner's Magazine.

Diamond Coated Boots.

Everybody has remarked that the matter applied to boots and shoes—viz, blacking—is a dull, blue black substance entirely devoid of gloss, but when the leather thus coated is rubbed over with a dry brush the boot begins to shine like a bright luminary. What is the cause of this strange phenomenon is a question which naturally presents itself to every well regulated mind. The diamond, as everybody knows and as recent experiments have abundantly proved, is nothing more or less than crystallized carbon. The chief element in blacking is likewise carbon, in the shape of lampblack. The friction of the dry brush on the leather produces electricity, which has the property of crystallizing carbon. The leather, coated with blacking and brushed, is covered with millions of microscopical diamonds, which give to the blacking its peculiar brilliancy. Accordingly everybody wears diamonds on his boots.—Imperial.

The First Marital Kiss.

If, as seems to be the case, it is to be considered the correct thing for bride and bridegroom to exchange their first marital kiss at the altar, it would be a wise thing to announce the fact through the papers beforehand, along with the number of attendants, list of presents, etc. That would at least prepare the wedding friends for this very beautiful observance. At a largely attended wedding, when the bridegroom at the conclusion of the ceremony kissed his bride, from all quarters of the crowded church came a snicker, which was the more surprising on account of the well bred looks of the gathering. On another occasion the bride herself was taken by surprise and started back in alarm when her newly made husband wished to enter upon his lately acquired privileges on the spot.—Washington Post.

Was Posted.

"A woman couldn't run for office," argued the funny man, "because she can't find her pocket."

"Judging from what I have seen of politics," was his wife's austere rejoinder, "there would be plenty of people to find it for her."—Detroit Tribune.

Philadelphia has the finest city clock in the world. The face, which is 10 yards in diameter, can be seen from every part of the city. The minute hand is 4 yards long and the hour hand a little over half that length.

Men are made rich not by what the world can give, but by what it can't take away.—Ram's Horn.

WARM IN BROOKLYN.

The Street Railway Men's Strike Assumes Angry Proportions.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 16.—It is feared there will be bloodshed if the trolley companies try to run their cars today. For the first time since the struggle began, the strikers made open threats that they would kill anybody who tried to take their places. Moreover, reports came to the police that many of the strikers were arming themselves.

Before the police went out on duty today, by order of Supt. Campbell, every man had to offer his revolver for inspection.

Master Workman John J. Harrigan, who is in charge of some of the strikers at Flat Bush, was arrested this morning. He was charged by Frank Sweetbread, an electrician, with having stoned the Brooklyn Heights Railway Company's repair waggon. At 8.30 o'clock this morning two of the cars which the Brooklyn Heights Company had slipped out on the Flat Bush line came back. A crowd of one hundred strikers met the cars and stoned them. The police under Inspector McKelvey charged them, and the strikers retreated. No arrests were made.

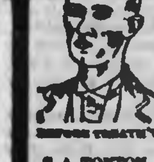
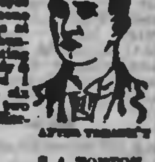
VARICOCELE, EMISSIONS AND SYPHILIS CURED.

W. S. Collins, of Saginaw, Speaks.





"I am 33. At 15 I learned a bad habit which I continued till 23. I then became 'one of the boys' and led a gay life. Exposure produced Syphilis. I became nervous and despondent; no ambition; memory poor; eyes red, sunken and blurr; pimples on face; hair loose, bone pains; weak back; varicocele; dreams and losses at night; weak parts; deposit in urine, etc. I spent hundreds of dollars without help, and was contemplating suicide when a friend recommended Drs. Kennedy & Kergan's New Method Treatment. Thank God I tried it. In two months I was cured. This was six years ago, and never had a return. Was married two years ago and all happy. Boys, try Drs. Kennedy & Kergan before giving up hope."

Among the complaints received was one from Pickering regarding the feeding of diseased horseflesh to pigs and another from Hamilton asking that icemen be prohibited from towing ice through the dirty water of the south side of the bay.

Mrs. Margaret Rowan, wife of Mr. David Rowan of Omemee, died on the 15th inst. Deceased was well and favorably known, and leaves a husband with six children to mourn her loss. Deceased was in her 76th year, and was a consistent member of the Methodist church up to the time of her death. The funeral took place to the Presbyterian cemetery, Emily, yesterday.

A unique method of raising money for church purposes was introduced at a recent Sunday morning's service in the Baptist tabernacle, Ingersoll. The pastor, Rev. J. F. Barker, gave to each person attending the morning service a dollar bill, on the promise that they were to invest it, and at the end of the year 1895 return it along with what it had earned in the meantime. About $100 was passed out.

During the past summer, while engaged packing eggs for Messrs. Dundas & Flavelle Bros., Mr. Albert Pilkie wrote on the shell of a good sound Canadian egg a request as follows: "Will the last purchaser of this egg write to A. E. Pilkie, Lindsay, Ont." The matter was entirely forgotten by him until last week when he was reminded of the fact by receiving a letter from L. J. Meyers, "purveyor to the Right Hon. Lord Rothschild and family," cook and confectioner, 140 Houndsditch, E. C., who stands ready to do business with Mr. Pilkie, and is quite anxious to form a Canadian line of commerce.

WITH THE SPORTS.

Campbellford Will Play Peterborough at the Rink Tonight.

Two events are set down for the rink today and tonight. This morning the first game in the tankard competition in this district will be played, when Campbellford will meet Lakefield on the ice here. Tonight the Campbellford Colts will play a [illegible] game with the Peterborough Colts.

On Monday the second game in the Peterborough-Lindsay challenge cup series will be played, two rinks playing here and two in Lindsay. Skips Connal and [illegible] go to Lindsay and Skips Atrill and Kells play here.

Thorold defeated Niagara Falls at curling on Tuesday by 20 to 15.

Waubaushene defeated Coldwater at hockey last night by 5 to 4.

At Sarnia last night Chatham hockeyists defeated the local players by 6 goals to 0.

The [illegible] at Montreal began yesterday. City [illegible] won the named race, and Dan the [illegible].

Mitchell, the English pugilist, challenges Peter Jackson to fight in May or June next for £1,000 a side.

Port Hope beat Cobourg at hockey on Tuesday night by 3 goals to 1. The latter club complains of the umpire.

Zimmerman, the American champion bicyclist, will leave this country in August on a tour of Australia. Harry Wheeler will go with him.

Port Perry will hold a winter race meet on Jan. 30 and 31. $400 is offered in purses. Port Hope holds two days' ice racing on the same dates.

An order has been given to the Herreshoffs to build an American cup defender. A syndicate composed of Cornelius Vanderbilt, George Gould, C. Oliver Iselin and E. M. Brown will supply the funds.

Manager Maddock has signed two first-class catchers, Fred Lake, who was with Wilkesbarre and Louisville recently, and James Casey, a New England player. Both men are highly recommended. Lake has a batting average of [illegible] and fielding average of [illegible]. Casey led the New England catchers in fielding with an average of 912. He is also a good outfielder. J. J. Moore, a New York State League player, has also been signed. He can play an infield position, is a good base runner, heavy hitter and good fielder. Manager Chapman, of Rochester, was very anxious to get this player. Manager Maddock is after several more promising players. He is now in Boston.

A M'CARTHY MEETING.

D'Alton M'Carthy Invited to Appear in Peterborough at an Early Date.

All the signs point to the early approach of the Dominion elections. The political prophets and the party organs foretell confidently that the present administration will shortly go to the country. Throughout the Dominion the parties are organizing and the various constituencies are placing in nomination their strongest candidates. Everywhere there is that air of preparation and unsettling that precedes an election.

The fight in West Peterborough will probably be a three-cornered one. The supporters and political sympathisers of Mr. D'Alton McCarthy have arranged to hold a meeting in the Opera House about two weeks hence, at which Mr. McCarthy will be present and deliver an address. He will probably be accompanied by Mayor Stewart, of Hamilton. Mr. McCarthy's object in coming will be to organize his party followers and nominate a candidate.

As has been stated the Hon. Mr. Haggart has been invited to visit Peterborough early in February and address a public meeting. He will be accompanied by Hon. Mr. Patterson and several of the lesser lights. The visit of the ministers will awaken interest in the Trent Valley Canal project. What they will have to say regarding the section between Peterborough and Lakefield will be especially interesting. Mr. James Stevenson is doing all in his power to arrange the meeting, and if it does not come off, it will not be that gentleman's fault. As things are, it looks as if the entire section of the canal will be under contract early in the spring, which means a great deal to Peterborough.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

Anti-Toxine as a Preventive.

Dr. Gilchrist, of Orillia, who has been superintending the relief operations at Sebright, where an epidemic of diphtheria occurred, has reported to Dr. Bryce that there were 32 cases and eight persons succumbed to the disease. He expresses the opinion that anti-toxine is perfect as a preventive. It was administered to 16 persons who had been exposed to infection and not a single person was attacked by the disease. Dr. Gilchrist advises that the anti-toxine be administered early in the disease, before there is much systemic poisoning.

Don't Put it Off.

A word in season in regard to the advance arrangement for seats at the Burns Anniversary Concert on the evening of the 23rd instant. The safe way is to secure seats in the reserved section of the hall as early as possible. The earlier the better—in order to avoid extra trouble when the greatest rush begins next Monday. It is anticipated that few seats will be left unmarked on the plans. Interest in this local event is growing and it is more than probable that the present expectations of the influential managing committee will be fully realised. See advt.

The Tramp Nuisance.

Over in Schenectady, N. Y., the authorities have adopted a plan to abate the tramp nuisance with success. Ablebodied tramps, who apply for meals and a night's lodgings, are required to give half a day's work to the corporation in return for the accommodation. During one month, parts of November and half of December, 82½ days' work were performed under this plan, breaking stone for next summer's use. Somehow the news of the corporation's rule has become known to the tramping crowd, with the result that during the last half of December only a very limited number applied for accommodations. This a pointer for Peterborough.

A Polite Young Lady.

There was a scene yesterday at that particularly windy corner of Hunter and George streets. A very fashionable young man had just come out into the wind from the shelter of the buildings, when the gale took his hat and whirled it off down the street at a terrible rate. The young man looked helplessly after it. In the midst of its flight it chanced to pass near a very pretty girl on the sidewalk. She made a run for it, caught it and actually started a little towards the young man with it; and, as he presently came trotting up, she took out her handkerchief, dusted the hat and handed it to the young with a bow. He was actually too much dumbfounded by the proceeding to utter a word of thanks. He merely took the hat and thrust it foolishly on his head, while the young lady, with a faint smile on her pretty face, walked away.

County Council.

The County Council will meet next week. The personnel of the body was somewhat changed at the recent elections and is now as follows: Ashburnham—John Burnham, reeve; Asphodel—Wm. Buck, reeve, Samuel Scott, deputy reeve; Belmont—J. B. Peoples, reeve, J. Oranger, deputy reeve; Burleigh, etc.—A. Brown, reeve; Chandos—Wm. Hales, reeve; Dummer, Ed. Hawthorne, reeve, Henry Moore, deputy reeve; Douro—John Moloney, reeve. Note—In Douro, the deputy is elected by the council at first meeting, which has not yet been held. Ennismore—Wm. Crough reeve; Galway, etc.—M. Mansfield, reeve; Harvey—R. Shaw, reeve; Lakefield—W. H. Casement, reeve; Monaghan North—Jas. Foster, reeve; Norwood—J. B. Pearce, reeve. Note—The representative of Norwood is subject to the recount that is said to be held. Otonabee—Wm. Anderson, reeve; Thos. J. Johnson, 1st deputy reeve; J. Lancaster, 2nd deputy reeve; Smith—Jas. Middleton, reeve; Wm. McIlmoyle, deputy reeve.

THE INSPECTORSHIP.

Committee on Appointments Asks Mr. Garvin to Resign.

The Committee on Appointments of the Board of Education met in the Board room of the Central school on Wednesday night, when the case of School Inspector Garvin was dealt with. It was decided to request Mr. Garvin to send in his resignation to take effect on July 1st next.

There has been for some time past a division of opinion among the members of the Board on the question of creating a permanent inspectorship. It is not proposed to do away with that office, although some of the members are in favor of such a step, claiming it will effect a saving equal to the salary of the Inspectorship. This friction had its origin prior to Mr. Garvin's engagement. The strong feeling that existed when Dr. Tilley was dismissed will be remembered. That gentleman fulfilled the duties at a salary of $300 per year, and his dismissal was the result of a prevalent feeling that the interests and welfare of the schools would be better looked after by the engagement of a permanent inspector, who would supervise the supplies and expenses, keep an eye on the teachers, seeing to their efficiency and work, and, in a word, keep all the departments up to that mark of perfection that would not be maintained were the schools allowed to operate without a directing head.

Before Mr. Garvin's appointment, Mr. Wm. Smith, one of the head masters, was entrusted with the supervising duties. This met the views of those who were not in favor of a permanent inspector, and naturally when Mr. Garvin was appointed, the hostility of these, together with Mr. Smith's friends, was incurred, and has existed ever since.

The reason assigned for the inspector's dismissal. is not so much his recent absence from duties, as it is a desire for a change. The inspector has not been popular with some of the members and some of the teachers. His recent absence in North Simcoe has afforded occasion for decisive action and the culmination of the hostile feeling that has existed right along. For the reason given above the hostilities, doubtless, would have been directed toward the permanent inspector had he been other than Mr. Garvin, although perhaps a different man might have turned an existing prejudice into favor.

However, the matter has reached a decisive stage. Mr. Garvin may have done things that he should not have done, and he may have filled the position ably and well. In either event (and this journal neither upholds nor condemns him) Mr. Garvin should, in all fairness, be given a hearing before the Board takes action.

Death of Mrs. Dr. Knight.

The death of Mrs. Susan Knight, wife of Dr. James Knight, formerly of Bloomfield, Ont., occurred at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. S. G. Aselstine, artist, 308 Water street. Deceased was in her 60th year. She leaves a husband, two daughters and two sons. Mrs. S. G. Aselstine is the eldest daughter of the deceased, and her sister was visiting with her at the time of their mother's death. One son resides in Washington and the other in Chicago. Deceased was a most estimable and Christian lady, and her death will be greatly mourned by sorrowing friends and relatives. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 308 Water street.

THE MARKET SCALES.

Editor Morning Times.

SIR—I desire to say a word through the columns of THE TIMES about the public weighing machine. On December 10th last I had a horse weighed, and got a ticket giving the weight of the animal at 1030 pounds. I fed the horse on the best, and when I got the animal into what I considered good condition, so far as fat is concerned, I again had him weighed, expecting, of course, to see a large increase in weight. Imagine my astonishment when I read the figures—1010 pounds.

Now, Mr. Editor, I think, if those scales are so eccentric, as they appear by this record, it is time we purchased a new machine. The public depend on those scales, more than all others, for being correct. They can judge for themselves, from the above, how badly they are out.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM CROFT.

SEVERELY THRASHED.

What Happened a Peterborough Man While Removing a Piano.

The removal of a piano was the cause of an exciting episode in Omemee a day or so ago. Jackson & Company had a piano in the Caldwell House, which they desired removed and B. M. Wyllie was given the necessary authority to do the job. Wyllie went to Omemee accompanied by Mr. Butler, and when they arrived at the Cardwell House they found that Mr. Cardwell was in Peterborough.

However, they decided to get out the piano, and experienced no trouble in shifting it to the top of the stairs. To get it down the stairs was too big a job, and Wyllie went out to get assistance. While out on this mission he was attacked and given a sound thrashing by unknown parties and so severely that he has been confined to his home ever since.

In the meantime the piano was removed from the stairs but on the day following was given up to the owners.

TURNBULL'S

As we enter the New Year we wish our many customers in town and country a happy and prosperous one.

January is our annual Stocktaking month and we must be finished by the 1st of February and we are now measuring and throwing out all odd lines on tables, to be cleared before that date. Such as

Ends of Dress Goods
Ends of Tweeds
Ends of Shirtings
Ends of Prints
Ends ofCarpets
Ends of Cottons
Ends of Cretonnes
Ends of Embroideries
Ends of Laces
Ends of Ribbbons

These are all good, fresh goods, only in remnants and will be sold at remnant prices, We have still about 180 suits of that very heavy all wool Underclothing at $1 a suit. Sold everywhere at $1 50 Everyone who needs a suit of heavy underwear should see them.

The balance of our Sealettes, Heavy Curls and Mantles have been going steadily at the prices they were marked since we last talked about them, but we have still a few good Mantles and Cloths left, which some one will get a bargain of. We show a window of all styles of Hats and Placques, your choice for 35 cents. We prefer to sell them at this price rather than pack them away.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread-board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

A BRUTE OF A FATHER.

ON TRIAL IN TORONTO FOR A REVOLTING CRIME.

His Heinous Conduct Towards His Daughters Who Refuse to Testify Against Him, is Rape—One Daughter Locked Up for Refusing to Give Evidence.

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—In the Criminal Assize Court today John H. Mitchell was inducted by the grand jury on two charges of rape, two of indecent assault and one of incest. His own daughters, Katie and Agnes, are the ones concerned. Mr. C. J. McCabe, his council, asked for a postponement on the ground that his son, William, is in the States. He was said to be "the only witness that can help" the prisoner, the rest of his family being turned against him."

Judge Street considered the affidavit for postponement insufficient, especially since the case was brought over from a former court and there was time to get his evidence.

After five jurymen had been challenged by the defence, Mitchell was tried for committing rape upon his daughter Katie, May 29th last. Mitchell lived at 281 Queen street east with his four children, his wife having died in the summer of '93.

Katie, a pretty girl, 16 years of age, who is in charge of the Children's Shelter on Adelaide street, burst into tears as she went into the box, and Mr. Lount waited until she was able to speak. Before she was taken there she lived at 105 Amelia street. She was brought into court by the Rev. Mr. Starr, who carefully looked after her. It was with the utmost difficulty that the story was drawn from her, as she cried almost continuously. Finally his Lordship advised her kindly, but firmly, to immediately answer all questions. After that matters went on more rapidly.

During the recital of the shameful story it was remarkable that three women sat in the court room listening to it. Others had been in, but they had the delicacy to withdraw.

SHE WOULDN'T ANSWER.

The girl again refused to answer questions and Mr. Lount asked the court if he might ask her if any one told her not to answer as he understood she had been so instructed. The Judge said she must answer before she left the room. Then Mr. McCabe said that he objected to any leading questions because "the defence understood that this girl had been egged on to tell this story."

Then she was given a chair down on the floor up against the jury box with the two lawyers bending over her to catch her sobbing answers, Mr. Lount being allowed to put leading questions. Finally she was put back into the box and Mr. Justice Street told her that if she didn't answer he would have to punish her by sending her to jail; but he then ruled that the question must not be leading. But the girl refused to answer further and she was taken to the ante-room so that she might become composed. There she became more hysterical than before and it was found impossible to go on with the trial for the present. The jurymen were taken to another room in charge of an officer.

ON ANOTHER CHARGE.

Meanwhile Mitchell was put upon trial for alleged rape upon his daughter Aggie, aged 14, on the 7th of June last. At first it seemed as if she, too, would prove a contumacious witness, and sure enough she was such. His Lordship said he would punish her if she didn't answer the questions. She persistently refused and wouldn't even lift her head when told to do so.

Said his Lordship—"I'll give you two or three minutes to answer and if you don't I'll send you to jail. It is contempt of court."

Aggie wouldn't answer and then the judge sentenced her to the Mercer Reformatory for one month. She was taken charge of by the officers and locked up. The jury was discharged and Mr. McCabe moved for the discharge of the prisoner on this charge but his Lordship declined to do so.

Katie was then sent for and the jury in that case again put into the box. She refused to come in and court then adjourned for luncheon.

DEMPSEY AND RYAN

To Meet for the World's Welter Weight Championship.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Jack Dempsey and Tommy Ryan will meet tonight for the welter weight championship of the world. Ryan is in the best possible condition. Dempsey is said to be in better shape than he was at New Orleans when their meeting was postponed by the accident to Andy Bowen.

Ryan is a trifle the favorite in betting. His backers want even money, while Dempsey's patrons want odds. Dickson is liked for the go with Griffo tomorrow night.

Ice in the Niagara.

YOUNGSTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Niagara river has been full of ice for the last three days. On Tuesday night at five o'clock there was a gorge at Johnson's dock that raised the ice about 20 feet. After struggling for several hours it broke loose below and is now running into the lake at the rate of two miles an hour. Should there be wind from the north and colder weather there will be one of the worst ice bridges in years.

An Embargo Laid.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The State Department has been informed that the Hamburg authorities have forbidden the importation of cattle and swine from England and Ireland. Inasmuch as a large proportion of the American cattle entering Germany go through England this will be another severe blow at our cattle interests and our trade with continental Europe.

Hurricane in the Fiji Group.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Jan. 18.—Advices received here from the Fiji Islands report that a terrible hurricane has swept over the whole group, doing great damage to shipping. In addition many lives were lost, a number of buildings were destroyed, plantations were ruined, and of five churches at Suya three collapsed.

The Duke of Argyle.

GLASGOW, Jan. 18.—The condition of the Duke of Argyle was not so favorable this morning. His strength is somewhat lessened, and he is very feverish.

Revolution in Greece.

LONDON, Jan. 18.—At the banking house of the Rothschild, it is stated that a telegram was received on the stock exchange, saying that a revolution had broken out in Greece.

The Duke of Argyle has retired from public life.

PLOTTED HIS DEATH.

One Correspondent Betrays Another to the Japanese as a Spy—So Says Villiers.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 18.—The steamer Empress of Japan, which arrived at Vancouver from the Orient, numbers Frederic Villiers, war correspondent, among the passengers. Villiers says De Guerville, the correspondent, plotted against the life of James Creelman, of the World, and says he will drive him from the New York Press Club and city. Villiers confirms Creelman's story about the butchery at Port Arthur, and says that after the war is over he looks for the interference of Russia and, perhaps England. When Villiers and Creelman were taken prisoners by the Japanese, they were liberated by English intervention. Villiers says that proofs are clear that De Guerville tried to betray Creelman into the hands of the Japanese and have him killed as a spy.

The World's correspondent is a relative of Barrister A. R. Creelman of this city.

M. Faure will inaugurate his Presidency by placing $4,600 into the fund for the relief of the poor of Paris.

Among the passengers on the Majestic from Liverpool for New York are Mrs. Coleman Drayton and Mr. and Mrs. Beerbohm Tree.

Prince Lobanoff Rostovski, Russian Ambassador to Austria, has been appointed to succeed Count Schouvaloff as Russian Ambassador to Germany.

The second reading of the motion to repeal the anti-Jesuit law was carried in the German Reichstag yesterday.

IN A BAD WAY.

Another Demonstration of Unemployed at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Jan. 18.—A couple of thousand unemployed again visited the City hall today clamoring for work or bread.

The city has no means to aid them, but the Mayor promised to try and get the Canadian Pacific railway to start work on their new station.

A subscription fund has been started by individual citizens.

Philadelphia's Boodlers.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—A special from Philadelphia to the Times says: "It is possible there is trouble ahead for certain corrupt members of the city council. One of them is said to be ready to 'squeal.' However that may be, the municipal league and the citizens' committee of '95 are going through the records so carefully that a considerable number of trips to Europe or Southern California are already talked of.

A BAND OF OUTLAWS.

THE FRENCH GANG TERRORIZING SETTLERS IN THE INDIAN TERRITORY.

An Indian Murders a White Woman and Throws Her in a River—The Brooklyn Strike Ended—Lively Scene in Thorold Council.

MUSKOGEE, I.T., Jan. 18.—The French gang of outlaws, headed by Jim French and Sam Williams, the most desperate man of the gang, appeared at the house of a Mr. Glad, ten miles out from Fort Gibson, and demanded admittance, and just because Glad did not respond quick enough to suit them they began shooting from their Winchesters into the house.

Two of the bullets struck Glad in the arm, fracturing it, and two more caught Mrs. Glad just above the elbow, severing her arm.

During the melee, a daughter of the old folks attempted to make her escape. Before she reached 20 feet from the house she sank to the ground with two bullets in her body from the Winchesters of the outlaws.

The outlaws then rode away, apparently satisfied.

A CRUEL MURDER.

MALONE, N.Y., Jan. 18.—The trial of Isaac White, a St. Regis Indian from the reservation in the northern part of Franklin County which has been in progress for a week, has concluded with a verdict of murder in the first degree. The prisoner was charged with the murder of Mary Ann Lafrance with whom he lived, in August last. The woman was the mother of two small children.

The evidence was entirely circumstantial and went to show that White chased the woman from the house in her night clothes, and dealt her a blow on the head completely crushing the skull and face.

After having carefully tied up the body and weighted it with a cutter bar from a mowing machine he put it into a wagon and drove it to the St. Regis river, and rowing out to the deepest part of the water he threw the body overboard.

He was sentenced to be electrocuted at Dannemora prison March 20.

THE STRIKE ENDED.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Jan. 18.—Trolley cars on the Dekalb avenue line are running on schedule time. The company conceded to the men that they should run one-third of their cars as "trippers" and guaranteed that the men in charge of these cars would be paid $1.50 per day.

They also agreed that the regular men should work only ten hours a day and be paid for their "standing time" at the end of their trips. In consideration of this, the men agreed to work for $2 per day.

A THOROLD SENSATION.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 18.—At the final session of the Thorold Town Council a somewhat lively scene was witnessed which showed how hard some men die.

After the general business had been transacted, Reeve McClenchy introduced a motion embodying a vote of thanks to the retiring mayor.

To the surprise and astonishment of all, Councillor Fraser refused to support the vote of thanks to Mayor Williams, and somewhat forcibly informed the Council that he didn't want any vote of thanks from them, either. He referred to the mayor's action in opposing his efforts to reduce the clerk's salary, and ended by saying the mayor didn't deserve any vote of thanks.

Nevertheless the motion was carried.

Just before the adjournment the Council was treated to another surprise. An account of Town Solicitor Casey's, amounting to $35, had been passed, when Bailiff Wilocker walked in and clapped a garnishee for $25 on it at the instance of an Ottawa firm.

TALKED OF DISSOLUTION.

Informally Did the Cabinet Discuss the Question.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—A meeting of the Cabinet was held this morning at 11 o'clock, at which the Premier and all the Ministers, except Patterson, Montague, Dickey and Ferguson, were present.

The question of dissolution was informally discussed, but at 1.30, the hour of adjournment, nothing definite had been decided on, and it is believed that it will take some days to settle the question.

During the past week or so there have been numbers of Conservative members here protesting against an election, as they feel weak at this particular time. Like Micawber, they are waiting for something to turn up.

AN INHUMAN BRUTE.

Threw a Kettle of Boiling Water on His Wife and Child.

SANDWICH, Ont., Jan. 18.—Peter Tetreau attempted a terrible crime the other day. His wife and little daughter reside at Sandwich and when the brutal man gets filled with bad whiskey he uses them in an inhuman manner. He seized a kettle filled with boiling water and attempted to throw the contents upon them.

He partly succeeded, but the mother escaped from the house with the child in her arms, screaming for help. One of the neighbors came to her rescue. After a struggle in which both were badly scalded the kettle of boiling water was taken from the frenzied man.

He was arrested and given twenty days in the county jail by Mayor Girardot.

Pelagic Sealing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—It is believed that steps may be taken to secure Great Britain's consent to a modification of the Paris award, having for its object the total suspension, for a specified number of years, of pelagic sealing within the Behring Sea. No measure less heroic than this, it is said, can prevent the ultimate extinction of seal life in those northern waters.

A Train Wrecked.

RENO, NEVADA, Jan. 18.—The overland passenger train bound west is wrecked at White Plains, about twenty miles east of Wadsworth. One brakesman was killed.

Another Defaulter.

PLYMOUTH, MASS., Jan. 18.—J. A. Patten, for many years superintendent of the Russell Mills here, who has been missing for the past five weeks, has been declared a defaulter to the amount of $6,000 or $8,000.

A Child's Mishap.

HESPELER, Jan. 18.—The three-year-old son of Mr. R. Mitchell fell from a chair and broke his collarbone. He is getting along nicely.

MOWAT CANNOT PROHIBIT

PROVINCES NOT EMPOWERED TO PASS A PROHIBITION LAW.

A BLOW TO TEMPERANCE.

The Decision of the Supreme Court—Even the Marter Bill Cannot Be Passed—The Local Option Law is also Declared Unconstitutional.

OTTAWA, Jan. 15.—The Supreme Court met this morning, when there were present Judges Taschereau, Fournier, Gwynne, Sedgewick and King. Judgment was given in the constitutional case referred by the Governor General in Council, involving the question whether the Provincial Legislature had power to totally prohibit the liquor traffic. By a majority of three to two the Court decided that the Provincial Legislatures had not the power.

Seven questions were submitted in the reference, which, with the answers given by the Court to the Court today, read as follows:

1. "Has a provincial legislature power to prohibit the sale within the province of intoxicating liquors?"

To this the Chief Justice and Judge Fournier answered yes, and Judges Gwynne, Sedgewick and King no, so that the judgment of the court is no by three to two.

2. "Has the legislature such jurisdiction regarding such portions of the province as to which the Canada Temperance Act is not in operation?"

The court answered the question the same as the first.

3. "Has the Provincial Legislature jurisdiction to prohibit the manufacture of such liquors within the province?"

The Court was unanimous in answering this question in the negative.

4. "Has the Legislature jurisdiction to prohibit the importation of such liquors into the province?"

Answered unanimously in the negative.

5. If the legislature has not the jurisdiction to prohibit the sales of such liquors irrespective of quantities have they power to prohibit the retail sale?

This important question was answered in the negative, the Chief Justice and Fournier dissenting.

6. "If the local legislature has a limited jurisdiction to prohibit sales subject to the limits provided by the Scott act?"

The court answered no, the Chief Justice and Fournier dissenting.

LOCAL OPTION UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

Seventh—Has the Ontario Legislature jurisdiction to enact the Local Option Act?

Answer—No, the Chief Justice and Fournier dissenting.

In the case of Huson vs. the Township of South Norwich, decided some time ago, the question of the validity of a by-law prohibiting the retail sale of liquor within the township under the authority of the Ontario Local Option Act was involved. The liquor dealers in that case appealed on the ground that the Ontario Local Option Act was ultra vires. The court dismissed the appeal, Gwynne and Sedgewick dissenting. In that case the court held by a majority that the Ontario Local Option Act was constitutional, whereas today, in the prohibition reference the majority of the court held that the act was unconstitutional.

M. FAURE IS PRESIDENT.

FRANCE ELECTS A SUCCESSOR TO CASIMIR-PERIER.

French Politics Mixed—The Ex-President Breaks Down and Weeps—Paris Excited—An Unexpected Turn of Events.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Vendors of all kinds are forbidden to cry their wares before 8 o'clock in the morning, but yesterday and today newsboys were allowed to begin before daylight. Some of the newspapers say that Casimir-Perier was physically incapable, never having recovered from the shock he received from the death of his friend, M. Burdeau, president of the Chamber of Deputies.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon President Brisson, of the Chamber of Deputies, presented the message of Casimir-Perier to that body.

The reading of the message was followed by a regular babel. M. Fabre shouted "So much the worse for him." M. Garran de Balzan shouted: "It is desertion of the Republic." "Vive la Republique," chorused the members of the Left, and as the Chamber adjourned after a ten minute session the Socialists cried "Vive Revolution Sociale."

It is believed that the irresponsibility of Presidents is a thing of the past, and the resignation of M. Casimir Perier will probably cause other radical changes in the constitution.

PARIS EXCITED.

The provinces seem to be indifferent as to the situation, but Paris is greatly excited. The latest betting in the clubs is 5 to 1 against Dupuy, 11 to 2 against Waldeck-Rousseau, 100 to 4 against Loubet and 100 to 3 against Challemel-Lacour.

Upon his arrival at Versailles Challemel-Lacour, who, as president of the Senate, presides over the National Assembly, was conveyed to the palace in an open carriage. The friends of M. M. Brisson and Waldeck-Rousseau are confident in their claims that their respective favorites will receive [illegible] votes each on the first ballot, the remaining votes going to M. Faure. If this is true it is likely that M. Faure will retire on the first ballot, and request his friends to vote for Waldeck-Rousseau.

There was a great deal of canvassing in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday in behalf of Premier Dupuy, but wagers of 2 to 1 were freely laid against him in the clubs last night.

"VIVE LE ROI."

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The Royalist, whose activity is fomented by the Duc d'Haussonville, received seven telegrams from the Duc d'Orleans during the night in regard to the latter's manifesto, which will be issued today.

Prince Victor Napoleon is reported to be preparing a manifesto, which, it is understood, will be given out today. Orders have been given at the frontier to prevent the importation of these documents into France.

POOR CASIMIR-PERIER.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette says: When the report of the scene in the Chamber of Deputies on the occasion of the reading of the President's message of resignation reached the palace of the Elysee last evening, M. Casimir Perier broke down completely and cried bitterly for some time. His physician says he will need several months of absolute rest before he will be the same man he was when he was elected President last June.

A force of 800 detectives has gone to Versailles and the strength of the police has been greatly increased, it being feared that the Anarchists will seize the opportunity afforded by the crisis to indulge in bomb-throwing and other outrages peculiar to the sect.

THE BALLOTING COMMENCES.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—The National Assembly was called to order at one o'clock. At 1.17 o'clock 26 scrutineers were drawn to supervise the balloting.

When Baudry D'Asson voted he shouted "Vive Catholic France. Vive le Roi."

SOCIALIST FURY.

Socialists are furious at the refusal of the Government to temporarily release Gerault Richard, who is in prison for insulting President Casimir-Perier and was elected a deputy while in prison. Deputy Carnaud, who was arrested in Roanne on Tuesday, was released today, and voted in the Assembly, as did also M. Rouadet and Jaures, who were recently expelled from the chamber.

When M. Toussaint, Socialist, deposited his vote in the urn he cried "Vive Social Revolution," and when the name of M. Aves, Social Revolutionist, was called he refused to vote but shouted from his seat "Abstention means dissolution — down with the Presidency.

RESULT OF FIRST BALLOT.

The result of the first ballot was officially announced as follows:—Brisson, 338; Faure, 244; Waldeck-Rousseau, 184. Total number of votes cast, 794. Necessary to choice, 398.

It is expected Waldeck-Rousseau will retire in favor of Faure, in which case the latter will probably be elected.

WALDECK-ROUSSEAU WITHDRAWS.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—M. Waldeck Rousseau has announced that he withdraws from the contest in favor of Faure, who will, without doubt, be elected in consequence of Waldeck-Rousseau's action.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—Faure is elected.

POISONED.

A Young Man Drinks Poison in His Tea—It Was Prepared by His Wife—An Investigation Will be Held.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 17.—A case of poisoning has occurred at Merritton that has caused some excitement.

It appears that Alfred Price, who works at the Riordan Paper Mills, was taken sick on Saturday evening after taking a drink of tea which had been brought to him by his wife.

After a severe fit of vomiting he lost consciousness and lay in a room alone till nine in the evening, when he regained his senses and managed to make his condition known.

Dr. Campbell, of Thorold, who examined the man at his home, said the patient was suffering from arsenical poisoning. He asked for the remains of the man's dinner, was told by the wife that she had thrown it out and washed the pail.

CANNOT ACCOUNT FOR IT.

Mrs. Price, who is a pretty woman, with large, dark eyes, cannot account for her husband's illness, and says she partook of a portion of the same brewing of tea which poisoned her husband.

Price and his brother George both think he was poisoned, and the latter declares he will have thorough a investigation.

The couple have always lived happily together.

DETECTIVE FLYNN ARRESTED.

A Scandalous Story that Resulted in a Charge of Perjury.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—The case of Maggie Connell, alias Matilda Flynn, charged with vagrancy, was before Judge [illegible] this morning. The accused had stated in a recent deposition that she was an illegitimate daughter of Dective Flynn.

She told a different story this morning, when she said she had come from Pattison, Pa., some time ago at the instance of a friend who had told her she could earn from $6 to $8 a week type writing. Coming here, she had been unable to obtain employment and after three weeks or so her friend had suggested that she should do as other girls in her position did. She had taken the friend's advice.

Some time afterwards Grand Trunk Detective Flynn took her from the house where she had been staying, and kept her privately. Flynn's wife discovering what was going on, had left her husband and through the Society for the Protection of Women and Children preferred a charge of vagrancy against the girl.

Flynn was called in Court this morning but did not answer until a Bench warrant had been issued, which the officers were proceeding to execute, when they met Flynn coming to court, whither he accompanied them.

Judge Dugas ordered him to be detained on a charge of perjury. It appears Flynn has stated in evidence that the girl was his natural daughter.

MOB OF UNEMPLOYED.

Darlington's Anarchist Epistle—Mayor Villeneuve's Opinion.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—Three thousand unemployed workingmen gathered outside the Montreal City Hall this morning and threatened to invade the building and proceed to violence if their demand for work was not complied with. The demonstration was the third of its kind that has taken place in the city within the last few weeks.

Mayor Villeneuve expressed his sympathy with those who were out of employment. He pointed out, however, that many of those who posed as unemployed were not in need of work. They labored all summer and saved enough money to keep them all winter. The city had done its best to give employment. He suggested that the requisition be presented to him to [illegible] him to call a mass meeting at the Board of Trade rooms tomorrow. A requisition was immediately signed and presented to the Mayor.

THE BOOT ON THE OTHER FOOT.

A Newspaper Recovers a Verdict for Libel Against an Ottawa Alderman.

OTTAWA, Jan. 17.—The Evening Journal opposed the re-election of Alderman McLean in the aldermanic contest of 1892. Ald. McLean secured his seat and published a letter hinting that the Journal was purchasable. That paper immediately instituted libel proceeding, and in March D'Alton McCarthy pleaded that the printing company was not an individuality and Judge Falconbridge non-suited the newspaper.

On appeal Ald. McLean pleaded in September that he had not mentioned the paper by name. The jury disagreed, and on a third trial judgment went today for the Journal for $200 and costs of the numerous trials, which will be very heavy.

Lord Randy's Illness.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The bulletin issued by Lord Randolph Churchill's physicians at 10.25 this evening stated that the failure of his heart is very marked and the patient's weakness is increasing.

Electrics Beaten.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—The hockey match tonight between the Electrics, of Ottawa, and the Shamrocks was won by the latter after an exciting contest by 7 to 3.

No Doubt About It.

A Mimico, Ont., Man Speaks from Experience.

HIS SUFFERINGS, MISERY AND AGONIES ARE BANISHED.

He Says: "Paine's Celery Compound Has Made Me A New Man."

The strong testimony of men and women who have endured sufferings and agonies from disease for months and years, is always the means of rescuing and saving the lives of others who suffer, and who have not found the true means of escape from death.

Mr. Wm. Wilson, of Mimico, Ont., desires to point every sufferer to that true life-giver, Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that can truly banish disease and suffering and give a new and happy life; he writes as follows:—

"When Heaven sends into the world an agency for banishing suffering, misery and disease, I think every afflicted human being should know of it.

"I thank God that in my time of pain and suffering my attention was directed to Paine's Celery Compound. For months I was in such a condition that I could not work. My trouble was pain between the shoulders and general weakness of body. I went to several doctors but their medicines were used in vain.

"I continued in suffering and agony until I was recommended Paine's Celery Compound. The first two bottles I used worked wonderfully in relieving my pain. I gained strength and had an assurance of brighter days.

"I have continued with the marvellous medicine until the time of writing, and feel myself a new man. I can positively affirm that Paine's Celery Compound has been the means of saving me from being crippled in body. It is a medicine that I can honestly recommend to every sufferer, and I can never forget what it has done for me."

"BILL" COOK CAPTURED.

THE DARING DESPERADO AT LAST LODGED IN JAIL.

A Sheriff on His Trial for Three Weeks—The Noted Outlaw Makes no Resistance

Special to the Times.

MUSKOGEE, Jan. 14.—A telegram was received here today saying that Bill Cook had been captured at Fort Stanton, New Mexico. Although Cook was supposed to be with that part of his gang which has been camping in the neighborhood of Fort Gibson recently, he has not been seen for some time and it is probable the New Mexico marshall has captured the man who for so long a time defied the Indian Territory authorities.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 14.—Bill Cook, train robber, murderer and all round desperado was captured near Fort Stanley, Lincoln Co., New Mexico, last Friday night by Sheriff Perry of Chavis County. Cook when he found that escape was impossible admitted his identity and decided to return to Oklahama without any formality. Perry spent over three weeks in the saddle with only a few trusted aides accompanying him and these did not know the true nature of his trip into the Western country.

NO NEW CARDINALS UNTIL APRIL.

The Pope's Encyclical Regarding Spread of the Faith Sent to Paris.

ROME, Jan. 17.—The date of the next Consistory has not been fixed. If it takes places in February it will deal exclusively with the appointment of Bishops.

It is stated in the highest circles that the Pope will not create any new Cardinals before April.

The encyclical dealing with the spread of the faith was sent to Paris recently.

Impaled on a Tree.

SAN MIGUEL, Cal., Jan. 17.—A cyclone visited this section last night, doing considerable damage. One fatality is reported, that of Hubert Peck. His buggy was overturned, breaking two of his ribs and a flying tree pierced his lungs. The Parkfield stage was overturned, but the passengers escaped injury. Telegraph poles were thrown to the ground and wires prostrated.

Oiling the Voice.

The voices of singers need an occasional "oiling," and some peculiar remedies have been in vogue among the singers which it is interesting to know. When Gallmeyer, the famous soubrette, visited England she confessed that she treated her throat before each performance to a good rubbing with rum and glycerine. This statement led to further investigations in this line with the following results: Labatt, the great Swedish tenor, ate two salt pickles before going on to sing. Wachtel used the yolk of an egg with sugar.

Other noted vocal stars drink beer, champagne, soda water or punch. Walter, the tenor, drinks cold coffee without cream, and Geistinger relies on a glass of grog. Zelia Trebelli, the famous contralto who died not long ago, always drank lemonade before she went on the stage. Kinderman chewed dried prunes during the intervals and Sontheim swore by a pinch of snuff before each aria. Some singers who are passionate smokers refrain from smoking on the days on which they are to sing, while a number of cantatrices believe that their voices are vastly improved by the smoking of a cigarette just before the curtain rises.—Million.

THE JOKE ON THE VENTRILOQUIST.

He Stirred Up the Passengers on an "L" Train, but Had to Leave the Car.

A ventriloquist had great fun the other night on a Sixth avenue elevated train and at the same time put a train guard in danger of being attacked by a score of indignant passengers. Then he was warned that he had better leave the car.

It was a rainy night, and the train was crowded with passengers going down town. In the rear car every seat was taken when the train left Ninety-third street station in Columbus avenue. In one of the rear seats was a person who appeared to be enjoying a calm sleep.

Just as the train was approaching the Seventy-second street station a voice at the forward door cried out:

"Fifty ninth street. Change cars for Ninth avenue."

The voice was clear and resonant. Every one in the car heard it, an unusual thing on elevated trains, as every one knows. A dozen passengers who thought they had been carried beyond their stations at Seventy-second and Sixty-sixth streets hurried toward the door, and as many more who wanted to change cars at Fifty-ninth street joined in the forward movement. Passengers for Seventy-second and Sixty-sixth streets were angry because they believed they would have to go back in the rain.

As the head of the procession reached the door the train guard poked in his head and called:

"Seventy-second street."

The train halted with a jerk which threw a half dozen passengers off their feet. There was a struggle at the door between those who wanted to get off the train and those who didn't, and by the time the train moved forward there were a dozen passengers angry enough to assault the conductor.

"What in thunder do you mean by this performance?" demanded one of them as he approached the conductor. "Why did you call out Fifty-ninth street when the train was at Seventy-second?"

"But I didn't," said the train guard.

"Yes, you did!" shouted the angry passengers in a chorus, and one big man put himself in a position to attack the guard.

"But I know he didn't," piped a shrill voice just under the roof of the car.

Every one looked up in astonishment, and the amazement was increased when a voice which seemed to come from beneath the car floor said soothingly: "Calm yourselves, calm yourselves, gentlemen. I called out the station."

The passengers, recognizing the situation, retreated to their seats and began looking around. Then suspicion began to fall upon the sleepy man in the rear corner. A big man, the one who wanted to fight the train guard, went over to him and said:

"That was a fine joke, but don't you think you had better get off at the next station?"

Did Hannibal Use Dynamite?

Every one knows the story of how Hannibal crossed the Alps. It is usually asserted that he demolished the rocks which opposed his passage with the aid of fire and vinegar. The word used by the Latin historians, and which is ordinarily called in English translation "vinegar," is acetum.

The question has been raised by Lieutenant Colonel Hennebert in France whether this is the true meaning of the original. He thinks that by acetum the historians intended to describe a substance resembling dynamite in its properties, and he invites chemists to consider the question whether the ancients may not have possessed a formula for making a powerful explosive of this kind.

He calls attention to the fact that two ancient historians, Marcus Græcus and Albert of Aix, speak of the existence of two kinds of acetum, one of which possessed greater energy than the other. A clew to the composition of this explosive may be found, he believes, in the fact that to acetum was ascribed the property of extinguishing the dreaded "Greek fire." He thinks the substance may have been strongly oxygenated.

Although to discover how Hannibal's "dynamite" was made would be to add nothing perhaps to our sense of the greatness of his achievements, yet such a discovery would certainly throw new light on some interesting events in the wars of antiquity.—Youth's Companion.

"Brought Up" in College.

One of the most original characters of the Welsh pulpit was the late Rev. Lewis Powell, Cardiff. While on a visit to Carmarthentown on one occasion he called at the college, and the students were all for the first time to pay him homage.

"Can I have the help of two of you, my boys, for a minute?" asked Mr. Powell.

"Yes, dear Mr. Powell," answered half a dozen of them at the same time.

"Well, I want two lusty boys, if you please," he remarked, and two of the strongest students were chosen. "Now, my boys," said the old preacher, "let me lay a hand on the shoulder of each of you, and you put your arms around me."

This was done.

"Lift me, boys," said Mr. Powell, and the students lifted him until he was head and shoulders above all present in the room. "Thank you, my boys," he remarked. "Let me down now."

This was done. Then one of the boys asked:

"What is the meaning of this, Mr. Powell?"

The answer was: "Well, some people look down on the church in Cardiff because Mr. Powell, the minister, was not brought up in college. I can go back to Cardiff now and tell them that I was raised in Carmarthen college, and that I stood higher than all the other students."—London Tit-Bits.

Robbed of Her Horns.

One thing which has changed the appearance of the country greatly in the dairying region is the practice, now very prevalent, of dehorning cattle. The farmers of New England seem to have made the sudden discovery that horns on cows were a gigantic mistake of the Creator, to be remedied radically and at once. They say that the cows, if horned, hook each other dreadfully when they are watering and rattle their horns together in the stanchions and otherwise misconduct themselves. So they get a "dehorning machine" and fasten the poor cow's neck to it, and with one sweep deprive her of her chief ornaments and her natural protection and leave her a wretched, shorn creature that no artist would think of painting. The loss of her horns seems to turn the cow into a kind of sheepish and furtive being. She has not the confident and self satisfied air that usually marks her kind. One has no idea of the difference which horns make in the expression of cattle until he sees a herd of these dehorned and deformed animals.—Boston Transcript.

SAULT STE. MARIE CANAL.

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Boom," will be received at this office until noon on Saturday, 19th January, 1895, for the construction, complete in place in the canal of 1100 lineal feet of a "Four Log Boom."

Plans and specifications of the work can be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, where forms of tender can be obtained on and after January 10th, 1895.

In the case of firms there must be attached the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the same, and, further, an accepted bank cheque for the sum of $100 must accompany the tender; this accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted. The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tender is not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,

J. H. BALDERSON,

Secretary.

Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, January [illegible] 1895.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 18, 1895

OUR ELIGIBLE BACHELORS.

MATRIMONIAL PLUMS WAITING TO BE PICKED BY FAIR HANDS.

A List of Peterborough's Bachelors With a Description of Each—Home-Makers Without Homes—Desirable "Catches" Without Number.

Probably in no town of its size, or even double its size, in all of Canada, are there as many eligible bachelors as in Peterborough. Cupid and June roses have done much slaughter during the last several years and to a certain extent thinned the ranks of these desirable parti, but still there is much work for Cupid to do, and a very large number of handsome and well-to-do bachelors of all ages, right here in Peterborough, who hitherto have proven invulnerable to all the sweet blandishments of the god of love. This is not as it should be. Marriage to those who can afford it is a most desirable state. It would have a wonderful effect upon some of the Peterborough bachelors, and for the better, too. If all the bachelors in town were to get married business would boom, and receive such an impetus that people would verily believe the Trent Valley Canal was under operation. For instance, the issuer of marriage licenses would do a land office business. The housefurnisher would have to buy a safe to hold the inflow of cash. The merchant would have to employ extra clerks. And the ministers, well, they would all (?) be able to take their wives (?) to watering places next summer.

THE TIMES has made a sort of canvass of the Peterborough Anti-Spooning Association. The following list is a partial result of the canvass. The facts are vouched for, having been gleaned by personal knowledge of the subjects. Each and every one comes fittingly under the head of eligible bachelors. This is the first instalment only, more will follow, until every eligible bachelor in Peterborough has been exposed. There are some "catches" here:

Davidson, Dickson—23 years old; $30,000. This young man is a druggist and would make an excellent husband. He effects a partiality for the Scotchmen's game, curling, and his one fault arises out of that—he sometimes stays out late at night. Matrimony would doubtless remedy this.

Dawson, Edward—23 years old; $5,000. A very steady young man is Mr. Dawson, who follows telegraphy as a profession. It has been a matter of some conjecture why he has never been married, as he holds the "key" to the situation. Mr. Dawson is an accomplished musician and singer, and music is very essential to happiness.

Fairen, Frank—23; $15,000. Mr. Fairen is proprietor of the Pullman Hotel. He has very desirable qualities, and is very popular. Frank's chief drawback is his bashfulness.

Fairweather, J. W. T.—35 years of age; $6,000. Mr. Fairweather does business at the corner of Simcoe and George streets. He has been living in selfish single blessedness for a long time. It is said that he is on the lookout for a partner of his sorrows. It is to be regretted that none of the many young ladies in Peterborough have picked "Jim" off the matrimonial bush before this, for, take it all in all, he isn't a bad sort of fellow.

Brownlee, John—44 years of age; $7,000. Mr. Browlee is one of the best known bachelors, having spent most of his life here. He is considerable of a wag and takes to fun as a duck to water.

Fife, Robert—35 years old; $10,000. Mr. Fife is a well known druggist in town, very popular, and adjudged a good fellow by all who know him. He is not likely to hold out much longer, so says Madame Rumor.

Butcher, J. W.—35 years of age; $18,000. Here is a "plum." Mr. Butcher is a successful merchant, and possesses many admirable qualities of heart and mind. He would make a splendid "Hubby," and has the highest recommendation of this Journal.

Cahill, Joseph—35 years old; $5,000. Mr. Cahill is with the Peterborough Hardware Company. He is included in this list, not on account of his age, but because he started in early, and is a bachelor in experience. Being popular, kindly of manner and very good looking, Mr. Cahill is respectfully submitted as a desirable match.

Carmichael, Dr.—46 years of age; $25,000. There is no more popular gentleman in town than Dr. Carmichael, nor a more desirable "catch." The doctor has one of the most handsome new residences in Peterborough and has been showing the symptoms for some time. His claims in the matrimonial market are A1.

Dolan, James—46 years of age; $40,000. Mr. Dolan is enterprising and energetic in all his business transactions. He is, however, one of the "boys," and might not take to double harness at first. He is an eligible match for any woman.

Clatworthy, James—58 years of age; $30,000; gentleman. Mr. Clatworthy is a confirmed bachelor, and has no doubt grown fixed in his likes, dislikes and habits. It is doubtful if he will ever give ear to the sweet temptings of the gentler sex. However, he would make a good husband, and deserves a place on this list.

Craig, John—42 years old; $25,000; has a good income from rents and other investments. Mr. Craig is a successful business man, and has a knack of accumulating money, which he always safely invests.

Clegg, E. B.—28 years old; $5,000. Mr. Clegg is a dealer in cigars and tobaccos, and he is getting rich very fast. He applies himself strictly to business, and would doubtless enjoy life better if married, for all business is little joy.

Hurley, J. P.—28 years of age; $7,000. Mr. Hurley is the Grand Trunk Ticket Agent at this point. He is very much of a ladies man and will be "landed" some day. Mr. Hurley is very popular with both sexes in town. He is dashing, energetic and always has an eye for business. It is predicted that he will not long be in the bachelor ranks.

Stratton, W. A.—33 years of age; $10,000. Mr. Stratton is a rising lawyer, and already enjoys a large practice. He does considerable conveyancing. He is goodlooking, courteous and popular with both sexes. He is considered a good "catch."

Bradburn, W. H.—25 years of age; $75,000. Here's a "peach." Mr. Bradburn is manager of the opera house. He is young, extremely handsome, especially in evening dress, and is very popular. THE TIMES' phrenological editor has examined Billy's bumps, and pronounces him the making of a most exemplary husband. He is a desirable "catch," and can't dodge the inevitable much longer. Mr. Bradburn has one fault, that might be a bar to matrimony, were not his other good qualities so many—he snores in his sleep. However, love turns a deaf ear to all trifling objections.

Bennett, J. W.—32 years of age; $10,000. Mr. Bennett is a substantial all-round good fellow, and is deserving of a better lot than single blessedness. He is a barrister of no mean ability, is deputy-registrar and secretary of St. Paul's church. He's a bargain.

Landy, John James—51 years of age; $300,000. Mr. Landy is a "home" man in the strictest sense of the term. For a number of years he was mayor of Peterborough. He is genial, kind and good natured, and is very good looking. One of the most desirable catches to be made.

Billett, Thomas—33 years old; $10,000. Here is a very popular, steady and reputable young man. Mr. Billett takes keen delight in curling and is an adept and very skillful with the "stanes." He is extremely good looking, has a distinguished bearing and is one of the most courteous of the staff of the Bank of Commerce.

Allen, Harry M.—43 years old, if a day; $20,000. A genial and well liked gentleman is Mr. Allen. By profession he is a traveller and no Knight of Grip is more popular than he. He is rather Bohemian in his ways, but a strong-minded would soon bring him to time. The "boys" would all like to see him get married but are afraid that when he does take that step, he will do it on the sly, and gave them no chance to demonstrate their approval.

PLOTTED HIS DEATH.

One Correspondent Betrays Another to the Japanese as a Spy—So Says Villiers.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 18.—The steamer Empress of Japan, which arrived at Vancouver from the Orient, numbers Frederic Villiers, war correspondent, among the passengers. Villiers says De Guerville, the correspondent, plotted against the life of James Creelman, of the World, and says he will drive him from the New York Press Club and city.

Villiers confirms Creelman's story about the butchery at Port Arthur, and says that after the war is over he looks for the interference of Russia and perhaps England. When Villiers and Creelman were taken prisoners by the Japanese they were liberated by English intervention. Villiers says that proofs are clear that De Guerville tried to betray Creelman into the hands of the Japanese and have him killed as a spy.

The World's correspondent is a relative of Barrister A. R. Creelman of this city.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers

The annual meeting of the Little Lake Cemetery Company will be held in the Council Chambers on January 21st.

The Jury sittings will open in Peterborough on March 19 before Justice Street. The non-jury sittings commence on April 18. Chief Justice Meredith will preside.

On the 22nd of the month the County Council will meet. The new members this year are Mr. Wm. Buck, reeve of Asphodel and Mr. J. B. Peoples, reeve of Belmont.

A new invention is out and should recommend itself to church managers. It is a church contribution box that is passed around instead of the plate. The coins fall through the slots of different sizes, and halves, quarters and dimes alight on velvet and make no noise, but coppers and five cent pieces drop on a Chinese gong, which sounds to beat the band.

The report from Strathroy shows that the smallpox outbreak there cost the province $1,000. Among the complaints received was one from Pickering regarding the feeding of diseased horseflesh to pigs and another from Hamilton asking that icemen be prohibited from towing ice through the dirty water of the south side of the bay.

Mrs. Margaret Rowan, wife of Mr. David Rowan of Omemee, died on the 13th inst. Deceased was well and favorably known, and leaves a husband with six children to mourn her loss. Deceased was in her 70th year, and was a consistent member of the Methodist church up to the time of her death. The funeral took place to the Presbyterian cemetery, Emily, yesterday

A unique method of raising money for church purposes was introduced at a recent Sunday morning's service in the Baptist tabernacle, Ingersoll. The pastor, Rev. J. F. Barker, gave to each person attending the morning service a dollar bill, on the promise that they were to invest it, and at the end of the year 1895 return it along with what it had earned in the meantime. About $100 was passed out.

During the past summer, while engaged packing eggs for Messrs. Dundas & Flavelle Bros., Mr. Albert Pilkie wrote on the shell of a good sound Canadian egg a request as follows: "Will the last purchaser of this egg write to A. E. Pilkie, Lindsay, Ont." The matter was entirely forgotten by him until last week when he was reminded of the fact by receiving a letter from L. J. Meyers, "purveyor to the Right Hon. Lord Rothschild and family," cook and confectioner. 140 Houndsditch, E. C., who stands ready to do business with Mr. Pilkie, and is quite anxious to form a Canadian line of commerce.

Mr. James Stevenson, M. P., has written to the Hon. John Haggart, requesting him to hold a political meeting in Peterborough early next month, and in all probability the meeting will take place. The Minister of Railways and Canals will be accompanied by a number of the members of the Cabinet. It will be very interesting to hear what he has to say regarding the completion of the Peterborough and Lakefield section of the Trent Valley Canal, the construction of which is of the utmost importance and interest to the people of Peterborough.

THE INSPECTORSHIP.

Committee on Appointments Asks Mr. Garvin to Resign.

The Committee on Appointments of the Board of Education met in the Board room of the Central school on Wednesday night, when the case of School Inspector Garvin was dealt with. It was decided to request Mr. Garvin to send in his resignation to take effect on July 1st next.

There has been for some time past a division of opinion among the members of the Board on the question of creating a permanent inspectorship. It is not proposed to do away with that office, although some of the members are in favor of such a step, claiming it will effect a saving equal to the salary of the Inspectorship. This friction had its origin prior to Mr. Garvin's engagement. The strong feeling that existed when Dr. Tilley was dismissed will be remembered. That gentleman fulfilled the duties at a salary of $300 per year, and his dismissal was the result of a prevalent feeling that the interests and welfare of the schools would be better looked after by the engagement of a permanent inspector, who would supervise the supplies and expenses, keep an eye on the teachers, seeing to their efficiency and work, and, in a word, keep all the departments up to that mark of perfection that would not be maintained were the schools allowed to operate without a directing head.

Before Mr. Garvin's appointment, Mr. Wm. Smith, one of the head masters, was entrusted with the supervising duties. This met the views of those who were not in favor of a permanent inspector, and naturally when Mr. Garvin was appointed, the hostility of these, together with Mr. Smith's friends, was incurred, and has existed ever since.

The reason assigned for the inspector's dismissal, is not so much his recent absence from duties, as it is a desire for a change. The inspector has not been popular with some of the members and some of the teachers. His recent absence in North Simcoe has afforded occasion for decisive action and the culmination of the hostile feeling that has existed right along. For the reason given above, the hostilities, doubtless, would have been directed toward the permanent inspector had he been other than Mr. Garvin, although perhaps a different man might have turned an existing prejudice into favor.

However, the matter has reached a decisive stage. Mr. Garvin may have done things that he should not have done, and he may have filled the position ably and well. In either event (and this journal neither upholds nor condemns him) Mr. Garvin should, in all fairness, be given a hearing before the Board takes action

A M'CARTHY MEETING.

D'Alton M'Carthy Invited to Appear in Peterborough at an Early Date

All the signs point to the early approach of the Dominion elections. The political prophets and the party organs foretell confidently that the present administration will shortly go to the country. Throughout the Dominion the parties are organizing and the various constituencies are placing in nomination their strongest candidates. Everywhere there is that air of preparation and unsettling that precedes an election.

The fight in West Peterborough will probably be a three cornered one. The supporters and political sympathizers of Mr. D'Alton McCarthy have arranged to hold a meeting in the Opera House about two weeks hence, at which Mr. McCarthy will be present and deliver an address. He will probably be accompanied by Mayor Stewart, of Hamilton. Mr. McCarthy's object in coming will be to organize his party followers and nominate a candidate.

As has been stated the Hon. Mr. Haggart has been invited to visit Peterborough early in February and address a public meeting. He will be accompanied by Hon. Mr. Patterson and several of the lesser lights. The visit of the ministers will awaken interest in the Trent Valley Canal project. What they will have to say regarding the section between Peterborough and Lakefield will be especially interesting. Mr. James Stevenson is doing all in his power to arrange the meeting, and if it does not come off, it will not be that gentleman's fault. As things are, it looks as if the entire section of the canal will be under contract early in the spring, which means a great deal to Peterborough.

BRITAIN STORM SWEPT

MANY VESSELS STRANDED AND MUCH LOSS OF LIFE.

Several Vessels Ashore on the Coast of Wales—A Snow Blizzard Raging Over South Devonshire—Snowdrifts Twelve Feet Deep.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A terrible gale accompanied by a heavy snowstorm, is raging over South Devonshire. On the Dartmoor tableland the snow is several feet deep.

QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 14.—Over 12 steamers have sought refuge here from the fierce gale which is blowing. A terribly heavy sea is running outside the harbor and the shore is strewn with wreckage.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—A terrible gale accompanied by a heavy snowfall, prevailed throughout the country Saturday night. The cold was intense, the snowdrifts in some places were 12 feet deep.

The Cunard line steamer Lucania, from Liverpool yesterday for New York, arrived at Queenstown three and a half hours late. Her boatswain's mate broke his leg and was landed at Queenstown, and taken to a hospital. Several vessels are ashore on the coast of Wales.

The steamer Paradox went ashore at the mouth of the River Tay.

The wind has dropped in East Scotland, but the snowfall continues. Vessels are putting into the roadsteads for shelter.

The schooner Balcay capsized today off North Sunderland Point and all her crew were drowned.

Six vessels are ashore near Beaumaris, Anglesey, North Wales.

A coal-laden brig stranded at daybreak this morning at Southwold, a town in Suffolk, on the North Sea. Her crew, with the exception of one man, were rescued by a lifeboat. Two of them died after getting ashore.

The Italian barque Columba was wrecked near Grimsby. She had a crew of nine aboard, all of whom were drowned. Another vessel in the Humber foundered and all hands were lost before assistance could reach them. Nothing was found to establish the identity of the vessel.

BRIDE AND BRIDEGROOM KILLED.

While Returning from the Wedding Their Sleigh Was Run Down by a Train.

LEBANON, Ind., Jan. 17.—As a party of young folks were returning from the wedding of Jacob Moss and Miss Mary Overlease today their sleigh was struck by a passenger train on the Midland railway at a road crossing. The bride was killed instantly, and the bridegroom died about an hour after being brought to this city. The other occupants of the sleigh were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCabe, of Darlington, Ind., John A. Abrams and John McFadden. All were badly hurt.

Wanted Him to Get Out.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 17.—Lawyer Thos. Brown was the subject of a preliminary trial yesterday, on a charge of unlawfully attempting to defeat the course of justice by attempting to prevent Louis Ling from attending the trial of Mrs. Hartley at Brantford. Ling swore that Brown told him, "I want to give you advice, and I want you to take it. I think the best thing you can do is to leave the country, and go to Detroit or anywhere out of this country. You are just as free as any man. Nobody can touch you where you are. There will be money in it if you leave." Geo. Ling, a brother, swore that Brown called at his father's house and told Louis Ling that if he did not appear at the trial of Mrs. Hartley there would be money in it. The case was adjourned one week.

SLANDER.

A whisper woke the air—
  A soft light tone and low,
  Yet barbed with shame and woe ;
Now might it only perish there,
  Not further go !
Ah, me ! a quick and eager ear
  Caught up the little meaning sound ;
Another voice has breathed it clear,
  And so it wanders round.
From ear to ear—from lip to ear,
  Until it reached a gentle heart,
  And that—it broke !

Low as it seemed to other ears,
It came—a thunder crash to hers,
  The fragile so fair and gay—
That guileless girl so pure and true.
'Tis said a lovely humming bird
  That in a fragrant lily lay,
  And dreamed the summer morn away,
Was killed but by a gun's report
Some idle boy had fired in sport !
  The very sound a death blow came !

And thus her happy heart that beat
With love and hope so fast and sweet
  Shrined in its lily, too,
  For who the maid that knew
But owned the delicate flower-like grace
Of her young form and face ?)
  When first the word
  Her light heart heard,
  It fluttered like the frightened bird,
Then shut its wings and sighed,
And with a silent shudder—died !

NO DESIRE FOR PEACE.

JAPAN NOT ANXIOUS TO BRING THE WAR TO A CLOSE.

A Strategic Movement to Obtain Information—Japan Lost but 219 Men in Corea—Army Inspectors Meet with Difficulties—Affairs in the Orient.

VICTORIA, B.C., Jan. 17.—The additional Japanese advices by the Empress of Japan are:—Although the Japanese Government is guarded as ever in all its utterances, it cannot entirely conceal the fact that the prospect of speedy settlement is not so clear as it seemed to be three weeks ago. Then China proposed to be sincere in her desire to negotiate, and the two American Ministers who acted as mediums of communication between the contending parties believed that the few obstacles to a pacific understanding might be removed without serious difficulty.

ENTIRE JAPANESE LOSS 291 MEN.

Mr. Dunn having the Japanese side to deal with, knew precisely where he stood. Mr. Denby, to whom the task of formulating Chinese views was entrusted, was necessarily less sure of his ground for the opinions of those in power at Pekin were not only often discordant, but were subject to almost as many changes as there were days in the week.

Official reports of deaths in the Japanese army show that the casualties in battles have been remarkably few, owing to inability or unwillingness of the Chinese to fight. In Corea, Japan has lost 219 killed outright, and 38 who died from their wounds, while the deaths from disease have been 405. In China, 72 only have been killed, 21 have died from wounds and 24 from disease.

A STRATEGIC MOVEMENT.

Correspondence from Port Arthur describes an ingenious strategem to obtain information respecting the condition of the Chinese at Wei Hai Wei. One of the Japanese cruiser was repainted and equipped in Chinese style and started at high speed for the naval stronghold flying the flag of China and closely followed by a Japanese man-of-war. As she drew near the harbor several shots were fired by the pretended pursuer and she was admitted without opposition to forbidden waters. A very brief survey enabled her to ascertain that several ships, including Ting Yuen, were lying at anchor there and that the stranded Chang Yuen was, probably, irreparably damaged. Having accomplished her purpose, the disguised vessel retreated before the Chinese could recover from their amazement.

AN UNPROFITABLE WINTER.

The military experts, sent by various Western powers to observe the movements of the Chinese armies, are passing an unprofitable winter. The Chinese authorities afford them no facilities, the aim of the mandarins being to hide the feebleness and incompetency of their military system. Most of the inspectors from abroad are idling at Pekin, and the Government refuses to assume any responsibility for their safety.

SENATOR TASSE DEAD.

The Editor of La Minerve Succumbs After an Illness of Three Months.

MONTREAL, Jan. 17.—Senator Tasse died this morning at half past five o'clock, after three months' illness. He has been unconscious for nearly a fortnight.

He was 46 years of age, and leaves a wife and two daughters. For fifteen years he has been editor of La Minerve, and was an uncompromising Conservative. He formerly represented Ottawa city in the Commons and succeeded the late Senator Trudel in the Senate.

Mr. Tasse was unsuccessful in several elections. He was one of the Canadian Commissioners at Chicago at the World's Fair, and was the author of several books. The funeral will take place Saturday morning.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 18 1895.

Good morning!

If Toronto is to keep on burning itself up in this fashion it will soon have nothing left to set fire to except its blooming old Island and its sewerage-infected bay.

Over in Cleveland the other day a young man killed himself to avoid getting married. The luck that girl is playing in ought to make her life one long, blissful dream.

A contemporary says that the Belleville Sun is clamoring for the January thaw. If the Sun would exercise a little January thawt, it would remember that the thaw made its appearance several days ago.

The Japanese have been walloping the Chinese again, despite the fact that Li Hung Chang has been hopelessly side-tracked. It takes quite a lot of whipping to make the Chinese realize that they are whipped.

The Dominion Government has made it part of one of the Trent Valley contracts that only British subjects shall be employed on the work. This is a good move, but the Government should go further and make the same condition applicable to all public contracts.

Beer and ale are growing more popular with the passing years, and the people of Orient are welcoming them with open—mouths. The total number of breweries in the world is 51,000, of which Germany has 26,240, over one-half. England comes next with 12,874. The United States has 2,300, but they are much larger than they are in Europe.

Reports in regard to anti-toxine are as a rule, very favorable. One of the most encouraging is that from Ashtabula, Ohio, where diphtheria of a malignant type broke out on December 6th. In a short time there were ninety-five cases and twenty deaths had occurred. Then anti-toxine was procured from New York, and it was used successfully in all cases, and no complications have been observed.

Some of the papers are reviving the story that a general election will be brought on before another session of Parliament, not because there is any particular reason for appealing to the country now, but because "they say" that some such move is in contemplation. Before Sir John Tompheon's death it was freely claimed that this was the programme, but after Sir Mackenzie Bowell's elevation to the premiership the talk was that he would want to hold office for at least one session before going to the people. The point of the whole thing is, of course, that everything politically is at sixes and sevens at present, and with so much uncertainty in the situation, all the guessers are wearing their brains thin in the endeavor to find out just how the cat will jump. It is perhaps doubtful if the members of the government themselves have any very clear idea as to what the programme is to be, but it is significant that there has been no talk of an immediate revival of the Ministerial stumping tour.

If the members of the new Council desire to convince the hundreds of electors who marked their ballots in their favor that they have made a mistake they cannot do better than to let things go on in the same old groove.

Admiral Freemantle, commanding the British squadron in Chinese waters, was a short time since ordered, by force if necessary, to block any attempt on the part of the Japanese fleet to ascend the Yang-tse-Kiang river. It is now reported that the Admiral has received instructions to follow the movements of the Japanese at sea. The situation in the East, from an Imperial standpoint, is becoming critical.

Thirty-three fatilities have been reported for the last season in the Alps, which is less than the average. Four persons met their deaths by avalanches or falling stones, six by exposure to the weather, fourteen missed their footing and fell down precipices, three were killed by lightning, one fell into a glacier fissure, one lost while seeking edelwiess and four cases are unexplained.

Mr. Maclean told the East York convention that the Liberal party is the greatest enemy this country has to-day. It is doubtful if a dozen men even at a Conservative convention can be made to believe such rabbish as that. On the contrary, such an offensive and unfounded assertion must go far to convince the friends of the member for East York of total unfitness for the position he occupies.

Some years ago a five-day passage across the Atlantic was thought to be madness. Now it is seriously proposed to build ships that will do it in three and a half days. Several shipowners have said that the paying limit had been reached in the Lucania and Campania, and no larger boats would be built. Mr. Glynn, chairman of the Liverpool Dock Board, replies that the talk about the paying limit had been reached in the Lucania is ridiculous. Twenty years ago the boats employed in the Atlantic trade were 220 feet long. Now they are 600.

ORIENTAL AMALGAMATION.

There is good ground for the belief that the story that the newspapers published the other day that the desire of the Japanese was to form a Mongolian league against European influence was something more than mere newspaper talk. The Japanese are not the sweet and simple children of the orient that we have all been acustomed to think them. In their struggles with the Chinese they have shown strength, determination and subtlety. For years they had been quietly preparing for a war with China, and when the call came they took the field armed at all points and ready for a fight to the death. If they were schemers in one way they are very apt to be schemers in others.

If the Japanese can bring about an offensive and defensive alliance with the Chinese, the Siames and other oriental peoples, they will make things mightily unpleasant for the rest of the world. They can manufacture almost every article of commerce quite as well in the orient as in England, the States or Canada and they can undersell the products of other parts of the world right and left. The Chinese and Japanese live on next to nothing and are willing to work for next to nothing, too. The purchasing power of money in China and Japan is several times what it is in England or the States. Everything is as cheap as dirt. The havoc they could create in the world's markets if they once forced their way into them would be appalling.

There seems little doubt that the conquest of China is but the first step in a long-headed Japanese scheme to bring the commercial supremacy of the world to the orient. Whether Britain will stand idly by and watch this little game go on remains to be seen, but it is hardly likely that she will. The commercial interests of the western world are too important to be pushed aside by a aggressive and greedy power. For the next few years the part that China and Japan will play in the game of nations will be very closely followed; and it may be that the shedding of blood is not at an end.

HARD TIMES IN KANSAS.

The Governor of Kansas, in the January North American, draws an awful picture of the condition of the Kansas farmers.

To begin with, the aggregate of the real estate mortgages of farms in the State is $167,000,000, while the liens on chattels amount to $47,000,000 more and 10,000 people are driven out of house and home every year by foreclosure.

Nor is there any prospect of improvement. Prices are low and the tendency is still downward. To produce a bushel of wheat costs fifty cents, and the selling price is only forty cents. Twenty five years ago two bushels of grain produced $5; now twelve bushels will not yield the same sum. A few years since a good horse would fetch $75; now eight horses will not bring more than the same amount.

No wonder the farmers of the western states are so ready to move across the border into the Canadian Northwest.

THE MANITOBA SCHOOL CASE.

Should the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council decide in favor of the right of the Manitoba minority to invoke the aid of the Federal Government against the local school law after having previously decided that the provincial act was within the powers granted to Manitoba and in no sense infringed any right which the Roman Catholics had by law or by practice at the time of the establishment of the province, there will be, indeed, no inconsistency between the two judgmnets, but we shall have another of those cases in weich the question of the conflicting jurisdictions of province and Dominion have seemed to be made a shuttlecock in the hands of the courts. One former instance of the same kind which will be in everybody's mind is that of the power to restrict the sale of liquors, several test cases being required before the exact limits of each government were precisely definite.

Of course there is no help for such things. A constitution being a system of rules intended for application in highly complicated circumstances must necessarily depend upon the legal tribunals for its interpretation, and this interpretation cannot in any one action be made so complete as to furnish an exposition of all the problems that may arise. The courts are obliged to confine themselves to the decision of such points as are brought before them.

In the United States a similar experience followed the adoption of their written constitution. The Supreme Court, led by Chief Justice Marshall, in a long series of decisions has given to that document the decree of certainty which now prevails. Of Chief Justice Marshall it may be said that he occupies as high a place as Jefferson himself in the legal and constitutional annals of the country; for the one by judicial interpretation is responsible for almost as much of the substance of the constitution as the other is by having written the Declaration of Independence.

THE NEXT ELECTION.

We agree with the Hamilton Herald that there seems to be no good reason for the assumption in some quarters that it is the intention of the Premier and his supporters to bring on a general election before another session of Parliament is held in order to dodge the Separate School question. The Privy Council may or may not intend to decide that the Dominion Government has jurisdiction in the Manitoba Schools matter. At any rate the decision is not yet forthcoming, and it is necessary that it should be immediately acted upon when it is, assuming that it will be along the lines hinted at. And nothing is so obvious as the fact that the Government needs time to collects its wits.

Sir Mackenzie, shrewd politician and all that he is, needs to get his hands well on the ropes before coming out of the fastnesses. He is too new as Premier to be sure of his ground, and will naturally want to find out more about it before taking a step that may be all right or may be all wrong. Sir John Thompson had been in harness long enough to get thoroughly into the drift of things, but it is hardly expected that a new comer, no matter how extended is his political experience may have been in other directions could step into office of First Minister and go quietly on from where Sir John left off.

It is hard to tell, of course, how things may go, but there does not seem to be sufficient ground for assuming that there will be an election before the House meets The programme is more likely to be a short session with an election following close on its heels. This will give the Conservatives time to catch their wind and mature their plans, and Sir Mackenzie will feel all the more confident with the prestige of a session of Parliament behind. It will give him confidence in himself—and inspire his followers with confidence—and no one who has not been through a political fight knows how important a thing confidence is.

In the meantime those who think a general election is imminent will have their notion confirmed by the fact that it is officially announced to-day that the Ministerial stumping tour is to be resumed.

THE GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

We agree with our esteemed contemporary in the statement that if there is one thing more than another that the Conservative party is in urgent need of just now it is new blood, and the bright young Conservatives with political aspirations should get themselves ready to take a hand in the game when the cards are dealt for the coming elections. Death has made such sad havoc in Conservative ranks of late, and is so likely to make more at no distant time, that it is obvious that there must be a great many important changes in the personnel of the leaders of the party when the new Parliament meets. It is only stating a generally recognized fact to say that there is not one man on the Conservative side of the House of Commons who is of really conspicuous ability.

The time is therefore ripe for the young man. This is his golden opportunity and if he be wise he will take it at its flood Whether the Conservatives carry the country at the next elections or whether they do not, they must have fresh material. If they carry the country they will want promising young men in the House to get in training for cabinet positions. If the fortunes of war go against them they will want fighters and leaders for the next contest. However the country may go next year, the new Parliament, so far as Conservative side is concerned, will be a battle of wits, giving the clever fellows a glorious chance to get to the front.

Mr. Stevenson, the present member for West Peterborough, should be elevated to the Senate without delay, so as to make room for a young man of vigour and ability. Mr. Stevenson has done much for the party in the past, and his friends should not be obliged to destroy their knuckels hammering on the door of the Senate for admittance.

Peterborough Conservatives, with Mr. Stevenson in the Senate, ought to nominate Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, who has both character and brains to make his mark. At no time in the history of the party in this place has it stood in more need of the very best man for the position of candidate. Indeed, it will require this to win, for there is no denying the fact that the chances are not so good as they were on the last occasion. This applies with equal force to East Peterborough, as well as several other constituencies in the midland counties.

THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION.

The New York World has been endeavoring to sound the alarm anew as to the contagiousness of dread consumption. This known scientific fact has been published widely enough, one would think; but old superstitions die hard. It is not too much to say that the majority of people still act as if consumption were no more contagious than a broken leg. Yet the highest medical authorities assure us that no person ever has the disease unless he catches it from some one else. The following paragraphs from the World ought to arouse people to a sense of the danger that ignorance of this fact spreads abroad:

"Consumption kills 100,000 persons every year in this country (the United States). It is the worst scourge known to man. In the absence of sanitary precautions every human being is exposed to the infection every day of his life, and Dr. Briggs declares that quite one-half of all the people take the disease at one time or another.

"We know perfectly how to stamp it out, how to save the 6,000 who annually die of it in New York city and the 100,000 who fall victims every year in the country."

It quotes Dr. Herman S Briggs as saying that "by proper sanitary measures the disease might be utterly stamped out within a single generation." Surely if anything is worth the doing, this is. At any rate, when infection can be so easily avoided in individual cases, it should be done through the instinct of self-preservation. It is only necessary to destroy the sputa of the victim before it dries, to make his presence in the house as safe as that of a well person. If this is not done, he not only runs the risk of infecting others, but is very apt to re-infect himself again and again thus preventing recovery. A disease, so easily quarantined as this, surely ought not to be allowed to maintain its position as the chief scourge of the human race. It can be isolated by the simple precaution of burning the sputa, and one of the most effective remedies is fresh air. And yet the contagion is found everywhere and thousands die of it.

Surely intelligent agitation can impress the whole people into a Health Office corps capable of driving this plague of northern and temperate climes off the continent. It is a case in which knowledge is the vaccine most needed; and an industrious educational campaign should be begun.

TORONTO.

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

Jan. 18.—In Liverpool to-day light and heavy bacon were 6d. cheaper. The Chicago market closed firmer. This market was steady.

Butter—The offerings are liberal, and the market is dull and prices show no improvement. The best dairy tub is offering at 14c to 15c, and low grades at 8c to 11c. Large rolls are in fair demand at 12c to 13c. Dairy pound rolls are slow at 15c. Creamery is quiet at 21c 22c for rolls and 20c for tubs.

Eggs—The offerings of limed are large, and the market is weaker at 11½ to 12c. A car of good limed eggs was shipped from here recently to the old country, but with what success is not yet reported. Cold storage stock sold here to-day as low as 8c. Fresh gathered are quoted at 16c to 17c.

Potatoes—Are dull. Cars on the track here are quoted at 46c. Potatoes out of store sell at 55c.

Poultry—The receipts to-day were liberal the demand was slow owing to the soft weather, and the market was slow and easier at 7c to 8c for turkeys, 6c to 7c for geese, 50c to 70c for ducks, which are scarce, and 30c to 50c for choice fresh small chickens.

Honey—Is in fair demand and steady; a good deal has been shipped east from this market within the past few weeks. One local firm sent out three or four tons in 60 lb tins which sold at 7c.

Baled Hay—Is dull. Cars on the track here sell at $8 75.

Baled Straw—Is in moderate demand and steady. Cars on the track here are quoted at $5 50 for oat and $5 for wheat.

Dressed Hogs—The offerings are fair. There were sales of rail lots delivered here to-day at $5 15 to $5 20 An effort has lately been made by local packers to bring about a reduction in the prices being paid and to-day it was reported along the street that to-day $3 10 would be the best bid that would be obtained on the local street market from Toronto packers. The local receipts to-day were fair. There was a good demand for all offered and the market was firm, with sales at $5 15 to $5 25.

FARMERS' MARKET.

The receipts of grain on the street market here to-day were small. Prices were steady.

Wheat—Steady. 200 bushels selling at 60c for spring, 63c to 63½c for white.

Barley—Steady. 200 bushels selling at 45c to 48c.

Oats—Steady. 500 bushels selling at 33c to 34c.

Hay and Straw—The receipts were fair, the demand was good and the market for hay was steady, 40 loads selling at $9 to $10 for timothy and $8 to $8 50 for clover; straw was easier, 10 loads selling at $6 to $7.

Dressed Hogs—The offerings were fair, and the market was steady, but the feeling among the local packers was lower, and it is said that they would reduce their prices to $3 10 to morrow. There were sales to-day at $5 15 to $5 25.

MONTREAL.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

January 18.—Live stock—There were about 550 head of butchers' cattle, 50 calves and 200 sheep and lambs offered at the East End Abattoir to-day. The weather was delightful, and the butchers turned out in force, but not to buy, as they had already bought largely in the early part of the week. There was quite a crowd around the cattle pens, and every one seemed in good humor except the unfortunate drovers, who were reckoning upon their probable losses rather than prospective profits. The prices of cattle were the lowest of the season, pretty good stock selling in some cases at 2½c per lb., or considerably less than such cattle were sold at any time throughout the autumn. The best beeves sold at about 3¼c per lb., and pretty good stock at from 2½c to 3¼c per lb. Scrub bulls sold at from 2c to 2¼c, and good large bulls at about 3c per lb.

Calves were more plentiful than for some time past, and sold at from $3 to $10 each. Shippers are paying 3½c per lb for good large sheep. Good lambs bring from 3¾c to 4c per lb., and mixed lots about 3½c per lb. Fat hogs sell at from 4½c to 4¾c per lb.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 20,000 rose trees in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories Bloor-st. west, Toronto. Visitors are always well come. Mr. Dunlop is proud of his establishment and takes pleasure in speaking of his beauties. He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. Sale room, 445 Yonge-st., and 5 King street west.

Don't Put it Off.

A word in season in regard to the advance arrangements for seats at the Burns Anniversary Concert on the evening of the 23rd instant. The safe way is to secure seats in the reserved section of the hall as early as possible. The earlier the better—in order to avoid extra trouble when the greatest rush begins next Monday. It is anticipated that few seats will be left unmarked on the plans. Interest in this local event is growing and it is more than probable that the present expectations of the influential managing committee will be fully realized. See advt.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 19, 1895.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

The Voters List.

The revising officer of the electoral district of West Peterborough will hold a court in the Judges Chambers on the first day of February, at 10 o'clock. This is the last day that objections to names on the voters list will be received.

Peterborough Should Secure This.

The Gould Coupler Company of Depew, N.Y., will probably establish a branch factory in Canada, it is said, giving employment to about 100 men.—Railroad Gazette. Has the Board of Trade done anything to induce this company to locate in Peterborough? If not, would it not be a good idea for them to enter into communication with the company and ascertain its intentions.

To Honor Robert Burns.

The St. Andrews Society of Peterborough are arranging to hold a concert in the opera house on the evening of January 23, to celebrate the birthday of Scotia's famous poet, Robert Burns, which falls on January 25. Among the talent already engaged is Miss Maggie Barr, a noted singer of Scottish songs, and the Canadian Concert Company. In addition Master Norman Grahame Fraser, of Toronto, a clever Highlander dancer has been engaged. The concert promises to be one of unusual attraction.

Anti-Toxine as a Preventive.

Dr. Gilchrist, of Orillia, who has been superintending the relief operations at Uxbridge, where an epidemic of diphtheria occurred, has reported to Dr. Bryce that there were 32 cases and eight persons succumbed to the disease. He expresses the opinion that anti-toxine is perfect as a preventive. It was administered to 16 persons who had been exposed to infection and not a single person was attacked by the disease. Dr. Gilchrist advises that the anti-toxine be administered early in the disease, before there is much systemic poisoning.

Otonabee Agricultural Society.

At the annual meeting of the township of Otonabee Agricultural Society the following directors were elected:—Messrs. Andrew Nelson, T. Walsh, D. Cruickshank, J. Smithson, James Elmhirst, Wm. J. Miller, Wm. Shearer, R. Wood, J. M. Drummond, George Eson, P. Drummond, T. Thompson, D. Moore. The directors chose the following officers:—President, A. Weir; Vice-President, M. Kennedy; Secretary-Treasurer, A. Shearer; Auditors, James McNeil and R. English. The financial statement presented showed a very satisfactory balance on hand.

William Robinson Committed.

In the Police Court Tuesday morning William Robinson had an adjourned hearing on a charge of perjury. The prisoner, it will be remembered, was a witness in the Cavanagh case a week ago, and swore that he did not sell any liquor on a specified day. Two other witnesses afterwards swore that they bought liquor from Robinson on the day in question. A charge of perjury was then made and Robinson was arrested. He has been confined in goal over a week. The Magistrate yesterday committed the prisoner for trial at the next Court. It is likely he will have a hearing before Judge Weller in a week's time.

Seven Different People.

Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Kingston, lectured in the George street church, Tuesday, on "Seven Different People, of Whom You Are One." The seven different people, as named by the Kingston divine, were the prodigal, crank, workingman, slave of liquor, politician, woman of today and Christian. During the evening Mr. A. E. Dixon presented the report of the school, which showed the number of pupils on the roll to have been 309. The statement of the treasurer, Mr. J. S. Knapman, was satisfactory, and the receipts exceeded the expenditure by over $100.

The Tramp Nuisance.

Over in Schenectady, N. Y., the authorities have adopted a plan to abate the tramp nuisance with success. Ablebodied tramps, who apply for meals and a night's lodgings, are required to give half a day's work to the corporation in return for the accommodation. During one month, parts of November and half of Decmber, 82½ days' work were performed under this plan, breaking stone for next summer's use. Somehow the news of the corporation's rule has become known to the tramping crowd, with the result that during the last half of December only a very limited number applied for accommodations. This a pointer for Peterborough.

A Polite Young Lady.

There was a scene yesterday at that particularly windy corner of Hunter and George streets. A very fashionable young man had just come out into the wind from the shelter of the buildings, when the gale took his hat and whirled it off down the street at a terrible rate. The young man looked helplessly after it. In the midst of its flight it chanced to pass near a very pretty girl on the sidewalk. She made a run for it, caught it and actually started a little towards the young man with it; and, as he presently came trotting up, she took out her handkerchief, dusted the hat and handed it to the young with a bow. He was actually too much dumbfounded by the proceeding to utter a word of thanks. He merely took the hat and thrust it foolishly on his head, while the young lady, with a faint smile on her pretty face, walked away.

Death of Mrs. Dr. Knight.

The death of Mrs. Susan Knight, wife of Dr. James Knight, formerly of Bloomfield, Ont., occurred at 10 o'clock Thursday morning at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. S. G. Axelstine, artist, 398 Water street. Deceased was in her 80th year. She leaves a husband, two daughters and two sons. Mrs. S. G. Axelstine is the eldest daughter of the deceased, and her sister was visiting with her at the time of their mother's death. One son resides in Washington and the other in Chicago. Deceased was a most estimable and Christian lady, and her death will be greatly mourned by sorrowing friends and relatives. The funeral will take place on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 398 Water street.

County Council.

The County Council will meet next week. The personnel of the body was somewhat changed at the recent elections and is now as follows: Ashburnham—John Burnham, reeve; Asphodel—Wm. Buck, reeve, Samuel Scott, deputy reeve; Belmont—J. H. Peoples, reeve, J. Oranger, deputy reeve; Burleigh, etc.—A. Brown, reeve; Chandos—Wm. Hales, reeve; Dummer, Ed. Hawthorne, reeve, Henry Moore, deputy reeve; Douro—John Moloney, reeve. Note—In Douro, the deputy is elected by the council at first meeting, which has not yet been held. Ennismore—Wm. Crough reeve; Galway, etc.—M. Mansfield, reeve; Harvey—R. Shaw, reeve; Lakefield—W. H. Casement, reeve; Monaghan North—Jos. Foster, reeve; Norwood—J. B. Pearce, reeve. Note—The representative of Norwood is subject to the recount that is said to be held. Otonabee—Wm. Anderson, reeve; Thos. J. Johnson, 1st deputy reeve; J. Lancaster, 2nd deputy reeve; Smith—Jas. Middleton, reeve; Wm. Mellmoyle, deputy reeve.

THE AWARD.

Application for an Extension of Time Has Been Granted.

The application made on behalf of the township of Monaghan by Mr. Edmison before Mr. Justice Ferguson in Single Court, Toronto, for an extension of time in the matter of the arbitrator's award has been granted. The court proceedings read as follows:

Re Town of Peterborough and Township of Monaghan—Edmison (Peterborough), for the township of Monaghan, moved on consent of the town of Peterborough for order enlarging time for making award until 15th February next. Granted.

Another case of Mr. Edmison's appears in the Osgoode Hall report:

McCall v. Hall.—Edmison (Peterborough), for plaintiff, moved for an injunction restraining defendant from cutting timber on plaintiff's land, otherwise than according to contract between parties. Stratton (Peterborough), for defendant, contra. Injunction granted and costs reserved till the trial.

THE HOCKEY MATCH.

Peterborough Overwhelmingly Defeats the Trinity Team

The hockey match at the rink Thursday between the first team of Trinity College, Toronto, and the Peterboroughs, resulted in a victory for the home players by a score of 12 goals to 2.

A large crowd attended the match which was spirited from the start, the interest being maintained to the finish. The visiting team played well, but were weak in some points. The game put up by the home players was excellent. The summary is as follows:

FIRST HALF.

Team.	Scorer.	Time.
Peterboro	King	½ minute
"	Wonham	6 "
"	Phelan	1 "
"	King	3 "
"	Wonham	5 "
"	"	1½ "
"	King	1 "
Trinity	Senkler	3 "

SECOND HALF.

Team.	Scorer.	Time.
Trinity	Senkler	4½ "
Peterboro	Phelan	1 "
"	King	15 seconds
"	Phelan	2 minutes
"	"	11 "

NOTES.

McMurrick and Senkler played well for Trinity. McMurrick made several phenomenal stops. He is the best goal keeper ever seen in Peterborough.

For Peterborough the only weak spot noticeable was Lefevre, and as this is his first game with the home team it is entirely excused.

Walter Phelan played strong all the way through and did excellent and telling work.

Wonham went after the puck in great style and scored the highest number of times. King played a great game, scoring three times.

The visiting team was royally entertained in the Palace Restaurant parlors after the match.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

A Large Attendance at the Annual Meeting Wednesday.

A large number of farmers from neighboring townships attended the annual meeting of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute in the Council Chamber yesterday afternoon.

The principal speaker of the occasion was Mr. C. A. Zavitz, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. Mr. Zavitz gave an interesting talk on the best varieties of wheat, barley, peas and oats. The information he gave was the result of experiments made in the Agricultural College farm, and was broad and thorough, relating to every variety of the cereals mentioned, known to modern agriculture. He explained the relative value of the cereals, and pointed out the best varieties for the farmer to plant to obtain the best results. His remarks were of the greatest value to the large and attentive audience of farmers, who will doubtless derive much benefit by acting upon the information gleaned.

Dr. E. Smith, B.A., Brampton, followed, taking for his subject the essentials in successful breeding. Mr. J. P. Beam, of Black Creek, Ont., was the last speaker and ably dealt with the question, "How to construct and maintain roads."

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting of the Fair Managers—An Excellent Showing.

President George E. Elliott presided at the annual meeting of the west Peterborough Agricultural Society in the Council chamber Wednesday afternoon, at which there was a large attendance of the members.

THE FINANCES.

The financial statement of the year was presented, read and adopted. It showed a very satisfactory state of affairs, inasmuch as the expenditures of the year had exceeded the receipts by only $31.80. While the total assets of the company are $2,500 the total liabilities amount to the small sum of $287.87.

From the Agricultural Society of the townships of Smith and Ennismore and the village of Lakefield a report was received stating that the following officers had been elected:

President—Robert H. Braden.
Vice-President—H. O. Garbutt.
Secretary-Treasurer—Wesley Sherin.
Directors—Edward Fitzgerald, Levi Payne, J. H. McWilliams, William Abbott, R. Q. Dench, Edward Elliott, J. R. Fraser, M. D., R. J. Galvin and G. W. Fitzgerald.
Auditors—Andrew Fairbairn and William M. Graham.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President.—Geo. E. Elliott.
1st Vice-President.—Wm. Rutherford.
2nd Vice-President.—Jas. Davidson.
Directors.—Messrs. Harry Winch, Robt. Vance, T. M. Hunter, Thos. Hall, John Stothard, Dawson Kennedy, A. P. Morgan, R. H. Braden and Jno. H. Garbutt.
Auditors.—J. Fred Davidson and W. J. Hall.

The following gentlemen were made honorary members upon the motion of Messrs. Wm. Collins and J. R. Stratton: The Members of Parliament for East and West Peterborough, the Mayor of Peterborough, Warden of the County, President of the Board of Trade, President of the Street Railway, the Reeve of North Monaghan and Messrs. John Carnegie, John Garbutt, R. A. Morrow and John McClelland.

Mr. Vance of Ida, and Mr. W. J. Westington of Haldimand, were nominated for members of the Agricultural and Arts Association. Mr. Vance was the unanimous choice.

The report of the Directors was read by the president as follows:

To the Members of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society:

GENTLEMEN,—In submitting our annual report, it gives us pleasure to state that this year has been fully up to, and in many respects ahead, of any previous year.

At our last annual meeting we felt warranted in predicting, on account of the operations of the society for 1894, a large surplus of receipts over expenditures. This expectation would have been realized but for circumstances over which we had no control. Our claim to the use of the Driving Park ceased at the close of 1893. Therefore, it was necessary to make provision for supplying its place, and to this end we had to make changes in our own grounds to meet our requirements. It was necessary to provide a horse ring, and this made it also necessary to remove our main building. A practically new third of a mile ring was made and a new grand stand erected. The change, including incidental expenses, involved an expenditure of about $300. This amount used up what should have constituted our surplus. However, these improvements, which are permanent, were only made after careful consideration by your directors. We believe that the money has been judiciously expended, and that the resulting improvements will admirably serve the purposes of the Society for some time to come.

Our expenditure in 1894, including the above improvements and necessary expenditures for successfully carrying on the exhibition and paying the prize list, amounted to over $3,300; and we are pleased to be able to state that all liabilities arising out of these expenditures have been fully met, and we can present you with a clean sheet, but not, however, without drawing upon our reserve fund to a certain extent to secure such a result.

The thanks of the Society are due, and are hereby heartily extended, to all those who in any way contributed to the success of our annual exhibition—to the Street Railway Company for substantial aid in removing the main building and enlarging the horse ring, to the County Council for their annual grant, and to the merchants and hotel men of the town for handsome voluntary contributions.

In conclusion your directors wish to say that their object has been to make the Central the finest exhibition in the Midland District, and the success achieved in this direction has been reasonably realized by the cordial co-operation by the members and the public generally, and to meet the fullest measure of success we trust we can fully rely upon a continuation of the co-operation and sympathy of the citizens of both town and county.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEO. E. ELLIOTT,
President.

SEASONABLE SPORTS.

Several Curling Matches at the Rink Last Night.

Yesterday afternoon Skips Brown and LeBrun played a friendly game at the rink. The match was hotly contested, resulting in a victory to the former by one shot. The rinks and score are:

Rinks	Rinks
Harry Phelan	Peter Henry
J. S. Knapman	W. H. Bradburn
G. W. Hatton	J. McClelland
C. Brown, skip—13	H. LeBrun, skip—12

The same skips will play on Friday afternoon for a barrel of flour to be given to the poor.

At the rink last night there were several interesting and enthusiastic matches. Skips Dumble and Edwards played a match in the Inter-rink contest, resulting as follows:

Rinks.	Rinks.
Colonel Rogers	H. S. Greenwood
C. Fessenden	H. J. Sheriff
G. A. Schoefield	W. L. Allen
R. B. Edwards, skip 16	D. W. Dumble, skip 13

There was an exciting scratch match between Skips Attrill and Connal. The score will denote the enthusiasm displayed by Skip Connal's forces:

Rinks.	Rinks.
A. Gurd	C. Matthews
W. H. Hill	L. M. Hayes
W. G. Morrow	W. J. Drope
W. Salisbury	C. Rutherford
J. Connal, skip 17	T. P. Attrill, skip 1

A JUST SENTENCE.

Thomas Ratford, a Depraved Character, Gets Six Months in Goal.

Thomas Ratford was sentenced to six months in goal in the Police Court yesterday morning on a charge of vagrancy. The case was one brought to the attention of the police by the Children's Aid Society through its agent, Mr. Miller, who displayed great energy and commendable zeal in ridding the town of a man of Ratford's depraved nature.

Ratford, according to his own story, has been living with a family named Kearns on Patterson street since last June, and during that time paid little or nothing for his board. The Kearns family consists of mother and father and six small children. The father is a cripple, capable of earning very little and not enough to support the family. Application was made to the town relief officer for food and fuel. Upon investigation the fact that Ratford was living with this family, literally taking the food out of the children's mouths, was discovered. The relief officer refused assistance until Ratford left the place.

The investigation prosecuted by the Children's Aid Society revealed a shocking state of affairs. Ratford, it seems, stayed at the place against the will of Kearns, whose wife evidently had "the say" in the miserable home. The Society's agent testified that there was only one bed in the house. Ratford said there were two. He and the two little boys and the father occupied one, and the mother and the three little girls the other. Neighbors testified that ever since Ratford had entered the house there had been frequent unseemly rackets at night, until the place became generally known as disreputable.

It came out in evidence that Ratford on one occasion was ordered to leave the house by Kearns, and he did so living for several days around the locks. He admitted that Mrs. Kearns brought him his meals while there.

A more depraved character has not been in the police dock from some time. The six months' sentence was none too harsh for a person of Ratford's depraved nature.

SEVERELY THRASHED.

What Happened a Peterborough Man While Removing a Piano.

The removal of a piano was the cause of an exciting episode in Omemee a day or so ago. Jackson & Company had a piano in the Caldwell House, which they desired removed and B. M. Wyllie was given the necessary authority to do the job. Wyllie went to Omemee accompanied by Mr. Boiler, and when they arrived at the Cardwell House they found that Mr. Cardwell was in Peterborough.

However, they decided to get out the piano, and experienced no trouble in shifting it to the top of the stairs. To get it down the stairs was too big a job, and Wyllie went out to get assistance. While out on this mission he was attacked and given a sound thrashing by unknown parties and so severely that he has been confined to his home ever since.

In the meantime the piano was removed from the stairs but on the day following was given up to the owners.

A TURKEY SHOOT.

The Goose Club Do Some Good Shooting at Ennismore.

The Goose club held a turkey shoot at Mr. John Campbell's hotel, Ennismore, Thursday, and succeeded in bagging 17 turkeys. The successful ones were: G. Fitzgerald, 2; J. B. Pentland, 2; Sam Ray, 3; C. Curtis, 2; Mark McFadden, 1; D. Cameron, 1; T. Rutherford, 1; George Hutchinson, 1; W. Morris, 1; J. Campbell, 1.

After the shoot the sportsmen were invited to partake of a substantial spread, prepared by Mrs. Campbell.

Last night the club held its annual meeting and elected officers. Mr. M. McFadden was chosen president and Mr. W. Morris secretary and treasurer.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR GARVIN.

The Facts Regarding His Trip to North Simcoe Riding.

School Inspector J. W. Garvin has been placed in a false light before the citizens of Peterborough, and the province as well, by an incorrect and biased report published in a Toronto daily, of a political meeting which he attended in North Simcoe. In all fairness to Mr. Garvin it is right that certain facts should be made known relative to his visit to North Simcoe, in order that his position may be seen in its true light.

Inspector Garvin was made the subject of an outrageous attack by the Barrie Advance, a journal for which all clean newspapers will hereafter blush. That paper assailed Mr. Garvin without just cause, violently and scurrilously, using language unfit for the columns of a respectable newspaper. Mr. Garvin was, grossly, misrepresented and maligned. He was portrayed as a man unworthy of either the confidence or respect of the people. The cause of all this was due to the fact that Mr. Garvin held political opinions at variance with those of the editor of the Advance.

Mr. Garvin wrote a letter to the Advance refuting the glaring falsehoods made and defining his true position. He demanded nothing but a right that would have been conceded by any fair newspaper, when he asked that this letter be published. However, its publication was refused and used, or portions of it, for the purpose of further misrepresenting the School Inspector.

Mr. Garvin attended the recent political meeting in North Simcoe to set himself right before the people of that section in whose midst he was born and brought up, and to refute the libelous statements of the Advance. He was well received by the large assemblage, was given a most patient hearing, and made a forcible and eloquent speech.

Inspector Garvin did not require the permission of the Board of Education to leave town for a few days. It is ridiculous to presume that a gentleman occupying his position should have to ask leave of absence for such a short period. During his regime in Peterborough school work, Mr. Garvin has been absent from his duties but three days, and two of those were spent in attendance upon a convention. In no place in Ontario is a School Inspector required or expected to ask for leave of absence. The School Inspector has devoted thirty Saturdays to school work since he assumed the position in Peterborough, and in the face of this, any complaint on account of a couple of days devoted to his personal affairs, would be most ungenerous and paltry, and beneath the dignity of the Board of Education.

DANGEROUSLY INJURED.

Mr. Aaron Comstock Thrown Violently Against a Telegraph Pole.

Mr. Aaron Comstock, the well known furniture dealer, is lying at his home in a very critical condition, the result of an accident that befell him Wednesday morning.

While driving in a cutter with his son on Charlotte street, a sharp turn at the corner of George street upset the cutter, the runner of which caught in the track. Both Mr. Comstock and his son were thrown out, and at the same time the horse became frightened and made a wild break at running. Mr. Comstock had hold of the lines and retained them, the horse dragging him along the street at a furious rate.

When nearly opposite Mr. Comstock's warehouse the animal suddenly shied to the side of the street. The sudden swerve threw Mr. Comstock violently towards the sidewalk and his head struck a telegraph pole with much force, rendering him unconscious. He was immediately surrounded by those who had witnessed the affair and quickly removed to his house.

Drs. King and Halliday attended the wounded man. His wounds, as far as can be determined at the present time, consist of severe cuts and bruises on the front of the head, a cut on the ear, and a fracture of the skull. The extent of the latter can only be determined by symptoms which will require a certain length of time for development.

Late last night Mr. Comstock was slightly better, resting easy and was conscious. Immediate serious results are not feared, although complications may develop in a few days, a possibility that his many friends in Peterborough sincerely trust will not be realized.

A few minutes before the accident, Mr. Comstock received a telegram containing the sad intelligence that his only sister had died in Chatham. Mr. Comstock's brother died only last summer.

THE SKIPS CHOSEN.

Thistles Appoint Skips for the Approaching Competitions.

A largely attended meeting of the Thistle Division of the Curling Club was held Monday night.

The following skips were appointed to play in the match in Toronto on January 23:

S. Ray	R. H. Kells
T. Rutherford	R. S. Davidson
C. McGill	W. G. Ferguson

Messrs. S. Ray and T. Rutherford were appointed skips for the Tankard and Dryden Cup.

Messrs. C. McGill, R. H. Keels and R. S. Davidson will be the skips in Toronto-Peterborough Cup competition which will be played in Toronto.

MR. CURRAN'S DEATH.

A Long Time Resident of Peterborough Passed Away.

The death of Mr. Owen Curran occurred on Saturday morning at his residence in Peterborough from asthma, a complaint with which the deceased had suffered for years. Mr. Curran has been an employee of the Grand Trunk railway, ever since the branch was built to this town. A few months ago he was forced to give up his position on account of ill health, a position which he filled ably and well for 35 years. Deceased was born in Limerick county Ireland, and was in his 76th year at the time of his death.

One son, Mr. John Curran, who is at present employed on a railroad in Florida, survives. Word of his father's death was immediately wired, and Mr. Curran is expected on Tuesday night. The funeral will in all probability take place on Wednesday afternoon.

Deceased was well known in Peterborough, and much respected. His death is the loss of a good citizen, which will be generally regretted.

THE MARKET SCALES.

Editor Morning Times.

SIR—I desire to say a word through the columns of THE TIMES about the public weighing machine. On December 10th last, I had a horse weighed, and got a ticket giving the weight of the animal at 1010 pounds. I fed the horse on the best, and when I got the animal into what I considered good condition, so far as fat is concerned, I again had him weighed, expecting, of course, to see a large increase in weight. Imagine my astonishment when I read the figures—1010 pounds.

Now, Mr. Editor, I think, if those scales are so eccentric, as they appear by this record, it is time we purchased a new machine. The public depend on those scales, more than all others, for being correct. They can judge for themselves, from the above, how badly they are out.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM CROFT.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 12, 1895.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

Lost.

A pair of gold-rimmed spectacles. Finder will be suitably rewarded by returning to TIMES office.

Left Over

Two communications, one from School Inspector Garvin and the other from Mr. C. W. Sawers, have been held over for Monday's issue.

Mr. Comstock's Condition.

Mr. Aaron Comstock, whose recent accident resulted so disastrously, is improving and will recover. Mr. Comstock had a very narrow escape.

A Two Dollar Trip.

Travel is cheap now-a-days when you can run up to Toronto with the curlers excursion and back for $2.00. Better try the experiment. Jolly crowd to travel with, or if you prefer to be exclusive you can go the night before. The date is Wednesday, January 23rd. A lot of people quite as respectable as curlers are going too. Toronto papers will have items about influx of distinguished citizens of Peterborough in the city. Why not be one? The expense is only a trifle. C.P.R. fast trains, either Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. Back last train Thursday night.

The Business World.

J. C. Hart, grain merchant, of Alliston, is offering to compromise at 35c on the dollar. Gent's furnishers Rutledge & Hammond, Fort William, have dissolved. Bowes & Co., dry goods, Kingston, have dissolved partnership. Contractor G. E. Stacey, Orillia, has assigned to T. Goffat. The harness stock of J. H. Bradt, Stratford, has been seized for rent. The dry goods stock of Devany Bros., Toronto, is advertised for sale. The grocery stock of Mrs. E. Lewis, Toronto, has been sold by the bailiff. The Mowat Manufacturing Company, Whitby, assigned to Sheriff Paxton.

Election of Officers.

The officers and committees in charge of the affairs of the Murray street Baptist church for 1895 are as follows: Deacons—Benj. Matthews and Wm. Aldridge, re-elected. Treasurer—Mr. T. F. Matthews, re-elected. Finance Committee—Messrs. G. Cochrane, W. Aldridge, T. Gillespie, L. Croly and R. A. Stanley. Ushers, east side—Messrs. G. Cochrane, W. Garbutt, John McDonald and Chas. Mann; west side, Thos. Mimms, L. Croly and A. Plummer. Convenor of Ladies' Visiting Committee—Mrs. (Dr.) Scott. Chairman of Park street Mission Committee—Mr. A. L. Grover.

A Charitable Object.

The celebration of Burns' anniversary in Peterborough by a concert of high order and one worthy of the occasion, is not the only laudable object which St. Andrew's Society have in view. The proceeds of the concert is in aid of the benevolent fund of the society, which, it is learned, has stood the strain of the hard times until its funds have become nearly exhausted. Ticket holders, therefore, have the satisfaction of knowing that they are assisting a purely charitable society, which has been helping to relieve the town of some of the burdens that must be borne by every community. Remember the date, Jan. 23rd.

Beware of Him.

The Chief has received a letter from the Chief Constable at Colborne as follows: "I write you enquiring if there is a person in your town who goes from house to house looking for clothes wringers to fix or repair. He left here last Saturday night for the west and got off at Port Hope. The charge is that he got two wringers from a woman to repair but he has not returned them and sold one of them to a neighbor for $2.50. His name is James Elves, about 25, very tall and slim, sandy complexion, with a moustache, wore a light colored rubber coat, without a cape, when here. If in your town, arrest and wire as the warrant is issued." The man described has been in Peterborough. Some months ago he opened a small shop in town and took clothes-wringers to repair. A large number of citizens lost valuable wringers much the same way as described in the letter.

THE SATURDAY TIMES.

During this week no less than 300 subscriptions were turned in by our agents for THE SATURDAY TIMES. This is a jump for one week. In the future the paper will contain special features that will prove very interesting, and undoubtedly be the means of increasing the already large circulation.

Merchants will do well to keep an eye on THE SATURDAY TIMES. It reaches those people whose patronage they are most desirous of securing.

HUNTING FOR HIS WIFE.

A Man from Campbellford Locates the Partner of His Joys.

The Daily Intelligencer of Belleville furnishes the following bit of news of local interest: A man named Milne, whose place of residence is Campbellford., is in the city hunting up his wife, whom he claims is of a wayward disposition. It appears that the husband is about 30 years of age, while his wife is only 23, and "November and May" have not drawn well together in matrimonial harness. The wife has been here about a month and has not been keeping the best of company it is asserted. Milne says this is her second outing since their marriage and is growing tired of making his own bed. He says it will be $40 in his pocket if he can get her back to Campbellford, and there is no doubt that when Mrs. Milne hears of this bit of good fortune she will immediately return, although the husband did not divulge the scheme whereby he is to acquire the sum mentioned.

PETERBOROUGH COLTS WIN.

Campbellford Again Vanquished – A Close Game Last Night.

The second schedule game of the Colts Curling Association was played on the rink last night when two rinks from Campbellford measured strength with two of the home rinks, it being the return match.

The Peterborough Colts won the game at Campbellford and likewise last night. The game was very close except in the last half. It was midnight before the match was finished. The rinks and scores were:

Majority for Peterborough 9 shots.

After the match the visiting curlers were tendered a supper at the Palace Restaurant. A very pleasant time was spent.

The Peterborough's will next play the Belleville's two matches. The dates are yet open.

FOR A BARREL OF FLOUR.

On the rink yesterday afternoon an exciting match was played by Skips LeBrun and Brown for a barrel of flour for St. Joseph's hospital. Mr. Brown won the match by 4 shots.

A FURIOUS DRIVE.

The Experience of Messrs. Fairweather and Hamilton on Thursday.

Messrs. Thomas Hamilton and J. W. Fairweather both own two splendid horses of noted speed and appearance. On Thursday it was agreed to hitch the horses in double harness and take a spin to Bridgenorth. So the pair set out behind the prancing steeds, both swelling with pride as they thought of the dash they were cutting. Mr. Hamilton did the driving.

The town was soon left behind, and on the country roads the horses were let out a little. The cool, crisp air was exhilarating, the sleighing was excellent and the nags were feeling their oats. In an unguarded moment Mr. Hamilton allowed the horses to get out of his control, and for the next 20 minutes an exciting race took place.

The horses dashed along the road at a furious speed, utterly beyond the control of the occupants of the cutter, who had an experience they will not soon forget. Mr. Hamilton put all his strength on the lines, but it had no effect in checking the animals. The fur merchant crouched down in the seat and both yelled whoa at the top of their voices. For three miles this continued. Other vehicles on the road turned off and allowed the runaways to pass. It was like the flight of a meteor. The inhabitants of the section through which they passed are talking over it yet. Several collisions were narrowly avoided.

When the horses ran themselves tired and stopped, the occupants of the cutter were pretty nearly used up. Mr. Fairweather, who has crossed Lake Ontario several times without a squirm was sick at his stomach. Mr. Hamilton's arms were sore and stiff from the strain of holding the reins, and even yet are a source of pain. Happily the incident was unattended by serious features.

BREAULT'S FAIRY TALE.

Mrs. Jamieson Denies the Story that Made Him a Hero.

The Frenchman, Breault, who came to Peterborough from the lumber camps with the late Mr. James Jamieson, recently carried around a subscription list and collected quite a sum of money to take him back to the camps.

Breault was made a hero upon his own story. He claimed to have carried his companion 40 miles through the woods, undergoing many hardships for friendship's sake. This story was swallowed with amazing credulity. Few people stopped to think that the feat which the Frenchman claimed to have performed would have been an impossibility to a man of twice Breault's strength and physique.

Mrs. Jamieson, widow of the late James Jamieson, has asked THE TIMES to correct a few impressions that Breault's fairy tale gave rise to.

In the first place, Mrs. Jamieson says her husband denied Breault's story in every particular the night before his death. This statement should be given more credit than that of Breault's who evidently concocted the story with an object in view.

Mr. Jamieson, before he died, positively denied that Breault "carried him on his back." At the time he left the camp, Breault had been discharged, and was coming to Peterborough. The cook, Mr. Burns, asked Breault to look after Mr. Jamieson, and also paid his fare for him. Mr. Jamieson went from his own camp to to the camp where Breault was working in the camp's wagon. Both men took the train at this point. Breault never carried Jamieson any distance. The foreman in the camps would never have allowed a sick man to be subjected to such exposure.

The shooting of the pistol was also denied. This was another flight of Breault's imagination.

At no time was Mr. Jamieson violently insane, and Mrs. Jamieson wants it positively stated that she nor none of his relatives feared that he would have to be placed in an asylum. At the time of his death and the night before, she says her husband was perfectly sane

Just the Thing You Want.

Do not imagine that A. Clegg sells nothing but expensive furniture in his extensive stock. You will find furniture at all prices from a common wooden chair at 3 for one dollar, up. Cheap bedroom suites, a large assortment, between twelve and twenty dollars. A splendid line of cheap and medium sideboards and dining tables in oak finish, plenty to choose from in every line, one of the largest stocks in Canada. A. Clegg, 427 George street.

THE WEATHER.

Probs: Easterly and southeasterly winds. Moderately cold, with light snow.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers

It's a little colder this morning.

The curlers' excursion is next Tuesday.

Everything is quiet in police circles (at present).

Last night the Y. M. C. A. held a peanut social. There was a debate and an interesting program.

Two of the curling rinks will journey to Lindsay on Tuesday to play the second match.

The new council will meet on Monday morning at 11 o'clock and again on Monday evening. Mayor Kendry will enforce the customary rule and not allow the session to last latter than 10 o'clock.

A paragraph has been going the rounds of the papers to the effect that the Postmaster General had authorized the carriage through the mails of common cards with a one cent stamp, etc. It turns out that the card in question applies only to Great Britain, therefore the reader should send his or her card in the usual way.

A proclamation appears in the Canada Gazette bringing into force from the 1st instant the amendment to the Criminal Code passed last session enacting that notwithstanding any law, usage or custom to the contrary, seven grand jurors, instead of twelve, as heretofore, may find a true bill in any province where the panel of grand jurors is not more than thirteen.

From reports made by Ontario medical health officers, it would appear that diphtheria manifested itself in 110 municipalities in this Province, there having been 369 cases and 104 deaths. Figures received by Dr. Bryce indicate, however, that the scourge does not prevail in Canada with anything like the severity it does in the United States. Since December 18th there have been in the city of Philadelphia alone 293 cases and 78 deaths.

Canada is to have an Intercolonial exhibition. Montreal has been chosen as the exhibition city and the fair will be held there in 1896. It will last for six months, May to October. The idea originated with Joseph H. Stiles, who was commissioner-general for Great Britain at the San Francisco Midwinter Fair. He is in Montreal and has concluded arrangements with the Montreal Exposition Company. The agreement has been signed. An incorporated company will be formed with a capital stock of $600,000. The cost of construction is estimated at $450 000 and the operating expenses at $303,000. The gate receipts are figured at $1,000,000.

A man living in the rear part of North Augusta constructed a novel trap for capturing bear. He got an old liquor barrel and made a hole in one end about a foot in diameter. Around this hole he drove spikes from the outside so that they slanted downward like the old fashioned rat trap, so that when the bear ran his head into the barrel to sniff a savory piece of pork, securely nailed inside the trap, he could not withdraw his mug and so either walked about with the barrel in front of him or rolled on the ground on the spot until the trapper came and finished him. Thus far the man has secured fourteen bears in this manner.

The remains of Mrs. Melrose, relict of the late John Melrose, were brought from Peterborough on the afternoon train on Friday last, and interred in Mount Pleasant cemetery. The deceased lady died of paralysis of the brain at the residence of her son in that town, on Thursday. She was a resident of Campbellford for eleven years, but moved to Peterborough about three years ago. Mrs. Melrose was born in Scotland, and came to this country when comparatively a young woman. Two sons and one daughter mourn her departure. Mr. A. P. Melrose is a resident of Peterborough, Mr. Alex. Melrose resides at Skowhegan, Maine, and Mrs. Robert Parker at Newcastle. The deceased was 76 years of age.—Campbellford Herald.

TURNBULL'S

As we enter the New Year we wish our many customers in town and country a happy and prosperous one.

January is our annual Stocktaking month and we must be finished by the 1st of February and we are now measuring and throwing out all odd lines on tables, to be cleared before that date. Such as

Ends of Dress Goods
Ends of Tweeds
Ends of Shirtings
Ends of Prints
Ends of Carpets
Ends of Cottons
Ends of Cretonnes
Ends of Embroideries
Ends of Laces
Ends of Ribbbons

These are all good, fresh goods, only in remnants and will be sold at remnant prices, We have still about 180 suits of that very heavy all wool Underclothing at $1 a suit. Sold everywhere at $1 50 Everyone who needs a suit of heavy underwear should see them.

The balance of our Sealettes, Heavy Curls and Mantles have been going steadily at the prices they were marked since we last talked about them, but we have still a few good Mantles and Cloths left, which some one will get a bargain of. We show a window of all styles of Hats and Placques, your choice for 35 cents. We prefer to sell them at this price rather than pack them away.

Canadian Order of the WOODMEN OF THE WORLD
(ASSESSMENT SYSTEM)
Incorporated by Special Act Dominion Parliament. Under Government Inspection. Head Office—London, Canada.
An organizer wanted for every county.

A Metal Breadboard
THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check its almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become a dangerous coveyance of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread-board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread-board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 161 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

BLOODSHED IN HAWAII.

ANOTHER SERIOUS UPRISING AMONG THE ROYALISTS.

An Attempt to Seize Arms Results in Bloodshed—Charles Carter Killed and Others Taken Prisoners—It Was a Surprise in Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—Advices from Honolulu up to January 11, tell of an uprising that occurred on Sunday, the 6th, and was still in progress on the 11th. The Cabinet received word on the 5th that arms were being landed on the beach at Waikiki, and Deputy Marshal Brown and a squad of police were sent to search the premises of Henry Bertlmann, a prominent Royalist. They were joined by Charles L. Carter, Alfred Carter and J. B. Castle.

THE FIRING BEGAN

Brown entered the house and began to read his warrant when he heard shots in the rear of the house. Bertlmann said there were no arms in his place and Brown rushed out to join his comrades, just as Charles Carter cried "There they are, under the boat-shed," and rushing forward followed by his cousin and the others.

A volley was fired from the shed and Charles Carter and Lieut. Holl fell wounded. The police drove the natives out on the beach and they retreated to the bush, the police returning to Bertlmann's house.

REBELS ATTACK THE POLICE.

The rebels regained courage and surrounded the house, firing into it repeatedly. Leaving one man to guard the prisoners, the officers returned the fire but without effect, as their assailant could not be seen. Realizing that their case was desperate and that word must be got to town at all hazards, it was resolved that Brown and Baker should make a dash for their horses, which were tied near the house. This was done with success and they were soon at the nearest telegraph office.

TO TAKE IT BY STORM.

The natives were advancing on the house to take it by storm, when one of the officers told Bertlemann he would blow his brains out on the instant the first man went inside the house and hurt anyone. Bertlemann called to the natives outside to that effect, and they at once withdrew and ceased firing.

Before long a detail of 13 regulars from the Government building arrived at the scene of action, and the natives fired a parting volley and fled.

CARTER DIED FROM HIS WOUNDS.

Charles Carter died early the next morning, and Lieut. Holl is now in the hospital.

It is said that among the prisoners are Volney Ashford and his brother Clarence, who are from Canada. The first named is an ex-commander of the forces, and the latter ex Prime Minister.

SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The news of the insurrection was a great surprise in diplomatic circles here. The general impression seems that no revolution can be victorious in its results unless aided and abetted by some foreign power. There are no warships of any nation at Honolulu. The Champion left some time before the uprising.

Secretary Herbert said: "We have no ships at Honolulu at present, nor are there any on the way there. The Charleston and Bennington are at San Francisco, ready to proceed, and they could leave today if it were thought necessary. This is the first news that I have received of the matter, and I have not had time to decide whether a ship shall be sent at once or not."

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Sensation Caused by the Revelations of a Royal Commission.

NANAIMO, B.C., Jan. 19.—Probably one of the greatest sensations ever experienced in British Columbia was caused yesterday by the revelations before the Royal Commission now in progress here and the strange disappearance of Police Magistrate Planta.

The commission was appointed to investigate [illegible] Planta's conduct as Police Magistrate, and to enquire into the judical administration of conduct generally. Evidence was adduced during the progress of the enquiry of a most startling nature, showing not only very peculiar methods in handling public monies on the part of Planta, but bringing to light a serious state of affairs regarding the municipal council's finances as managed by City Clerk Gough. Planta's disappearance is the strangest part of all. He was in town at 2 p.m. yesterday, since then nothing has been seen or heard of his movements. As he practically had no means of leaving the town in the afternoon the general opinion is that Planta has drowned himself.

England's Warships.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The Herald's special from Panama says:—The presence of three British warships in the Pacific and three more on the Atlantic coast of Central America is causing considerable comment. It is thought that the Mosquito reservation question is far from being settled.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—It was rumored this evening that M. Herbette, the French ambassador, had resigned. Count Shuvaloff, the retiring Russian ambassador, and his family left Berlin for Russia this evening. The Emperor assisted the Countess into the railway cars and kissed her hand. He embraced the Count at the station. There was a great assemblage of officers, court and government officials and members of the Russian embassy.

Wealth Engaged to Wealth.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—There is a rumor in club circles that Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, has become engaged to marry Moses Taylor, a well-known young man about town and the possessor of millions. Moses Taylor is a grandson of Moses Taylor, who died a number of years ago, leaving a fortune estimated at $40,000,000. He is about 25 years old.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—A Times' special from San Luis Potosi, Mexico, says:—"Hidden treasure, to the amount of nearly $300,000 in Spanish doubloons, was discovered yesterday in a cavern which opened into a canon just east of the city. The money is supposed to have been secreted by bandits or Franciscan monks many years ago."

BROOKLYN'S STRIKE.

It Breaks Out Afresh and is More Serious—National Guards in Arm and Ordered Out.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 19.—The leaders of the railroad strike were holding a meeting at their headquarters late last night when information was received of the instruction of Mayor Schieren to call out the troops. They decided as a retaliatory step to cause a general strike on all the railroads in Brooklyn.

At 7 o'clock this morning nearly 3,000 of the National Guard were under arms in this city. The first point that was covered by the militia this morning was the depot of Atlantic avenue line at Ninth avenue and Twentieth street.

The soldiers were hooted and jeered at. Women threw up windows in the tenement houses and shook their fists at the military men as they marched by.

The strikers and their sympathizers are loud in denouncing the city authorities for ordering out the troops.

All local assemblies will hold meetings today to take action regarding the present situation.

They claim that the action of the city authorities in ordering out the troops was unnecessary, as they expect to win the strike without resorting to violence for the reason that the companies cannot procure new men to take their places.

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

A TRUE BILL OF MURDER AGAINST CLARA FORD.

Two Juries Locked Up in One Court—An Assault Case—Death of a Prominent and Wealthy Citizen—To Begin the Campaign.

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—At half past twelve o'clock today the grand jury filed into the Criminal Assize Court and presented to Mr. Justice Street an indictment against Clara Ford for the murder of Frank Westwood. There was no excitement about the matter whatever: it was all done quietly and formally and then the jurors withdrew.

Mr. Murdoch, her counsel, sat quietly by the barristers' table. The indictment was read in a low tone of voice by the clerk so that those in the back part of the room were not able to hear him. And then he forgot to read the crime charged: when his attention was called to it he said: "I beg your lordship's pardon." Then he read "Clara Ford, murder, true bill.

NOT HER DAUGHTER.

The little girl, Flora McKay, who has been considered to be the child of Clara Ford, has received a letter from a woman who says she is not, and that she has the necessary knowledge and papers to back up the statement. She adds that, if necessary, she will come here to prove the truth of what she says.

TWO JURIES LOCKED UP.

It is a novel thing to have two juries locked up at the same time, as was the case last night; and both were considering cases of a similiar nature. They were kept at the Schiller Hotel, in charge of constables. One had charge of the Mitchell case and the other of the Rustin case.

After Katie Mitchell was removed from the court room, in an epileptic fit her father's trial was postponed until this morning. Then James Rustin was put upon trial charged with having committed rape upon Cassie Clifford. He is a young farmer living in King township, and Cassie, 14 years old, was a servant in his house. Rustin's young wife, an attractive looking woman, gave evidence on behalf of her husband. Mr. J. E. Irving defended the prisoner.

SAID THEY WERE ASSAULTED.

Chief Justice Meredith and a jury today dealt with an action brought by Wm. and Mrs. Jane Peacock and her daughter Sarah, against W. J. Home, Bailiff John McIntyre, and Auctioneer Frank J. Walsh. Mr. Home owns No. 205 Brunswick avenue and the Peacocks lived there. The defendants were concerned in a seizure of the goods there on a claim for rent; and this suit was for damages, based upon an allegation of illegal distress. The defendants denied any illegal action, and held that they acted strictly within their lawful rights.

It was stated that of the goods there Mr. Peacock's share was $400, his wife's $400 and his daughter's $400. The entry, seizure and sale were made last June. Mr. Peacock asked the jury to give him $500 for the trespass and $400 for the alleged illegal distress. Mrs. Jane wanted $400 for trespass and $500 for alleged assault, while Sarah appealed for $500 for trespass and $500 for assault.

ALEX. M. SMITH DEAD.

There is general regret felt in Toronto over the death of A. M. Smith, the senior member of the wholesale firm of Smith & Keighley, one of the city's most respected and honored citizens, which occurred at his residence, corner of Gerrard and Pembroke streets, at 10 o'clock this morning. He was 76 years of age.

Mr. Smith began to fail in health two years ago, but it was not till about eight months ago that his condition became serious, his malady being anæmia. The deceased leaves a widow, but no children. The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock on Monday to the Necropolis.

THE BODY WAS BOUND.

MRS. GIROUX THE VICTIM OF AN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

She Was Dead When Taken Out by the Firemen, but It Was Discovered that Her Feet Were Tied with Cords.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—When the body of Mrs. Joseph Giroux, which was found lifeless in a sitting posture in her house by the firemen yesterday morning, was being prepared for burial in the forenoon at Roger's morgue, a discovery of a highly sensational character was made. It was found that the woman's legs were pinioned together, just a little below the knees, with some heavy twine that was wound around the limbs several times. It was not easily taken off, and the conclusions drawn are that the unfortunate either bound the cord around for the ostensible purpose of committing suicide by afterwards setting the house on fire and being burned to death, or else that she met with foul play.

However, her end is as yet shrouded in mystery, as only vague details of how she spent her last night were given at the inquest conducted last night.

THE EVIDENCE.

According to the evidence adduced at the inquest the fire was discovered in her house, 215 Rochester street, about 5.30 in the morning by Adolphin Poulin, who testified that he was passing on his way to work when he noticed the smoke coming out of the windows and doors. He looked in the window and seeing no one in the house, he ran and gave an alarm immediately from box 143. The fire had gained some headway when the brigade arrived. Ladders were run up to the upper flat and the windows smashed so as to allow the smoke to escape, while a couple of firemen went around to the back with a stream. They found the kitchen door locked and upon breaking it in were horrified to find Mrs. Giroux

SITTING ON THE FLOOR

a few feet to one side, with her back resting against the wall. A chair stood next to her, but she evidently had not been using it. She was taken hurriedly out of the building, but all signs of life had disappeared. Her face and body were severely scorched with the fire. When found, one shoe was on her lap and the other on her foot, which suggested the idea that she was in the act of putting them on when overcome with smoke and fire.

BLAKE LET OUT SECRETS.

HIS FREE SPEECH SEVERELY CRITICISED IN LONDON.

Hamilton's Chief of Police Dismissed—France is not Yearning for a Monarchy—Rosebery's Program Announced at Cardiff.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The Pall Mall Gazette this morning says that it is a fact that Lord Tweedmouth made an offer of a cheque for £2,000 to the anti-Parnellite party. The Gazette reminds its readers that Hon. Edward Blake announced the circumstance to his audience in New York. This meeting was one of those, the Gazette says, held during that extraordinary tour when Hon. Mr. Blake gave away with the most child-like ingenuousness the most cherished secrets of the party.

LONG SERVICE MEDALS.

The Times states that the Dominion Government are urging the Imperial authorities to institute a long service decoration for the colonial militia. The War Office authorities inform me that the matter is under consideration, but that until a committee of army officers examine the colonial volunteers' military regulations nothing will be done.

NOT THIS TIME.

DOVER, Eng., Jan. 19.—The Duke of Orleans and his suite left Dover for London yesterday. M. de Bonival, the secretary of the Duke, in conversation with a press representative, said that the Duke of Orleans was not willing to make any statement other than that contained in his manifesto. Referring to an alleged interview with the Duke of Orleans, which was printed in England yesterday, M. de Bonival said that the Duke had not conversed with any reporter, and that the interview was a pure fabrication.

ROSEBERY'S PROGRAM.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—Lord Rosebery said in a speech at Cardiff last evening that Welsh disestablishment would be the first measure of the next Parliamentary session. He did not doubt that the Established Church in Wales was doomed, but everybody must remember that the House of Lords presented a permanent barrier to the measure on which the Welsh had set their hearts. The position of the Lords was the supreme question of the hour. When the Government resolution dealing with this question should be submitted it would involve the dissolution of Parliament. Before the dissolution, however, he wished Parliament to deal with the liquor traffic, representation of labor and the one-man one vote issue.

HAMILTON'S CHIEF DISMISSED.

HAMILTON, Jan. 19.—Chief of Police McKinnon appeared before the Police Commissioners yesterday, and in a weak, broken voice gave an explanation of his conduct. It took the commissioners but a few minutes to render a decision, which was as follows:—

"The commissioners feel that Chief McKinnon's own admission that during his absence he remained at different hotels for nearly a week with another man's wife and her sister, under the circumstances is sufficient to bring about a forfeiture of the respect which the members of the force should have for their head and cannot be overlooked. Such open and flagrant violations of propriety and correct living shock the moral sense of the community and impair the usefulness of the chief to such an extent as, in the opinion of the commissioners, to render it incumbent for them, without further investigation, to ask for his resignation.

The chief, after the decision had been read, asked for a few days to wind up his office affairs.

Among those mentioned for the position are Sergeant-Major Smith, Mayor Stewart, Capt. Tidswell, Capt. Reid and Capt. Stoneman.

Hon. Frank Smith Interviewed.

HAMILTON, Jan. 19.—Sir Frank Smith, of Toronto, who is member of the Dominion Cabinet, was in the city today and was asked if there was any likelihood of a general election being held shortly or if another session of parliament would be held. He replied: "I cannot tell you, but it will be decided this week by the Cabinet."

SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKS.

It would not be easy to overrate the importance of inculcating thrift as one of the most desirable habits that can be formed by boys and girls of all classes. To this end the School Savings banks as operated in England and elsewhere can scarcely fail to have an excellent effect, and it is well worth consideration by those interested in public education, whether something of the same kind should not be introduced in Ontario. The following figures from the report of the Minister of Public Instruction for New South Wales for 1893 shows what is being done in this direction in one of our sister colonies. The report shows that 629 public school savings banks were in operation in the colony in 1893, an increase of ten over the preceding year. During the year £9,912 9s. 6d. was deposited, and £11,143 6s. 11d. was withdrawn, of which £2,725 2s. 11d. was transferred to the Government Savings Bank for deposit to the credit of the children's own accounts therein. The serious financial depression of last year was responsible for a considerable diminution in the amount of deposits, but the fact that the number of depositors remained as large as in previous years shows that the school savings banks have not lost anything in popular estimation and support. The banks have now been in operation in the colony for seven years, during which period their number has increased from 255 in 1887 to 629 in 1893. The aggregate deposits have been £77,576 15s. 11d. Of this sum 62.7 per cent. has been withdrawn for the current use of depositors, £22,848 12s. 7d. has been transferred to the individual accounts of pupils in the Government savings banks, and the balance remains in the school banks to the credit of depositors.

THE NEXT MOVE.

The Hamilton Herald says that by the decision of the Supreme Court the right to prohibit the liquor traffic rests with the Dominion Government, and we suppose it is good law that if the Dominion Government can prohibit it can also pass an act enabling the provinces to prohibit. Without taking any definite stand itself on the question the Dominion Government can empower the provinces to have prohibition whenever they feel like it, and in this way the question will be tossed back to the Local Legislatures again.

And it is likely that this will be the next move in the prohibition game. The liquor question is always a hot potato with the politicians. At present it is out of Sir Oliver's hands and in the hands of the Federal authorities, but the Federal authorities will never rest happily until they succeed in restoring it to Sir Oliver. It is always so much more comfortable and pleasanter in every way when the other fellows' fingers are being burnt instead of your own.

For the time being the agitation will be removed from the provincial field, but the question may be expected to play a rather prominent part in the Dominion elections which are now looming up. Heretofore it has been fairly well out of Dominion politics, but in view of the Supreme Court's decision it cannot be shelved any longer, and the fact will lend additional interest to the approaching campaign.

THE SCHOOL INSPECTORSHIP.

To the Editor of The Times:

SIR,—As it has appeared in the public press that at a private meeting of the Board of Education it was decreed that the Inspector of public schools should send in his resignation to take effect next July, permit me to say in fairness to the Board that I have received no official notification of any such thing. I should like also to state that ever since I came to Peterborough (Wednesday evening possible excepted) I have received nothing but courteous treatment from the Board as a whole and that our relations for the two years have ever been of a harmonious nature. If you look up the fyles of THE TIMES you will see that last September several of the most prominent members spoke in eulogistic terms of the efficient condition of the schools under my management and it was generally conceded that the change made two years ago had proved to be in the best interests of the town. At present I have little fear that the Board of Education, whose members the last two years have shown exceptional independence and fair minddness, will concern themselves more about Mr. Garvin's political opinions than about his efficiency as an educator and the development and progress of their schools.

Truly yours,
J. W. GARVIN.

Peterborough, January 18, 1895.

The Board's Action.

To the Editor of The Times.

SIR,—The public were greatly surprised to learn through your columns that a "star chamber" court of school trustees had secretely sat in judgment on Inspector Garvin and had proceeded in good old Cromwellian style to decapitate him without a trial. It is also rumored on the streets that a prominent Reformer in the South Ward of the town had held a secret caucus in his office the night preceding the "star chamber" court, which arranged the programme for the following evening. Moreover, it is asserted that the Inspector got wind of the proceedings, appeared at the Board room on Wednesday evening and courteously requested that he be allowed to be present to hear and to reply to the charges, but that the private caucus had settled that matter and he was refused. If these statements be true it is well for the citizens of Pethrborough to know it, to know what the man who has placed their schools in a proud position, not only in Peterborocgh, but throughout the province, is to be ruined professionally because he had the manly courage to act publicly in his capacity as a citizen of the state. It is well for the Liberal Conservatives to know that he is being knifed by influential Reformers on and of the Board because it has come to be known that he has committed the venal offence of proclaiming himself a supporter of the Dominion Government and the National Policy. It is well for every member of the teaching profession to note that this is an attempt to muzzle them and to take from them every man's right of free speech. There was no attempt made to muzzle G. W. Ross, who, when a Public School Inspector, was elected to the Dominion Commons, and there has been no attempt to prevent Principal Grant from using his strongest influence in favor of the Mowat Government. I am further informed that no direct attack was made on the Inspector's ability as an educator; on the contrary it was admitted by several that he had done exceptionally well in the interests of the schools. But the McCarthy episode was positive proof of his indiscretion, and besides he was arrogant; he had actually had the presumption to think that the Board should not discuss him on his merits behind his back, and without his having an opportunity to refute charges. He had neglected to ask permission when he let his name appear on a Sabbath school convention programme, and had actually attended the convention for one day at Keene without haqing done so. Moreover, he had been guilty of the amazing presumption on that now notorious Friday of having gone to Barrie without having bowed the knee to the chairman of the Committee on Appointments and addressed His Highness as follows:

"May it please your Highness your lowliest servant humbly seeketh permission to be absent from his duties for one day." Can any one conceive of a greater absurditly than for an advanced scholar and educator—a man of provincial fame—whose professional powers are almost equal under the law to those of the Board of Education, to be compelled to ask permission to leave town for a day? But when the fact is known that nowhere in the Inspector's instructions from the department or from the school Board is such a thing as asking permission hinted at, the absurdity is intensified and venom in the unjustifiable procedure clearly manifest.

Not long since a well known educator from the west said in my hearing:—"The eyes of the profession are to-day on Peterbrough for you are fortunate in having over your schools two of our brightest men—Fessenden and Garven. Fessenden is fast becoming famous as an author of text books, and Garvin as an inventor and developer of new and original methods. At the last provincial convention, when three of the ablest Inspectors in Ontario were appointed a committee to draft resolutions pertaining to the improvement of the literary and professional standing of Inspectors, not only was Garvin chosen one of the three, but he was made chairman." The writer was proud to hear such words and so should every citizen of Peterborough be. The citizens know them to be true, and they know further that the man who has been so unfairly dealt with has the hearts and confidence of the children and the respect and esteem of all but two or three teachers on the staff. The common report among the teachers is that Mr. Garvin is a high-minded, courteous and exceptionally able inspector, who is quick to see and to remedy defects, a born teacher himself and a gentleman who is conscientious and scrupulously just in his judgment and decisions.

Let every upright citizen see that he gets fair play.

Yours respectfully,
C. W. SAWERS

SAULT STE. MARIE CANAL

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Booms," will be received at this Office until noon on Saturday, 19th January, 1895, for the construction, complete in place in the canal of 4 000 lineal feet of a "Four Log Boom."

Plans and specifications of the work can be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, where forms of tender can be obtained on and after January 10th, 1895.

In the case of firms there must be attached the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation and place of residence of each member of the same, and, further, an accepted bank cheque for the sum of $150 must accompany the tender; this accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted. The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tender is not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By order,
J. H. BALDERSON.

LAKEFIELD

A BAND OF OUTLAWS.

THE FRENCH GANG TERRORIZING SETTLERS IN THE INDIAN TERRITORY.

An Indian Murders a White Woman and Throws Her in a River—The Brooklyn Strike Ended—Lively Scene in Thorold Council.

MUSKOGEE, I.T., Jan. 18.—The French gang of outlaws, headed by Jim French and Sam Williams, the most desperate man of the gang, appeared at the house of a Mr. Glad, ten miles out from Fort Gibson, and demanded admittance, and just because Glad did not respond quick enough to suit them they began shooting from their Winchesters into the house.

Two of the bullets struck Glad in the arm, fracturing it, and two more caught Mrs. Glad just above the elbow, severing her arm.

During the melee, a daughter of the old folks attempted to make her escape. Before she reached 50 feet from the house she sank to the ground with two bullets in her body from the Winchesters of the outlaws.

The outlaws then rode away, apparently satisfied.

A CRUEL MURDER.

MALONE, N.Y., Jan. 18.—The trial of Isaac White, a St. Regis Indian from the reservation in the northern part of Franklin County which has been in progress for a week, has concluded with a verdict of murder in the first degree. The prisoner was charged with the murder of Mary Ann Lafrance with whom he lived, in August last. The woman was the mother of two small children.

The evidence was entirely circumstantial and went to show that White closed the woman's throat, [illegible] and dealt her a blow on the head completely crushing the skull and face.

After having carefully tied up the body and weighted it with a cutter bar from a mowing machine he put it into a wagon and drove it to the St. Regis river, and rowing out to the deepest part of the water he threw the body overboard.

He was sentenced to be electrocuted at Dannemora [illegible]

[illegible] ENDED.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 18.—Trolley cars on the Dekalb avenue line are running on schedule time. The company conceded to the men that they should run one-third of their cars as "trippers" and guaranteed that the men in charge of these cars would be paid $1.50 per day.

They also agreed that the regular men should work only ten hours a day and be paid for their "dead time" at the end of their trips. In consideration of this, the men agreed to work for $2 per day.

A THOROLD SENSATION.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 18.—At the final session of the Thorold Town Council a somewhat lively scene was witnessed which showed how hard some men die.

After the general business had been transacted, Reeve McCarthy introduced a motion embodying a vote of thanks to the retiring mayor.

To the surprise and astonishment of all, Councillor Fraser refused to support the vote of thanks to Mayor Williams, and somewhat forcibly informed the Council that he didn't want any vote of thanks from them, either. He referred to the mayor's action in opposing his efforts to reduce the clerk's salary, and ended by saying the mayor didn't deserve any vote of thanks.

Nevertheless the motion was carried.

Just before the adjournment the Council was treated to another surprise. An account of Town Solicitor Casey's, amounting to $85, had been passed, when Bailiff Wilcker walked in and claimed a garnishee for $25 on it at the [illegible] Ottawa firm.

TALKED OF DISSOLUTION.

Informally Did the Cabinet Discuss the Question.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—A meeting of the Cabinet was held this morning at 11 o'clock, at which the Premier and all the Ministers, except Patterson, Montague, Dickey and Ferguson, were present.

The question of dissolution was informally discussed, but at 1.30, the hour of adjournment, nothing definite had been decided on, and it is believed that it will take some days to settle the question.

During the past week or so there have been numbers of Conservative members here protesting against an election, as they feel weak at this particular time. Like Micawber, they are waiting for something to turn up.

AN INHUMAN BRUTE.

Threw a Kettle of Boiling Water on His Wife and Child.

SANDWICH, Ont., Jan. 18.—Peter Tetreau attempted a terrible crime the other day. His wife and little daughter reside at Sandwich and when the brute came home filled with bad whiskey he used them in an inhuman manner. He seized a kettle filled with boiling water and attempted to throw the contents upon them.

He partly succeeded, but the mother escaped from the house with the child in her arms, screaming for help. One of the neighbors came to her rescue. After a struggle in which both were badly scalded the kettle of boiling water was taken from the frenzied man.

He was arrested and given twenty days in the county jail by Mayor Girardot.

A Child's Mishap.

HESPELER, Jan. 18.—The three-year-old son of Mr. R. Mitchell fell from a chair and broke his collarbone. He is getting along nicely.

ALL MEN

SCHEMES OF PAWNBROKERS.

How a Barber Paid a Quarter to Look at a Glass "Diamond."

A young knight of the razor in Lexington avenue told me that he had been swindled out of $2 by one man and out of 25 cents by a pawnbroker. He was shaving a customer a week or so ago when a goodly attired man entered, and waiting an opportunity displayed pawn tickets showing an advance of $20 on a watch, $16 on a diamond ring and smaller amounts on other articles.

"He offered to let me have the tickets for $2, and I thought if a pawnbroker would advance $20 on a watch it must surely be worth three times as much. Pawnbrokers, I know, only advance one-third of the value of goods at most. So I paid him the $2, and the next day I went to the pawnbroker's shop.

"I may be green, but that watch couldn't fool me. It was of brass, thinly washed with gold and worth about $4. That pawnbroker must have hired the man to take the tickets around, for he wouldn't have given $1 on that timepiece. I wouldn't pay $20 and interest to get it out, and I am out $2.

"It wasn't long after that that I had evidence that pawnbrokers stand in with these men. A shabby individual came in here and told a story of misfortune. He had been compelled to pawn a diamond ring, he said, for $35. It was half a carat diamond, he said, and he showed me a ticket. He said I could inspect the ring if I wanted before buying the ticket, so I went with him to a pawnbroker's near Seventy-fifth street.

"'Here's a man to see that ring,' he said to the pawnbroker, handing him the ticket.

"'I'll show you the ring if you give me 50 cents,' said the pawnbroker.

"I told the pawnbroker I wouldn't give 50 cents to see the ring, but I offered him a quarter, and he showed me the ring. It was one of those glass affairs that you can buy for 10 cents in the Bowery. I wouldn't buy it and left, but he had my quarter, and I have heard of other quarters he has made in the same way. It's a pretty easy way to make money—exhibiting 10 cent things for a quarter a sight."

While I was in the barber shop a man entered and wanted to sell a pawn ticket for a pair of [illegible] for $1, but no one would [illegible]

THE TEA HABIT.

Tepid Fluid Conduces to Neuralgia, Dyspepsia and Ruined Complexion.

Tea drinking as a habit is very much on the increase throughout the country, and women who have fallen into the way of taking a cup three or four times a day would do well to be warned in time against its insidious influence, says the New York Sun. Two cups of good tea is all the average feminine system can readily assimilate in 24 hours, and the usual results to the woman of oversociability in her dainty cups is apt to take the form of neuralgia and common dyspepsia that injures [illegible] complexion.

In extreme cases very frequent among women of the lower classes in England and Ireland, where thousands of pounds of very inferior grades of tea are always boiled long and hard before considered fit for drinking, effects as serious as from alcoholism have been discovered recently, and yet the medical commissioners who inquired into this lamentable state of affairs contend that tea as a steady tipple would be robbed of half its ugly effects if always properly brewed and drunk hot, with very little sugar. It is more digestible, too, without any milk or cream, and the whole secret of its proper making lies in never permitting the boiling water more than an instant's contact with the leaves.

Nothing, if women only knew it, is more indigestible than the cups of tepid, oversweet fluid they sip at contentedly during a half dozen receptions of an afternoon in winter, that, shame be it to hostesses, is too often the only refreshment they offer.

Chinese Street Smells.

The foul smells of the streets of Canton are to my mind greatly exaggerated. But it is no doubt a city of many odors, strange and various. The houses being generally open to the streets for almost their whole front and the greater part of the town being roofed in, vapors from cooking continually fill the covered ways. Strictly speaking, few smells from the process of food preparation are pleasant, and to European nostrils the odors from Chinese cook pots are certainly unsavory. Imagine Shoreditch, Whitechapel and Wapping compressed into the narrowest avenues, covered in overhead, with all the houses open at the front, with cookery going on in every house at the same time within a few feet of the passer-by where every one walks. Conjure up, as a setting for these culinary vapors, a moist, sweltering heat, an atmosphere heavy with the mingled odors of incense, joss sticks, opium, sandalwood, Chinese cabbage, strange fruits and vegetables, which fill the place of our onions and garlic, wood smoke and vapors from fried fish shops, and add to the conglomerate smell thus obtained an occasional reek of a stagnant drain or a public latrine, then possibly it will be understood how in Canton there are strange pervading odors which are perhaps more trying to a foreigner than would be any definite nastiness.—"In the City of Canton" in Century.

Queen Victoria's Sham Rubies.

Real rubies are scarce. Most of the stones in use are doctored. Even the queen of England cherished a pair of imitations. They were, after great trouble and large stipends, exhibited in the London exposition of 1862 and proved to be merely spinels. When a customer goes to a reliable dealer and asks to see some rubies, he is asked, "How much are you willing to pay?" There is one ruby in a New York shop. It spends most of its beauty in the safe. Anybody with $8,000 can have it. Rubies are full of sentiment. It is the supposition that they give the wearer health and a happy frame of mind. Rubies were among the delights of King Solomon. Lapidaries say that he got hold of all the fine stones, and since his day the supply has steadily diminished.—Philadelphia Times.

The Jeweler's Carat.

The carat is a standard used by the jewelers to express both weight and fineness. When it is used as a weight, it is equal to four grains, or the one hundred and twentieth part of an ounce troy. In determining the fineness of precious metals 24 carats is considered the highest standard of purity. According to this standard, an 18 carat gold ring contains three parts of gold and one of some base metal.—St. Louis Republic.

Delaware state and bay were named after Lord de la Warr, who came to this country with Captain Samuel Argall on a voyage of discovery about 1610.

WOMEN AND HOME.

who are the exceptions proving the rule, adds anything of particular value to one's possessions. The only good thing to be said for it is that it occupies the feminine mind.—Pittsburg Post.

A Model Nursery.

A model nursery in a house where money is not plenty has been brought about by study, ingenuity and a little effort. The walls are papered in a plain paper of a light cream, with a frieze and dado rail. For the dado, since the expensive tiles or hard wood was out of the question, a dado of gay cretonne was managed. The cretonne was hung by brass rings, small ones, just inside the dado rail, and has the merit that it can be easily taken down and laundered. For the frieze there is the jolliest sort of a Noah's ark procession, extending all around the room in delightful confusion. This was produced by pasting the animal figures on a strip of pale blue paper muslin, the animals, ready to cut out, being got from a kindergarten supply shop. At the windows are short little muslin curtains that easily draw back, and running all the way from one to the other of the windows is a big, broad box sofa, or couch. This is covered with corduroy, and every child in the family considers it the finest piece of furniture in the house. The seat raises and is the receptacle for all loose toys and belongings that keep the room in a clutter, and yet must be constantly at hand. The interior is partitioned and a part assigned to each child. When the seat is closed, it is the nicest of stretching places, and there are not wanting a goodly supply of pillows, whose stout and inexpensive coverings are warranted to withstand many a friendly fight. There is an open fire in this nursery, well protected by a fender which hooks on over the entire opening. The floor is stained and shellacked, and a large cotton rug, which is bright and cheerful, but not expensive, lends a warm and cosy effect. Over the fireplace, from mantel to frieze, is smooth dull red paper, and against this background has been prettily arranged various implements of childish sport—tennis rackets, a bow and arrow and the like. There is a beautiful dollhouse, or so its little owners think, made from a pair of boxes and gradually fitted up by many contributing hands. The nursery has not grown in a day, but it has kept on acquiring till it is one of the cheeriest and most wholesome of places and the delight of every child who is in it as guest or owner.—New York Letter.

The Lasell Girl.

At Lasell seminary two-thirds of the girls go in for military drill under the command of a genuine major, who goes out twice a week from Boston for the purpose. The girls are intensely interested in this branch of their athletic education and find the exercises of great value in many ways. All the details of a full regiment are carried out. The manual of arms is performed together with the sword drill. At the annual competitive drill for battalions and individuals there is a lot of enthusiasm on the part of the fair would be soldiers. The uniform is of navy blue and consists of a skirt reaching to the boot tops, a Norfolk jacket, cadet cap and gilt trimmings to indicate the rank. Each young woman at Lasell is expected to take two periods of exercise of 40 minutes every day, but it is elective to a great degree, and wholly so with the seniors. One period in doors and one out is the rule during the winter months, but for a brief time, spring and autumn, both are out of doors. Once a week the would be graceful girl dives into the mysteries of nerve training. She also has time for tennis, bowling, bicycling, riding and skating. It's small wonder, therefore, that the averages as to muscular development and strength just compiled at Lasell are much higher in the senior class than in the school at large.

Although corsets are not in the Lasell girl's wardrobe, her gowns have evidently been fitted over corsets, and the corsetless figure is not in evidence as it is, for instance, at Wellesley and many other girls' colleges. That one believes in physical training is no excuse for an ill fitting gown and a general air of slovenliness. In fact, a svelte figure, with a chest held well forward and up by a firm and no less elastic muscles, should mark the athletic girl of the period, and not, as is too often the case, and most unfortunately for the cause, the unattractive dress which is "reform" in name only. It is possible the Lasell girl wishes to be graceful and æsthetic in attire as well as strong in limb and muscle.—New York Sun.

The Woman Growing Old.

The woman who keeps the simplicity of her girlhood, writes Julia Ward Howe, its generous impulses and quick sympathies, and who adds to her natural gifts the enlargement of study and the crown of experience, is always at her best and never past it.

'Good.' And Mrs. Howe adds, and what she says is so truthful and entertaining that we are glad to reproduce every word of it.

"When the exterior attractions of form and color diminish and depart, as they usually do, the radiance of our inner illumination will more than compensate their departure, but in order that this should be [illegible] intellectual gain. She must be willing to learn not only her own powers, but her own deficiencies, and to court the good influences which can help her to escape from the delusions of sense and the fatal tyranny of self consciousness. She must discard the petty measures of vanity and self seeking and learn to love her race, her country and the humanity which she should help to adorn."

Herein, as we maintain, is the entire philosophy of growing old.

The woman growing old, as Mrs. Howe so well puts it, may well learn to love her race, her country and humanity. She may well learn to love all those about her, and if all good women growing old do this the race and the country and humanity will take care of themselves very handsomely. One never grows old who preserves the youthful expectancy and interest and appreciation in the things as well as the persons about her.

This is the dear old soul who is the more lovely if she is a grandmother, as lovely as anything in the world if she is a matron. She compels the admiration and attention of the young; she advises, comforts, encourages, appreciates. In that condition she is at her best. If she keeps so minded, she is always at her best.—Cincinnati Tribune.

The Women of Ushant.

In character the headdress is more Italian than Breton. The coif is small and square shaped, with a wide flap hanging down behind, and it is white when the wearer considers herself dressed and not in mourning. Bright colors, chiefly scarlet and blue, are often introduced at the side of the head, especially in the case of children, but the strong singularity of the coiffure is the manner in which the hair is worn. It hangs loose upon the back of the neck to the length of six or eight inches.

The first impression the women make is that they are all recovering from a fever and a cropping. Their hair is generally lank and wiry, like a horse's mane, and very dark. It is rare to see it really gray, even on the head of a very old woman. The short and thick locks are often without a silver thread, although the face of the wearer may be as furrowed as a block of seaworn granite. Baby girls, young women and old women have their heads dressed in exactly the same way. After her swaddling wraps the child is given the style of coif and other clothing that she will keep through life; consequently as she toddles about in front of the cottage door she is one of the oddest of little figures.

In full dress the gown is always black, but a brilliantly colored handkerchief, in which scarlet predominates, is so worn underneath as to show a little down the front of the bodice. A small shawl, generally blue or red in the case of children and young girls, completes the costume.—Temple Bar.

Beds and Health.

As we become more intelligent concerning the laws of health we are beginning to realize that the single bed, designed only for the occupancy of one person, is as much a necessity for hygienic living as a toothbrush or a napkin is for the individual use of every person. All the conditions that make for health, for rest and for refreshing sleep urge its use as a precaution against contagious diseases, impure air and disturbed slumber. If one is setting up housekeeping and has all her beds to buy, it will really cost little more to buy two beds of enameled iron, or of brass and iron, than one of expensive wood, even including the two mattresses and two sets of springs that will be necessary. If one does not like these bedsteads, the single or "twin beds," as they are called, are to be had in great variety in woods. They are designed to occupy little more space than the old fashioned double bed and are usually placed in a room side by side and under one wide canopy, when a canopy is used. The canopy is rarely the old fashioned affair that shut out air and held dust in the folds of its heavy drapery. It usually projects only over the head of the beds, and the curtains of washable material are draped far back, so that they do little more than soften the iron lines without interfering with the healthfulness. Where two beds are used instead of one it cannot be denied that more sheets and more laundry work are necessary, but in the end seeming extravagances often prove one's real economies.—New York Post.

Musical Women.

The Brooklyn Amateur Musical club is composed of about 50 active members and perhaps twice as many associate members, all women. The active 50 are possessed of fresh young voices, which, admirably trained, ring out together in their glee and concerted pieces with fine effect. The young women, under the inspiring presidency of Miss Gertrude Sherman of Remsen street, who is endowed with the twin gifts of a beautiful voice and a rarely discriminating musical taste and judgment, are thoroughly in earnest, their work showing faithful effort as well as a high degree of talent. Four concerts are given through the season, at which the happy guest finds her pleasure tinged with the tantalizing knowledge that she is eating her cake for the winter, it being an inviolable rule of the club that no outsider can be twice invited in the same season. Following each concert the members receive their guests, and tea and chocolate are served.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Making the World Homelike.

In an address before the W. C. T. U. convention at Cleveland Miss Frances E. Willard said:

"I remember that no one subject puzzled or vexed me more in my youthful days than why it was that men could range the whole world at their will and then have the home besides, while women did not have the world, but the home only. I did not think this fair, and I resolved to build in my life to help to make the world so homelike that women could freely go out into it everywhere, side by side, with men, and also to help bring it about that men should share in larger measure than they have ever yet done in the hallowed ministrations of the fireside and the cradle side, through which, as I believe, they are to reach their highest and holiest development."

To Do Up a Shirt.

In order to do up a shirt properly iron every part of it before the bosom, being careful not to stretch the neck. Then slip in the bosom board, and with a cloth wrung out of hot water rub the bosom well, cleaning off the surplus starch. If the bosoms wrinkle anywhere, rub them toward the bottom. Iron quickly with a hot iron, but not hot enough to stick and scorch. Raise the plaits with the blunt edge of a table knife and iron again, polishing until there is an even gloss over the entire surface.

Daudet's Wife as a Grandmother.

Mme. Daudet is always pretty and charming. As you see her sitting at her fireside among the [illegible] knickknacks of a modern interior, with her little daughter Edmee on her knee, she seems like a young mother, but this young mother is a still more youthful grandmother. It seems incredible, but her eldest son, the writer of some very remarkable and original scientific romances, has been married for two or three years to a granddaughter of Victor Hugo.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The German empress thinks that the root of the servant problem lies in the fact that mistresses are too little concerned about their comforts. They ought, she says, to do everything they can to make the leisure hours of their servants as agreeable as possible.

"Window gazing" is a profession in London. A couple of stylishly dressed ladies pause before the window of merchant, remain about five minutes and audibly praise the goods displayed inside. Then they pass on to another store on their long list of patrons.

Butter, when put in a hot pan, will brown and become crisp, while "oleo" will remain clear and have a white scum on the top. It matters not how hot the pan is, you cannot brown oleomargarine.

Vaseline should never be allowed to touch the hands. It turns the skin yellow and leaves a stain on the nails that is hard to clear away.

GENERAL SPORTS.

Slavin and Costello Fight To-Night—Ryan Defeats Dempsey.

Mr. John Scholes, of Toronto, will arrive in Montreal this morning, and, unless Jim Hall will agree to officiate as referee, the former will probably fill the position at the Slavin and Costello contest on that evening in the Monument National. The principals are working hard, and during the last few days a considerable amount has been wagered on the result. The fight between Costello and Slavin will be ten rounds, each to be three minutes, and a gong on the stage, manipulated by the referee, will afford the audience an opportunity of keeping time accurately if they so desire. The Lablanche and Jack Slavin contest is also creating no little interest, while Casey and French ought to make a satisfactory showing.

RYAN BEAT DEMPSEY.

CONEY ISLAND, Jan. 19.—The Dempsey fight was stopped in the third round, when Ryan was awarded the decision.

Round 1—When time was called the men stepped to the centre of the ring and shook hands. They then commenced sparring for an opening. Ryan was the first to deliver a blow, but it was merely a light tap on the stomach with his left. Dempsey made a swing with his left and Ryan ducked. Dempsey acted like a drunken man, and many of the spectators were so disgusted that they left the building.

Round 2—Dempsey made such a miserable showing that the crowd yelled, "He is drunk, take him off." Ryan got one good left-hand punch in the mouth and then hit him again and nearly knocked him down. Dempsey acted like a drunken man and the crowd yelled, "Shame, shame, take him off." Just before the call of time Ryan knocked Dempsey down with a left on the jaw and laughed at him.

Round 3—Ryan had Dempsey at his mercy and simply played with him, hitting him where he pleased, while the crowd yelled at the top of their voices. "Stop it, stop it!" Tim Hurst stopped the bout at the request of the club, owing to Dempsey's unfit condition, and the battle was awarded to Ryan.

The time of the round was only two minutes and five seconds.

Dempsey was very drunk when he came upon the stage, and it was at the request of his own friends that the club had the fight stopped.

A couple of young lads, who have a turn for practical joking, had a big time Saturday evening. They hid themselves under the robes, and with lines hanging loosely, drove rapidly up and down George street. Several citizens stopped the horse and were disgusted only to be laughed at by the boys who came from their hiding place.

Considerable comment was caused on Saturday last by the amount of fast driving going on on George street, and it is said that several persons have had narrow escapes from being run over in the last few days by the reckless driving of horses (fast and otherwise) by parties who seem to think that the main thoroughfare is a licensed race track, and that pedestrians have no right except on the sidewalks.

PRAYERS FOR PRISONERS

Will be Offered Up in Ontario's Churches Next Sabbath.

The Prisoners' Aid Association of Ontario request the following for publication in this issue of THE TIMES.

On behalf of the Prisoners' Aid Association we are asking the clergy of the different denominations to observe, as far as possible, Sunday, Jan. 27th, as Prison Sunday. On that day we specially desire prayers for prisoners, prison officials and for all who have to do with the administration of justice.

As the County Municipal Councils of the Province will meet according to Statute on the 22nd inst., and as we are petitioning these bodies to take up the County Gaol and House of Refuge question at the January meeting, we would invite the divine blessing upon this appeal.

The reforms we are asking for are as follows: 1. For each county to either establish a county house of refuge or to unite with one more counties in establishing a district workhouse. 2. To make efficient provision in the county gaol for the absolute separation of the young and comparatively innocent from the old offenders. 3. To provide the prisoner every working day with industrial employment. 4. To keep the jail supplied with good books. 5. To keep a small sum of money in the hands of the jailer to give temporary aid to discharged prisoners. 6. A small annual grant in aid of county prisoners on being discharged from the Central Prison or the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto.

In these proposed reforms we have the support not only of the best public opinion, but we have the support of the best expert opinion as well. They are all in accord with the experience of older countries.

If the clergy can also call attention to these important questions before, after, or during, one of the sermons of the day, we will be very thankful.

LOCAL SPORTS.

Second Game in the Peterborough-Lindsay Contest on Today.

Tonight, in the parlors of the Palace Restaurant, there will be a meeting of hockeyists, including all the teams in town, with the exception of the Seniors, for the purpose of forming a Local Hockey League. A schedule will be arranged.

On the rink on Saturday night a number of curling matches were played. This week there will be a number of interesting competitions.

Today at the rink the second game in the Lindsay-Peterborough curling contest will be played. The game promises to be exciting and very closely contested.

On Friday at the rink the Morrisburg Hockey Club will play the Peterborough's. It promises to be a close and interesting match. Peterborough's victory over Trinity's crack team gives it a prestige that the boys are anxious to maintain throughout the season.

The Morrisburg team overwhelmingly defeated the St. Lawrence hockeyists in the second schedule match last week.

Peterborough is trying to get on a match with either Osgoode or Varsity, to be played in Toronto on Wednesday night, the occasion of the curlers' excursion.

UNINITIALLED BALLOTS.

W. D. Balfour, M. P. P., Calls Attention to an Apparent Oversight.

At the recent mayoralty recount in Toronto, his Honor Judge McDougall rejected a large number of ballots because of the failure of the deputy returning officers to place their initials on the back of them. Each candidate suffered from the loss of these votes, Mr. Fleming being the heavier sufferer.

The Telegram subsequently called attention in its editorial columns to the ruling, and contended that the irregularity opened the door for fraudulent practices at elections, were deputy returning officers disposed to be dishonest in the performance of sworn duties.

Mr. W. D. Balfour, M.P.P. for South Essex, writes to the Telegram as follows, after alluding to the editorial in question:—"Will you kindly look at the last three lines of sub-section 8 (2), of section 163 of the Municipal Act—'But no word or mark, written or made, or omitted to be written or made by the deputy returning officer on a ballot paper, shall avoid the same.'

"This was introduced by myself and passed by the House to meet just such cases as those to which you refer."

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY [illegible]

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

County Council.

The first meeting of the new county council will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the court house. A lot of important business awaits the action of this body.

Curlers' Annual Excursion.

The Peterborough Curlers will hold their annual excursion, per C. P. railway to Toronto, on Wednesday, January 23rd. Tickets $2, good to leave Peterborough on Tuesday evening and return from Toronto on Thursday evening.

Little Lake Cemetery Company.

The annual meeting of the directors and shareholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company will be held today. The company is in a prosperous condition. The important business of the meeting will be the election of officers and directors.

Preached to Young People.

The pulpit of the Charlotte street Methodist church was occupied last night by the Rev. W. J. Crothers, M. A., pastor of the Methodist church at Port Hope. The reverend gentleman delivered an eloquent and extremely interesting address to young people. The church was crowded.

His Thresher Smashed.

On Saturday evening of last week Mr. Robt. Montgomery, the well known Ops thresher, met with a serious monetary loss. As he was driving into Mr. Best's yard with his engine and clover mill his spirited team of horses becoming frightened, ran away, and the machine struck against the corner of a building, stripping it completely of its "upper works." Repairs will cost about $200.

Came from Port Hope.

Volney Ashford, who is named in some of the dispatches among the prisoners taken by the Government forces during the Hawaiian uprising, is a native of Port Hope, Ont. As a youth of 16, Ashford joined the northern army during the great civil war in the States. Later on he went to Honolulu and was, before the late revolution which placed the Republicans in power, a prime favorite with Queen Lil.

An Open Meeting.

The next meeting of the Fortnightly Club, which will be held on Monday, the 28th, will be an open meeting. This is at the request of a number of ladies and gentlemen. The program for this meeting is as follows: Paper, "A Prophet of the Century," being a paper on the life and works of John Ruskin, by Mr. William H. Murray. Special speakers: Rev. Herbert Symonds, M. A., and Mrs. Sheriff Hall. Open discussion.

The Business World.

H. J. Bray, jr., fruits and fish, West Market street, Toronto, has assigned to Geo. H. May. The liabilities are not heavy. Robt. Hamilton, baker, Atwood, has been succeeded by M. J. McCoy. S. K. Stevenson, jeweller, Elora, is offering his creditors 33 1-3 cents. Pecover Bros., furniture, Hamilton, have assigned to C. S. Scott. Siebert & Lovell, cigar manufacturers, Hamilton, have been succeeded by Lovell Bros. A. W. Lehman, carriage-maker, Stouffville, has sold out to W. A. Todd.

Ran Into a Cow.

On Wednesday evening last as the six o'clock express from Peterborough was crossing Mill street, Lindsay, the engine struck a cow that had broken out of one of the yards in the vicinity and selected the track as a loitering ground. The poor brute's leg was broken, in addition to receiving other injuries, and she was rolled from the track into the ditch pending the arrival of the owner, who later on mercifully put an end to the animal's pain by killing her.

A Sudden Death.

A vacancy has been caused in the newly-elected town council by the death of Mr. John W. Graham, who was elected on the [illegible] inst., as councillor for the east ward. The deceased was in the [illegible] year of his age and had been a resident of Lindsay for a number of years, being held in very high esteem by his friends and neighbors. The funeral took place on Thursday to the Riverside cemetery and was very largely attended. Heart disease is said to have been the cause of death and the excitement and exposure of election day is supposed to have brought on the attack, as he became ill on that evening.—Lindsay Post.

CORROBORATIVE TESTIMONY.

Inspector Garvin Endorsed by a Large Majority of His Staff.

To the Editor of the Times.

SIR,—Having spoken eulogistically in my letter of yesterday of the estimation in which Inspector Garvin was held by his teachers it occurred to me that it would be a good thing to verify it. Accordingly, I saw all but five of the staff today and the following is the result:

"The undersigned teachers of the town of Peterborough desire to bear testimony to the truth of the following statement made by C. W. Sawers:

'The common report among the teachers is that Mr. Garvin is a high-minded, courteous and exceptionally able inspector, who is quick to see and remedy defects, a born teacher himself, and a gentleman who is conscientious and scrupulously just in his judgments and decisions.'

(The names are arranged alphatically.)

Signed,

E. Becket — C. D. Cairns
Sara A. Elson — R. M. Finlay
B. Fair — Nellie Jenkins
H. H. Lough — M. C. Lough
May Morrow — Maggie A. Mark
W. H. McCreary — M. A. Nicholls
Irene Noble — L. Perrin
Mina Richardson — E. L. Thomas
Susie Throop — Minnie Warner."

Of the five referred to above two were out of town and the others I was unable to see. Only four teachers refused to sign and three of these said they agreed with every word of the quotation from my letter, but for certain reasons thought it better not to put their names to it.

From the ready response of the teachers it is perfectly clear that Mr. Garvin has the hearty sympathy and support of his staff.

Yours respectfully,
C. W. Sawers.

Peterborough, 19th January, 1895.

A BAD MAN.

He Hunted for Gore—Is Knownto Peterborough Police.

John Forbes, who claims Chicago as his home has got into trouble. He says that since he left Chicago he has lived most of last year in Markdale. From there he went to Hamilton and from Hamilton he went to Port Hope in November. In Port Hope he joined the Salvation Army, and he conducted himself in such an exemplary manner for a time, that several gentlemen who had taken an interest in him, gave him letters of recommendation to the commandant of the School of Gunnery at Kingston. He also had one from Capt. (Miss) L. Brady, of the Salvation Army, which implied a doubt as to the sincerity of his professions, as it stated, "He is a stranger to us here, but keep your eye on him."

Forbes went to Cobourg from Port Hope a week ago Thursday night and put up at the Horton House. He told the hotel people he belonged to the Salvation Army, that the S. A. were going to have some extra services there and he would be in town for a week. He did not have enough money to pay for his bed and breakfast and went away. He came back in the evening drunk, and was ordered out of the hotel about 11 o'clock.

At 4 o'clock in the morning he turned up again in the hotel, and went to the room he had slept in the night before, and turned the guests out of it; they were glad to go. He went into every room, up stairs and down. When he came to the room which was occupied by the girls he tried to break in the door. He left a note on the table of the room of which he had turned the occupants out, on which he had written, "I will kill two girls in this house tonight." Constable Harris was one of the guests at the Horton House that night, and put Forbes under arrest. On Saturday morning Forbes was taken before P. M. Dumble and was sent to jail for two months.

Forbes is well-known to the police here. He honored Peterborough with his presence about six week ago, but he behaved pretty well, having got on to the fact that the police were watching him. He evidently went to Port Hope when he left Peterborough.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A Lady Falls From a Step Ladder and Breaks an Ankle.

A serious accident befell a Mrs. Brown, of McDonnel street, on Saturday night.

During the evening the chimney in the house was discovered on fire. Mrs. Brown held a lamp while others in the house inspected the burning flue. To do this she mounted a step ladder. She could not reach high enough from the step upon which she was standing, and attempted to stand on the next highest step. In doing this she slipped and fell to the floor, breaking her ankle.

The injured lady suffered much pain Saturday night, and on Sunday morning was removed to the hospital. Fortunately, before she fell, she had handed the lamp to another person, or doubtless it would have caused a conflagration if not an explosion.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

Statutory Meeting of the Council this Morning—Current Gossip.

At 11 o'clock this morning the newly elected councillors will take the oath of office. The standing committee will be struck off, and submitted for approval at the first regular meeting tonight.

There is much speculation as to who will receive the chairmanship. There is no doubt that Councillor Cahill will again be chairman of the Finance, Councillor Best, of the Street and Bridge, and Councillor Brady, of the Fire, Water and Light. The other committees are doubtful.

It is altogether likely that there will be a change of auditors. It is rumored that Mayor Kendry will appoint Mr. Fred Bell for one.

There is not likely to be a change in the high school trustee appointment.

A large number of applications have been received by Clerk Armstrong for the various offices in the municipal administration. There are a numberafter the "plums" this year.

Ashburnham holds its statutory meeting this morning, and the first regular meeting tonight.

The town Council meeting tonight will be largely attended by the ratepayers, who are anxious to get an inkling of the new Council's policy.

A POPULAR PAPER.

The Special Features of The Saturday Times Make a Hit.

THE SATURDAY TIMES' list of eligible bachelors made a decided hit and was the talk of the town on Saturday. It was only last week that the management decided to push this edition to the front by the publication of special features by special contributors. The success already attained is most encouraging. Five hundred paid up subscribers were placed on the books by our agents last week.

The next issue of THE SATURDAY TIMES will contain the following special articles:—

THE LIME JUICE CLUB
PETERBORO' THIRTY YEARS HENCE
TALES OF THE TOWN
A YOUNG LADY'S OPINION OF THE YOUNG MEN OF PETERBORO'

In addition to this THE SATURDAY TIMES will be an epitome of all the news of the week, both local, county and telegraphic. All the important events of the globe will be told in brief, pity paragraphs.

It is the intention of the management to place THE SATURDAY TIMES in every home in the county. The subscription price has been put at the remarkably low figure of FIFTY CENTS A YEAR. Now is the time to subscribe. Advertisers will do well to watch the progress of this paper.

THE MORNING TIMES.

THE MORNING TIMES is the brightest daily newspaper published between Ottawa and Toronto. Its telegraphic and local news is the latest. The best tribute that can be paid a newspaper is to say that it gives all the news, in a bright, clean and readable style. This can be said of THE MORNING TIMES. For FIFTY CENTS the paper will be delivered at your house or mailed to your address for THREE MONTHS. See coupon offer.

PETERBORO' VS. VOLTS.

An Interesting Hockey Match at the Rink Saturday Night.

The Peterborough hockey team chased the puck with the Volts as their adversaries on Saturday night. They succeeded in worsting the latter in a score of 10 goals to 2. A summary is given below:

	First Half
1	Peterboro'	Lefevre
2	"	Wonhan
3	"	King
4	Volts	Moore
5	Peterboro'	Phelan
	Second Half
6	Volts	Kerr
7	Peterboro'	Wonhan
8	"	King
9	"	Phelan
10	"	King
11	"	Phelan
12	"	Wonhan

The teams were as follows:

Peterboroughs—Dickson, goal; Montgomery, point; Wonhan, cover point; King, Phelan, Ferguson, Lefevre, forwards.

Volts—Claxton, goal; Adams, point; Moore, cover point; Dunsford, Moore, Kerr, Hicks, forwards.

Referee, R. H. Strickland; umpire, Walter English.

The Trinity team which met with such crushing defeat at the hands of the hands of the Peterboroughs last week, played with the Hamilton Tigers (seniors) on Friday and beat that team by 12 goals to 2.

As we enter the New Year we wish our many customers in town and country a happy and prosperous one.

January is our annual Stocktaking month and we must be finished by the 1st of February and we are now measuring and throwing out all odd lines on tables, to be cleared before that date. Such as

Ends of Dress Goods
Ends of Tweeds
Ends of Shirtings
Ends of Prints
Ends of Carpets
Ends of Cottons
Ends of Cretonnes
Ends of Embroideries
Ends of Laces
Ends of Ribbbons

These are all good, fresh goods, only in remnants and will be sold at remnant prices, We have still about 180 suits of that very heavy all wool Underclothing at $1 a suit. Sold everywhere at $1 50. Everyone who needs a suit of heavy underwear should see them.

The balance of our Sealettes, Heavy Curls and Mantles have been going steadily at the prices they were marked since we last talked about them, but we have still a few good Mantles and Cloths left, which some one will get a bargain of. We show a window of all styles of Hats and Placques, your choice for 35 cents. We preter to sell them at this price rather than pack them away.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 161 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

WAS A FIGHT FOR LIFE.

AWFUL SCENE AT THE WRECK OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI.

THIRTY-SEVEN DROWNED.

Women and Children Were Trampled Upon by the Male Passengers—The River Was a Raging Torrent—Big Steamer Wrecked.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 21.—Meagre particulars of a terrible steamboat disaster reached this city this afternoon. The officers of the City of Owensboro, of the Louisville and Evansville main line, arriving at 3 p.m., reported the sinking of the State of Missouri a short distance below Wolf Creek, Ky., Saturday at about 5.30 p.m.

The Missouri left Louisville at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. After striking, the boat drifted off the rocks and sank in five minutes in 30 feet of water. The people on board were panic stricken when they heard the crash. They had no time to prepare for their safety, and officers, passengers and crew seized anything in sight that would keep them above water. Capt. Joe Conlon, First Clerk Werman and Second Clerk Howard, with five lady passengers and Pilot Pell and son managed to reach here uninjured.

PICKED UP BY PASSING CRAFT.

The second mate and engineer were picked up by the steamer Tell City and the City of Owensboro picked up four men and left them at Owensboro. The others, 35 to 40 in number, including male passengers and members of the crew, it is thought, went down with the vessel.

This was the first trip of the season for the Missouri. The wrecked boat belonged to the White Collar line (Cincinnati and Memphis Packet Company). She was about four years old, and was built when the T. A. L. Mason and State of Kansas, stern-wheel boats, were constructed for the St. Louis and Kansas City line. The three boats cost $9,000. The Mason sank two years ago.

THIRTY-SEVEN WERE DROWNED.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Jan. 21.—Details of the destruction of the big passenger steamer State of Missouri on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at Alton, Ind., 100 miles above here, have been received. She struck a rock and sank in 50 feet of water. The reports say that at least 37 passengers were drowned, but no names are given. The State of Missouri is a long stern-wheeler, plying between Cincinnati and New Orleans. She had on board a fairly large cargo of freight and nearly 100 persons, including a crew of 60. At Alton the river narrows, and the water being high an extremely swift current results. This threw the stern of boat in towards the Indiana shore. Before the pilot could regain control of the boat she hit a rock, tearing a long hole in the hold at the water line.

A FIGHT FOR LIFE.

The shock was terrific, and the boat trembled from bow to stern. Consternation seized upon the passengers, and in a moment they were frantic. Without regard to consequences they rushed to the upper decks in hope of delaying the inevitable, as the boat was rapidly sinking. Women and children were trampled upon, but it is believed all got out of the cabin. Then the scramble for seats in the yawls began. It was a fight for life, in which many combatants are believed to have gone to their death. The first yawl launched was sunk within twenty feet of where it struck the water. It is believed every one in it was drowned. A second yawl was then pushed off. It contained four women. This is believed to have reached shore. Just when there seemed some hope that by means of this yawl the passengers could be saved the steamer gave another quick lurch and literally broke into pieces, and in ten minutes from the moment the rock was struck nothing but the hull remained.

DASHED INTO ICE COLD WATER.

The cabin and pilot house floated away, dragging over ten people on it. The freight was washed from the main deck, and to this many women and children clung as best they could, many, however, to fall back into the ice cold water. Several succeeded by this means in getting into the willows and trees and were rescued by farmers and passing steamers. On the City of Owensboro, which passed here tonight, were four passengers who were rescued from the trees. Two of them were W. C. Leathers, of Hopkins county, Ky., and Mr. Gregory, of Cave-in-the Rock, Ill. The names of the other two could not be learned. Mr. Leathers thinks at least 35 people were downed. He saw four go under within five feet of him, but the current was so swift he could render no assistance. Mr. Leathers says there were 15 cabin passengers, 30 deck passengers and a crew of 60 on board.

SURVIVORS LANDED.

The steamer Tell City, bound for Louisville, hove in sight early this morning and took most of the survivors to Louisville. The terrific current running at the time can be partly appreciated by the fact that the wreckage began passing here early today, which would indicate at least 10 miles per hour. The normal is about four miles. Alton, Ind., where the wreck occurred, is thirty miles from a telegrah station. The news secured came, by steamers passing here today.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 20.—The steamer Tell City, of the L. & E. Mail line, arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight and brought 27 members of the deck crew of the ill-fated State of Missouri. None of them can give an estimate of the number of lives lost. Sam Cook, colored, says he counted 12 persons, including four ladies, who were carried away in the wreck. He thinks all the boat's officers were saved.

CLARKE WALLACE HURT.

The Controller Meets With a Runaway Accident.

BRAMPTON, Jan. 21.—This morning as Hon. Clark Wallace was returning from Ottawa to his home at Woodbridge, driving from Toronto Junction with his son Tom, the horse became frightened at a house which was being moved and ran away down the hill at a terrific speed. They controlled the horse for a time, but finally ran against the bank, overturned the sleigh and threw both occupants out with great force, bruising the Controller on the side of the face, but Tom was only slightly injured. The horse was stopped further on.

H. M. S. Blenheim.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The cruiser Blenheim arrived at Portsmouth this morning. She experienced a stormy voyage.

THE STUDENTS' PROTEST.

Upshot of the Jury-Thompson Incident at the Toronto University.

TORONTO, Jan. 21.—Last week's issue of the Varsity, the organ of the students of the University of Toronto, contained some very severe criticisms of the University authorities in forbidding the use of the gymnasium hall for the purpose of a lecture to the student by A. F. Jury and Phillip Thompson. The president and council of the University have notified the editor of Varsity that unless an apology, previously approved by them, is printed in next week's issue of the journal, the editor, one of the students, will be expelled and the journal suppressed. According to the present feeling there will certainly be no such apology printed.

FAMINE IN NEBRASKA.

Farmers Threatened With Starvation—Awful Picture.

GREELEY CENTRE, Neb., Jan. 21.—The distress in this part of the State is appalling. No picture of the suffering has been over drawn and a great many sad cases have been suppressed. Hundreds of families have nothing to eat and no fuel and children are so nearly naked that they are kept from school. At least one fifth of the people of this county have become county charges. It is impossible for the people to care for the destitute. Unless a large amount of outside help is received at once many farmers and their families will perish. The people are most in need of clothing. Some of the best farmers whose lands are unincumbered are as destitute as tenants because they cannot realize on any kind or class of securities. A great many of the floating population left the state in the fall and all who are here are actual residents, most of them owning their homes.

THE RIOT IN BROOKLYN.

SOLDIERY CHARGING THE MOBS WITH FIXED BAYONETS.

Alabama Avenue the Scene of a Pitched Battle, in Which Swords, Bayonets, Clubbed Muskets, Stones and Missiles Were Freely Used—The Strike Extends.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 21.—Saturday night witnessed the calling out of all the soldiers in the city. Alabama avenue was the scene of a pitched battle, swords, bayonets and clubbed muskets being used by the soldiery, and stones, coal and bricks by the rioting street car strikers. Fifteen ambulance calls were sent to St. Mary's hospital from this vicinity.

At the Jamaica car stables the militia charged three times with fixed bayonets. Charles Wilson received a bayonet wound in the back, Thomas Nolan was struck on the knee with a bayonet, and Private R. C. Williams succumbed to exhaustion.

Sunday was passed in armed neutrality, but the First Brigade of the National Guard in New York has been called out, and the authorities evidently consider the situation very serious.

7,000 SOLDIERS ON THE SCENE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The military situation in Brooklyn this morning is this: There are a little over 3,000 soldiers of the second brigade of Brooklyn militia on guard at the various trolley stables and power houses. In addition, there are 4,024 soldiers of the first brigade, made up of New York regiments, also on duty there. The strikers and their friends were gathering slowly in groups about the stables early this morning, but no collisions were reported. One car was run out from the Halsey street depot and passed between files of Seventh Regiment men.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 21.—During the night the strikers cut the overhead trolley wires in various parts of the city.

Seventh avenue, from Fourth street up the avenue for several blocks, was found to be covered with rocks this morning.

It is said that the families of some of the strikers are on the verge of starvation.

EXTENDS TO JERSEY CITY.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 21.—The employees of the Consolidated Traction Company, in Jersey City, have decided to tie up the trolley roads, in the event of the Brooklyn strike resulting in a victory for the men.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 21.—Twelve o'clock—The police report a riot in progress at Greene and Summer avenues.

Turkish Encroachment.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Daily News correspondent in Constantinople says: "Mr. Crabb, the British postmaster in Constantinople, arrived here yesterday. It is alleged that he has interfered for the release of the letter carriers of the English postoffice. The interference of the Turkish authorities with the foreign postoffices is becoming unbearable."

A Miser's Crime.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Jan. 21.—Last evening James O'Brien, aged 60, a boilermaker in the Baltimore & Ohio shops, shot his wife four times, two shots taking effect, and then turned the weapon upon himself. Both will die. O'Brien is a miser, and the shooting was occasioned by his wife selling four chickens and using some of the proceeds in purchasing sugar.

Silenced by the Japs.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Central News learns from Chee Foo that three Japanese warships carrying troops have silenced the forts at Tong Chow Foo. More than 25,000 Japs have been landed at Yun Ching, near the great fortress of Wei Hai Wei, and fifty Japanese transports are off the coast at that point.

Smallpox in Guelph.

GUELPH, Jan. 21.—A case of smallpox occurred here on the 18th inst., in the person of William Schwartz, who some days before came from near St. Thomas, where he is supposed to have contracted the disease, to attend the dairy school under the control of the president of the Agricultural College.

Armenian Outrages.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The Daily Graphic has this despatch from Paris: The entire Armenian commission of enquiry is reported to be making good progress despite the snow. It is expected to arrive at Moosh on Jan. 18. Moosh is 105 miles from Erzeroum and 11 miles from Sassoun. The enquiry will begin there.

His Life Ebbing Away.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—A bulletin issued at 9.45 this evening said that Lord Randolph Churchill had again rallied slightly.

The latest statement of the Commercial Bank of Newfoundland shows liabilities of $2,011,000, assets $1,463,000.

THE NEW COUNCIL OF '95.

BUSINESS TRANSACTED AT THE FIRST REGULAR MEETING.

Standing Committees Struck Off—The Liquor License By-Law Repealed—High School Trustees Appoined—Business Disposed of in Short Order.

The new Council filed into the Council Chambers shortly after 8 o'clock last night. A large number of citizens were present, animated, no doubt, by feelings of interest and curiosity in the initial proceedings of the new Board. Mayor Kendry presided, with the following Councillors present: Cahill, Sproule, Best, Denne, Mills, Phelan, Dawson, Clinkscale, Sawers, Stone, Mason and Brady.

After the reading of the minutes, Councillor Sawers submitted the report of the Special Committee, appointed to strike off the Standing Committees for the year.

Councillor Dawson submitted an amendment to the report, substituting the name of Councillor Brady as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, instead of his own. The amendment carried.

Councillor Dawson also moved that Councillor Cahill be placed on the Joint committee to confer with the County Council. Councillor Phelan seconded this amendment. Both Councillors Stone and Sawers stated that they would gladly withdraw in favor of Councillor Cahill. The latter rejoined in a pleasant manner, stating that he was on as many committees as a man of his years should be on. He wouldn't accept any withdrawal to make room for him. Finally it was moved by Councillor Stone, seconded by Councillor Dawson, that Councillor Stone's name should be struck off the Joint Committee and the name of Councillor Cahill placed on it. Carried.

The report of the Special Committee submitting the standing committees was then carried on motion of Councillor Sawers, seconded by Councillor Dawson. The report was as follows:

STANDING COMMITTEES.

To the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—Your special committee appointed to draft and recommend the standing committees for the year 1895, beg leave to report as follows:

Finance—Councillors Cahill, Best, Phelan, Sawers, Brady, Mills, Denne.

Streets and Bridges—Councillors Best, Dawson, Denne, Brady, Clinkscale, Cahill.

Fire, Water and Light—Councillors Brady, Phelan, Sproule, Stone, Mason, Mills.

Court of Revision—Councillors Stone, Clinkscale, Cahill, Best, Mills.

Charity—Councillors Sawers, Denne, Sproule, Clinkscale, Brady.

License—Councillors Sproule, Stone, Cahill, Mason, Mills, Dawson.

Printing—Councillors Mills, Mason, Best, Clinkscale, Sawers, Brady.

Manufactures and Railways—Councillors Cahill, Sproule, Dawson, Phelan, Mills, Mason, Stone.

Appointments and Supervision of Police—Councillors Stone, Phelan, Dawson, Sproule, Denne, Mason, Clinkscale.

Property—Councillors Dawson, Phelan, Brady, Stone, Mills, Cahill.

Market—Councillors Denne, Sproule, Sawers, Mason, Best, Clinkscale.

Health—Councillors Mason, Brady, Mills, Clinkscale, Sawers.

Joint—Councillors Phelan, Sproule, Best Mills, Sawers, Dawson, Cahill.

Sewerage—Councillors Best, Cahill, Dawson, Mason, Brady.

2 That the first named on each committee be chairman thereof.

3. That the sum of $250 be placed to the credit of the Mayor to meet the contingent expenses of his office.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

JOHN SAWERS,
Chairman.

On motion of Councillor Mason, a by-law for the appointment of a local Board of Health for the town of Peterborough was passed on a first and second reading. The following gentlemen were submitted to constitute the Board, and were approved by the Council: Henry Denne, Adam Hall, James Kendry, John J. Hartley, B. Shortly, Robt. Innis, Wm. Blackwell, R. McGrath, M.D., C. Stapleton.

The by-law was then read a third time, and became law.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From W. Aldridge, applying for reappointment as assessor.—Referred to Committee on Appointments.

A petition, largely signed by ratepayers, asking Council to grant Ostrom Bros. a license for the sale of fresh meats on George street.—Received on motion of Councillor Brady, seconded by Councillor Sawers.

From Messrs. John Carnegie and R. Max Dennistoun, as follows: "We respectfully beg to call attention to our application to the Council of 1894, for the right to erect poles and wires upon the streets of the town. * * * * We, therefore, request that you will be pleased to continue the negotiations commenced by the old Council."—Finance Committee.

HIGH SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

Moved by Councillor Sawers, seconded by Councillor Clinkscale—That Peter Hamilton and H. Denne, sr., be appointed High School trustees for the ensuing term. Carried.

Councillor Brady moved that Ostrom Bros. be granted the license they applied for. Councillor Cahill reminded the Council that the by-law must be amended by a by-law altering market by-law No 480, before this license could be granted. Councillor Brady then moved that this by-law be given a first and second reading, which was done. This by-law removes the prohibitory limit for the selling of fresh meat on that portion of George street between Hunter and Brock streets. The by-law was then read a third time and passed.

A STEVENSON, Secretary.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 22 1895.

Good morning!

No less than 165 chattel mortgages were given by civil servants in Ottawa last year. This is fifty-one more than the number given by any other class in the Dominion capital. The extravagance of the country's servants more than keeps pace with the liberality shown them.

As the Legislature has no powers to prohibit, the chances are that the poor man will not be deprived of his beer for a year or two; and no doubt the Government is simply heart-broken at the knowledge that it cannot put a stop to the promiscuous imbibing of strong drink.

A curious instance of how phrases are spread by school books is shown in the last number of Dr. Murray's Dictionary. No earlier authority could be found for the term "Black Death," describing the plague that devastated Europe in the fourteenth century, than Mrs. Markham's celebrated histories for young persons which first appeared in 1836.

In Manchester, England, the Town Council is about to put $1,250,000 into clearing the slums. An over-crowded and unhealthy space of five acres in the centre of the city will be taken, the buildings torn down and new model workmen's dwellings erected in their stead, with large areas for playgrounds and trees an flowers planted in the open spaces.

A very pretty natural phenomenon was witnessed near Apollo, Pa., during the recent zero weather. A natural gas well of of great pressure had been driven, and a strong stream of water was forced out of the hole by the pressure of the gas. The water rose to the height of sixty feet, where it spread like an umbrella and immediately froze, making a veritable natural fountain of snow.

Some rich people in Europe now have their carriages lighted within and without with electric lamps supplied by a storage battery. The Prince of Wales set the fashion in London, and Emperor William has his court carriages lighted by electricity, while all over the harness are little colored lights which glow like fireflies and give a very gay appearance to the equipage.

Every Reform paper in the country has private information to the effect that the next general elections will be held in the course of a few weeks. It is a bit mean of the Reform papers to keep giving the Government away in this fashion. The odd thing about it is that they seem to know more about the Government's plans than the members of the Government do themselves.

According to their own account the Japs have won great victories with very little loss of life. Up to December 6th only 350 men had been killed in battle, while 430 had fallen victims to disease. General Osoko, with 1,500 men, is said to have defeated 10,000 Chinese, and a body of unarmed Japanese camp followers is said to have routed Chinese cavalry and infantry. If half of these stories are true, the Japs have fully justified their claim to the proud title of "The English of the Pacific."

THE DAIRYING INTEREST.

The cultivation of the home market was one subject discussed by Mr. Pattullo, president of the Western Ontario Dairymen's association, in an address at the opening session of that body of Tuesday. Canada is a cheese producing but not a cheese consuming country. The same thing could, a few years ago, be said of the United States; but there the situation has been changed, and much to the addantage of dairymen. According to Mr. Pattullo, though in the British market Canadian cheese still has a decided preference and commands the best price, United States trade papers have been able to boast that their dairymen, during the past few months have been getting a better price for their products than have the Canadians. This is not because United States cheese is better than that made in Canada. The Chicago exhibition contests effectually settled the question of superiority in favor of this country. But on the other side the masses of the people have taken to eaten cheese, which is a healthy and nutricious food stuff, and while the whole production of the country has increased, so great has been the demand for the home market that the exports have fallen off. To quote Mr. Pattullo's words, the United States dairymen found the folly of depending on forty millions of British who were cheese eaters, when they had sixty millions of Americans at home who could be made—and who have been been made—cheese eaters, It is a fact that in Canada, which stands foremost in the rank of good cheese producers, good cheese is not always to be purchased in a retail store, many sections which are noted as cheese producing districts consume little or none of their ouput. If the directed effort of the dairymen could do somnthing to alter these conditions and increase the home consumption of home cheese, the effect on the trade would be quite as good as, or even better than, an increase in the exports, for in the foreign market there is always present the competition of the foreign producer, while at home the field is that of the home article alone. This foreign competition was also referred to by Mr. Pattullo as a possible adverse influence on prices. The great success of the Canadian dairy industry has, by exciting other countries to efforts to rival it, increased the competition The decline in the exports to Great Britain from the United States may be more than made up by the growth of the Australian shipments, by those from the Cape, which possesses many dairying advantages, and by the increasing resort to the factory system in the United Kingdom itself. A fall in prices is a possibility in dairying products as in other articles of farm output. The pest security against such an occurrence is the maintenance and improvement of the high quality of Canadian cheese, which will help it alike in the home and foreign market. To assist in secuting this end both government and trade influences should unite, and every suggestion of unfaireness or false economy to hinder it should be rejected.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S INCUBUS.

Lord Salisbury has declared that France has "rights" on 800 miles of the Newfoundland coast, and that Britain is in honor bound to enforce these "rights." He also described Newfoundland as the "sport of historic errors." If it be the fact—and it seems to be, according to Lord Salisbury—that the control gained over certain shores of Newfoundland 172 years ago must be maintained to the end of time, or cancelled only by the consent of France, it is plainly the duty of Britain to do the cancelling. The treaty of Utrecht gives the French rights which have ruined Newfoundland as a British colony, and made the island a most undesirable acquisition to Canada. The plain duty of Great Britain is to remove the incubus she has imposed upon Newfoundland, and make the island a free British colony. To do so would undoubtedly cost a large sum of money—the "rights" given to France are very valuable to that country, and France would not consent to lose her hold upon the shores of Newfoundland without a cash equivalent. It is the duty of Britain to get Newfoundland out of the scrape she got her into.

To annex Newfoundland to Canada would simply be to maintain the French domination of the island in perpetuity, or at least so long as Quebec holds the balance of power between the two parties in the Dominion. With the French dominating 800 miles of the best coast of the island, Newfoundland can never prosper as a British colony, and it would be doing a great wrong to the Dominion to admit the island to the Canadian confederation with that most serious drawback. It is all very well to talk about "rounding out the Dominion"—it makes a very pretty picture; but it will be an evil day for Canada when Newfoundland and her French "rights" are added to the bones of contention over which the two Canadian nationalities are now snarling.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!

SYMPTOMS—Moisture, intense itching and stinging most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. BLOODSHED IN HAWAII.

ANOTHER SERIOUS UPRISING AMONG THE ROYALISTS.

An Attempt to Seize Arms Results in Bloodshed—Charles Carter Killed and Others Taken Prisoners—It Was a Surprise in Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—Advices from Honolulu up to January 11, tell of an uprising that occurred on Sunday, the 6th, and was still in progress on the 11th. The Cabinet received word on the 5th that arms were being landed on the beach at Waikiki, and Deputy Marshal Brown and a squad of police were sent to search the premises of Henry Bertlmann, a prominent Royalist. They were joined by Charles L. Carter, Alfred Carter and J. B. Castle.

THE FIRING BEGAN

Brown entered the house and began to read his warrant when he heard shots in the rear of the house. Bertlmann said there were no arms in his place and Brown rushed out to join his comrades, just as Charles Carter cried "There they are, under the boat-shed," and rushing forward followed by his cousin and the others.

A volley was fired from the shed and Charles Carter and Lieut. Holi fell wounded. The police drove the natives out on the beach and they retreated to the bush, the police returning to Bertlmann's house.

REBELS ATTACK THE POLICE.

The rebels regained courage and surrounded the house, firing into it repeatedly. Leaving one man to guard the prisoners, the officers returned the fire but without effect, as their assailant could not be seen. Realizing that their case was desperate and that word must be got to town at all hazards, it was resolved that Brown and Baker should make a dash for their horses, which were tied near the house. This was done with success and they were soon at the nearest telegraph office.

TO TAKE IT BY STORM.

The natives were advancing on the house to take it by storm, when one of the officers told Bertlemann he would blow his brains out on the instant the first man went inside the house and hurt anyone. Bertlemann called to the natives outside to that effect, and they at once withdrew and ceased firing.

Before long a detail of 13 regulars from the Government building arrived at the scene of action, and the natives fired a parting volley and fled.

CARTER DIED FROM HIS WOUNDS.

Charles Carter died early the next morning, and Lieut. Holi is now in the hospital.

It is said that among the prisoners are Volney Ashford and his brother Clarence, who are from Canada. The first named is an ex commander of the forces, and the latter ex-Prime Minister.

SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The news of the insurrection was a great surprise in diplomatic circles here. The general impression seems that no revolution can be victorious in its results unless aided and abetted by some foreign power. There are no warships of any nation at Honolulu. The Champion left some time before the uprising.

Secretary Herbert said: "We have no ships at Honolulu at present, nor are there any on the way there. The Charleston and Bennington are at San Francisco, ready to proceed, and they could leave today if it were thought necessary. This is the first news that I have received of the matter, and I have not had time to decide whether a ship shall be sent at once or not."

Wealth Engaged to Wealth.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—There is a rumor in club circles that Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, has become engaged to marry Moses Taylor, a well-known young man about town and the possessor of millions. Moses Taylor is a grandson of Moses Taylor, who died a number of years ago, leaving a fortune estimated at $40,000,000. He is about 25 years old.

Material for Another "Treasure Island."

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—A Times' special from San Luis Potosi, Mexico, says:—"Hidden treasure, to the amount of nearly $800,000 in Spanish doubloons, was discovered yesterday in a cavern which opened into a canon just east of the city. The money is supposed to have been secreted by bandits or Franciscan monks many years ago."

EASTERN ARMS.

The Carrying of Weapons a Universal Practice in the Orient.

Almost every one in Haidarabad is armed to the teeth, and the spears, sabers, daggers and pistols which gleam amid the white and crimson robes or bristle in sash and turban convert the entire city into a formidable armory. Bazaars filled with deadly weapons brighten dim alley and moldering arcade with the polished steel and burnished brass of a hundred unfamiliar native instruments of attack and defence.

Sheaves of slender Persian rapiers are held in place by the sharp sickles of murderous, double edged scimiters, and swords with watered blades of fabulous value fence off a jagged heap of pointed "serotis" and crooked "talwars." A strong handle of twisted camel sinew guides the yielding blade of the subtle "jambia," narrowing to a vicious looking hook, and the turbaned armorer leaves his anvil to show us the needlelike "karoll," minute enough to be concealed in the palm of the hand and used by distraught lovers to inflict the wounds provoked by jealousy or disappointment.

Spiky "marus" of sharpened black buckshorn and piercing blades known as "bichwas," or "scorpions," fill a brazen tray, and a bundle of elephant goads, inlaid with ebony and silver, leans against a stack of shining spears. Daggers, curved and straight, rough and smooth, jagged and pointed, show endless possibilities of inflicting every degree of punishment, from a deathblow to a scratch, from the severing of an artery to a puncture deep and deadly, but small enough to defy detection. The muslin turbans of the passing multitude are thickly set with inlaid daggers and glittering blades.

The merchant who smokes his narhileh among green and purple bales of costly embroidery carries a sharp stiletto behind his ear and pricks off a list of goods with this warlike instrument. A haughty looking noble, on a richly caparisoned elephant, examines the temper of a huge sword which he draws from a jeweled scabbard as he rides on his way, and a money lender, chinking the heavy native rupees into a silver bowl, looks up as a curtained palanquin darkens his doorway and offers the caller a parchment scroll on the shaft of a long knife without rising from his seat.—All the Year Round.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

They Started Out to Fight Fire and Met Something Else.

An incident of the forest fires in the Pine creek region is related by Sam Campbell, who works in the woods near Blackwell's. Sam was one of the crew of men sent out to "back fire" (fight fire with fire), and he declares that their experience was most thrilling.

While setting fire to a thicket that crowned a rocky ridge he and his crew were startled to find themselves suddenly in the midst of a lot of rattlesnakes. The forest fire was advancing up the side of the hill at a rapid rate. Its whistling, whirring sound as it devoured the hemlock tops was terrific, and the men were bent on building a line of fire to start toward it, hoping that when the two lines met the fury of the flames would be subdued for lack of material on which to feed. It was while thus employed that they encountered the snakes.

The ground seemed to be literally alive with rattlers, the reptiles crawling in the direction of a rocky bluff not more than 100 yards distant. The men were all equipped with high topped leather boots and paid little heed to the snakes, stepping on them as though they were harmless old sticks. Campbell says that the rattling made by the reptiles could be heard above the roar of the distant flames.

The "back fire" made by the men caught dozens of crawlers, and they were burned to death. Campbell said he watched several of the rattlers "give up the ghost." When the flames advanced so close that the snakes saw further escape was impossible, they would coil up in a heap, darting their heads angrily at the tongues of flame, then suddenly relapse, when the heat overcame them, a moment later to be devoured.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Napoleon's Schoolboy Character.

In August Buonaparte and Bourrienne shared the first prize in mathematics, and soon afterward, in the same year, 1783, a royal inspector, M. de Karalio, arrived at Brienne to test the progress of the king's wards. He took a great fancy to the little Buonaparte, and declaring that, though unacquainted with his family, he found a spark in him which must not be extinguished, wrote an emphatic recommendation of the lad, couched in the following terms: "M. de Bonaparte (Napoleon), born Aug. 15, 1769. Height, 4 pieds, 10 pouces, 10 lignes (1 metre, 59 centimeters, 73 millimeters), of good constitution, excellent health, mild (soumis) disposition. Has finished the fourth form. Straightforward (honnete) and obliging (reconnaissant). His conduct has been most satisfactory. Has always been distinguished for his application to mathematics, is fairly acquainted with history and geography, is weak in all accomplishments—drawing, dancing and the like. This boy would make an excellent sailor; deserves promotion to the school in Paris." Unfortunately for the prospect of a place in the navy, M. de Keralio, who was a powerful friend, died very soon afterward.—Professor Sloane's "New Life of Napoleon" in Century.

Narrowness.

It is strange, very strange, to me that many men should devote themselves so exclusively to the study of their own particular callings. It seems as if they thought a mind must grow narrow before it can come to a focus. We send our young men abroad to enlarge and modify their notions, but those who stay at home shut themselves up with the primers and catechisms of their professions until they are stiffened into machines for specific purposes. The knowledge of a man who confines himself to one object bears the same relation to that of the liberal scholar that the red or violet ray of a prism does to the blended light of a sunbeam.—O. W. Holmes' "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table."

Misunderstood the Text.

"Now, tell me what the trouble is," said a mother to her little girl, whom she had just been obliged to take out of church because of a violent fit of weeping.

"He called me," said the child between her sobs, "a simple, little cross eyed thing!"

The child was cross eyed, and the minister had just given out the hymn, "Simply to thy cross I cling."—New York Herald.

The stentor or trumpet animalcule is shaped exactly like a trumpet, save that at the small end there is a globe which seems to answer the purpose of heart, stomach, liver, lungs and all other organs.

TWILIGHT.

Spirit of Twilight, through your folded wings
I catch a glimpse of your averted face,
And rapturous, on a sudden, my soul sings,
"Is not this common earth a holy place?"

Spirit of Twilight, you are like a song
That sleeps and waits a singer, like a hymn
That God finds lovely and keeps near him long
Till it is choired by orioled cherubim.

Spirit of Twilight, in the golden gloom
Of dreamland dim I sought you, and I found
A woman sitting in a silent room
Full of white flowers that moved and made no sound.

These white flowers were the thoughts you bring to all,
And the room's name is Mystery, where you sit.
Woman whom we call Twilight, when night's pall
You lift across our earth to cover it.

THE FAIR INVALID.

It was just about a half hour after the arrival of the evening stage, and the ceremony of meeting that institution having been religiously observed by every citizen of the camp White Hawk was now engaged in its usual evening pastimes—trying to beat Faro Fair's justly celebrated bank, or to get ahead of the highly interesting "stud" game of Messrs. Mike Hennessy and Claude Dupont, or to drink all the visible supply of whisky in the three saloons which furnished the camp's solace in retail quantities. The games were going on with their customary early evening briskness, and peace hovered over the camp.

Singlefoot Sheridan came down from the to be valuable claim he had located up on the hill next to the old Red Ruby shaft with more haste than usual. His peculiar style of gait was particularly accentuated by his obvious desire to make some degree of haste as he trotted down the hill with three or four muddy drills making reddish marks on his shoulder and down the back of his shirt. Whatever else might have been said of Mr. Sheridan, it could never be truthfully asserted that he did not at all times look like a miner of hardworking tendencies.

Mr. Sheridan charged into the Double Eagle, Mr. Fair's popular resort, and trotted directly over to Mr. Dunn, the "barkeep," whom he at once engaged in a quiet but animated conversation.

"Wonder what all's struck Singlefoot?" remarked Wabash Hicks, toying lazily with his glass. "Reckon he's been findin a 'color' up there?" he added, with a jerk of his thumb in the direction of Sunset Hill.

"'Color,' nothin," replied Large Briggs, so called to distinguish him from Skinny of that ilk, with good natured contempt. "Why, he's only bin two 'r three weeks sinkin, an you're fully 'ware o' th' fact that Singlefoot hain't no real hurried workman, more especial when actin like he is, as 'is own shift boss an workin force."

Both men laughed and went over to the bar, where Singlefoot and Dunn continued to talk interestedly. Dunn motioned to them, and they came up to receive the news.

"Twor djoost loike dthis," said Singlefoot importantly. "Oi wor coomin down dthe back trail whin, all of a suddint loike, Oi tinks t' meself, 'Oi'll go down t' Johnny McAfee's (him that's in Mixyco, d'yez moind?) an'"—

"Well, go on," interrupted Briggs.

"An ain't Oi as fasht as Oi can?" retorted Singlefoot, indignant at the idea of being obliged to cut his lines. "As Oi wor sehin, Oi tought Oi'd go down dthe ould thrail t' Johnny's an' swoipe a coople o' dozen candles. So Oi wint.

"Oi wor walkin oop to dthe dure whin Oi runs oop agin a mon—an ouldish stranger chap.

"Says he, 'Does dthis house b'long t' youse?' Says Oi, 'Ut does not.' Says he, 'Misther, Oi'm playin in har-rd luck.' An thin he goes on t' tell me about how him'n his sisthor wor roidin frim Tucson overland t' Silver City, an 'is sisther wor tuk bad doon dthe thrail by Johnny's so 'e tuk up quarthers doon there."

This was interesting. A woman was always interesting to people in White Hawk, and this one was particularly so on account of the fact that Singlefoot described her as being young and quite good looking. The news of her arrival spread rapidly, and when it was also reported that the fair stranger and her brother had nothing on earth but their clothes and the two little overworked bronchos they were traveling with, White Hawk rose as one man.

Here was a golden opportunity and one which they could not and would not permit to pass to show the chivalry of White Hawk. A small delegation, with Singlefoot Sheridan, by right of discovery, acting as spokesman, went out to Johnny McAfee's cabin with a large supply of all the eatables and drinkables the camp afforded, and the assurance that the strangers were to make themselves as much at home as possible, and that everything in White Hawk was theirs. It was disappointing that the lady was unable to receive them, and Singlefoot suddenly became more important than ever on account of the fact that he had actually seen and talked with the fair stranger, but the boys were somewhat rea-

SEEKING AID

Thousands in Dire Distress

MANY ARE NEAR DEATH

The Sufferers Should be Directed to Paine's Celery Compound.

MRS. DURANT IS CURED

At the present time there are thousands of valuable lives in jeopardy in our country, and men and women are anxiously seeking for help. Many are cruelly suffering and in deep distress. Kidney and liver complaints, heart troubles, dyspepsia, indigestion and rheumatism have brought many to the verge of the grave. Mental anxiety, failures with doctors, and the thought of leaving near and dear ones behind, adds to the weight of agony and physical tortures.

It is the duty of all who know what Paine's Celery Compound has done in the past, to urge every sufferer to give it a trial; it cannot fail; its mission is to cure and save.

Mrs. George Durant, a lady living in Elma, Dundas Co., Ont., was cured of liver and kidney troubles after the failure of several physicians; she writes as follows:—

"Permit me to record my testimony in favor of your excellent preparation, Paine's Celery Compound. For many years I have been a sufferer from liver and kidney troubles, and have doctored with several physicians, but only found relief for a short time. My husband advised me to try your Compound. I did so, and found so much relief from the first bottle that I continued, and am now using the third bottle. Your Compound has done more for me than any physician. For months before using the Compound I never had one night of sound sleep; but now I can go to bed and sleep soundly and naturally, and feel like a new creature in the morning."

THE BODY WAS BOUND.

MRS. GIROUX THE VICTIM OF AN EARLY MORNING FIRE.

She Was Dead When Taken Out by the Firemen, but It Was Discovered that Her Feet Were Tied with Cords.

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—When the body of Mrs. Joseph Giroux, which was found lifeless in a sitting posture in her house by the firemen yesterday morning, was being prepared for burial in the forenoon at Roger's morgue, a discovery of a highly sensational character was made. It was found that the woman's legs were pinioned together, just a little below the knees, with some heavy twine that was wound around the limbs several times. It was not easily taken off, and the conclusions drawn are that the unfortunate either bound the cord around for the ostensible purpose of committing suicide by afterwards setting the house on fire and being burned to death, or else that she met with foul play.

However, her end is as yet shrouded in mystery, as only vague details of how she spent her last night were given at the inquest conducted last night.

THE EVIDENCE.

According to the evidence adduced at the inquest the fire was discovered in her house, 215 Rochester street, about 5.30 in the morning by Adolphin Poulin, who testified that he was passing on his way to work when he noticed the smoke coming out of the windows and doors. He looked in the window and seeing no one in the house, he ran and gave an alarm immediately from box 143. The fire had gained some headway when the brigade arrived. Ladders were run up to the upper flat and the windows smashed so as to allow the smoke to escape, while a couple of firemen went around to the back with a stream. They found the kitchen door locked and upon breaking it in were horrified to find Mrs. Giroux

a few feet to one side, with her back resting against the wall. A chair stood next to her, but she evidently had not been using it. She was taken hurriedly out of the building, but all signs of life had disappeared. Her face and body were severely scorched with the fire. When found, one shoe was on her lap and the other on her foot, which suggested the idea that she was in the act of putting them on when overcome with smoke and fire.

England's Warships.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The Herald's special from Panama says:—The presence of three British warships in the Pacific and three more on the Atlantic coast of Central America is causing considerable comment. It is thought that the Mosquito reservation question is far from being settled.

Polly as a Pastor.

There was a parrot once that belonged to a clergyman. In the circumstances of that gentleman's household Polly naturally became religious and learned several phrases of its master's profession. One day this irresponsible worshiper got, nobody knew how, into church while service was going on. As it was behaving itself nobody disturbed it, where it sat perched on a pew, for the remedy might have proved worse than the evil.

As for evil, the parrot never thought of it. At last the clergyman announced a hymn.

"Let us sing," said he, "the four hundred and first hymn."

But at this point it was found that Polly was in another frame of devotion. Immediately after the priest's announcement of the hymn it exhorted the congregation contradictorily, "Let us pray."

BROOKLYN'S STRIKE.

It Breaks Out Afresh and is More Serious—National Guards in Arm and Ordered Out.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 19.—The leaders of the railroad strike were holding a meeting at their headquarters late last night when information was received of the instruction of Mayor Schieren to call out the troops. They decided as a retaliatory step to cause a general strike on all the railroads in Brooklyn.

At 7 o'clock this morning nearly 3,000 of the National Guard were under arms in this city. The first point that was covered by the militia this morning was the depot of Atlantic avenue line at Ninth avenue and Twentieth street.

The soldiers were hooted and jeered at. Women threw up windows in the tenement houses and shook their fists at the military men as they marched by.

The strikers and their sympathisers are loud in denouncing the city authorities for ordering out the troops.

All local assemblies will hold meetings today to take action regarding the present situation.

They claim that the action of the city authorities in ordering out the troops was unnecessary, as they expect to win the strike without resorting to violence for the reason that the companies cannot procure new men to take their places.

A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE.

Sensation Caused by the Revelations of a Royal Commission.

NANAIMO, B.C., Jan. 19.—Probably one of the greatest sensations ever experienced in British Columbia was caused yesterday by the revelations before the Royal Commission now in progress here and the strange disappearance of Police Magistrate Planta.

The commission was appointed to investigate J. P. Planta's conduct as Police Magistrate, and to enquire into the judical administration of conduct generally. Evidence was adduced during the progress of the enquiry of a most startling nature, showing not only very peculiar methods in handling public monies on the part of Planta, but bringing to light a serious state of affairs regarding the municipal council's finances as managed by City Clerk Gough. Planta's disappearance is the strangest part of all. He was in town at 2 p.m. yesterday, since then nothing has been seen or heard of his movements. As he practically had no means of leaving the town in the afternoon the general opinion is that Planta has drowned himself.

Teng-Chow-Foo is Intact.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—A despatch from Shanghai, printed in the Pall Mall Gazette says: A Japanese warship today fired upon Teng-Chow-Foo. No damage was done.

Kaiser Kisses.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—It was rumored this evening that M. Herbette, the French ambassador, had resigned. Count Shuvaloff, the retiring Russian ambassador, and his family left Berlin for Russia this evening. The Emperor assisted the Countess into the railway cars and kissed her hand. He embraced the Count at the station. There was a great assemblage of officers, court and government officials and members of the Russian embassy.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 22, 1895

THE NEW COUNCIL OF '95.

Councillor Cahill moved that one hundred tons of stone be purchased for street purposes.

Councillor Sproule thought it was beginning pretty early to purchase new stone, inasmuch, as at the last meeting of the old council it required quite a strain to pass a resolution for the purchase of 250 tons of stone. He asked if this stone was really necessary. If it was, he wouldn't object to the resolution.

Councillor Best explained the matter satisfactorily to Councillor Sproule. The motion carried.

Councillors Sawers and Phelan thought that there should be no delay in the purchasing of wood, if it was necessary for charity purposes.

Councillor Dawson favored the purchase of a typewriter for the town clerk's office. Councillor Brady, seconded by Councillor Clinkscale, moved that the property committee be instructed to make enquiries towards the purchase of a typewriter.

The purchase of an order book for the recording of all orders for goods for the corporation, was sanctioned.

The purchase of a book of calendars for the convenience of the clerk and treasurer, was sanctioned upon motion of Councillor Cahill, seconded by Councillor Phelan.

LIQUOR BY-LAW REPEALED.

Councillor Best gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would move that the by-law passed in 1894 reducing the number of liquor licenses be repealed.

Councillor Best remarked that the by-law had not filled the purpose for which it was intended. It hadn't helped the temperance cause any, and he believed in complying strictly with the statutes in the matter of issuing licenses. The by-law had resulted in reducing the number of hotels and increasing the saloons.

Councillor Denne said he would support the motion. He understood, in addition to what Councillor Best had said, that the revenue was reduced by some $700 or $800 a year.

FAILED IN ITS PURPOSE.

Councillor Stone said he would support the motion as a temperance man. The by-law had operated directly against the wishes of those who passed it. It had diminished hotels and increased saloons, and also increased intemperance.

Councillor Dawson said he was in sympathy with the motion.

Mayor Kendry said he was prepared to back up the old Council. He said it had acted for the best interests of the town. If it had not resulted right, it was because the town had not the power to carry out the purpose for which the bylaw was intended, or to shape the results as intended. He was in favor of the repeal as provided for in Councillor Best's motion.

Councillor Sproule said he would also support the motion and vote for the repeal. He would do so in justice to the people. Temperance did not consist, and its ends would not be carried out, in the way things had been going. He was a temperance man and a just one.

Councillor Best then withdrew his notice of motion and moved the first and second reading of a bylaw for the repeal of the liquor bylaw mentioned. This was passed on a third reading and became law.

This by-law takes effect on May 1st, 1895. At present there are 18 hotel licenses. The statute fixes the limit at 24. This repeal also effects and removes the limit on shop licenses increasing them to the number sanctioned by the statutes.

This concluded the business before the Council. Mayor Kendry complimented the councillors upon the expeditious manner in which they had disposed of the business. He hoped that during the year the same dispatch would be observed. Mayor Kendry then invited the councillors to partake of an oyster supper which was served in excellent style at the Palace restaurant to which hostelry the Council adjourned.

STATUTORY MEETING.

In a few words Mayor Kendry welcomed the old and new members of the Council at the inaugural meeting held at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. There were present, at this, the first council meeting of 1895, Councillors Stone, Mason, Phelan, Sawer, Dawson, Clinkscale, Denne, Cahill, Best, Mills and Sproule. Councillor Brady was the only one absent. The usual declaration was read by Clerk Armstrong.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were then read and disposed of as follows:

From John Jeffers, asking for time in which to pay his taxes.—Referred to the Court of Revision, and on motion of Messrs. Dawson and Clinkscale, the applicant will be given corporation work.

From J. J. Hartley, John Kincaid, Thomas B. McGrath, T. McFadden and William Hill, applying for the position of town assessor.—Referred to the Committee on Appointments.

From E. B. Edwards, stating that a new trial had been ordered in the Dunsford vs. Peterborough case.—Received.

From J. Hampden Burnham, as follows: GENTLEMEN,—In accordance with the finding of your Finance Committee which was as follows. "The Committee recommended that the Children's Aid Society be asked to make inquiries and to report such suggestions as are the outcome of these inquires to this Commitee," the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society advertised for application from those willing to take children. There were six applications from those willing to take children. There were six applications, the particulars of which are appended, and these are respectfully submitted for the consideration of the Council. So far as the society was in a position to judge of the several applications after making due inquiry, that of Mrs. R. R. Hamilton was approved by the society as most favorable in its terms and the most suitable in other respects.

In view of the fact that there are some cases that are now before the Society requiring immediate attention, the Society will be glad if the Council will give the matter its early consideration and either make the necessary arrangement or enable the Society to make the arrangement for the temporary accommodation of the children."

The list of applications were:—

1. Mrs. R. R. Hamilton, terms $1.73 per child per week.
2. Mr. Isaac Dormer, terms $2 per week per child.
3. Mrs. McIlmoyle, $2 per week per child.
4. Mrs. Geo. Rose, no terms stated.
5. Mr. and Mrs. MacFarlane, application not completed.—Referred to Charity Committee.

AUDITORS APPOINTED.

The new auditors of the town are Mr. F. E. Bell and Sheriff Hall. The first named gentleman was appointed by the Mayor and Sheriff Hall by a resolution moved by Councillor Dawson, seconded by Councillor Best.

THE FIRST DISCUSSION.

Councillor Best moved, seconded by Councillor Dawson, that Councillors Cahill, Denne, Dawson, Mason and the mover be a committee to strike the standing committees for the year.

Mr. Sawers was of a different opinion. He thought all should have a hand in the selecting of the committees.

Councillor Sproule moved in amendment to the amendment: That Councillors Cahill, Denne, Dawson, Stone, Phelan, Best and the mover be a committee to strike the Standing Committees. Councillor Sproule had a high opinion of the old Councillors, but wanted more new men on the Striking Committee than Councillor Best had named.

More discussion followed, but finally Councillor Sproule's amendment to the amendment was put and lost. Councillor Sawers' amendment was then carried.

The Council then went into Committee of the Whole to strike off the Standing Committees, as above.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Ashburnham Council of 1895 held its first regular meeting last night.

There were present Reeve Burnham in the chair, and Councillors Craig, Rutherford, Calcutt and Smith.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From E. Courtney applying for the position of auditor for 1895.—Received.

From Messrs. John W. Morray, W. C. Kirk, James Stewart and R. W. Reed, asking to be appointed assessors for the current year.—Received.

VILLAGE OFFICERS FOR 1895.

Councillor Rutherford moved, seconded by Councillor Smith,—That Thos. Clithero be appointed auditor for the current year.—Carried.

A by-law appointing Frederick Dover and Thos. Clithero auditors at a salary of $8 each, then passed its several readings.

Councillor Smith moved that John T. Wright be appointed tax collector at a salary of $60.—Carried.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Craig,—That John Morray and John H. Thompson be appointed assessors at a salary of $40.—Carried.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford.—That Dr. Speers be appointed Health Officer for the current year at a salary of $50 a year.

A little discussion took place with reference to the salary, Councillor Craig maintaining that $50 per year was too much for the duties accuring from the office. The resolution was accordingly amended by substituting $30 in place of $50 for salary. The resolution was then carried.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford, that Jno. T. Wright Jno. H. Murray and Allan McCarthy be appointed a Board of Health for 1895.—Carried.

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

A large number of ratepayers, petitioned the Council not to grant any licenses for either pool or billiard tables for the current year.

With reference to the above petition, Reeve Burnham, explained that the statute simply empowered the Council to License and not to prohibit. He was not sure that the Council could prohibit even were it so disposed.

Councillor Rutherford moved, seconded by Councillor Smith,—That a by-law be passed fixing the license for billiard and bagatelle tables at $100 for the first table and $20 each additional table.—Carried.

The following committees were then struck:

CHARITY—Councillors Smith and Craig for the North Ward, and Councillors Calcutt and Rutherford for the South Ward.

STREET AND BRIDGE—Councillor Craig moved, seconded by Councillor Calcutt,—That the Reeve and the whole Council form the Street and Bridge Committee, the seconder to be chairman of the same.

Some discussion took place concerning the advisability of reappointing Councillor Rutherford as chairman of his committee.

Reeve Burnham favored the reappointment of Councillor Rutherford, and receiving the support of the majority of the Council, Mr. Rutherford's name was substituted in place of Councillor Calcutt's as chairman of the committee.

TO INCREASE THEIR PAY.

Councillor Smith moved that the corporation laborers be paid $1.15 a day, and that the pay roll be made up to Friday evening of each week.

No seconder being forthcoming, the resolution fell through.

FIRE PROTECTION.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Calcutt,—That the Reeve and Messrs. Craig, Rutherford and the mover and seconder be a committee to meet the Town Council to make terms for fire protection, such terms to date from January 1st, 1895.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

The Times

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 22, 1895.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

Save Your Fuel.

Call at Calcutt's Brewary and see how to save one third your fuel on steam boilers and give one third more power.

Installation of Officers.

The postponed joint installation of officers of Mt. Hebron and Hiawatha Encampments, I.O.F., will take place this evening, January 22nd. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

The Date Fixed.

A few days ago THE TIMES announced the probable visit of Hon. Mr. Haggart and a number of the Dominion Cabinet Ministers. The visit is now a certainty. On February 7th the following Ministers will address the citizens of Peterborough: Hon. George Foster, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. John Costigan, Hon. Dr. Montague and Mr. Clarke Wallace.

Death of Mr. Robt. Russell.

The death of Robert M. Russell, son of Mr. John Russell, 43 Chamberlain street, occurred at his father's residence early yesterday morning, from consumption. For a long time the deceased has lingered with the dread malady. He was 29 years of age, of good reputation, and a member of Court Peterborough, C.O.F. The funeral takes place at 2.30 tomorrow afternoon under the auspices of that society.

Cutter Upset.

A gentleman from the township met with a mishap at the corner of Charlotte and George streets last night. In company with a lady he was driving along George street when his horse took fright and started to run. A sharp turn was made at Charlotte street. The runner of the cutter caught in the track of the street railway, and the cutter was turned completely over. Some damage was done to the outfit, but the occupants escaped injury.

To Toronto on Wednesday.

Suppose you can't curl. Suppose you don't know why men are so foolish as to yell and get excited over such a game, and shout "swoop'er up," "swoop'er up," until they are hoarse. Suppose you imagine they are a little bit crazy, that does not prevent you taking advantage of the cheap excursion on Wednesday. The curlers are running it but they are our best citizens and you will enjoy it. Go up. Its only $2 and you can go on Tuesday night and remain until Thursday if you so desire.

Provincial Appointments.

The Ontario Government has made the following appointments: William Allan McLean of Walkerton, local registrar of the High Court of Justice for Bruce County; Judge Mackenzie of Sarnia, local master of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Lambton County; John Lawrence of Christian Island, Police Magistrate for Christian Island, without salary; Dr. Watson of Listowel, associate coroner in Perth County; William Suggitt of Lambton Mills, bailiff of the seventh and eight Division Courts of York County.

A Charitable Object.

The celebration of Burn's Anniversary, in Peterborough, by a concert of high order and one worthy of the occasion, is not the only laudable object which the St. Andrew's Society have in view. The proceeds of this concert are in aid of the benevolent fund of this Society, which it is learned, has stood the strain of hard times until its funds have become nearly exhausted. Ticket holders, therefore, have the satisfaction of knowing that they are assisting a purely charitable society, which has been helping to relieve the town of some of the burdens that must be borne by every community. Remember the date—January 23rd.

Writ for Damages.

Our readers will remember the death of Walter Clark, near Codrington, in November last. Clark, with several friends, was at Warkworth, at the Leonard House. When leaving the hotel yard Clark's wagon upset; he was thrown out and injured about the head, from the effects of which he died a few days subsequently. The accident was witnessed at the time by Mr. Geo. F. Hoskins. The widow, Margaret Ann Clark, through her solicitor, A. L. Colville, of Campbellford, has issued a writ for $1,000 damages against John Leonard, proprietor of the hotel in which her husband is said to have got liquor. The action is brought under R.S.O., 194. Actions under this section are very rare and this will, no doubt, prove interesting. John Leonard is a brother of Mr. Evar Leonard of Cobourg.—Cobourg Post.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers

Slippery.

The County Council will meet this morning.

The Burns' Anniversary concert comes off tomorrow night.

There were a great many tumbles on the slippery sidewalks yesterday.

Tomorrow is the date of the Curler's excursion. A large crowd will take advantage of the cheap rate.

The Frenchman Breault, mentioned in THE TIMES several days ago, is not Mr. Breault of Peterborough.

Mr. A. E. Cunningham has supplied a long felt want in Peterborough by the establishment of an employment bureau and general commission office on Water street.

Mr. R. D. Hamilton, of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company, met with a painful accident yesterday. In stepping from his door, Mr. Hamilton slipped and fell, spraining his wrist quite severely.

High kickers, contortionists, acrobatics, end men and specialty artists as well as musicians should attend the meeting of the Pontypool Minstrels this evening at the C.P.R. Hotel at 8 o'clock tonight.

Harry Neil, of the Peterborough Brewing Co., recently made an extended trip and succeeded in placing several orders for their celebrated bottled beer, and home-brewed porter, for which Mr. Calcutt is celebrated.

The Cobourg hockey club expect to arrange games with Lindsay, Belleville, Peterborough and Trinity College School at an early date. The boys expect to be in good shape in a few days to meet all comers, and put up a game that will be a credit to themselves. The material is in the town and it is intended to bring it out. —Cobourgh Post.

THE INSPECTORSHIP.

To the Editor of the Times.

SIR,—Kindly permit me, through your columns, to ask Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P. and proprietor of the Examiner, to deny—if he dare do so—the following gist of a conversation in his place of business on Saturday evening, Jan. 19th, 1895 between himself and a prominent gentleman of the town (who has knowledge of this letter)

P. G.—What do you mean by the covert threats against Mr. Garvin in you editorial in tonight's Examiner? Do you know anything against his moral character or against his capacity or conduct as Inspector?

Mr. Stratton—It has nothing to do with his character or his ability as an inspector.

P. G.—Then what have you against him?

Mr. Stratton—It has reference to his political conduct only.

The conversation can be given Mr. Stratton in full if need be, but the above will, I think, be sufficient to enable him to recollect what took place.

Mr. Editor I have some other pointed questions to ask Mr. Stratton, but in order not to burden him with too many at once, I shall await with considerable interest his reply to the above.

Yours truly,
C. W. SAWERS.

Ayr defeated Berlin in an O. H. A. game on Saturday by 11 goals to 1.

Queen's College defeated Kingston in a Senior League hockey contest on Saturday by 13 to 1.

The chess contest between Mieses and Janowski at Paris now stands: Mieses 4, Janowski 3, drawn 1.

Higbee and Carkeek played pool last evening at the Washington rooms for $100 a side. Stubbs was the referee.

Alex. Bernau, the champion of Texas, was knocked out in two rounds at Galveston on Saturday by Dan Creedon.

The Conservative and Reform curlers of the Meaford club played a game on Saturday, the former winning by 14 to 13.

At the Montreal ice races on Saturday Albimont won the three minute class and St. Scholastique Boy the named race.

The Ottawa A.A.A. Club defeated the Montreal A.A.C., at bowling on Saturday by 3,109 to 3,064. The game was played at Ottawa.

Quebec defeated the Montreal Victorias at hockey on Saturday by 4 goals to 3. The Victorias juniors beat the Quebec juniors by 6 goals to 1 in the intermediate series.

The 25-round contest between George Dixon and Young Griffo at the Coney Island Athletic Club on Saturday resulted in a draw. Neither man had an advantage.

At Paris on Saturday a South Ontario Hockey Association match took place between St. Catharines and Paris, the home team winning by 4 to 1. The game was an excellent one throughout.

The championship hockey match at the Victoria Rink, Montreal, between Montreal and Ottawa was won by the former, the score being 3 to 2. The play was very rough, and Young of the Ottawas was disabled.

Four thousand people saw the annual races of the National Amateur Skating Association at Newburg, N.Y., on Saturday. Harley Davidson, of Toronto won the final heat in the quarter mile race and also won the one mile. Rudd, of Minneapolis, won the five mile event. After the one mile race a row ensued, Davidson being badly treated.

A number of shooting matches brought the pigeon tournament at Hamilton to a close on Saturday. Kirkwood beat Smith by 23 to 21; Morphy, of Paterson, beat Helkes, of Dayton, by 47 to 44, and Brewer, of Rochester beat Cockburn, of Toronto, by 45 to 44. The stakes were paid over to Cockburn, however, as Brewer used too large a shot. Fulford beat Fairbairn, and Morphy defeated Stroud.

Personals.

Mr. William H. Frith, of Ashburnham left on Saturday for Warsaw, where he intends to visit friends.

Mr. Allan Graham, late of T. Dolan & Co., will leave for Grand Forks, Dakota, this week, to take a situation with his brother Mr. Thomas Graham, who is well-known in town, as a Commercial traveller.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

MOB RULE IN BROOKLYN.

TROOPS ARE FIRED UPON BY THE DEFIANT RIOTERS.

Street Railway Strikers Hoot at the Police and Militia—They Spent the Night in Cutting Wires—Several Killed and Much Blood Spilled.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—The street car strike situation seems about to assume another complication. The 600 linemen of the city will quit work in the morning, and lines and wires cut will remain unrepaired. Seven thousand National Guardsmen and 1,600 policemen have failed to restore order. The levy from New York amounts to about 4,000 men.

A car starting from the Ridgewood station of the Brooklyn Heights Company about 5 o'clock occasioned the first serious trouble of the day. A shower of bricks and stones from the mob drew two volleys from the soldiers. An hour later another car was attacked at Gale and Stuyvesant avenue, and two policemen were shot, one through the hand, another through the arm.

SEVERAL RIOTERS SHOT.

On the Halsey street line more fighting occurred and it is said several rioters were shot. At the Halsey street depot a car was wrecked by the rioters and two policemen fired into the crowd. By half past eight all attempts to run cars on the tied-up lines had ceased. The dense fog prevented more fatalities from the frequent shooting.

A pitched battle occurred in the vicinity of the Ridgewood avenue stables. An attempt was made to run a car surrounded by a strong guard. About three blocks from the station the mob attacked the car and were finally driven back by a volley from pistols and rifles. Seven cars attempted the run between 4 and 7 o'clock in the evening.

A WOMAN INJURED.

One hundred and forty five cars are run instead of the usual 1,900 by the Brooklyn Heights Co.

Mrs. Josephine Ziegler, aged 69, was run over by a car in charge of a green motorman. She sustained serious internal injuries.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—A World extra says:—Col. Appleton's guard dispersed crowds from around the Brooklyn Halsey street depot this morning. The soldiers used the butt ends of their muskets. It has been discovered that union men secured work at the Ninth avenue depot, under the guise of non unionists, with the object of damaging cars. Several cars were so cripled that electricians were at work all night repairing them. An attempt was also made to burn the depot.

TROOPS FIRED UPON.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—The situation is most serious. The troops have been fired upon, attacked with stones, brickbats and other missiles, under cover of darkness and fog. The have heroically faced the riotous mobs, and the wonder is that they have withheld their fire a dozen times, under serious provocation. They have discharged volleys over the heads of crowds, they have jabbed the street gangs with bayonets, they have done everything but shoot people down.

THE END NOT IN SIGHT.

No end of the strike is in sight. The day for compromise has passed and arbitration is no longer thought of.

The linemen refused to repair cut wires today, widening the breach and giving the companies more trouble. No general resumption of the operation of the cars has followed the arrival of the troops, and the companies have made but a poor showing in spite of their boasts of plenty of new men.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE TROOPS.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—Gen. McLeer said to a reporter two days ago that if duty demanded it his men would fire on the mobs. Yesterday's experience showed that his men had followed instructions. The point has now been reached when forbearance ceases to be a virtue. The troops have now been ordered to fire upon any person seen throwing a missile or shooting at them. Sharpshooters have been detailed to pick off people on house tops and in windows who throw or shoot from their sheltered locations at the troops, the police or the cars operated by non-union men.

BUDGET FROM OTTAWA.

THE CARNIVAL OPEN 'MID A BLAZE OF SPLENDOR.

The City Brilliantly Illuminated—Crowds Attend the Opening—That Manitoba Subsidy—News of the Capital City.

From Our Own Correspondent.

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—The carnival, though not favored by ideal weather, opened auspiciously yesterday. At 2 o'clock Sir James Grant, Messrs. E. C. Grant and W. A. Allan were joined at the carnival office by Hon. J. C. Patterson, Sir A. P. Caron and other members of the Government, and the party drove by way of the Mackenzie avenue arch to the ice palace. Awaiting them in the castle, with the portcullis closed, were Mayor Borthwick, many of the Aldermen of the city and members of the executive of the carnival and of the sub-committees. A large number of citizens and visitors were on hand to witness the proceedings. On their arrival the portcullis was raised at the bugle call, a cannon boomed and the party entered and were received by those inside the castle. Sir James Grant, K. C. M. G., M. P., then stepped forward and delivered an inaugural speech. Electric display is a feature of the carnival, and it is something unprecedented. The shops on the main streets are covered with lights and decorations. Overhead, spanning the streets, are numerous arches of colored incandescent lights. The street cars are a blaze of electricity inside and out. A cold rain set in this afternoon, but in spite of it the program was carried out. Tomorrow promises to be all right in the way of weather.

The Dominion Government has decided to pay over to the postoffice clerks and letter carriers at Victoria, B.C., the $50 each which was deducted from their pay on account of the part they took in the recent strike there.

At a Cabinet meeting held this afternoon Mr. Forbes, of St. John, N.B., was appointed Judge of that county.

Attorney-General Sifton and Treasurer McMillan concluded their mission here today and left for Toronto tonight, homeward bound. They have been successful though not completely so. They claimed a present population of 202,000 for Manitoba, consequently an increased Dominion subsidy of $40,000. The Dominion Government concede only a population of about 190,000, which will give an increased annual subsidy of $30,000.

A COWARD'S DEED.

Albert Turner Struck a Vicious Blow by An Unknown Enemy—Nearly a Murder.

GEORGETOWN, Jan. 22.—Albert Turner, a young man lately employed by Belisle & Co., tailors, went to Glen Williams last evening to attend church. After the service, and when accompanying a young lady friend to her home, Turner was struck a terrific blow from behind just at the base of the skull.

In falling the force with which he was hit partly turned him around, when he received another terrific crack in the face. Turner fell to the ground to all appearances a dead man. An alarm was given, and, as the people were still on their way from church, willing hands conveyed Turner to his hotel, where he has laid ever since in an unconscious state.

Drs. Webster and Nixon are doing everything possible to relieve his sufferings. Joe. McMaster is suspected of being the party who committed the assault, and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

FORTY CASES OF ARMS.

For Hawaiian Revolutionists—An ex-Customs Officers' Story.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 22.—The secret of the shipment of arms to Hawaii, which were used by Wilcox and his band of revolutionists, is revealed by an ex Customs officer, who has just come from Victoria. This man says the arms were shipped from Victoria in the latter part of October on the opium smuggler schooner South Bend.

The arms for Hawaii were in 40 cases. These, with considerable ammunition, were hidden for several days under the dark arch of the Esquimalt bridge. There the arms were taken in Indian canoes to Seibel's Cove, near Victoria, where the schooner was lying. Stewart and Forbes accompanied the schooner, which landed the arms, as well as considerable opium, on the west side of the Island of Lunai. The arms were left with the Chinese, and were afterward taken to Honolulu by one of the small steamers that ply between the Islands. The South Bend recently returned to Victoria without Stewart and Forbes. They are both criminals who have served sentences for smuggling.

CHINA NOT CONQUERED.

OBSTACLES TO BE SURMOUNTED BY THE JAPS.

The New Sealing Regulations Between Britain and the United States—Skirmish Between Bandits and Mexicans.

Special to the Times.

BOSTON, MASS., Jan. 22.—Rev. Henry Blodgett, D. D., of Pekin, who has spent thirty years in Pekin and who is now in this country, gave his opinion to the American Board of Foreign Mission regarding the war between China and Japan. He says: "The Japanese have fought well and are very brave. They have gained many victories. Their officers have been able men and skilful generals. Their armies have been loyally supported by their government and people, but they have still a great work before them. In the early part of January they had not taken Yington, which is the heart of Niu Chwang, and is more than 300 miles by land north east from Pekin. During the winter the army corps, marching from its present position towards Pekin, must be cut off from communication with the sea. Coolies from Japan must carry its munitions of war and supplies for its commissariat. The weather is cold, the mercury falling as low as to zero (Fahrenheit), or even lower than this. Fierce winds sweep down from the north, and the ground occasionally is covered by a fall of snow. It would not be strange if the Chinese soldiers, who are accustomed to this climate, should recover a little courage and having been furnished with better arms and received military drill from European officers, should offer serious resistance to the progress of the Japanese."

SEALING REGULATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The following regulations have been agreed upon between Great Britain and the United States for the governing of vessels in the fur sealing in the Behring Sea during the season of 1895:

1. Every vessel shall require a special license for fur seal fishing.

2. Before issuance of license, captain of vessel must show that his crew are competent to use the weapons by which the fishing may be carried on.

3. Every vessel holding such a license shall fly a special flag under her national ensign.

4. In order to protect from unnecessary interference sealing vessels during the close season, but which have not violated the sealing vessel law, on the way to her home port, or any other port, or to or from the sealing grounds, or from any other legitimate purpose, may, on the application of the master, have her sealing outfit secured under seal, and an entry thereof made on her clearance and log book, and such sealing up and entry shall be a protection to the vessel against interference or detention during the close season by any cruiser, so long as the seals so affixed shall remain unbroken, unless there shall be evidence of violation of the fishery articles of the award.

Article 5 explains what officials shall carry out the provisions of article 4.

6. The use of nets, fire arms, and explosives is forbidden within the limits of Behring Sea. Any vessel having such apparatus on board may have them sealed before entering Behring Sea.

FOUGHT THE BANDITS.

VICTORIA, MEX., Jan. 22.—A courier has arrived here bringing information of a desperate battle between a detachment of soldiers and a band of brigands on Saturday. The brigands were led by the notorious outlaw Marcos De Luna. The band has been committing many depredations and a force of troops was sent to capture them. The bandits were surrounded at a ranch and opened fire upon the troops when they rode up. The soldiers returned the fire and the battle was continued for several hours. Nicolas Vela, one of the bandits, was killed. The others escaped when night came on. Two soldiers were wounded.

Bob Takes It Quite Coolly.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Jan. 22.—Bob Fitzsimmons, who is playing here, has cancelled all of his dates for next week and will go back to Syracuse, N.Y., to answer the indictment for manslaughter.

Churchill's Condition.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—At midnight Lord Randolph Churchill had another attack of heart failure. He is now semi-comatose.

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

A MAN HAS BOTH FEET CRUSHED AT THE UNION DEPOT.

Sentenced to Five Years in Kingston—Chief Ardagh Improving—The Downfall of a Young Man—Notes From the City of Churches.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Archibald Levitt, of Caledonia Springs, Ont., had both feet crushed at the Union Station this morning when attempting to cross a train which stood between him and the south platform.

As he stepped on to a drawhead a shunting engine backed on to the train and drove in the drawhead crushing his feet.

Dr. Riordan attended to his injuries and sent him to the General Hospital.

Levitt was on his way to the Experimental farm at Guelph.

BLAKE GETS FIVE YEARS.

The jury in the case of William Blake found him guilty. When he stood up for sentence he said that 26 years ago he joined Her Majesty's army in England and served 13 years. He was once a member of the A. O. H., and attributed his present condition to drink. He is 60 years of age, and his sickly wife was in court. "If you take me from her, you throw her on the town to starve or die. Be as lenient as possible for her sake, if not for my own. I curse the day I came to Toronto."

Before passing sentence, his Lordship said no man need curse the city where he lives, if he curses anyone he should curse himself for his want of success. He remarked that cases of picking pockets had increased from 23 in 1893 to 120 in 1894, and he is determined to put a stop to it. He then sentenced Blake to five years in the penitentiary. "There is no use," said he, "in sending them to jail two or three months; that has no effect upon them."

CHIEF ARDAGH IMPROVING.

Chief Ardagh's condition is much improved this morning, although still in a critical condition.

Dr. Sheard expects to be able to confine the seat of the trouble affecting the chief's lung to the lobe. It will be some time before he will be about again.

POLICE COURT NOTES.

George Streeter was convicted in the Police Court of misappropriating monies belonging to the Street Railway Union Benevolent Society.

The books were produced in court and the examination showed that the shortage did not exceed $5.

Streeter was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Walter Nooks is apparently a man with an iron fist.

According to his wife, who has an order of protection against him, he went into her house and broke the lid of the stove with his clenched hand. He was also charged with assaulting his wife.

The case was dismissed.

Car Collision.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—A rear end collision occurred early this evening on Brooklyn Bridge, 200 yards west of the block signal on the Brooklyn side. Two cars were badly damaged and three people injured. The accident caused the most stupendous blockade that has ever occurred on the bridge. For more than an hour and a half the traffic on both sides were at a standstill.

The Debs Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Eugene V. Debs and other members of the American Railroad Union, now in gaol at Woodstock, Ill., under judgment of the Circuit Court of the United States for the western district of Illinois, for contempt of court, will be admitted to bail in the sum of $2,000 each, conditioned on abiding the further order of the Supreme Court, pending the decision of the court upon the application for their release on a writ of habeas corpus. The rule against the Circuit Court, to show why the writ of habeas corpus should not issue, will be argued on Monday, March 25.

BRIEF FOREIGN CABLES.

MORE PARTICULARS OF POSTMASTER COBB'S ARREST.

France's New President Takes Possession of the Government Residence—No New From Yun Ching the Wires Being Cut.

Special Cable to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Daily News correspondent in Constantinople gives the circumstances of Postmaster Cobb's arrest by the Turkish officials. The Turkish police arrested one of his letter carriers named Ozgab, an Armenian, whom they accused of trying to pass a bad halfpenny. They handcuffed him, beat him and started him for goal. When Mr. Cobb protested he too was taken in charge and was locked up with his employee. The Morning Post confirms this version of the incident, admitting that Mr. Cobb has laid the matter before the British Embassy. The Standard's correspondent in Constantinople says that Sir Philip Currie, the British Ambassador, has demanded a full apology for Mr. Cobb's arrest.

HAMBURG, Jan. 22.—The Boersenhalle says that Charles Zander, the Nobel Company's confidential clerk who was arrested some time ago, embezzled 750,000 marks. The news caused the company's shares to fall seven per cent. on the Berlin Boerse, but this decline was made good when it was announced that the directors would cover the deficit from the reserve fund. The Nobel Company deals in dynamite.

FAURE TAKES POSSESSION.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—M. Casimir-Perier and his family this forenoon vacated the Palace of the Elysee, the official residence of the President of the Republic, and M. Faure and his family took possession.

M. Bourgeois, to whom President Faure has entrusted the formation of a new Ministry, had not succeeded in his task in the afternoon. The income tax question it is understood is the cause of the delay in completing the Cabinet.

M. Bourgeois called at the Palace of the Elysee at 6.30 p. m. today and informed President Faure that he had been unable to form a Cabinet.

Julian Florian Felix Desprez, Cardinal Archbishop of Toulon, died suddenly in that city today from heart disease. He was born April 14, 1807, and created Cardinal May 12, 1879.

NO NEWS FROM YUN CHING.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Times correspondent in Tien Tsin says:—The telegraph lines were cut on Saturday eastward from Wei Hai Wei, hence there is no news of the movement of the Japanese who landed at Yun Ching. General Weis' punishment has had a salutory effect on the Chinese. The troops are now punctually paid and well fed when possible.

A Handsome Lady's Opinion

My head of hair, as you may observe, is perfect. Yours, if not, may become so by using Tully's Chemical Hair Grower. It will do just what is represented—it makes the hair grow when coming out; it cleanes the scalp of dandruff; restores the color when turning grey; prevents baldness, and is an elegant dressing, and the price is reasonable, 50c. a bottle. I am sure that there is no better preparation. Sold only at

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 22 1895.

Good morning!

The French ought to be brave. None but the brave deserve the Faure.

Toronto's civic investigation cost $7,000. It was cheap at that sum. The Toronto people got more than $7,000 worth of fun out of it.

The poor Pullman company, which was kept running "at a loss" has been able to pay another dividend at the rate of eight per cent.

M. Felix Faure is the new President of France. We suppose they did on electing him was to sing Faure He's a Joly Good Fellow.

Three United States iron operators are in Belleville looking over the ground with a view to establishing smelting works and steel plants. This is a pointer for the Board of Trade.

Our evening contemporary, the Examiner, says: "Chief McKinnon, of Hamilton, denies being guilty of immorality." The Hamilton Spectator in reply says that Mr. McKinnon has not been seeking to immortalize himself.

A home of Rest for horses has been started in England. Its object is to take care of the horses suffering from lameness, sores, or overwork until they are fit to work again, the owner being supplied with a sound horse in the interval.

It would'nt be a bad idea for the new council to pass a by-law putting a stop to taking ice from the Little Lake. We have heard so much about bacteria since the advent of the outfall sewer matter, that we may be considered an authority on the subject. It is not pleasant, apart from a more serious aspect of the case, to be obliged to take our cocktails during the summer with ice formed on the top of the sewer.

A Chicago judge ordered a jury to find for the defendant without leaving their seats. The jury refused. After a time 11 jurors consented to obey the judge's order under protest. The twelfth man declared he could not and would not find such a verdict. Whereupon the judge sent him to jail for contempt of court. If that is the American way the sooner the jury is abolished in that country, and the decision of cases left entirely in the hands of judges elected by the mob, the better for honest jurors.

M. Bient, a young French naturalist, has presented to the Sorbonne a theses on the "sub-intestinal nervous system of insects." In applying for his doctor's degree he discovered that insects have brains spread over the whole of their bodies, and argues that they act by intelligence rather than instinct.

Farmers in the Eastern States are making a new departure in planting walnut trees. It will take a number of years for the trees to grow and produce crops, but they will prove profitable when they mature. Walnuts are worth more per bushel than wheat at the present time, and walnut logs are at a premium, being very scarce and in great demand. A party of men scoured South Jersey last summer, buying all the walnut trees they could to ship to Germany.

DISEASES CARRIED IN BOOKS.

The prevalence of an epidemic of diphtheria in and about Boston has led to a discussion as to the way in which the germs of the disease are carried in school and library books.

There can be no doubt that books are one of the best mediums for the transmission of disease germs. This is especially true of the germs of scarlet fever. A correspondent of the Boston Herald advises that measures be taken in that city to sterilize all school and library books which have been in infected houses by means of heat. It is said that diphtheria germs are killed by heat at a temperature of 122 degrees Fahrenheit. This correspondent says that he conducted experiments by putting books in an oven, and discovered that he could heat them through and through to a temperature of 158 degrees in three hours without injury to the paper or binding. He advocates, therefore, that rooms be provided in the school-houses where the books can be laid upon iron shelves and heated to the proper temperature.

The best physicians say that nothing but boiling the germs of scarlet fever, or subjecting them to great heat, will kill them, and it might be well for those who have books of which they are suspicious to treat them in the way suggested before they let persons who are likely to take the disease read them.

GLADSTONE AND THE GOVERNMENT.

The news from Cannes will boom the Gladstone end of the Liberal policy, and make it more difficult for the old Gladstone party in the Commons to desert the Government. Lord Rosebery's plan of preparing a platform on which to go to the country by hewing out the planks one by one in the Commons carpenter shop, beginning with Welsh disestablishment and closing with a sweeping condemnation of the Lords, is one that the different sections of his party can hardly find reasons to disagree with; unless they dispute about precedence. They can hardly ask that the Government appeal to the country without a definite policy, and they will not readily find a better means of advertising that policy than by putting its various features into concrete legislative form and sending them up to the Lords when the Conservatives must pronounce upon them

Mr. Gladstone's appearance on the front benches, unencumbered by the responsibilities of the Premiership, will certainly excite a good deal of puplic itnerest. Among other things, it will be a guarantee that the Irish question will not be dropped; and will consequently, tend to prevent any falling away for the present in the McCarthyite support of the Government. It may also press the matter of the Armenian outrages to the fore and force a frank discussion of this diplomotically delicate question. The Opposition are apparently willing to let the Government select largely the ground for the coming contest. Apart from Mr. Chamberlain's semi-Socialistic schemes, they seem to have no positive programme to propose. They merely oppose. They are content that the country should pronounce upon the Liberal policy; ready, if the electors pronounce against it, to step in and take charge of affairs to be conducted on the lines. Truly Conservative are they at the present time—with the exception of the Chamberlain wedge—and worthy of the name that is so often misapplied.

If the Rosebery programme should collapse in the commons, then the Government would be compelled to go to the country most heavily handicapped. Collapse could only come because of disagreement between themselves, and the English Liberals would then face the electors in much the same condition that the American Democrats did last autumn. Party success would mean the triumph of no clear and definite policy; and the people do not like a party that does not know its own mind. "A practical programme," Lord Rosebery asks for; and the various sections of his following will find their only chance for immediate success in agreeing, by compromise or otherwise, upon such a programme.

A LABOUR WAR.

Brooklyn is rapidly becoming another Chicago. Federal troops and mounted police are trying in vain to keep the striking street railway employes and their sympathisers and friends under control, and many scenes of violence are reported. Of course it is only a matter of time before the lawlessness will cease and order be restored, the resources of the authorities being practically unlimited while those of the mob diminish daily. There are now 7,000 troops on duty in Brooklyn and martial law has been declared, and it may be that the streets of Brooklyn will run red with human blood before the trouble is all over. Will the day ever come when capital and labor will work together as smoothly and hormoniously as a couple of cog wheels, or will it be a case of strikes and disorder and bloodshed to the bitter end?

WAS A FIGHT FOR LIFE.

AWFUL SCENE AT THE WRECK OF THE STATE OF MISSOURI.

Women and Children Were Trampled Upon by the Male Passengers—The River Was a Raging Torrent—Big Steamer Wrecked.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 21.—Meagre particulars of a terrible steamboat disaster reached this city this afternoon. The officers of the City of Owensboro, of the Louisville and Evansville main line, arriving at 3 p.m., reported the sinking of the State of Missouri a short distance below Wolf Creek, Ky., Saturday at about 5.30 p.m.

The Missouri left Louisville at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. After striking, the boat drifted off the rocks and sank in five minutes in 50 feet of water. The people on board were panic stricken when they heard the crash. They had no time to prepare for their safety, and officers, passengers and crew seized anything in sight that would keep them above water. Capt. Joe Conlon, First Clerk Werman and Second Clerk Howard, with five lady passengers and Pilot Pell and son managed to reach here uninjured.

PICKED UP BY PASSING CRAFT.

The second mate and engineer were picked up by the steamer Tell City and the City of Owensboro picked up four men and left them at Owensbero. The others, 35 to 40 in number, including male passengers and members of the crew, it is thought, went down with the vessel.

This was the first trip of the season for the Missouri. The wrecked boat belonged to the White Collar line (Cincinnati and Memphis Packet Company). She was about four years old, and was built when the T. A. L. Mason and State of Kansas, stern-wheel boats, were constructed for the St. Louis and Kansas City line. The three boats cost $9,000. The Mason sank two years ago.

THIRTY-SEVEN WERE DROWNED.

OWENSBORO, Ky., Jan. 21.—Details of the destruction of the big passenger steamer State of Missouri on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at Alton, Ind., 100 miles above here, have been received. She struck a rock and sank in 50 feet of water. The reports say that at least 37 passengers were drowned, but no names are given. The State of Missouri is a long sternwheeler, plying between Cincinnati and New Orleans. She had on board a fairly large cargo of freight and nearly 100 persons, including a crew of 60. At Alton the river narrows, and the water being high an extremely swift current results. This threw the stern of boat in towards the Indiana shore. Before the pilot could regain control of the boat she hit a rock, tearing a long hole in the hold at the water line.

A FIGHT FOR LIFE.

The shock was terrific, and the boat trembled from bow to stern. Consternation seized upon the passengers, and in a moment they were frantic. Without regard to consequences they rushed to the upper decks in hope of delaying the inevitable, as the boat was rapidly sinking. Women and children were trampled upon, but it is believed all got out of the cabin. Then the scramble for seats in the yawls began. It was a fight for life, in which many combatants are believed to have gone to their death. The first yawl launched was sunk within twenty feet of where it struck the water. It is believed every one in it was drowned. A second yawl was then pushed off. It contained four women. This is believed to have reached shore. Just when there seemed some hope that by means of this yawl the passengers could be saved the steamer gave another quick lurch and literally broke into pieces, and in ten minutes from the moment the rock was struck nothing but the hull remained.

DASHED INTO ICE COLD WATER.

The cabin and pilot house floated away dragging over ten people on it. The freight was washed from the main deck, and to this many women and children clung as best they could, many, however, to fall back into the ice cold water. Several succeeded by this means in getting into the willows and trees and were rescued by farmers and passing steamers. On the City of Owensboro, which passed here tonight, were four passengers who were rescued from the trees. Two of them were W. C. Leathers, of Hopkins county, Ky., and Mr. Gregory, of Cave-in-the-Rock, Ill. The names of the other two could not be learned. Mr. Leathers thinks at least 35 people were downed He saw four go under within five feet of him, but the current was so swift he could render no assistance. Mr. Leathers says there were 15 cabin passengers, 30 deck passengers and a crew of 60 on board.

SURVIVORS LANDED.

The steamer Tell City, bound for Louisville, hove in sight early this morning and took most of the survivors to Louisville. The terrific current running at the time can be partly appreciated by the fact that the wreckage began passing here early today, which would indicate at least 10 miles per hour. The normal is about four miles. Alton, Ind., where the wreck occurred, is thirty miles from a telegrah station. The news secured came by steamers passing here today.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 20.—The steamer Tell City, of the L. & E. Mail line, arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight and brought 27 members of the deck crew of the ill-fated State of Missouri. None of them can give an estimate of the number of lives lost. Sam Cook, colored, says he counted 12 persons, including four ladies, who were carried away in the wreck. He thinks all the boat's officers were saved.

H. M. S. Blenheim.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—The cruiser Blenheim arrived at Portsmouth this morning. She experienced a stormy voyage.

DETESTABLE BEINGS.

THEATRICAL "KNOCKERS," GENERALLY KNOWN AS "BACKCAPPERS."

How Some Men and Women In the Profession Buzz the Manager's Ear—An Illustration In Which Barry Sullivan Was the Central Figure.

Somebody once remarked that there are three kinds of people—men, women and actors. Certainly the dramatic profession, as a class, is totally distinct from all other classes. There are more peculiarities and superstitions connected with it and more distinct types of character in its forces than one would suppose possible in a line of effort that should be followed only by the intellectually inclined. Good men and bad men can be found in the ranks of every calling, but there is one type of character that originated in the dramatic profession, and that is the "knocker." Until recently the "knocker" was known only to the theatrical profession and confined his labors entirely to the people of the theater.

The "knocker" is one who states untruths, that is apparent, but let me make it a little bit clearer. The "knocker" is one who by some peculiar art or device watches to get you into bad repute. The "knocker" always is despised and shunned by those who thoroughly know him; but, like all persons who deal in nebulous matters, "knockers" are difficult to convict. Almost every theatrical company has at least one "knocker" in its ranks, while the manager of a successful theater has a whole army of them to contend with.

The "knocker" is a "backcapper"—in plain English, one who does as much injury as he can to men who, his poor instincts tell him, are his superiors. If a person is discharged from a company, it is hinted that the "knocker" has been at work, and all sorts of explanations are made in the attempt to keep secret the causes which led to the discharge. Criminations and recriminations are indulged in, wherein Mr. Smith is accused of having "queered" Miss Jones, and Actor Smith and Actress Jones are given a temporary importance which is quickly forgotten.

"Who cares for Smith?"

"Miss Jones."'

"Who under the sun is Miss Jones? The manager could get 20 persons in three hours' notice, but"—

And there's the "but."

The "knocker" has so got the manager's ear that the manager discharges either Smith or Jones without the slightest cause and wholly because of the "knocker's" diplomacy. Diplomacy, by the way, is a mild word to use in this connection.

There are all sorts and conditions of "knockers." First is the man who gets the ear of the manager and is constantly telling that a certain person in the company is "good!" "very good!" "excellent!" He is thoroughly in earnest, to all appearances, and keeps up his praise so long and so persistently that the manager gets disgusted—probably suspicious—and the actor is discharged. Some "knockers" work in a diametrically opposite way. They say out and out that such an actor or actress is bad. But this is only when a relationship of familiarity has been established between the "knocker" and the manager. Next comes the insinuating "knocker." He usually wears a placid smile whenever the name of the person whom he wishes to "knock" is mentioned. He will shrug his shoulders and murmur: "Yes, he is good—that is, I think so. Ahem!" This often sets the manager thinking, and it only remains for the "knocker" to draw his attention to the "good man" on one of his off nights to finish the work.

Then "Johnny" goes marching home.

Another interesting specimen of the "knocker" tribe is the man who works on superstitions. The large majority of stage people are superstitious, and the "insinuating knocker" has simply to drop a hint that Mr. So-and-so is a "Jonah," quoting a few instances of his hard luck, and another head goes under the managerial guillotine, for no manager wants a "Jonah" in the company. Above all, if bad business is being done, the slightest word will have the desired effect.

Barry Sullivan, the celebrated English tragedian, discharged the best leading man he ever had through the influence of a "knocker."

Sullivan opened at the Alexandria theater in Liverpool with an elaborate revival of "Richard III." The tragedian prided himself on his performance of Gloster and made extensive preparations to dress the part correctly. A new suit of armor was one of the many new things he purchased for the production. After the performance was over Sullivan, who was delighted with his success, was sitting in his dressing room, still dressed in his armor, when Mr. "Knocker," unusually apropos of his name, knocked for admittance.

"Mr. Sullivan," said the wily one, "I hope you will pardon me for disturbing you, but I wished to say how pleased I was that everything turned out all right."

Sullivan looked up.

"I don't understand," he said.

The "knocker" smiled as he spoke again.

"Oh, no one would know it, sir. It fits beautifully, just as if it had been made for you."

Sullivan was perplexed. He looked again at the speaker and asked him in language more forcible than polite what he meant.

"Why, the armor," said the "knocker."

"Well, what about it?" demanded Mr. Sullivan.

"Well, sir, I don't believe he meant any harm, but Mr. —— confided to me—though he made me promise not to speak of it—that he loaned it to you for the night."

The air was blue for a few moments, and it was said that the sulphur in the room tarnished the armor worn by the tragedian to such an extent that he never wore it again.

He rushed blindly out of the room upon the stage and roared out for his leading man.

The leading man had gone to his hotel.

"Gone to his hotel, eh?" cried the infuriated actor. "Come here!" he cried to the property boy, who was standing near by.

The property boy approached.

"Take that man's trunk," shrieked Sullivan, "and put it in the street. Then go around and tell him from me never to show his face to me again!"

With that he stalked majestically to his dressing room, and taking off his armor flung it into a corner.

The property boy delivered the message to the astonished leading man, who, innocent as he was of any offense, could not understand why such an insult should be offered him and was too proud to ask for an explanation. He took the first train for London, and it was not until after the great tragedian's death that he heard the truth of the story.—New York Herald.

THE FAIR INVALID

sured by the statement of the brother that the invalid would no doubt be able to receive visitors in a day or two. The suggestion made by one of the committee that they send to Silver City for a doctor was declined with profuse thanks from the Tucsonian, who declared that his sister's illness was nothing really serious; that all she needed was rest.

"Waal, good night, Mister White," said Professor Warman, taking the stranger's hand and holding it a moment. "Now, ef they's anything at all—anything, ye onderstan—jest about, an you-all sho' gits it ef it's in the camp." And he turned away, followed by the rest of the committee, after all had solemnly shaken hands with Mr. White and assured him of their willingness to divide the half of their kingdom with him.

White watched them out of sight and hearing. Then he slipped quietly to a corner of the cabin and listened intently for a moment. Then he slipped over to the next corner and listened again, and so, until he had completed the circuit of the cabin. There was not a sound. For a sick person, or any one who needed rest and quiet, Johnny McAfee's cabin was just the place. And White had in his pocket the $20 goldpiece the professor had quietly handed to him.

Meantime there was a well attended and enthusiastic meeting in progress up at the camp, with Faro Fair presiding.

"I 'lows, gents," he said as he gracefully took the chair, "that we all sabes the object o' this yere meetin. Ef any gent yere ain't onto the play, I perceeds to 'xplain in a few brief r'marks. Th' sitooation is just this: Yere's a lady an gent fr'm Tucson has struck this yere camp in a dead sho', hard up p'sish. They've be'n playin in derned hard lines, an the'r' broke, they are. An th' lady's sick, she is. Now, th' question b'fore th' house is, Does we do th' square thing an fix 'em out quite a lot, 'r does we not? C'n any gent in this yere camp or th' hull camp, afford t' have it give out t' him 'r them th't we-all don't do th' right thing good 'n' plenty t' the' stranger w'thin our gates? None whatever. Gents, I heads a s'bscription with twenty."

"Twenty-five!" shouted a voice in the rear of the room, and another got as far as "Thir"— when the chair arose and hit the table with his fist.

"Hol' on, gents!" he remarked. "I calls you all down, right yere. Th' rulings o' this yere chair goes, quite reg'lar, I reckons, an th' chair rules th't no gent sh'll raise his bid. Howsomever, jes' t' do th' right thing I raise my bid t' fifty 'd.' "

There was some grumbling about such arbitrary ruling, but the bidding was very spirited, and in a few minutes the shotbag of Michael Hennessy, who had been appointed custodian of the subscription fund, was heavily loaded with coin and nuggets. Then, having selected Messrs. Hennessy and Fair and the professor to act as committee of presentation next day, the meeting adjourned, not, however, without passing resolutions of condolence, the same to be written in the professor's very best chirography and presented along with the "wad" held by Mr. Hennessy.

And that night several score of susceptible male persons retired to dream of a female face they had never seen.

"You all gives me a large pain, you!" sniffed Denver Moll as her friend Mr. Dunn finished telling her that night about the meeting at Fair's. "You sho' makes me ache all over. Men're all idjits, an I makes no 'xceptions, none whatever. This yere woman comes intuh this camp a teetotal stranger, an you all rushes in an breaks y'r necks t' stake 'er an help 'er out, an ye hain't never even saw 'er yet, an mebbe won't. An it's jes' b'cause ye think she hain't our style. Monkey!" whereupon Moll hit the table a vicious kick that made the glasses jump, and Mr. Dunn beat a retreat, remarking as he did so:

"Thank Gawd, they hain't all like you be," which did not soothe Miss D. Moll's feelings in the least.

"I gives it out cold right yere," said Mr. Faro Fair positively as he and his colleagues of the presentation committee walked toward Johnny McAfee's cabin next morning, "th't I don't make no talk—none whatever. You got t' do it, perfesser."

"Not any," replied the gentleman addressed, with some warmth. "Think I'm goin t' do all th' work? You fellers are givin it out too strong t' me, because I'm so dam' good natured. I talks quite copious an makes no speeches."

"But I don't," chipped in the treasurer. Then, as a sudden inspiration struck him: "Say, what's th' use o' doin any chin work anyways? Le's jes' go an sneak th' stuff in an make our escape."

"That's all right, Mike, but it don't go. Don't we git t' see an converse wi' this yere lily o' th' valley, this ill an charmin stranger? We does, ef she says so," insisted Mr. Fair. "My gallant an chivalr'us blood r'bels agin any other sort o'

WITH THE PUEBLOS.

A PEOPLE WHOSE CIVILIZATION BEGAN LONG AGO.

An Interesting Tribe of Indians Who Have Withstood All Sorts of Opposition and Temptation and Have Gone on Steadily Progressing.

Of fascinating interest is a study of the ethnological evolution of the Pueblo Indians, who occupy the picturesque region between the upper Rio Grande and the Rio Colorado. When Vasquez de Coronado and Cabeza de Vaca marched into New Mexico in 1540, they found these people already in semiculture, living in villages of solid edifices, three stories high and fortlike in construction. That they were able to hold their own during almost four centuries is the more surprising, since they had constantly as neighbors nomadic tribes of warriors and robbers, against whose attacks they were obliged to defend themselves with their primitive weapons.

For two years they were able to withstand the Spanish invaders in their "casas grandes." It had been reported to the Spanish commanders that several hundred miles to the north lay a great empire named Cibola, which had seven large cities. In these there were long streets on which only gold and silver smiths resided. Imposing palaces towered in the suburbs, with doors and columns of pure turquoise. The windows were made of precious stones, brilliantly polished. At the sumptuous feasts of the prince of the land enchanting slaves served the most delicate dainties on golden dishes. There were mountains of opal rising above valleys reveling in jewels, with crystal streams whose bottom consisted of pure silver sand.

The disappointment of the Spaniards was great. A number of large Indian villages were found whose inhabitants subsisted upon the fruits of a primitive agriculture. The frugality and thrift of the Pueblos excited the interest of the voluptuous Spaniards. The peculiar architecture of the villages and houses also drew their admiration. Taken as a whole, the circles of houses resembled the cells of a wasps' nest, of which the upper stories were reached on a crude ladder. Entrance could be gained only through a small opening in the roof, not even the sides facing the streets containing doors.

Situated, as the Moqui villages and Acoma were, on top of an inaccessible rock, the Spaniards despaired of conquering them. The supposed Cibola not panning out according to expectation, they did not seek re-enforcement and left the Pueblos in peace. Only toward the end of the sixteenth century the Pueblos had to submit to Spanish rule, under which they remained until 1848, when the territory embracing New Mexico and Arizona was ceded to the United States.

In some respects the Spanish supremacy proved beneficial to the Indians. They virtually maintained their independence. Many innovations in their life and customs can be traced from this period. The only domestic creatures in their villages were large turkeys, whose feathers served as head ornaments for the warriors, but horses, cows, sheep, goats, dogs, and, last, but not least, the indispensable burros, were added to their domestic stock.

The most important change in their communistic mode of living dates from the annexation of New Mexico to the United States and the introduction of railroads. Their unfriendly neighbors, the Apaches, Comanches, Kiowas and Navajoes, were restricted to their own reservations.

Feeling safe under the powerful protection of the government, these peaceable people have begun to relinquish their old mode of communistic existence in the strange dwellings. Until recently there was a promiscuous living together of large families in the numerous apartments of a single house, to which access could only be obtained through the small aperture in the roof. More modern cottages are being built for large families, farming is carried on on a large scale, and in some parts grape and fruit culture is attempted, with good results.

All the villages are characterized by a certain industrial monopoly. In one of them, for instance, the pottery for all the Pueblos is manufactured. In others, like the Moqui villages, all the people are employed in the making of finely woven goats' hair blankets, in which occupation many are great experts. Although a large number are engaged in the sale of blankets and Indian goods in the southwestern part of the Union, in the gold diggings of California, in Mormon settlements, in the small railroad stations of Arizona, the average Pueblo Indian prefers a settled life. He is domestic in his habits and loves his family, his cattle, his farm and his neighbors as dearly as does his palefaced brother. And has he not good cause to rejoice and be contented with his lot? Has he not a faithful and charming wife? There are some pretty girls of perfect contour among the Pueblo Indians, especially in the Tigua villages. Are not his gleeful children, who are enjoying a jolly romp on yonder sand hill, obedient and reverential in his presence? The impudent spirit of young America has not yet exerted its baleful influence here.

How scrupulously clean are the households! The good housewives of the Netherlands do not excel the Pueblo squaws in cleanliness. Floors carefully swept, all along the walls of the spacious rooms seats and couches covered with fine variegated rugs, the walls tastefully decorated with pictures and mirrors and large cupboards filled with luxurious fruits, meats, pastry and jellies. Thousands of white breadwinners in the large cities would envy these Indians if they could behold their affluence and contented state. Nor do they obtain all this without fatiguing toil. The land is barren and dry, which compels them to induce irrigation through long canals from faraway streams.

The Pueblo pottery of today differs but little from that of the sixteenth century. In the pottery villages the work is done mostly by men, who sit on the broad, shaded platform and shape their immense vessels in imitation of human beings and every imaginable animal shape. The grotesquely shaped mouth is generally intended for the opening through which the water, soup or milk is poured. The squaws are assuming more and more the occupations of the modern housewife, though they still grind their corn in the stone troughs used hundreds of years ago, and they still bake their bread in thin layers on hot, glowing stones.

Dressmakers and tailors still go a-begging among the Pueblos, and no attention whatever is paid to Parisian dictators of fashion. The good Pueblo squaw cuts, fits and sews all the clothing for the family, which used to be composed mostly of leather. Her husband's wardrobe consists now of a few multicolored shirts, a pair or two of leather pantaloons, with silver buttons; moccasins and a shoulder blanket.—Chicago Tribune.

The Slavins Were Badly Done Up in Montreal.

Jack and Bill Slavin, the Australian prize fighters who recently gave an "exhibition" in Peterborough, have turned up in Montreal, where they were done up Monday night by "pugs" whose reputations are not better than the fourth rate. The first "go" was between LeBlanche, of Montreal, and Jack Slavin, who is supposed to be the better of the two brothers now in this country. Slavin was to stop the Montrealer in six rounds but he could not do it.

Then came a ten-rounds' bout between Martin Costello and ugly Bill, in which the latter received a right proper thumping and the "go" was decided against him. At the end of the last round Slavin was nearly out.

WILLIAMS KNOCKED OUT.

In London last night Tom Williams of Australia and Dick Burge of England, both welterweights, met under Marquis of Queensberry rules for a purse of $4,000 before the National Sporting Club. In the fourth round Williams was knocked out by a swinging blow on the jaw.

CARKEEK WON THE MATCH.

When Billy Carkeek defeated Jack Higbee in a pyramid pool match at the Kensington hotel rooms, Higbee and his backers were very much astonished and looked upon the result as a fluke. They at once challenged the winner to play again last night for $100 a side, and the offer was accepted.

Considerable money went up on the match, and the Higbee crowd felt confident of landing it, but Carkeek again surprised them by winning 11 games out of 13. Now that Carkeek has demonstrated that he is a more skilful player than Higbee, a match against Champion Stubbs is in order and will probably be arranged.

WHITEWAY'S LUCK.

Governor O'Brien Ordered to Help the Government out of its Difficulties.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 22.—Another despatch was received from the British government today which instructed Governor O'Brien to give his assistance to the bill for the removal of disabilities against ex-Premier Whiteway and his colleagues, and the government will likely sign the bill tomorrow.

Italian Politics.

ROME, Jan. 22.—The parliamentary session, which was adjourned immediately after the publication of the Geoletti documents, was today declared closed by decree. The dissolution and appeal to the electors will take place probably in March.

Reform in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The saloons were closed in this city today in spite of the alleged understanding between Mayor Strong and the saloonkeepers that the latter should keep open from 2 to 11 p.m. as an experiment.

French Crisis.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—President Faure probably will ask M. Bourgeois tomorrow to try again to form a Cabinet, admitting M. Poincaire and Cavaignac, whose disagreement on the income tax seems hopeless.

Gold for Newfoundland.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The Bank of Montreal, which has undertaken to re-establish international exchange in Newfoundland and to bring order out of monetary chaos there, shipped $100,000 in gold to St. John's today. The gold was withdrawn from the sub-treasury in this city in exchange for legal tenders.

A TONE OF CONTEMPT

For American Diplomacy Have the German Diplomats.

BERLIN, Jan. 22.—Bismarck's favorite son will not be ambassador to America.

Men who know the inside of the diplomatic service laugh at the rumor that Count Herbert will go to Washington.

Mingled with their laughter is a tone of contempt for American diplomacy.

Promotions in the diplomatic service must go forward and after Count Bismarck's official position at London and in the German Foreign Office the American Embassy would be a big fall.

As to Saurma-Jeltsch's lack of popularity, Count Bismarck would hardly be an improvement, as he is notoriously brusque and distant.

CLARA FORD.

Her Trial Postponed Until the Spring Assizes.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Clara Ford will not be tried until the Spring Assizes for the murder of Frank Westwood. This was the dictum of Judge MacMahon, before whom E. F. B. Johnston, Q. C., who is associated with W. G. Murdoch, made application this afternoon. The feature of his application was another affidavit by Clara to the effect that a dozen witnesses saw her at the theatre on the fatal night at the time when she is supposed to have been in Parkdale.

A SENSATION

At a Requiem Mass for the Late Premier's Soul.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—A solemn requiem mass was sung at Notre Dame church this morning for the repose of the soul of the late Sir John Thompson. The church was heavily draped, brilliantly illuminated and filled by a large congregation, nearly half of whom were Protestants. Archbishop Fabre officiated. Lord and Lady Aberdeen occupied seats near the sanctuary.

A disagreeable contretemps occurred. The Consuls-General of Spain and France and the acting consul of the German Empire not having been assigned the place which they deemed consistent with their official rank declined to attend. Their action has created a sensation.

WHAT HE IS LIKE.

M. Faure, France's New President, is a Protestant.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Harold Frederic, in his cable letter to the Times this week has the following:

The new President of the French Republic, M. Felix Faure, is Havre's foremost citizen and has the commercial north firmly at his back. He is a Protestant, the first ever to rule France, for Henri IV retracted before he mounted the throne. He is a stout free trader, a man of great energy and grit, and what is rather unique in France, he speaks several languages. He has travelled much and understands very well what the rest of the world is like. He is fond of shooting and has an almost jovial manner out of business hours. Strong common sense is his point rather than scholarship and fine airs. What headway such a man can make against the elements of disorder and confusion massed both in and out of the chamber of deputies remains to be seen.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 22. 1895.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

Will Buy a Typewriter.

The property committee held its first meeting last night, with Councillor Dawson in the chair. The committee recommended the purchase of a typewriter for the clerk's office. It was also decided to make some needed improvements in the collector's office. Some recommendations were made for the consideration of the council.

The Curler's Excursion.

The Peterborough Curling Club and their many friends, to the number of several hundred will excurt to Toronto this morning. Twelve rinks will measure their skill with the Toronto Granites, the return match to be played in Peterborough. A splendid time is in store for those who are taking advantage of the exceptionally low rates to visit the Queen City.

Police Extras.

By the auditor's report just issued from THE TIMES job room for the County of Peterborough, the following sums were paid the police officers of the town for outside work: Geo. I. Rossel, $85.05; Joseph Stewart, $[illegible]; Robert Adams, $42.75; Charles McGinty, $21.60. As will be seen by the foregoing the head of the force takes the lions share as usual, while really the best man on the force received the least.

Smallpox in Sandwich.

A second case of smallpox was reported from Sandwich to the Provincial Board of Health Monday. This makes the second case there in one family. The first patient was a child 4 years old, who brought the disease from Detroit on January 2. On January 16, Mrs. Morrison, the mother of the child, was attacked with the disease in a mild from. The child is doing well, and as every precaution has been taken no further cases are expected.

A Recommendation.

Messrs. Duncan & Gray, painters, etc., have just returned to town after completing a contract for Mr. R. Hicks, who has erected a magnificent residence in the vicinity of Alnwick, Northumberland county. Messrs. Mills & Prest, of Hastings, were the contractors for the new building and gave excellent satisfaction. It certainly speaks well for the firm of Duncan & Gray that their reputation for performing first class work should have penetrated so remote a quarter as Alnwick township.

A New Manufactory.

Messrs. Humphreys, Vandevart & Co., iron and steel manufacturers of Pittsburg, Pa., are looking for a site and have written asking for particulars as to the amount of foundry pig iron used annually in the Province, together with the brands of similar details. The firm states that it has "the ultimate view of organizing a company which will enable you to purchase your pig iron at a lower price than you are now paying provided we receive sufficient encouragement." This deserves the attention of the Manufacturers' Committee.

Wedding Bells.

The following account of the marriage of a former well-known and popular Peterborough boy, is clipped from the Ingersoll Tribune: "At Christ church Rectory, London, Wednesday, January 16, the marriage was celebrated by Rev. J. H. Moorehouse, of Mr. Richard Clegg, manager of the upholstering department of the [illegible] Furniture Company, to Miss Mary Adeline Bevins, only daughter of Mr. N. P. Bevins. Mr. Clegg has been a resident of the town for several years, during which time he has acquired a host of friends by his sterling qualities and generous nature; while the fair bride is a native of the town, where her sweet disposition and graceful presence are well known, and all will join us in wishing them much joy in their newly acquired relationship."

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 20,000 rose trees in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories Bloor-st. west, Toronto. Visitors are always welcome. Mr. Dunlop is proud of his establishment and takes pleasure in speaking of its beauties. He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. Sale room, 445 Yonge-st., and 5 King street west.

LOTS OF MONEY

Awaiting the Relatives of the Late John Kallahan.

If the relatives of John Kallahan live anywhere in this vicinity, it will be to their interest to at once communicate with the address given below. The following letter, received by the Chief of Police, will explain why:

GUTHRIE, OKLAHOMA, Jan. 19.

Chief of Police, Peterborough:

SIR: Will you kindly inform me whether you have any people in your city by name of Kallahan or Kellehen? A man by that name, John Kallahan, but supposed to be Kellehen, died here on the 17th inst., leaving considerable property: but I have been unable to find any of his relatives. He told me he left Canada in 1867 and went to Kansas, where he worked at the printing business. He has never written or heard from his people. He said a father, mother, four sisters and three brothers were some wheres in Canada, but he did not give their address. If they do not live in your vicinity, please publish a notice in some paper that reaches the people generally. His relatives may be poor, and this estate will help them. Have all parties communicate with me. The man was of Irish descent.

Yours respectfully,

B. C. SCHNELL.

TWO SMALLPOX CASES.

A Guelph Student and an Aylmerite Down With Varioloid.

Just before the Provincial Board of Health finished its sitting in Dr. Bryce's office at the Parliament buildings on Saturday, the Medical Health Officer of Guelph telegraphed an announcement of a case of varioloid in that city. Dr. Bryce was instructed to go to Guelph and see what should be done.

Another case of smallpox is reported from Aylmer in the township of Malahide. This case has been quarantined with a doctor as nurse.

The Guelph case is an Agricultural College student named William Schwartz, who comes from Aylmer and had been several days in Guelph before he broke out on the 18th February. Schwartz is in the smallpox hospital under the care of Dr. Whitelaw and two nurses.

The case is a mild one and precautionary measures in the way of vaccination are being enforced. The students who have been in contact with any of the pupils of the dairy school, which Schwartz was attending, have been quartered in a separate building and it is not feared that there will be any spread of the disease.

Exposition Awards.

The following will be interesting to those who were given awards at the World's Fair, and who are wondering when the medals are to be delivered: Mr. Hugh Johnston, 251 Spadina avenue, has received the following letter from Mr. A. T. Britton, acting chairman of the Columbian Exposition Committee of Awards, the letter bearing date of Washington, Jan. 47th:—I am in receipt of your favor of the 9th instant, requesting information as to when you will receive the medal awarded you at the World's Columbian Exposition, and in reply I would state that the act of Congress of August, 1892, made the appropriation for the preparation of the said medals and diplomas to the Honorable Secretary of the Treasury direct, and this committee is, therefore, without responsibility in the matter until the same are delivered to us for distribution. The diplomas are being prepared at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the medals are being struck off under the supervision of the director of the mint. We are unofficially advised by the last named gentleman that the medal will be ready for delivery about May or June next.

TURNBULL'S

As we enter the New Year we wish our many customers in town and country a happy and prosperous one.

January is our annual Stocktaking month and we must be finished by the 1st of February and we are now measuring and throwing out all odd lines on tables, to be cleared before that date. Such as

Ends of Dress Goods
Ends of Tweeds
Ends of Shirtings
Ends of Prints
Ends of Carpets
Ends of Cottons
Ends of Cretonnes
Ends of Embroideries
Ends of Laces
Ends of Ribbbons

These are all good, fresh goods, only in remnants and will be sold at remnant prices, We have still about 180 suits of that very heavy all wool Underclothing at $1 a suit. Sold everywhere at $1 50. Everyone who needs a suit of heavy underwear should see them.

The balance of our Sealettes, Heavy Curls and Mantles have been going steadily at the prices they were marked since we last talked about them, but we have still a few good Mantles and Cloths left, which some one will get a bargain of. We show a window of all styles of Hats and Placques, your choice for 35 cents. We prefer to sell them at this price rather than pack them away.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

THE BROOKLYN STRIKE.

CAVALRY CHARGE THE RIOTOUS MOBS ON THE STREETS.

The Trouble Breaks Out Afresh—One Man Dies from Injuries—Wires Cut All Over the City.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 23.—At the police headquarters this morning reports have come in from nearly every part of the city which state that everything was quiet between midnight and nine o'clock this morning.

The linemen are at work repairing the broken trolley wires of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company this morning having apparently disregarded Master Workman Connelly's order to go out today.

The linemen have refused to repair the wires in the Gates avenue line. Superintendent Goodman says they have struck. Master Workman Connelly denies ordering the linemen's strike.

It is reported that the cavalry charged a mob at Fifty-Eighth street and Third avenue at 10 o'clock.

CUTTING THE WIRES.

Cars are running on a majority of roads this morning, but the companies are greatly hampered by the extensive wire cutting which the strikers indulged in during the morning. It was intended to start cars on the Third avenue line this morning, and 35 non-union motormen and conductors were ready to take out the cars, but the wires were found to have been cut at several points. The wires on the Bergen street line were cut in one or two places. At Troy avenue, between Herkimer and Fulton streets, the wires were badly mutilated, and the large cable or feet wire running through Halsey street and Nostrand avenue is broken. The Brooklyn Heights railroad deny that their linemen have struck and claim that they are all at work repairing the gaps made in their wires by the strikers over night. Several arrests have been made for cutting wires.

FLED LIKE SHEEP.

A report from the Myrtle avenue depot at Third avenue and Fifty Eight street at 10 o'clock stated that a crowd of rioters gathered in front of the depot and refused to disperse when ordered to do so. The cavalry charged them and they fled in all directions. The Hicks street line started cars over its road this morning for the first time in ten days. When the first car had reached Fulton street, two windows had been broken by missiles thrown at it.

The Bergen street line began operations at 6.54 o'clock, and by 8 o'clock nine cars had been sent over the road. Three cars had been sent over the Second street line by 8 o'clock. Cars are being run out today on the Sumner avenue line. Traffic on the Halsey street line is entirely suspended this morning.

AHNS DIES.

Henry Ahns, who was shot by Seventh Regiment men last night, died at 10.50 a.m.

Notwithstanding the fact that Master Workman Connelly repeatedly announced that the linemen on all the roads would be ordered out this morning, the linemen have not gone out, and Connelly now denies that he said the men would be ordered out. About ten o'clock the Halsey street line had succeeded in patching up its trolley wires, and two cars were sent over the lines.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—There was unusual activity at police headquarters this morning and there was some talk that a sympathetic strike of the surface railway employes in this city was not improbable.

LINEMEN ORDERED OUT.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 23.—An order was issued at noon today by the executive committee of the Linemen's Association for all electrical workmen employed on trolley lines to go out any time.

It was reported at noon that soldiers fired at a house on Myrtle avenue near Knickerbocker.

PRIVATE NOT POLITICAL.

Ex-President Casimir-Perier's Unhappy Domestic Relations.

Special to the Times.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Herald's Paris correspondent says: The real cause of the resignation of Casimir-Perier was not at all political, but of a purely private character. The ex president is on the point of seeking to obtain a divorce from Mme. Casimir Perier, and the causes for this are of quite a long standing. As a matter of fact, the first steps in the proceedings had already been taken by Casimir-Perier's lawyers when he became President of the Republic. At that time his mother intervened and her supplications induced him to accept the high office to which he has called in the hopes that the official and public life he and Mme Casimir Perier would be forced to lead would put an end to their disagreements. But their misunderstandings became worse and when Casimir-Perier found that the joys of political power did not compensate him for his domestic annoyances, his intimate friend, M. Burdeau, died, and when his other friend, M. Raynal, was hounded down by the Chamber of Deputies because of the railway conventions, in a fit of anger, he resigned. At the Palace of Justice it is said the divorce is imminent.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

The Composer of the Tuneful "Erminie" Marries Miss Lloyd, of Buffalo.

Special to the Times.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—There was a quiet wedding in St. Thomas' Episcopal church, at Fifty-third street and Fifth avenue, on Monday afternoon, the announcement of which will arouse considerable interest in theatrical and operatic circles.

The groom was Mr. Edward Jakobowski, the composer of "Erminie," "The Queen of Brilliants," "The Devil's Deputy" and other operas of the lighter sort, while the bride was Mrs. Clara Ormide Browne, the daughter of the Rev. Dr. Lloyd, of Buffalo, N. Y. The Rev. John W. Browne, the rector of St. Thomas', was the officiating clergyman.

A Dastardly Outrage.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Jan. 23.—An attempt was made to blow up the Rescue Homes of the King's Sons and Daughters. Dynamite was used and the rear end of building was damaged. It was evidently the intention to injure Evangelist Whittaker, who has made himself obnoxious to the tough element.

Sent Down for Three Years.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Herbert Hurd, an electrician, formerly of Toronto, who was some time ago arrested at Detroit and brought back by Detective Klippert, was today tried before his Honor Judge Lacourse and found guilty of robbery. He was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

KILLED HERSELF.

Mrs. E. C. Woolson Committed Suicide with a Razor While Slightly Deranged.

Special to the Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Jan. 23.—Mrs. E. C. Woolson, who had been an invalid for some time and was slightly demented, committed suicide in her home today by cutting a gash in her neck with a razor. Her son, Dr. William Woolson, cut his throat two years ago in the same room and with the same razor used by Mrs. Woolson today.

Miss Carrie Woolson, daughter of the dead woman, found her mother's corpse, and it was Miss Carrie who found the body of her brother, the doctor, after he had killed himself. The girl is so affected that friends are watching her constantly in the fear that she too may attempt suicide. Mrs. Woolson brooded over the self destruction of her son until her mind became so infatuated with the idea of suicide that she could not resist the temptation to follow the example of the young man.

Mrs. Woolson was 65 years of age and of a gentle disposition. She was an aunt of Prof. Woolson, of the Columbia College School of Mines, who resides in Astoria, L.I.

NEW FRENCH CABINET.

THE ENTIRE SLATE AS PUBLISHED BY THE STANDARD.

A Rumor that President Faure Will Resign—Alarming State Secrets about to Leak Out—The Many Difficulties the New President Has to Overcome.

Special to the Times.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—After having interviews this morning with MM. Poincare and Cavaignac, President Faure summoned M. Bourgeois to the Palace, and it is believed that that gentleman will make another attempt to form a Ministry, seeking his colleagues from among the more Radical groups. After an extended interview with President Faure, M. Bourgeois definitely agreed to make another attempt to construct a Cabinet. It is believed that MM. Lockroy, Doumer, Sarrien and Hanotaux will accept portfolios.

MM. Hanotaux, Lockroy, Cavaignac, Cochery and Doumer and Senators Combes and DeVerniac have agreed to accept portfolios under M. Bourgeois.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Standard's Paris correspondent gives the composition of the new Cabinet approximately as follows: M. Bourgeois, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior; M. Hanotaux, Foreign Affairs; M. Chechary, Finance; M. Cavaignac, War; M. Lockroy, Marine; M. Terrier, Public Works; M. Deverninac, Agriculture; M. Combs, Public Instruction; M. Doumer, Commerce; Maurice Lebon, Colonies; M. Leveille, Justice.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A special from Paris to the Sun says:—The scheme of forming a colorless Government without principles has died. It seemed on Sunday night that M. Bourgeois would at least succeed in forming a Cabinet of concentration. When ready to report the completion of his task to the President yesterday afternoon M. Poincare and two or three others who had expressed decided views against the income tax concluded that it would be impossible to join a Cabinet most of whose members were of the contrary opinion. M. Bourgeois, in despair, went to the Elysee and resigned his mission. President Faure's political friends are disappointed and indignant because he has not, under such circumstances, cut loose from the Radicals and either formed a moderate Ministry or dissolved the Chamber. Instead of that the President held a long consultation with M. Cavaignac and M. Poincare. What the result may be is not yet known. A report is even circulated that M. Faure would follow Casimir-Perier's example and resign. That is altogether incredible. It is undoubtedly true, however, that the new President finds the political situation of France much more serious than he imagined it was when he took office four days ago. There are said to be certain alarming secrets of State which will come to light very soon.

PLANTA WAS NOT DROWNED.

He Escaped Across the Line and is Now in Custody.

Special to the Times.

NANAIMO, B. C., Jan. 23.—Police Magistrate Planta, of this place, who skipped out a few days ago, has been arrested at Seattle, Washington Territory. Evidence taken before the Royal Commission involved Planta in some rather peculiar looking transactions, and his disappearance followed. A report was circulated by his friends, in order to cover up his flight, that he had drowned himself on account of the disgrace that his misdeeds had brought on him and his family. Planta will be brought back to the city to stand his trial on a charge of embezzlement. Planta waved extradition formalities.

A Chinaman's Hard Luck.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 23—Lee Sing, a Chinaman, who came across the International bridge yesterday, has been sent back to Woodstock. His credentials were not satisfactory. De Barry did the deporting.

Seven Years, Thirty Lashes.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—John D. Hutchinson, who attempted to separate his brother and sister in-law by poisoning their minds one against the other and who subsequently assaulted and robbed the young wife, was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary with 30 lashes by Magistrate Denison this morning.

The Tory Candidate Wins.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The parliamentary election in the south, or Evesham division of Worcestershire yesterday, resulted in the return of Col. Long, Conservative, by a vote of 4,760 to 3,589 for Mr. F. Impey, Liberal.

Danger of a Famine.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—Mr. William O'Brien, M.P., has written a letter to the Freeman's Journal stating that a famine is threatened in the west of Ireland. He declares that the situation there is already more serious than it was in 1891, when Chief Secretary Balfour expended one million pounds from the British treasury to relieve the sufferings of the people in that region.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The medicine chest of the British steamer Prescott, which sailed from Sunderland Dec. 29th for Marseilles, together with the portrait of the first mate of that vessel has been washed ashore on the coast of Lincolnshire. Wreckage from this ship has been reported previously from Flamborough.

Mr. Theophile Davies, who accompanied the Hawaiian Princess Kaiulani to the United States on the occasion of her protest against the overthrow of the Hawaiian throne, was asked today by a representative of the United Press for an expression of his views on the recent attempt to restore the monarchy. Mr. Davies said: "I cannot make any statement. I am deeply grieved by the last news from the Hawaiian Islands, and especially at the death of Mr. Carter, for whom I personally had a warm regard." As Mr. Davies is the guardian of the Princess Kaiulani, his remarks may be taken as evidence that the Princess has abandoned any idea of further claiming her rights. The Princess, through Mr. Davies, declined to speak on the subject or to be interviewed.

Lord Salisbury as Conservative leader in the House of Lords has sent circulars to his followers stating that the nature of the business that will come before them makes it desirable that they be in their places at the opening of the coming session of parliament.

Similar notices to members to be present on the opening of the session have been issued by the Duke of Devonshire, Liberal Unionist leader in the House of Lords; Arthur J. Balfour, Conservative leader in the House of Commons, and Joseph Chamberlain, Liberal Unionist leader in the House of Commons.

Lord Randolph Churchill was slightly better this morning. He had another sinking spell just before midnight tonight, and the doctors were hastily summoned to his bedside.

In the course of a speech in Hull this evening Home Secretary Asquith said that the country must prepare for a serious financial sacrifice in order to strengthen the navy.

John Redmond, M. P., leader of the Parnellites, said in a speech in Waterford this evening that he and his colleagues will go back to Parliament with a determination to do their utmost to oust the Government. They will insist that no British business be transacted until home rule shall have been granted to Ireland.

Gen. Sir H. F. Ponsonby, the Queen's private secretary, who was recently stricken with paralysis, is steadily progressing toward recovery.

The Prince of Wales' cutter Britannia sailed from Cowes, Isle of Wight, today for the Mediterranean.

HAS THE CHICORA SANK?

A BELIEF THAT THE STEAMSHIP HAS GONE DOWN.

Storm Tossed on Lake Michigan—There Were Thirty-Eight Souls on Board—No Trace of the Vessel.

Special to the Times.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 23.—Conjecture is rife as to whether the steamer Chicora, with 30 persons on board, is tossing helplessly upon the lake or has gone to the bottom. Telegrams have been sent to every port on the lakes.

The office of the Graham and Morton Company was thronged with steamboat men all day yesterday discussing the big steamer's chances in the gale of Monday night. Some think she attempted to put back to Milwaukee and was driven north to the straits.

Many believe the vessel has sunk.

ONE PASSENGER ON BOARD.

Joseph Pearl, of St. Joseph, was the only passenger on board. The officers of the boat were: Ed. Stines, captain; James R. Clark, clerk; Neil Simons, first mate; Ben Stines, second mate; Joseph Marks, wheelman; Robert McClure, first engineer; Alfred Wirts, second engineer. Thirty seamen are on board the steamer.

Struck by a Train and Killed.

ESSEX, Ont., Jan. 22.—John McHugh, a well known Maidstone township farmer, aged about 50 years, was killed at 7 o'clock at the Michigan Central railway crossing here while driving home from Essex tonight. The sleigh was smashed to atoms and the body badly mangled, the head crushed and one foot cut off. The deceased was a brother to Judge McHugh, of Windsor, and a member of a prominent family in this section.

Eighteen Lives Lost.

TELL CITY, Ind., Jan. 22.—Later and complete reports from Wolf Creek, regarding the loss of life by the sinking of the steamer State of Missouri, place the loss of life at 18. This includes the cabin crew, the carpenter, one passenger from Pittsburg and one from Barefield. The five lady passengers were saved. Five roustabouts were lost.

The Fire Record.

NAPANEE, Jan. 23.—The residence of Jas. McKee, blacksmith, was burned to the ground this morning about 4 o'clock. All the furniture and household effects were consumed, the inmates who were in bed when the fire was discovered escaping very scantily attired. The building was a frame structure valued at about $600 and this with effects will bring Mr. McKee's loss up in the neighborhood of $1,000. No insurance.

To Enter Confederation.

NEWFOUNDLAND, Jan. 23.—A delegation from Newfoundland, consisting of Sir William Whiteway and Messrs. Bond and Morris, will go to Ottawa, probably next week, to treat for terms under which the colony may enter the Confederation, and the Legislature will adjourn for a month to await their return, when it will consider the matter.

An Apology Granted.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 23.—The Porte has apologized to Sir Philip Currie, the British Ambassador, for the arrest of Postmaster Cobb, and the incident is thus ended.

A Handsome Lady's Opinion

My head of hair, as you may observe, is perfect. Yours, if not, may become so by using Tully's Chemical Hair Grower. It will do just what is represented—it makes the hair grow when coming out; it cleanes the scalp of dandruff; restores the color when turning grey; prevents baldness, and is an elegant dressing, and the price is reasonable, 50c. a bottle. I am sure that there is no better preparation. Sold only at

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 24 1895.

Good morning!

The natural gas supply of Indiana is being rapidly exhausted, according to the annual report made by the State Gas Inspector. He estimated that at least $25,000,000 worth of gas has been wasted in Indiana alone. In four years more the supply will give out.

The greatest astronomers in speculating upon what there is in space and the distance of eternal galaxies calculate that the nearest universe is so far distant that light from it, travelling at the speed of 186,000 miles a second, would take nearly 90,000,000 years to reach us.

Some American undertakers whose customers are poor are using coffins made of paper. The coffins are made in all the styles out of pressed paper pulp, just the same as the common paper buckets. When they are varnished and stained they resemble polished wood, and in point of durability they are much better than wooden ones, it is claimed.

At the meeting of the Western Ontario dairymen there was a strong sentiment exhibited in favor of branding cheese with the name of the factory and month of manufacture. The adoption of and adherence to such a rule would be the best guarantee against the practice of selling summer as fall cheese, about which complaints are frequently heard, and for which, by all accounts, the British purchaser is quite as often and quite as much responsible as the Canadian seller. The factorymen is rarely or never the beneficiary of the fraud, and it is his interest that should be the first consideration.

James Clogg, of St. Catharines is a man of practical mind. A certain clergyman of St. Catharines publicly declared that any person not a prohibitionist was a fool. Mr. Clogg—who, presumably, is not a prohibitionist—promptly wrote to the clergyman offering him $5 if he could prove himself a Christian according to the Bible standard. The offer was not accepted. But Mr. Clogg is hardly warranted by this fact in proclaiming that the clergyman in question is a pretender and should not be allowed to preach. Mr. Clogg should have offered a more substantial reward to this clergyman for proving himself a Christian. Five dollars woldn't pay him for the trouble.

As regards the comparative efficiency of British seamen, a carefully compiled table of all the seagoing vessels of the world, including all steamers over 100 tons and all sailing vessels over 50 tons, brings out the fact that in all maritime countries taken together, there is an average of 28 tons register to each seaman, whereas in the case of Great Britain the average is 38 tons per man, or forty per cent. more than the usual proportion. Evidence of superior efficiency is also afforded by a table of wrecks collected from the reports of the four countries which furnish distinct returns upon the subject. It appears that in the year 1888 89 90 the ratio of the tonage lost by wreck to tonnage afloat was for Great Britain 2.4 per cent.; for Germany, 3.2 per cent.; for France, 4.5 per cent., and for the United States 6.8 per cent.

DESTROYING THE DIPHTHERIA PLAGUE.

When the invention of anti-toxic serum was first announced there seemed reason to hope that it would prove an effective remedy for one of the deadliest ills to which flesh is heir to. Subsequently developments strengthened this hope into confidence. The remarkable testimony of the Paris doctors for the last month back, and that of Dr. Kinyann, in Washington, last week, must convince the most skeptical that the new treatment of diphtheria is of the greatest possible value. In cases of the disease without other complications, he assures us, anti-toxine is practically a sure cure. In fact, the death rate in Paris and Washington is reduced to zero. And where there are complications of other diseases, as is often the case, the remedy is still so effective as to lessen the morality by more than one half. Similar reports come from the Austrian Government, under whose patronage the remedy is being widely used. In Trieste for years past the death rate among diphtheria patients has been from 44 to 50 per cent. On August 24 last the authorities began dispensing anti-toxin gratis, and since that date the death rate in hospitals has been less than 23 per cent., and in private practice less than 7 per cent. In the Bukowina the death rate has by the same means been reduced from 63 to 15 per cent., and in other parts of the Empire similar results, and some even more favorable, are recorded. For two principal reasons it seems desirable that the manufacture should be under Government—or municipal—patronage. One is that thus its benefits may be enjoyed by the people. Anti-toxin is manufactured slowly, and by a process that makes it costly. And diphtheria is a disease that rages most among poor people. Unless, therefore, by Governmental dispensation the remedy can be distributed at a merely nominal cost, there is reason to fear that its benefit may be withheld from those who need it most. In Austria the Government is dispensing it gratis. In France the Pasteuo Institute is giving it out most appropriately, since this and similar discoveries are ultimately to be credited to the epoch-making researches of M. Pasteur, but the Institute is aided in doing with a liberal subsidy from the French Government. Our municipal, Provincial, and Dominion Governments. There is no doubt that the work belongs to them as much as that of quarantine, of food inspection, of saditary regulation of streets and buildings. It is a work purely for the promotion of the public welfare; and that is one of the chief functions of government.

The other main reason for official supervision is that thus will a supply of antitoxine of standard quality be assured. We have said that the process of manufacture is a slow and elaborate one. But at the price at which the product is now sold it is enormously profitable. There is serious danger, therefore, that many will enter upon the manufacture of it as a money making enterprise; that in seeking to increase their profits they will relax the scrupulous care which should be observed in every stage and detail of the work; and thus the market will be stocked with antitoxin of various makes and various qualities, some of it as good as can be, and some of it perhaps worthless, if not actually injurious. Anti-toxine is too valuable a remedy to be in anyway discredited or witheld from general use. Its quality ought to be as absolutely assured as that of the metal in a gold dollar, and it ought to be placed within the reach of every person in the land. If that is done, it seems entirely reasonable to expect that what is now one of the most destructive of all diseases will soon become practically extinct.

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From our our own correspondent.)

DEAD.—After a lingering illness, Mrs. Josiah Blewitt, wife of Mr. Josiah Blewett, of Young's Point, died on Saturday January 12th, 1895, at the family residence, at the advanced age of 94 years. The deceased lady was much respected by all who knew her, and leaves a husband, four sons and two daughters to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother. The funeral which took place on Monday January 14th to the Lakefield cemetery, was largely attended. The family has the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

MINSTRELS.—The minstrels of Peterborough, held a concert here in Mr. R. Heard's new hall on Wednesday, 16th, and had a large attendance.

BALL.—Invitations are out for a grand ball to be held in Mr. R. Heard's hall by the Young's Point Base Ball Club on the evening of Monday, January 28th, 1895. Supper will be served at the Carleton House. Butcher's orchestra, Peterborough, will supply the music. A pleasant time is anticipated.

PERSONALS.—Mrs. Costello, of Peter borough, has returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Wm. McFarlane.

Mr. H. J. Kearney is visiting friends in Ennismore and Chemong.

Mrs. R. Pope, of Peterborough is visiting friends here.

MOB RULE IN BROOKLYN.

TROOPS ARE FIRED UPON BY THE DEFIANT RIOTERS.

Street Railway Strikers Hoot at the Police and Militia—They Spent the Night in Cutting Wires—Several Killed and Much Blood Spilled.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—The street car strike situation seems about to assume another complication. The 600 linemen of the city will quit work in the morning, and lines and wires cut will remain unrepaired. Seven thousand National Guardsmen and 1,600 policemen have failed to restore order. The levy from New York amounts to about 4,000 men.

A car starting from the Ridgewood station of the Brooklyn Heights Company about 5 o'clock occasioned the first serious trouble of the day. A shower of bricks and stones from the mob drew two volleys from the soldiers. An hour later another car was attacked at Gale and Stuyvesant avenue, and two policemen were shot, one through the hand, another through the arm.

SEVERAL RIOTERS SHOT.

On the Halsey street line more fighting occurred and it is said several rioters were shot. At the Halsey street depot a car was wrecked by the rioters and two policemen fired into the crowd. By half past eight all attempts to run cars on the tied-up lines had ceased. The dense fog prevented more fatalities from the frequent shooting.

A pitched battle occurred in the vicinity of the Ridgewood avenue stables. An attempt was made to run a car surrounded by a strong guard. About three blocks from the station the mob attacked the car and were finally driven back by a volley from pistols and rifles. Seven cars attempted the run between 4 and 7 o'clock in the evening.

A WOMAN INJURED.

One hundred and forty five cars are run instead of the usual 1,900 by the Brooklyn Heights Co.

Mrs. Josephine Ziegler, aged 69, was run over by a car in charge of a green motorman. She sustained serious internal injuries.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—A World extra says:—Col. Appleton's guard dispersed crowds from around the Brooklyn Halsey street depot this morning. The soldiers used the butt ends of their muskets. It has been discovered that union men secured work at the Ninth avenue depot, under the guise of non-unionists, with the object of damaging cars. Several cars were so cripled that electricians were at work all night repairing them. An attempt was also made to burn the depot.

TROOPS FIRED UPON.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 21.—The situation is most serious. The troops have been fired upon, attacked with stones, brickbats and other missiles, under cover of darkness and fog. The have heroically faced the riotous mobs, and the wonder is that they have withheld their fire a dozen times, under serious provocation. They have discharged volleys over the heads of crowds, they have jabbed the street gangs with bayonets, they have done everything but shoot people down.

THE END NOT IN SIGHT.

No end of the strike is in sight. The day for compromise has passed and arbitration is no longer thought of.

The linemen refused to repair cut wires today, widening the breach and giving the companies more trouble. No general resumption of the operation of the cars has followed the arrival of the troops, and the companies have made but a poor showing in spite of their boasts of plenty of new men.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE TROOPS.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 22.—Gen. McLeer said to a reporter two days ago that if duty demanded it his men would fire on the mobs. Yesterday's experience showed that his men had followed instructions. The point has now been reached when forbearance ceases to be a virtue. The troops have now been ordered to fire upon any person seen throwing a missile or shooting at them. Sharpshooters have been detailed to pick off people on house tops and in windows who throw or shoot from their sheltered locations at the troops, the police or the cars operated by non-union men.

CLARA FORD.

Her Trial Postponed Until the Spring Assizes.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Clara Ford will not be tried until the Spring Assizes for the murder of Frank Westwood. This was the dictum of Judge MacMahon, before whom E. F. B. Johnston, Q. C., who is associated with W. G. Murdoch, made application this afternoon. The feature of his application was another affidavit by Clara to the effect that a dozen witnesses saw her at the theatre on the fatal night at the time when she is supposed to have been in Parkdale.

A SENSATION

At a Requiem Mass for the Late Premier's Soul.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—A solemn requiem mass was sung at Notre Dame church this morning for the repose of the soul of the late Sir John Thompson. The church was heavily draped, brilliantly illuminated and filled by a large congregation, nearly half of whom were Protestants. Archbishop Fabre officiated. Lord and Lady Aberdeen occupied seats near the sanctuary.

A disagreeable contretemps occurred. The Consuls-General of Spain and France and the acting consul of the German Empire not having been assigned the place which they deemed consistent with their official rank declined to attend. Their action has created a sensation.

ALL MEN

Young, old or middle aged, who find themselves, nervous, weak or exhausted, who are broken down from excess or overwork resulting in many of the following symptoms :Mental depression, premature old age, loss of vitality, loss of memory. bad dreams, dimness of sight, palpitation of the heart emissions, lack of energy, pain in the kidneys, headaches, pimples on the face and body, itching or peculiar sensation about the scrotum, wasting of the organs, dizziness, specks before the eyes, twitching of the muscels, eyelids and elsewhere, bashfulness, deposits in the urine loss of will power, tenderness of the scalp and spine, weak and flabby muscles, desire to sleep, failure to be rested by sleep, constipation, dullness of hearing, loss of voice. desire for solitude, excitability of temper, sunken eyes, surrounded with LEADEN CIRCLES, oily looking skin etc., are all symptoms of nervous debility that lead to insanity unless cured. The spring or vital force having lost its tension every function wanes in consequence. Those who through abuse committed in ignorance, may be permanently cured. No leech can cure, how great soe'er his wit;
Tissue he cannot heal, nor the bone knit;
Life's secret means his splint and draft supply;

'Tis thine to save that which thou didst not plan.
Serve thou a mightier force than it or thee,
And each soul's self shall that soul's savior be.

VALUE OF A SPY IN BATTLE.

Exploit of a Soldier Who Gained Information at Gettysburg.

Dr. H. N. Howard, who was assistant surgeon of the Tenth Maine infantry, related the following incident:

"On the second day of the battle of Gettysburg the Twelfth corps was on the right of the Union line. The First division (General Williams') occupied the extreme right at the foot of Culp's hill, where slight earthworks had been thrown up. In the afternoon the enemy appeared to be massing on our left. General Meade ordered the First division of the Twelfth corps over to the support of the left. This left the Tenth Maine occupying the extreme right of the Union lines alone.

"The enemy doubtless discovered the movement, as after dark it was found that they were moving by the left flank down the ravine back of Culp's hill. This was reported to General Slocum. He lost no time in informing General Meade, who ordered a trusty scout to be sent out at once to ascertain the facts. Captain Beardsley called for a volunteer for the desperate service, the night being black as ink. Henry Kallock threw off his chevrons, and in the blouse of a private soldier announced himself ready. Kallock was first sergeant of Company D, as brave as he was daring and efficient. With dread as to the result, Captain Beardsley sent him out into the darkness. At midnight the brave sergeant returned and reported that he had penetrated the lines of the enemy, who were then occupying the works but a few hours before vacated by General Williams' division.

"This was at once reported to General Meade, who ordered General Williams to return. Under cover of the darkness the movement was noiselessly accomplished. They approached so near as to hear the whispered voices of the enemy within the intrenchments and there remained until the first light of dawn discovered to the enemy the immediate vicinity of the Union forces. Then was initiated the bloody assault upon Culp's hill, where, in indiscriminate heaps, lay the foes of either army. When the sun went down, Old Glory waved in triumph over the little earthworks on the extreme right of our lines, announcing the first victory gained in the battle of Gettysburg.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Why He Knew.

Mr. Timothy Cole, the engraver, gives an account in a private letter of an amusing experience in the Louvre: "While I was working on 'The Fish Market,' by Van Ostade, an elderly lady and a young gentleman stopped in front of the picture. They were much attracted by what I was doing, and the lady asked her companion if he knew what I was about. He very readily answered that I was etching. 'But,' she responded, more attentively regarding me as I engraved, 'he appears to be cutting on wood.' 'Etching on wood,' was the offhand return. I could not repress a smile as I worked on, and they watched me in silence. 'I should think,' resumed the old lady, 'that if he made a false cut or mistake it would be the ruin of all he had done?' 'Oh, no,' was the nonchalant reply, 'all he would have to do is to scratch it out and do it over again.' Here my involuntary glance of surprise, as I looked up from my block, met the inquiring eyes of the questioner. It was time for me to explain, which I did, correcting the gentleman's erroneous idea—evidently derived from seeing the process of etching—of a wood engraver's being able to remedy anything he had once cut by scratching it out. We then fell into conversation, and I learned that the young man was an art critic, which accounted for the confidence with which he uttered his opinions."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Wonders of the Eye.

In an article on the human eye written by Dr Austin Flint the following passage occurs "Viewed as an optical instrument, the human eye may well be called perfect, for it is an apparatus contained in a globe less than an inch in diameter, in which is produced an image, practically perfect in form and color, and which can be accurately adjusted almost instantly for every distance from five inches to infinity, which is movable in every direction, has an area small enough for the detection of the most minute details and at the same time large enough for the appreciation of large objects, and which enables us to see all shades of color and to estimate distance, solidity, and, to some extent, the consistency of objects." And yet this wonderful instrument, perhaps the most varied in its capabilities of any part of the body, is persistently misused and neglected. Is it any wonder that some day nature resents this treatment and leaves the offenders in total and perpetual darkness?—New York Ledger.

Raleigh's Personal Courage.

One instance of Raleigh's personal courage may be mentioned—a courage that was afterward so conspicuous in many a sea fight. At one time, when he had only five or six men with him, he was surprised by the seneschal of Imokilly at the head of 14 horses and threescore kerns (light armed men) at a ford between Youghal and Cork. Raleigh himself forced his way across the ford. His Irish guide "shifted for himself." The horse of one of his followers fell midstream, and his rider would assuredly have been killed had not Raleigh returned, and in the face of great odds rescued him and waited, pistol in hand, until the rest of his little band were safely over.—St. Nicholas.

The Family Scrapbook.

Mrs. Sauers (to Willy, as minister calls to see Mr. Sauers)—Willy, is your father in?

Willy—Yes, he's up stairs looking over your scrapbook.

Mrs. Sauers (puzzled)—You mean my family account book?

Willy—Well, it's all the same. He and you always have a scrap every time he goes over it.—Cincinnati Tribune.

Several marine animals propagate by voluntary self division. A piece breaks off and floats away. For a considerable time it shows no sign of life, but when it has recovered from the shock of separation it develops into a perfect animal.

Lake Superior was named for its size. It was also called Lac de Conde and Lac de Tracy, while the Indians termed it Kitchigarnie, "Big Sea Water."

THE FAIR INVALID

play, an I insists on payin th' r'spects due t' youth an beauty, I does."

As they neared the cabin there was considerable diffidence displayed by every member of the committee. Neither wanted to lead, and it was not until Faro and Mike "downed" the "professor" by a majority vote that he consented to knock at the door. This act was rendered unnecessary, however, by the appearance of Mr. White, who came out and greeted them cordially.

"Come in, gentlemen," he said when the "professor" had blunderingly informed him that they had come to inquire about the invalid. "Come in. My sister is very much better today, very much, thanks to your kindness." And, with his guests trying to shrink behind each other as though they were schoolboys instead of three of the leading citizens of White Hawk, he led the way up to the door.

"My sister, gentlemen," he announced, whereupon the committee became more embarrassed than ever, and Faro stepped heavily on Mike's foot, causing that gentleman to writhe in silent agony.

Over in a dark corner, wrapped in blankets and seated in a big barrel chair, was the person who had created the present sensation.

"Sit down, gentlemen," she said in a deep, melodious contralto voice. "I'm very glad to see you. And please let me thank you for your great kindness to me last night."

"Thanks, mum—that is, no'm. We didn't do it—that is," blundered the "professor" with shifting eyes, "'twan't nothin. Mighty glad, miss, ef we c'n do anything."

"Thank you very much. I can never forget it," said the melodious voice from the depths of the chair, thereby causing the visitors to clear their throats and shift their large feet a good deal and to stare at the ceiling in an effort to think of something appropriate to say. White came to their relief, however, with some remark or other, and presently Faro managed to make a move toward leaving, which example was about to be precipitately followed by the others when the voice asked:

"Won't you come and shake hands?"

While his companions were hurrying to accept the invitation Hennessy, at a moment when White was not looking and with what he considered a very deft movement, managed to shift the shotbag to the top of one of the soapboxes just vacated. Then he shook hands, and the trio floundered out.

White looked out of the window to see when they got out of earshot. Then he lay down on the floor and laughed till he cried, while from the chair in the dark corner arose a figure from which came deep, deep laughter—as deep as that of most men—and also came the remark after a few moments' painful effort at controlling risibility:

"Bill, if you don't beat h—l for schemes, I'll eat my hat, and it ain't a good year for hats either," which remark was responded to by more hearty laughter, in the course of which "Bill" kicked over a soapbox, and with a dull crash down came the sack of "stuff" recently left by Mr. Hennessy et al.

While the extremely satisfactory investigation of the sack was going on the three gentlemen who had brought it walked up the trail somewhat quietly, much dazed, but with pride in every footfall. All day long they drank much and looked knowing, thereby causing their fellow citizens much inward disgust.

About 2 o'clock White made his appearance in camp and straightway sought his visitors of the morning. "Gentlemen, this is too much. Your kindness overwhelms me," he assured them, with grateful tears in his voice.

"Oh, say, now, ole man, none o' that," said Faro, with a clap of his hand on the Tucsonian's shoulder that made the latter wince. "Ta' gent's talk don't go, does it, boys?"

"But"— began White.

"Come off, now, ole chap, 'r we'll feel 'nsulted. Come, take a 'jolt.'"

White took a couple of "jolts" with them and took away with him the assurance that another word about not accepting what they gave him would really insult them.

Somewhere about the time that White came up to camp Large Briggs stood in the doorway of his domicile, critically regarding the interior. Briggs had one of the best cabins in camp and had it quite "luxuriously" furnished. Moreover, he was quite famous as a remarkably neat housekeeper and endeavored to maintain that reputation. Today, however, found him very hard to please, and it was only after much labor that he got things in shape to even half suit him. Finally, however, he closed the door and went down to camp, where he very impartially took a drink in each of the three saloons. Thus fortified, he sauntered down the trail toward Johnny McAfee's.

As he neared the point where the path from the trail diverged toward Johnny's cabin his steps grew slower and slower. Presently he paused. As he did so he heard some one [illegible] stealthily through the

TRAINING ANIMALS TO ACT.

Educating Dogs and Baboons to Amuse the Public.

Down Brixton way they live, and theirs is one of the nattiest and airiest houses in the road. The milkman sings at the area door, and down from the room on the drawing room floor, where he has been very busy indeed, runs one of the firm to make sure of the supply of milk. If you happened to pass by in the road just as this dairy transaction takes place, you would laugh, even if you were the grimmest and most morose of men. It is altogether too funny. The door opens, the youth hands in some substantial cans—for the firm is a large one, requiring a good deal in the way of their daily dinner, tea and supper—and out of the door the said partner pokes his brown nose in a quiet but very businesslike fashion. He only wants a pair of goggles to convert him into the typical stage doorkeeper who looks out of his lodge in pompous style, inquiring, "What is it you want?"

Instead of goggles our friend of the Brixton firm is attired in something else. A padded oblong erection adorns his back.

At first you might find it difficult to give the thing a name, but when you have presently been admitted to the offices of the firm you will appreciate the virtues of this saddle. Its wearer is a spaniel of the sporting variety, and besides being the keeper of the milk cans he is also present in the character of a thoroughbred race horse, and when he waddled, somewhat stealthily, down to the area door he ought really to have stuck to his guns up stairs, for there, in the large front room, a performance by the entire staff of the firm of Babe & Co. is going on. Just now there is a pause in the performance. The boxing members—three of them in tights, belts and knickers—glower at each other from the seats to which they have retired. A fourth, in gray raiment, sniffs critically at the skipping rope, which two minutes ago served him in the fulfillment of his duties as champion terrier. In the center of the room sits Babe, the head of the firm, whose private family name is Baboon, and on the shoulder of one of the "sleeping partners"—to wit, Mr. and Mrs. Macart, —sits the most intelligent and mischievous looking of little apes. Some years ago Mr. and Mrs. Macart and their nine performing dogs were the delight of London. They "worked" at a big music hall, and great was their success. They were among the most popular soloists on the large music hall stages. In the provinces they were always welcome, and America, their native country, received them and their dogs always with gladness.

Not the least part of their universal popularity they owed to the fact that their performing dogs were a happy family. We saw them on the stage and off, at times when a crowd applauded them and when Mr. Fred Macart was with them all alone behind the scenes. The animals were madly fond of their master and mistress, who taught by kindness, and not by cruelty, and made no virtue of it. "You see," Mr. Macart said in his quiet way, while three hounds attempted to lick his face and two terriers tugged impudently at his trousers legs, "you see, it doesn't answer to frighten the animals. You make them hate and fear you, and they work without spirit, and the public won't stand it and hiss you off the stage. You coax them into learning their tricks, you praise them if they do well and give them just a taste of the whip if they're obstinate or sulky, and you get them just to love to show off. I don't know about trainers of performing animals being paragons of gentleness and patience. We, my wife and I, are fond of our dogs and monkeys, but that's neither here nor there. The point is, you can do with them what you like almost in the way of training them if you train them by kindness. It's the best and, in fact, the only policy." And then Babe, in a sudden fit of affection, bounded upon Mr. Macart's arm, hugged him tightly with her long hairy arms, made a babbling noise of approval and delight and began what looked like studies of phrenology with her master's skull.

"Time!" calls out the master of ceremonies, and into the middle of the room bound the two jolly boxers and begin the most absurd and spirited tussle imaginable. "Give it to him, Pepper!" "Go it, Mustard!" And the comical performance goes on and on till a third gentleman of the same breed of rough coated terriers comes upon the scene. He wears a policeman's uniform and is most imposing to behold in his capacity of representative of the law. He interferes between the prizefighters and would have you believe that he is sternly opposed to such creatures as prize boxers and professional fighters. But in his eyes all the time there gleams a light of intellectual enjoyment of the scene which belies his general demeanor, and the way in which he deals blows right and left for the ostensible purpose of separating the sportsmen shows that his delight is in their work and his own.—Westminster Budget.

Peculiar Chinese Dishes.

Some of the dishes were extremely nice, notably the little shreds of roast mutton, excellently seasoned, such as I learned ever after to call for with confidence at Chinese inns. On the other hand, the chicken was made uneatable, and the eggs on this occasion, I am bound to say, were inexpressibly nasty. The taste for them as eaten in China had need to be acquired, no doubt, for I had been told at Vierny of the wonderful pains and expense at which Chinese gormands preserve their eggs till they are black and putrid, and of which they are as proud when many, many years old as an English squire of his crusted port. I have, moreover, a vague impression, which for the moment I cannot verify, that I somewhere tasted these ancient delicacies and found them good, but on the present occasion my notebook condemns them utterly.

The rissoles of pork sausage were tasty, and so were the French beans, peas and hearts of cabbage stalk cut in slices, and the mandarin oranges preserved in sirup. We helped ourselves to these delicacies as we pleased, but our host every now and then with his chopsticks placed on the plate of one or other of his three guests a choice morsel, which mercifully it was not a matter of unbending etiquette that one should eat. It was polite, of course, occasionally to return the compliment and help him to tidbits with one's knife and fork.—"Chinese Central Asia," Harry Lansdell.

An Expensive Wife.

"Mr. Skinflint, I have brought the account for your late wife's funeral. The expenses amount in all to £4 5s."

Skinflint—What! Four pounds five shillings? I almost wish now she hadn't died!—London Tit-Bits.

Anxious.

She—Oh, Charlie, papa is going to give us $100,000 when we marry!

He—Is that so, darling? Well, suppose we get married a few months sooner than we expected.—Detroit Free Press.

WHAT SHE KNEW.

An Arkansas Woman Who Didn't Tell Too Much at a Time.

"Madam, I am looking for a stray horse," said a man, stopping at an Arkansas house and leaning his chin on the top rail of the fence. "Have you seen anything of him?"

"How long has he been gone?" asked the woman, leaning against the door facing and regarding the man with that inquiring look of curiosity which in the country so plainly speaks of the scarcity of strangers.

"Been gone about two days."

"What sort of a horse was he?"

"Roan, with white fetlocks."

"How old was he?"

"About 10 years."

"Good work nag, I reckon?"

"First rate."

"Are you certain that he has white fetlocks?"

"Certainly. Have you seen anything of him?"

"No, I ain't seen him."

"Have you heard any one speak of seeing him?"

"Yes, since you mention it, I think I have. I heard a man talk about seeing a roan horse with white fetlocks."

"That's my horse. Do you know the man's name?"

"No."

"Where do you suppose I can find him?"

"You can find him out here at the stable."

The stranger went to the stable, looked around, hallooed and returned to the fence.

"He's not there."

"Not now."

"Didn't you know he wasn't there before I went?"

"Yes, I knew he wasn't there before you went."

"Then what did you send me there for?"

"To see him. I knowed he'd be there agin you arrive."

"I'll be blamed if I understand you."

"Now, look here, stranger, you can't make me tell a lie. You axed me if I seed the horse, and I said no. You axed me if I heard anybody speak of the horse, and I said yes. You axed me whar you would find the man, and I told you. You went thar and"—

"But who was the man?"

"Yourself, stranger."

And she turned away to rock a "dugout" cradle, while the stranger, shoving down a panel of fence in his anger, turned away and sauntered down the road.—Detroit Sun.

Modest.

Lady—Well, what do do you want?

Tramp—Me and me pal's left a dispute to you, mim.

Lady—What is the dispute?

Tramp—As to whether you looks more like Mrs. Langtry or Helen of Troy. We had a bet of a lunch on it, mim, and if you'd kindly decide the bet and loan us the lunch we'd be much obliged.—London Quiver.

MIDWINTER SPORTS.

Curlers Escort to Toronto—Twenty Shots Behind at 9 o'clock.

The Curlers' excursion was largely attended, fifty curlers and at least a hundred citizens leaving on yesterday morning's train. At a late hour last night it was impossible to secure a report of the results over the wires from Toronto. A few of the citizens returned on the 11.40 C.P.R. last night. When they left Toronto the rinks were still playing, and Peterborough was 20 shots behind.

A local hockey league has been formed with teams from the Volts, I and II; Collegiate Institute, I and II and town II. The schedule has been arranged as follows:

Collegiate I vs. Collegiate II, Thursday, January 24th.

Peterborough II vs. Volts I, Monday, January 28th.

Collegiate I vs. Volts II, Thursday, January 31st.

Volts II vs. Volts I, Saturday, February 2nd.

Collegiate I vs. Peterborough II, Monday, February 4th.

Volts II vs. Peterborough II, Wednesday, February 6th.

Collegiate II vs. Volts II, Saturday, February 9th.

Collegiate II vs. Voltsl, Tuesday, February 12th.

Collegiate I vs. Volts I, Saturday, February 16th.

Collegiate II vs. Peterborough II, Monday, February 18th.

The officers elected are: President, H. K. R. Kenner; Vice-President, C. LeBrun; Secretary, E. Lord.

Representative Committee, one from each club:—Collegiate II, J. Hamilton; Volts II, E. Lord; Volts I, B. Cluxton; Peterborough II, A. Ferguson; Collegiate I, W. Crossley.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS.

A witness, who will prove very valuable to Bob Fitzsimmons, in case he is tried for the killing of Con Riordan, has been found. The man formerly trained Riordan and will swear that the pugilist, some years ago, was thrown out of a hack on his head and sustained a wound two inches long and down to the skull. The physicians, who attended Riordan, have also been located.

Ives and Schaefer gave an exhibition of 14-inch balk-line billiards at Indianapolis last night. Schaefer started off the game with runs of 186 and 169 before Ives had scored a point, but the champion rallied strongly in the last half of the game with runs of 140 and 221, running out the game in seven innings. Score: Ives—0, 0, 87, 43, 140, 2, 221, 6—[illegible]; average, [illegible]. Schaefer—186, 169, 7, 7, 42, 0, 107—458; averade 65 3 7.

At Kingston last night the Athletics and Limestone II. met in a O. H. A. junior tie game, the former winning by 6 to 0.

At the Milwaukee curling bonspiel, just finished, Kelly's Winnipeg rink won the Hall diamond trophy for the second time.

Petrolea beat Sarnia last night in a Western Ontario Hockey Senior series game by 7 goals to 1. The game was played at Petrolea.

Fighting at Kassala.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—The Politique Coloniale has reports, which are not considered entirely trustworthy, to the effect that the Italian troops have routed a force of 10,000 Dervishes at Kassala. Telegrams from Massowah today state that quiet prevails at Kassala and its vicinity. These advices also state that Ras Mangascia has taken refuge in Tempen, and that his forces have been dispersed.

LAURIER IN MONTREAL.

An Enthusiastic Meeting of Liberals—Sir Oliver Present.

Special to the Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—Windsor Hall was not half so big as the crowd which tried to get into the Liberal meeting last night, and as a consequence hardly half of the members thereof obtained admission.

The silver-tongued Laurier was the principal feature on the program, and his utterances were punctuated with rapturous applause. He spoke for an hour and a half, dealing principally with the Liberal tariff policy, which he declared to be a tariff for revenue only.

The important feature of Mr. Laurier's address was his emphatic declaration that if the Liberals came into power there would be no revolutionary dealing with the tariff, but what Mr. Laurier termed a happy medium of reform for revenue only.

Sir Oliver Mowat, who followed, was complimentary and reminiscent, and promised that Ontario would do its part in the next election. Wm. Paterson, M.P. for South Brant, who was the closing speaker, was favorable and declamatory, and evoked considerable enthusiasm by his strong denunciation of the protective policy.

A Town Burned Out.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 23.—A special to the Republic from Clinton, Mo., says the old town of Johnstown, in Bates county, twenty miles west of here, was burned. No means were at hand for fighting the flames, and the principal business part of the town went up in smoke. The loss will be almost total, as the insurance was light.

THE WEATHER.

Probs.—High westerly and northwesterly winds; mostly fair and much colder; light local snowfalls; fine and very cold tomorrow.

The late R.H. Russell was buried yesterday, the funeral taking place under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters. A large number of friends and relatives accompanied the remains to the grave.

Loan Company's Annual.

The Central Canada Loan and Savings Company held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon, there being present Messrs. Geo. A. Cox, F. G. Cox, Dundas, F. C. Taylor and Lefevre of Lakefield. The annual report will be ready for publication on Saturday.

St. Paul's S. S. Teachers.

St. Paul's Sunday School teachers at their annual meeting elected the following officers: Superintendent, J. A. Fife, B.A.; Asst. Superintendent, W. Madill; Sec. Treas., J. H. Connal; Pianist, Miss Code; Librarians, Robert Strachan, Arthur Lang, Harry Martin and Fred Dixon; Artist, John McCallum.

McCarthy is Coming.

Word was received from Mr. D'Alton McCarth yesterday to the affect that he would be in Peterborough and address a meeting on the evening of Feb. 8th. Mr. McCarthy sends this reply to an earnest invitation extended him by his supporters and sympathizers. A meeting to arrange for his reception will be held probably on Saturday.

Complimentary Reference.

The fact that Mr. Geo. A. Cox has recently added largely to his interest in the Toronto Railway Company and will become a member of the Board of Directors of that most important financial concern will do much to strengthen the standing of the railway company with the public. Mr. Cox has a continental reputation as a safe and successful financier, and his name is a pillar of strength to any institution to which he lends to.—Globe.

Burn's Anniversary Concert.

The Burn's Anniversary Concert given in the opera house last night by the St. Andrew's Society, proved to be one of the refined successes of the season. A large and fashionable audience was present, and it is safe to say everybody was delighted with the excellence and merit of the entertainment. Of course Maggie Barr, (Mrs. Fenwick) the noted singer of Scotch ballards, was the favorite. Her songs last evening were as tuneful and sweet and were sang with the same power of tone and feeling of yore. Maggie Barr has neither retrograded in vocal excellence nor in the opinion of her many admirers. The numbers of Miss Annie Louise White were rendered with consummate skill. Mr. George Fox, violin virtuoso, fully sustained the high reputation that preceded him. The playing of Mr. W. H. Hewlett gave evidence of complete mastery of the piano. Master Norman Grahame Fraser danced himself right into the hearts of the audience and was encored several times. The entertainment was high-class and refined in every particular and an entire success.

WARDENSHIP.

It was with the greatest of pleasure THE TIMES learned of the election of Mr. J. B. Pearce, of Norwood, to the Wardenship of the County of Peterborough, because of the sterling character of the man and his fitness for a responsible position. We congratulate Mr. Warden Pearce upon his selection and the mark of public confidence so justly accorded him, and also the county councillors for the wisdom of their choice. The honor is well deserved and wisely bestowed. Mr. Pearce is a native of Norwood. He has been reeve of that village for six years and has held many other positions of confidence and trust. Mr. Pearce will make a good warden. The affairs of the county, under his directorship, are safe.

SHE WHACKED THE DUDE.

This Savings Bank Janitress Had no Time To Waste in Talk.

It was 9 a.m. yesterday when the janitress of a Savings Institution, a robust and red-cheeked woman, was sweeping the snow and dirt off the sidewalk in front of the bank. She was late and tried to make up time by vigorous use of her broom.

Presently came along a fashionably dressed young man wearing patent leather shoes, and his creased trousers were turned up English fashion. The woman swept snow and slush on the young man's shoes. He protested and she whacked him over the head with her broom. He fled and she resumed her task. A considerable crowd enjoyed the sight.

MRS. JAMIESON'S CASE.

She Denies a Slanderous Statement Circulated in Town.

At the request of Mrs. John Jamieson, the following letter is published, being a refutation of certain untrue statements about herself which the writer claims have been circulated in town:

To the People of Peterborough:

I have been a resident of Peterborough for twelve or thirteen years and it is with pain I have heard it asserted that I was not married to the late John A. Jamieson. In reply I can say we were married by the Rev. Mr. Locke, of the George street Methodist church, at the parsonage, August 1st, 1890. It will be useless to contradict this for I have too many witnesses, besides my marriage certificate to sustain my word. Were it only myself concerned, I would treat this slander with silent contempt, but for the sake of my dead husband's honor, I am compelled to write this letter. If I hear of any more such assertions I shall not warn, but will see what the law will do for me.

MRS. JOHN A. JAMIESON.

PAPER MONEY.

A Source of Transmission for Small-pox—A Case in Point.

A letter received by the Provincial Board of Health from the Medical Health Officer at Aylmer gives an interesting account of the probable source of the small-pox cases there and at Guelph. It appears that Henry Percy, the Aylmer patient, was twice in St. Thomas during the last couple of weeks, but, so far as could be ascertained, he was not exposed while there to the risk of contagion. Swartz, the Guelph student who is ill with the same disease, was at that time working for a Mr. Bothwell, a cheesemaker in the township, from whom Percy was accustomed to buy cheese. Soon after Percy's visit to St. Thomas he went to Bothwell's place to pay him some money, but, as Bothwell also owed Swartz an equal if not larger amount, the sum in question was paid by Percy direct to Swartz.

Both men were taken ill soon after, and at the same time. It is reported that another man, to whom Percy paid some of the same money, is also down, and the curious chain of circumstances points to the conclusion that the infection was transmitted from one to the other by means of the bills.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED

For the Reception of the Cabinet Ministers on February 7.

A meeting of the Executive of the Conservative Association was held in the Mayor's office yesterday afternoon, when arrangements were completed for the reception of the visiting Cabinet Ministers.

The Ministers will arrive from Bowmanville on the 5 o'clock Grand Trunk train on the afternoon of February 7th. They will be met by a deputation of the members of the Conservative Association and prominent citizens. Headed by the band the party will proceed to the Oriental hotel where a reception will be held.

Dinner will be served privately in a private room. Messrs. Stevenson, Burnham and Kendry will attend on behalf of and represent the Association.

At 7.30 the Ministers will be escorted to the opera house and at 8 o'clock the speaking will commence. The hall will be tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The visiting Ministers will be: Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister of Finance; Hon. John Haggart, Minister of Railways and Canals; Hon. Clarke Wallace, Comptroller of Customs; Hon. John Costigan, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon. Joseph Ouimet, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Dr. Montague.

The affair will be a grand Conservative rally in every sense of the word. Peterborough is indeed fortunate to be visited by such distinguished personages.

And now that the WHITE GOODS SALE is well under way, we begin to plan for spring. No idle heels dangle over our counters. The entire organization is thoroughly wide-awake, and quicker than ever before to serve your interests acceptably.

We make business doubly active by anticipating needs, enlarging stocks and constantly adding such new goods as you seem to want. There's no limit to the possibilities of trade in this unpretentious building, and those who watch developements here will be more than surprised. Success grows with what it feeds upon, and when we emphasize trade activity in January, we force the momentum of busy days and quick sales right through the year.

WHITE GOODS SALE

We want everybody to know about it. Facts have already been printed which prove our right to your interest. When and where before have you known perfectly new goods to sell at bargain prices? Energy and enterprise, coupled with the biggest possible outlet for reliable goods, enables us to sell at these extremely low prices.

TURNBULL'S

As we enter the New Year we wish our many customers in town and country a happy and prosperous one.

January is our annual Stocktaking month and we must be finished by the 1st of February and we are now measuring and throwing out all odd lines on tables, to be cleared before that date. Such as

Ends of Dress Goods
Ends of Tweeds
Ends of Shirtings
Ends of Prints
Ends of Carpets
Ends of Cottons
Ends of Cretonnes
Ends of Embroideries
Ends of Laces
Ends of Ribbbons

These are all good, fresh goods, only in remnants and will be sold at remnant prices, We have still about 180 suits of that very heavy all wool Underclothing at $1 a suit. Sold everywhere at $1 50 Everyone who needs a suit of heavy underwear should see them.

The balance of our Sealettes, Heavy Curls and Mantles have been going steadily at the prices they were marked since we last talked about them, but we have still a few good Mantles and Cloths left, which some one will get a bargain of. We show a window of all styles of Hats and Placques, your choice for 35 cents. We prefer to sell them at this price rather than pack them away.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

THE RABBI RAN A RAFFLE

AND PASSED A CHEQUE WHICH PROVED TO BE BOGUS.

Rev. Phillip Schweitz's Visit to Toronto Fraught With Important Consequences to Himself—A Sensation in Jewish Circles.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Rev. Phillip Schweitz arrived in Toronto five weeks ago, and soon made known to the most influential members of the Jewish fraternity that his mission here was to solicit aid for a financially embarrassed Hebrew congregation, situate in the poorer district of Rochester, N. Y. A raffle had been organized for a pair of silver candlesticks. The sale price of the tickets was placed at the nominal sum of 50 cents.

Among the first whose acquaintance Schweitz formed was Herman A. Gordon, 119 Edward street, employed with A. Bradshaw & Son. Mr. Gordon's sympathies were enlisted in the work in which the stranger represented himself to be laboring, and he invited the reverend gentleman to his home. Mrs. Gordon and Schweitz at once recognized each in the other a playmate of childhood days in Russia, and this recognition welded more firmly the bond of friendship already formed between the husband and Schweitz.

SOLD MANY TICKETS.

Mrs. Gordon next day introduced Mr. Schweitz to many of the most influential Hebrews in the city and assisted him in the sale of the tickets.

The day before his departure, Schweitz, presenting a cheque drawn on the First National Bank, Buffalo, asked Mr. Gordon to endorse it for him. Gordon at first demurred and asked the advice of his wife. Mrs. Gordon had known Schweit's parents to be highly respectable people and she prevailed upon her husband to endorse the cheque. He subsequently drew the money from the Bank of Hamilton and handed it over to his clerical friend. The cheque returned to Buffalo marked "No Funds," and Gordon reported the matter to the Detective Department and word was at once wired to Rochester.

WELL KNOWN IN ROCHESTER.

A despatch from Rochester last night said: Rev. Mr. Schweitz and his wife are boarding with Levi Bermin. Berman is secretary of the Rhine street Synagogue, over which Schweitz presides as pastor. The despatch from Toronto was shown him. He looked over it carefully, and expressed surprise at the accusations made against him, and stated that no intimation had before reached him that he was wanted across the border. Schweitz is about 35 years of age. He appears to be well educated. He speaks English with a strong foreign accent.

GREATLY SURPRISED.

He was greatly surprised at the information brought him by the reporter and emphatically denied passing the cheque upon Gordon with fraudulent intent. He said that when he went to Toronto from Montreal on Thursday last, he found himself in need of money. He appealed to Gordon and suggested that the latter either loan him money, or else endorse the cheque, signed with Miller's name. Gordon chose the latter course, and after securing his signature Schweitz had the cheque cashed. Schweitz claimed that the cheque was received from Miller, who is a travelling man, in return for money loaned him by the pastor; that he received it in good faith and passed it without the slightest suspicion that it was bogus. He did not know Miller's present address, Schweitz showed a letter signed by A. Levy, president of the Rhine street congregation, authorizing him to sell tickets at 50 cents each for a pair of silver candlesticks, which were to be raffled off for the benefit of the synagogue on Jan. 15.

THE RAFFLE POSTPONED.

On account of the small demand for the tickets the raffle was postponed by order of the officers until Feb. 24. He also had a letter, signed by Dr. Benjamin Cohn, pastor of a Buffalo synagogue, recommending him to the graces of the Jewish public in general. The letter from the president of the Rhine street congregation was sealed with the seal of the synagogue. Berman the secretary of the congregation, told the reporter that Schweitz had gone to Canada with the consent of the congregation to raise funds and confirmed the statement of pastor that the raffle had been postponed.

SCHWEITZ ENDORSED.

He said that Schweitz would not intentionally pass a bogus cheque. Schweitz left the house with the reporter for the purpose of sending a telegram to Gordon, expressive of his willingness to make good the amount of cheque which the Toronto man endorsed at his solicitation. He denied having swindled anyone out of a cent, either in Toronto or Montreal. C. Schweitz has been in the city for about six months. He came here from New York and was chosen pastor of the Rhine street synagogue shortly after he arrived in town.

It Is Not Believed that None Were Drowned in in the Ohio.

Special to the Times.

ST. LOUIS, MO., 24.—Capt. Conian, of the lost steamer, State of Missouri, reiterates his story to the effect that no lives were lost in the disaster of Saturday night. The general public in this part of the country, however, knows to the contrary. There were too many eyewitnesses who saw men drown all round them. Capt. Conian also states that there were only nine passengers on board when the boat went down.

W. N. Crockett, a farmer, living two miles below this city, today found the cabin passengers of the wrecked State of Missouri, and reference to it showed there were 15 cabin and two deck passengers.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Shocking Accident to a Child in St. Cunnegonde.

Special to the Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—A shocking accident occurred at St. Cunnegonde Tuesday evening by which Anne Lamarre, the two-year old daughter of Mr. E. Lamarre, barber, of the town, met with a terrible death. Mrs. Lamarre had left the child alone in an apartment while she went to another part of the house to attend to work. The little girl in some way obtained possession of some matches which were lying on a table nearby, and after playing with them for a while she lighted one.

The mother was attracted back to the room by the child's screams. Her clothes were in a blaze and before the terrified woman could extinguish the fire her daughter was fatally burned. She died shortly after.

An inquest was held yesterday and a verdict of accidental death returned.

CHURCHILL DEAD.

A Brilliant Statesman Passes Away—Son of the Sixth Duke of Marlborough.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Lord Randolph Churchill died at 6 o'clock this morning, surrounded by his family and friends.

His tour around the world, which was undertaken with the hope of improving his health, did not have the expected result, and his journey home was hastened in order that he might die in England.

Lord Randolph was the second son of the sixth Duke of Marlborough and Lady Frances Anne, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Londonderry. He filled the post of Secretary of State for India, under Lord Salisbury, in 1885. He married in 1874 Jennie Jerome, of New York.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—During the morning a private funeral service for the family only over the body of Lord Randolf Churchill was held at the Churchill residence.

The remains will be interred on Monday next at Bladon church, near Blenheim, where the two younger brothers of the deceased are buried. The mother of the late Lord Randolf Churchill, Frances Ann Emily, Duchess of Marlborough, is seriously ill.

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

A PRISONER WALKS OUT OF COURT AND ESCAPES.

Accident to a Street Car Conductor—The Hotelkeepers' Association—A Bowmanville Crook Sent Down—The News from Toronto.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Just after the police court concluded this morning a man without a coat or waistcoat, apparently working about the place, walked into the dock from the cage by the prisoners' staircase and opening the door of the dock, passed out into the crowd and disappeared.

There was nothing very desperate or daring about the man and the manner in which he walked out of court was without hurry and not noticeable by any peculiarity. No one dreamt that he was a highway robber making his escape. Yet such he was. On Dec. 25th James Longford was committed to the Central Prison for 12 months for highway robbery. This morning he was brought up to answer a charge of larceny and was remanded.

James does not like the Central, and so when he got down into the cage again made up his mind to shake the whole concern. He took off his coat and waistcoat, rolled up his shirtsleeves and grasping the bars of the cage with his hands managed by a tremendous effort to spring them enough to permit the passage of his body. He squeezed through and then coolly walked upstairs.

Those who saw him paid no attention, thinking that he was a workman engaged in some odd job about the building, and in a few minutes James was outside, a free man, having hoodwinked the lynx eyed guardians of the peace. His escape was not discovered for 25 minutes. He is 25 years old, 5 feet 5½ inches high, with blue eyes and dark hair.

FELL TWENTY FEET.

A street car conductor named John Young, who lives at 61 Jarvis street, was frightfully injured this morning between seven and eight o'clock at the Frederick street power house.

While engaged on the second floor he fell down the elevator shaft, alighting twenty feet below on his face. Dr. Sinclair was called in attendance and found that the unfortunate man's face had been terribly lacerated. He also sustained severe bruises about the body.

The injured man was removed to the General Hospital in the ambulance. He will recover, but throughout life his face will be awfully disfigured.

HOTELKEEPERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Toronto branch of the Hotelkeepers' Association yesterday afternoon elected these officers: President, John R. Wilson; first vice-president, H. Brown; second vice-president, J. R. Marshall; treasurer, John Stormont; auditors, S. Richardson and T. H. George.

There were many complaints of the inactivity of the big hotel men and those near the stations in the interests of the association. They are ready to profit by the work of the association, but sadly lacking when personal effort or money is needed.

It was proposed to call the organization "The Trade Protection Society," and admit butchers, bakers, dairymen and others who supply hotels. This, it is said, would make the association much stronger, and the dealers are anxious to come in.

A BOWMANVILLE CROOK.

Perry McWain, the Bowmanville crook who has been remanded several times, came before Magistrate Denison this morning on seven charges of theft.

He presented an ugly appearance as he had a broken jaw, sustained by falling into a cattle guard four weeks ago.

The prisoner was found guilty on four charges and committed to the Central for one year.

PARKER DISCHARGED.

Chief Justice Meredith has given judgment discharging Charles Parker, the well-known lacrosse player, who was committed a few days ago for alleged larceny of a trifling nature from his employer.

It Is Too Difficult a Task.

PARIS, Jan. 24.—M. Bourgeois has finally given up the task of attempting to form a cabinet.

Italian Politics.

ROME, Jan. 23.—The political parties of Italy are preparing for a general election. The Socialists have selected as candidates a number of their comrades who were sentenced to imprisonment for taking part in the riots in Sicily.

Men and Mules Killed.

STURGIS, Ky., Jan. 23.—About 11.30 o'clock last night at the mines of the Trade water Coal Co. five kegs of powder inside the mines exploded, killing five men and two mules.

Lost His Thumb.

HESPELER, Jan. 24.—Mr. J. Fisher, sawyer at Krib's mills, met with a painful accident. While running the circular saw his left hand was drawn in, severing the thumb. All of the fingers were badly cut, but the doctor thinks he can save them. Dr. Whitelaw, of Hespeler, is at Guelph attending Mr. Swartz, the smallpox patient. He expects to be away sixty days.

STRIKE ALMOST OVER.

CONSIDERABLE WIRE CUTTING AND RIOTING STILL.

The Companies Will Be Masters of the Situation in a Few Days—Many Shots Fired—One Man Dies.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.—Some rather indiscriminate shooting has been indulged in by the militia. Another citizen was shot today and many people had very narrow escapes. Wire cutting, obstructing tracks and bombarding cars are still continued in spite of the presence of the troops.

The strike of the linemen and electricians causes the companies much trouble but six new lines were opened today and they are bringing many men from outside places. Presidents Seuls, Norton and Wicker says the three systems have practically won the strike and that traffic will be completely restored in a few days. The strikers proposed to arbitrate the matters in dispute but the presidents positively refused.

CARNEY DIES.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.—Thomas Carneye who, while working on the roof of a house on Hicks street yesterday, was shot by the soldiers of the Thirteenth regiment who were guarding a car which had been started on one of the lines, died at the hospital this morning.

William McGrath, a conductor, and Richard Lyman, a motorman, were arrested for pulling down trolley wires this morning.

The wiring cutting continues to be more extensive than at any time since the strike began.

LINEMEN GO OUT.

The linemen and electrical workmen, after much deliberation, decided to strike out of sympathy with the conductors and motormen. Their action will increase the troubles of the presidents of the trolley lines. The latter made the best showing in the operation of cars of any day since the strike was ordered. Six new lines were opened and more cars were run on the others which have been open all of this week.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

Houses were riddled with bullets, windows were broken and many people had narrow escapes. From one window a man pointed a loaded revolver. He was captured. Another man was arrested who threw coal. About 40 shots were fired by the men of the 13th Brooklyn Regiment. Early in the day Troop A, New York City's swell organization, charged with drawn sabres to disperse a mob, which was stoning a gang of non union workmen repairing tracks. In other instances troops fired at windows from which stones were thrown at them and used their bayonets to disperse crowds. Wire cutting, obstructing tracks and bombarding cars were continued in spite of the presence of the troops.

DID UP A GREEN GOODS MAN.

John Sheffield, of Manchester, Carries a Black-Jack.

Special to the Times.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Jan. 24.—A man having the appearance of a countryman and giving his name as John Sheffield, of Manchester, Wayne county, N.Y., entered the police headquarters this forenoon and said he had just got the best of a green goods man at Taylor's hotel.

The green goods man, he said, took a roll of bills from the inside pocket of his overcoat, when they were in a bedroom together and threw it on the bed, saying: "That is the kind of stuff we are dealing." Sheffield examined the money and saw it was genuine. He then struck the green goods man with a black jack, knocking him down. He grabbed the money from the bed and ran downstairs.

Chief Murphy told Sheffield that he would have to hold him on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The Chief took possession of the roll of bills, which amounted to $1,600.

SESSION OR NO SESSION.

That is the Question the Government Has Not Yet Answered.

Special to the Times.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—Premier Bowell, who was attending the meeting of the Treasury Board this forenoon, was asked by your correspondent what truth there was in the report in today's Government organs that Parliament would meet on Feb. 21st. Sir Mackenzie replied that no date had been fixed for meeting of Parliament. It, however, looks more like a session now than a few days ago, but still the matter is not finally settled.

Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, assistant president of the C.P.R., is here on business with the Government.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

Sir William Whiteway May Enter the Cabinet Again Next Week.

Special to the Times.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 24.—It is reported that Sir William Whiteway will enter the Cabinet next week as Premier; Mr. Greene, the Provincial leader, retaining the Attorney-Generalship.

The Allan Line steamer Assyrian, which arrived from Liverpool today, brought considerable specie, together with many contributions of money, food and clothing forwarded by charitable people in England.

Government supporters are warmly urging confederation with Canada.

EXPLOSION IN A MINE.

Five Miners Killed and Buried in the Wreckage.

Special to the Times.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Jan. 24.—A special to the Republic from Sturgis, Ky., says about 11.30 last night at the mines of the Trade Water Coal Company five kegs of powder exploded inside the mine, killing five men and caving the mine in on them. About 75 men were at work at 2 a. m., digging the bodies out of the debris.

The bodies of the five miners killed in an explosion of powder in the mines last night were recovered today.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

A Case of Malpractice Results in Death at St. Albans, Vt.

Special to the Times.

ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan. 24.—Lydia A. Stevenson, who is charged with murder and subsequent degrees of crime resulting from a criminal operation upon Miss M. Estella Houghton, was arraigned in the Municipal Court today on three separate complaints, containing seven counts, under different sections of the statutes, from murder down to malpractice. She was recommitted without bail until 2 p.m. Monday for further examination.

A Handsome Lady's Opinion

My head of hair, as you may observe, is perfect. Yours, if not, may become so by using Tully's Chemical Hair Grower. A STEVENSON, Secretary.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 25 1895.

Good morning!

Mr. Hartey's prospects of success were never brighter. Both Archbishop Cleary and Principal Grant keeping quiet.

Councillor Sproule made a valuable suggestion to a TIMES reporter a few days ago. His proposal is for the town to buy the extensive gravel bed at Hilliard's and arrange with the street railway to deliver it at certain points, using dump cars for the purpose. This gravel, it is claimed, is equal to the broken stone, and handled in this way all our leading streets would soon be macadamized.

The contract for the new Russian loan of 5000,000,000*f*. for the Siberian Railway has been signed. A Paris correspondent says that this loan realizes a favorite idea of the late Tsar, who for eight years hoped to see it executed, and his son regards the scheme as a sacred bequest. He has accordingly adhered to it without any alteration. Success, the correspondent says, is perfectly certain especially as the terms are tempting.

The absurdity of the present police arrangements is apparent when it is known that two men travel together during the night up and down George street, while a third sits with his ear to the telephone at the station. If the latter should dose off, as it frequently happens, one of the other drops in and wakes him up. And over these men we place a boss policeman at $800 per year, and perquisites. Surely the force needs reorganizing.

Those who attended the Mayor's oyster supper resolved themselves into a mutual administrative society. Police Magestrate Dumble professed a great fondness for Chief Constable Rozel; the mayor referred in eloquent terms to the mighty legal attainments of the Town Solicitor; the Town Solicitor daubed a heavy coat of whitewash on the back of the Town Engineer, and so it went around. This was all for the benefit of the new councillors, who, it is feared, will be manly enough to carry out the wishes of a vast majority of the people and vote for a complete change in the legal, police and engineering departments.

Newfoundland is to send a delegation to Canada with a view to seeing on what terms she can come in out of the wet. For years the people of Newfoundland have been comforting themselves with the fond delusion that Canada was waiting for them with open arms, but they have held aloof. Now that they are anxious for union they find that the situation is not quite what they fancied it. There are a good many questions to be carefully considered before Newfoundland can be taken into the confederation. Newfoundland is heavily burdened with debt and is a bone of international contention. The diplomats of Great Britain and France have never been able to adjust the long-standing differences, and should Newfoundland become a part of the Dominion it simply means that this troublesome question will be turned over to Canada. What reason is there for supposing that Canada could settle it more satisfactorily than England? Looking at it from all points of view, the Newfoundland nut is a rather nasty one to crack.

THE DUTY OF THE COUNCIL.

There is a loud call for a change in the head of the legal department of the corporation, as well as a complete reorganization of the police force. The new members of the council, who know the feelings of the people on these questions, must not allow themselves to be used by cunning wirepullers, who have axes to grind. It is all very well for men like the mayor and Messrs. Dumble, Edwards, Belcher and Chief Roszel to whitewash one another, as they did the other evening at the mayor's supper. It is a poor sort of a councillor who will be turned from his purpose of voting for a change on this account.

The new council know the wishes of a vast majority of the people, and it is their duty to give effect to these wishes.

TWO FARCES.

The Dominion government organized a royal commission on the prohibition question. This commission traveled all over the country and took evidence which ought to convince it that brewers, saloon-keepers, liquor dealers, and those fond of a glass, are opposed to prohibition; while "temperance" men generally are in favor of it. The expensive travelling and hearing of "evidence" being completed, the comission will publish that evidence in a big book, at an enormous expense to the country, and that will be the last of it.

The Ontario government sent out a royal commission to discover whether county officials should be paid by fees or by salary. To this end the commission traveled all over the province and examined many people. They found that all officials who were growing fat on fees, and their friends, were quite satisfied with the existing state of affairs—not one of the fee-fed being of opinion that it would be expedient to cut his salary down. They also found that some others were opposed to the fee system, and beleved in fixed salaries.

Both these commissions examined many people; but the prohibition commission did not examine one in a hundred of the population of the province, so that, as an expression of popular opinion the "evidence" goes for nothing. The Dominion government will not introduce prohibitory legislation as a result of the report of the prohibition commission, nor will Sir Oliver's government make any change in the mode of paying county officials by reason of the report of the fee commission. It is possible that Sir Oliver may make a change, but if he does it will be in consequence of the fact that a majority—or a very dangerous minority—of the legislature insists upon it. Then he will find his excuse in the report of the commission.

Neither government has any too much money, and it would be as well to put a stop to this royal commission farce.

The representives of the people in parliament or in legislature assembled ought to be able to decide the prohibition question and the fee question much better than any commission can do it.

THE LATEST MOVE OF JAPANESE.

That the Japanese cannot be [illegible] inaction by illusory overtures for peace is manifest from the fact that they have landed a large force near Wei-hai-wei with the evident intention of reducing that fortress, and have bombarded Teng-Chow, also situated on the promonory which forms the northeastern part of the Chinese province of Shantung. These demonstrations on the coast of China proper are not only of obvious strategic importance, but are likely to produce a profound moral effect on the perplexed, plundered, and hitherto deceived subjects of the Manchu dynasty. The capture of Wei-hai-wei by the power which is already master of Port Arthur will give it absolute control of the entrance to the Gulf of Pechili, and should enable it to gain possession of the remnant of the Chinese navy. Now that, moreover, the dreaded "Woken" have actually appeared on the sacred soil of the Middle Kingdom, the lying reports of victories, concocted at Pekin, will no longer be believed; and the patent failure of the Manchu Government to defend the country will exite such widespread distrust as to render almost impossible an organization of the national resources for defence.

We call China's overtures for peace illusory, because the absence of anything like haste on the part of her agents to begin negotiations indicates that their only purpose is to check the Japanese advance until the spring, by which time it is hoped that a large Chinese army can be trained by European officers and equipped with perfect weapons. The experience of Ward and Gordon in the Taiping rebellion proved that the Chinese, if discipzined and armed in European fashion may be made formidable soldiers. That the naming of commissioners to arrange terms for peace has no other object but delay is taken for granted, we observe, by the London newspapers, which know the real inetntions of the Manchu authorities through their correspondents at Pekin, Tientsin, and Shanghai.

brush at his right, and in another moment his friend, "Wabash" Hicks, confronted him. Both men reddened, then hysterically gave vent to an unoriginal "Hello!"

"Where goin?" asked Briggs, with lively interest.

"Oh, 'er jes' chasin that dam' pinto burro agin," lied Hicks uneasily. "Where you?"

"Me? Oh, w'y, I got t' go clear over t' th' ole Niwat toolshop! S'm' things over there I want."

"Come on," said "Wabash" briskly. "I'll go over a ways with ye."

They started off down the trail together. There was a certain constraint manifest, and as they passed the McAfee cabin both looked straight ahead.

After a few minutes' walking Briggs halted. "Come t' think, I don't b'lieve," he remarked, rubbing his unshaven chin and looking thoughtfully at the ground, "that I'll go over t'day. Don't think I'll need them things fer a day 'r so. Expect t' find y'r burro up yere? Well, so long."

Hicks watched "Large's" big form go swaying back up the trail. Then he scratched his head reflectively and started off on a new tack to find the burro, and, oddly enough, he presently struck a higher trail that led back toward McAfee's, which trail he followed slowly.

"Large" Briggs hurried back toward Johnny's with a certain degree of determination, but this faded as, coming down the hill whereon his new claim was located, he saw Singlefoot Sheridan.

"D—n that Irish tarrier," he muttered. "Where's he goin, I wonder?" for Singlefoot was headed toward McAfee's Mecca. Briggs sneaked back into the brush and watched the newcomer. Just below the Irishman met Hicks. They talked a moment; then both started off in entirely new directions, leaving Briggs free to emerge from his hiding place.

The latter walked slowly, nonchalantly past Johnny's. He did not see Ben Reed hiding in the brush, and he was totally unconscious of the presence of Colonel Larkin behind a tree on the other side of the trail. He presently met, however, one Larry Brown, who was strolling down toward McAfee's.

Two persons on horseback rode quietly but at a good pace toward the Mogollon mountains alone about midnight. Both bubbled over with glee.

"Oh, Bill, but this was the softest I ever struck!" gurgled the smaller one, leaning over the pommel of his saddle in a paroxysm of laughter.

"Wait till you're out of the woods, Tommy," remarked the other grimly. "We haven't got away yet. But, say, it was too blamed funny for any use. Seven or eight different jays held me up on the quiet during the afternoon, and each and every one insisted on my taking 20 or so, and that big Briggs chap! He was just bound we should take his cabin. I told him we'd move in the morning. We're moving."

"But, say, Bill, what did you say in the note?"

"Oh, something about like this:

> "GENTLEMEN—Please accept the assurance of my friend Mr. Smith, the well known (by another name) female impersonator, and yours truly, that we heartily appreciate not only the courtesies extended us, but the fact that you are the choicest collection of suckers we have met anywhere in our travels. Cheerfully yours, WILLIAM WHITE."

"Bill, the public is dead wrong. Who says we're hamfatters? We're stars, that's what."

"A-ha!" sneered Miss Denver Moll, after the manner of her sex, addressing Mr. Dunn, who sat with her in the wineroom of his employer's saloon that afternoon, "don't feel so —— smart, do ye? Will go flyin after female strangers, will ye? You all's a lot o' fools. Hear me? Didn't I tell ye so?"

"Have another 'jolt,' Moll," suggested Mr. Dunn meekly.—Lester Ketchum in San Francisco Chronicle.

A Noise From Human Bones.

Among savage nations it is often customary to use human bones for the purpose of making horns, and a terrible screech can be brought out of these awful instruments. The braves in many Southern American tribes in the vicinity of the Amazon employ these peculiarly constructed horns as instruments of war, playing on them as they enter into conflict, and employing their harsh, screeching tones to drown the cries of the wounded and inspire their foes with terror. The chief warriors of the tribe make it one of the main points of their fighting to capture or kill the chosen chiefs of the other side, not to eat them or take their scalps, but to make horns out of their bones. Armed with these peculiar instruments, they march a second time against the hostile tribe, playing the battle music, which is to encourage their own men, on the bones of the chiefs of those whom they march to oppose. A warrior, in fact, may be the chosen brave of a tribe one day, and the next day part of him may be turned into an instrument of martial music with which his brethren are scared.—Family Journal.

THE DYING CENTURY.

[When the time approaches for the century plant, or American aloe, to blossom, a spearlike scape shoots up from its stem, which rapidly thickens to a treelike trunk, or tower, surmounted by a magnificent pannicle of blossoms. The vitality of the plant is exhausted by the effort, and it speedily withers and dies.]

The century hath bloomed. Each growing year
 Unfolded like a wider, greener frond
 Charmed from the stem by nature's magic wand,
Foil after foil, until the end drew near.
Then high in air it raised its emerald spear
 In triumph, and its crown of glory donned,
 Each petal glistening with a diamond,
For its impending doom a dewy tear.

The great White City was the white rayed flower
 That crowned the ripe years of the century.
In widening fronds came forth its life and power,
Till, like the aloe's suddenly rising tower,
 Its hoarded strength in one grand ecstasy
 Was spent, and now the century must die.
 —E. P. Jackson in Donahoe's Magazine.

HOW SOME MEN TALK.

The Senseless Sort of Conversation With Which They Greet Each Other.

It would puzzle a stranger to judge of the conversational abilities of Chicago men by the chat which usually follows a meeting of friends on the street. This is one chat taken verbatim:

"Hello, old man!"

"Hello, yourself! How's tricks?"

"Oh, so so; can't kick! How's things coming with you?"

"Right along. Haven't seen you for a month. How are you taking it?"

"Easy. Anything new with you?"

"Not a thing; same old song. Well, so long."

"So long. Take care of yourself."

One of the men was a bank president, the other a wholesale dry goods merchant.

A board of trade leader met a prominent insurance manager. Both are well read men, of wide information and are accounted good after dinner speakers. It was:

"Hello, old man!"

"Hello, Billy! How's tricks?"

"Nothing extra; about the same. How's the world using you?"

"Can't kick in these times. How's your conduct?"

"Same as usual. Anything new up your way?"

"Not a thing; same old song. Going my way?"

"No. So long."

"Well, so long. Look out for yourself."

A Dearborn street lawyer met a La Salle street lawyer. They are high in legal circles, have a fine standing in court and are cultivated, refined gentlemen. It was:

"Hello, old man!"

"Why, hello! How are you?"

"First class. How's your corporosity?"

"Haven't a word to say. Business good?"

"Some coming in; nothing to brag of. How's the world using you?"

"Can't complain. Don't see much of you. What's new with you?"

"Nothing; same as usual. How's it coming with you?"

"So so; getting a living. Well, so long, old man. I'll see you later."

"So long. Take care of yourself."

"Sure."—Chicago Record.

Old Fashioned Prayers.

New England preachers of a hundred years ago were given to great plainness of speech. One of them, the Rev. Joseph Penniman, while settled in Bedford, Mass., and afterward, while pastor of the church in Harvard, acquired no little reputation for what the historian of Harvard calls his "irreverent way of offering information to the Omniscient." At the time when the British troops were advancing upon Lexington Mr. Penniman prayed from his pulpit:

"We pray thee, O Lord, that thou wouldst send these British soldiers where they will do some good, for thou knowest we have no use for them about here."

During a season of drought he prayed eloquently that the Lord would "vouchsafe that the bottles of heaven may be uncorked and their refreshing waters poured upon the parched fields."

Soon the drought was broken. Day after day the rain fell. The minister felt that the good work was being overdone. So he prayed again:

"We did ask, O Lord, that thou wouldst uncork the bottles of heaven, but we sought not that thou shouldst throw away the stopples."

At another time the orchards of Harvard were devastated by insects, and the minister put up this petition:

"We pray, O Lord, that thou wilt take pity on us and remove from our midst these voracious canker worms, for if thou lookest over this town thou wilt see that every apple tree is as red as a fox's tail."—Youth's Companion.

WEAKNESSES OF GENIUS.

Great Men Who Have Been Conspicuously Deficient In Mental and Moral Health.

Dr. James Weir observes that mechanical geniuses, or those who deal mainly with material facts, do not, as a rule, show any signs of mental degeneration. In proof of this one need only instance Darwin, Galilei, Edison, Maxim, Watt, Rumsey, Howe, Morse, etc. It is only the genius of aestheticism, the genius of the emotions, that is generally accompanied by unmistakable signs of degeneration. Swinburne's poems show the mental bias of their author, who is described as peculiar and eccentric. Many of the men who have aided in making the world's history were victims of epilepsy, as was Julius Cesar, military leader, statesman and author. Many men of genius have suffered from spasmodic and choreic movements, notably Lenau, Montesquieu, Buffon, Dr. Johnson, Santeuil, Thomas, Campbell, Napoleon and Socrates.

Suicide, essentially a symptom of mental disorder, has carried off many a man of genius, including such immortals as Chatterton, Blount, Haydon, Clive and David. Alcoholism and morphinism are now recognised as evidences of degeneration and have had as victims Coleridge, Sheridan, Steele, Addison, Hoffman, Charles Lamb, Burns and many others. In men of genius the moral sense is sometimes obtunded or absent. Sallust, Seneca and Bacon were suspected felons; Rousseau, Byron, Forcola and Carsee were grossly immoral, while Casanova, the gifted mathematician, was a common swindler.—London Public Opinion.

Patti's Romance.

A distinguished instance of a complete revulsion of feeling over one's first impression is said to be afforded in the case of Mme. Adelina Patti. Some years ago she took a pronounced dislike to a French tenor, allowing her unfavorable impression to influence her professionally to the degree that she refused to sing with him. Gradually, however, she grew able to tolerate, then grew fond of and finally, when she added Nicolini to her name, married him.

HOW THEY MET.

'Twas In a Crowd, and the Place Was the Keeley Institute.

There have been many strange experiences gone through by the worshipers of the Keeley institute in Dwight, Ills., more so perhaps three or four years ago than at present, when there are so many branches established in different states. One of these experiences happened some three years ago.

There was a brainy, brilliant crowd of literary, fashionable, thespian and legal lights there who had all gathered to secure a respite from the cravings for liquor, opium, morphine and other habits. Among them was an old codger dressed in heavy, dust covered cowhide boots, with hickory shirt and butternut overalls, who kept apart from the rest of the throng and seemed to feel somewhat out of place in the gay and better dressed crowd.

One evening a delegation of about 700 all told, including perhaps 350 ladies, went down to the depot to see the "jag train" come in with the new arrivals on board. One of the first to leave the cars was a handsome fellow of perhaps 35, who was carrying all he could navigate under, and who was feeling decidedly happy. Catching sight of the sedate old unknown, who had accompanied the crowd to the depot, he said to his companion, who was trying to keep him within bounds:

"Lemme go, lemme go, I tell you! There's a man I want to see."

Then he ambled toward the hickory shirt and extended his hand with mock dignity, saying:

"How'sh yer honor? I'm glad to see yer."

By this time the bystanders had caught on that something was going on and began crowding around the maudlin newcomer and the sedate old gentleman. Turning round to the crowd, who were eagerly looking on, the tipsy candidate said:

"P'raps you folks don't know it, but thish the chief justice of the state of ——, and, by Jove, I'm the attorney general."

After that the chief justice resume his ordinary garb and proved to be one of the most companionable of the brilliant coterie gathered at Dwight.—Minneapolis Journal.

THE COW QUESTION.

It Is Discussed From Both Sides of the Garden Fence.

We have received a communication on the subject of the town cow, and though it is well written and properly signed we do not like to give it space, and for several reasons. The cow question has done more to embitter life, separate families and destroy the peace and quietness of entire communities than all others. Like other questions, there are two sides to the cow argument—the cow's side and the other side. Those who own cows are on the cow's side; those who don't own cows and do own gardens and shrubbery are on the other side and there to stay.

Still we never could see why the cow so craved a diet of choice roses and valuable shrubbery. Her butter or milk always goes at the same price. Columbia river water is better than all the roses to enhance the value of her yield. Why shouldn't she run at large if she wants to? Some people neglect their plants and bushes, and the cow trims them up. She also reminds the man of the house that he has left the front gate open and does it delicately, because she always wakes the man's wife up first, or the hired girl, and she tells him, and he gets up and exhibits his pajamas to the neighbors by the light of the silver moon; also his temper, and the latter can best be seen on a dark night.—Dallas Chronicle.

He Couldn't Help It.

"How do you feel?" asked a sympathetic bystander as a trolley victim opened his eyes.

"Quite run down," whispered the humorist, who even in his agony could not let a chance slip, and the crowd, seeing the humor of the joke, laughed merrily until the ambulance arrived.

A Rumor that President Faure Will Resign—Alarming State Secrets about to Leak Out—The Many Difficulties the New President Has to Overcome.

Special to the Times.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—After having interviews this morning with MM. Poincare and Cavaignac, President Faure summoned M. Bourgeois to the Palace, and it is believed that that gentleman will make another attempt to form a Ministry, seeking his colleagues from among the more Radical groups. After an extended interview with President Faure, M. Bourgeois definitely agreed to make another attempt to construct a Cabinet. It is believed that MM. Lockroy, Doumer, Sarrien and Hanotaux will accept portfolios.

MM. Hanotaux, Lockroy, Cavaignac, Cochery and Doumer and Senators Combes and DeVerninac have agreed to accept portfolios under M. Bourgeois.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Standard's Paris correspondent gives the composition of the new Cabinet approximately as follows: M. Bourgeois, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior; M. Hanotaux, Foreign Affairs; M. Chochary, Finance; M. Cavaignac, War; M. Lockroy, Marine; M. Terrier, Public Works; M. Deverninac, Agriculture; M. Combs, Public Instruction; M. Doumer, Commerce; Maurice Lebon, Colonies; M. Leveille, Justice.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—A special from Paris to the Sun says:—The scheme of forming a colorless Government without principles has died. It seemed on Sunday night that M. Bourgeois would at least succeed in forming a Cabinet of concentration. When ready to report the completion of his task to the President yesterday afternoon M. Poincare and two or three others who had expressed decided views against the income tax concluded that it would be impossible to join a Cabinet most of whose members were of the contrary opinion. M. Bourgeois, in despair, went to the Elysee and resigned his mission. President Faure's political friends are disappointed and indignant because he has not, under such circumstances, cut loose from the Radicals and either formed a moderate Ministry or dissolved the Chamber. Instead of that the President held a long consultation with M. Cavaignac and M. Poincare. What the result may be is not yet known. A report is even circulated that M. Faure would follow Casimir-Perier's example and resign. That is altogether incredible. It is undoubtedly true, however, that the new President finds the political situation of France much more serious than he imagined it was when he took office four days ago. There are said to be certain alarming secrets of State which will come to light very soon.

KILLED HERSELF.

Mrs. E. C. Woolson Committed Suicide with a Razor While Slightly Deranged.

Special to the Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Jan. 23.—Mrs. E. C. Woolson, who had been an invalid for some time and was slightly demented committed suicide in her home today by cutting a gash in her neck with a razor. Her son, Dr. William Woolson, cut his throat two years ago in the same room and with the same razor used by Mrs. Woolson today.

Miss Carrie Woolson, daughter of the dead woman, found her mother's corpse, and it was Miss Carrie who found the body of her brother, the doctor, after he had killed himself. The girl is so affected that friends are watching her constantly in the fear that she too may attempt suicide. Mrs. Woolson brooded over the self-destruction of her son until her mind became so infatuated with the idea of suicide that she could not resist the temptation to follow the example of the young man.

Mrs. Woolson was 65 years of age and of a gentle disposition. She was an aunt of Prof. Woolson, of the Columbia College School of Mines, who resides in Astoria, L.I.

PLANTA WAS NOT DROWNED.

He Escaped Across the Line and is Now in Custody.

Special to the Times.

NANAIMO, B. C., Jan. 23.—Police Magistrate Planta, of this place, who skipped out a few days ago, has been arrested at Seattle, Washington Territory. Evidence taken before the Royal Commission involved Planta in some rather peculiar looking transactions, and his disappearance followed. A report was circulated by his friends, in order to cover up his flight, that he had drowned himself on account of the disgrace that his misdeeds had brought on him and his family. Planta will be brought back to the city to stand his trial on a charge of embezzlement. Planta waved extradition formalities.

TELLTALE TEETH.

Their Mute Evidence Brings Punishment to the Guilty Ones.

Late one evening a man walking along a lonely highroad was attacked by a ruffian. A tussle followed, and the man in his despair bit his assailant's left hand, while his small dog took a mouthful of the man's calf. Thanks mainly to the efforts of the valiant terrier, the ruffian had to release his victim.

The latter immediately informed the police what had happened, and two days afterward a suspicious character was arrested on a charge of highway robbery. The man denied everything, and as the night of the attack had been pitch dark he could not be identified by his looks. But there was a small wound in his left hand which looked as if it were the mark of a tooth. No, it was not, the accused man said stolidly.

"If he is the man," the victim suggested, "he ought to have the mark of my terrier's teeth in his leg." Three tiny wounds were discovered in the man's calf. He still denied the charges and told the story of a large watchdog that had bitten him. But the terrier's teeth were examined and found to match the wounds exactly. Whereupon the man was convicted.

A man who was accused of murder had wounds in his left hand. On being examined they proved to have been caused by human teeth of a rather peculiar shape. The murdered man's mouth was opened, his teeth examined, and the murderer stood convicted.

When the corpse of the Widow Cremieux, who was murdered at Neuily, was being examined, it was noticed that she had only one tooth in the upper and three in the lower jaw. A cast was taken of her mouth, and the four teeth were found to correspond exactly to the wounds in the left hand of the man who had been arrested on the suspicion of having committed the murder, but who so far had denied the charges brought against him.

When the mystery of the Gouffe murder was the one subject of conversation in Paris, a box arrived at the house of the murdered man's daughter at Lyons containing a corpse which was supposed to be that of Gouffe, but which was so far decomposed that it would have been impossible to identify it had not the daughter recognized her father by the unusual formation of his teeth.

A rich banker had been found murdered in his house at St. Petersburg. There was no clew whatever, but in the room where the murder had been committed was found a cigar mouthpiece containing part of a cigar of so expensive a kind that the detectives were led to believe the banker had been smoking it just before the crime had been committed. On closer examination it appeared that the mouthpiece was worn away at the end by the teeth of its owner.

The murdered man's teeth did not fit the curious indentation, but when the servants were one by one examined the cook was arrested on the strength of the hollows in the mouthpiece corresponding exactly to the formation of his front teeth. No suspicion had fallen on the man before this discovery was made, but he confessed to the murder soon after.—New York Dispatch.

A Cool Man.

"He was a cool man, was the colonel of my regiment," remarked a long legged old chap to a militia youth in a great display of uniform. "I never seen his like."

"Was it in the late war?" inquired the youth.

"The same, and he was the dandyfiedest little feller you ever see. That's the reason I don't laugh when I see you fellers," added the old one encouragingly. "Clothes ain't no sign of what kind of a soldier is inside of them."

"Thanks."

"Don't mention it. As I was saying, my colonel was the coolest man you ever see. Down there before Richmond once, when he was only a captain, he had his company covering a hill that was in the range of the enemy's shells, and they was dropping them there thicker'n potatoes. He had on a brand new uniform and was looking like a beau on parade, but he stood right out where the shells was plowing up the ground all around him and throwing dust over everything, but he never moved except to knock the dirt off his clothes about every minute. After awhile the general in command sent for him to come back out of range behind the hilltop.

" 'What do you think of it?' asked the general, meaning the outcome of the fight, I suppose.

" 'It's perfectly outrageous, general,' says the captain, 'and I don't see why in thunder they don't throw whisk brooms along with their shells.' "—Detroit Free Press.

Huck-muck, Rhyming Words.

In the south they have a very expressive phrase for one indifferently well—"frobly-mobly"—and to be in "mubble-fubble" signifies low spirits. In Leeds, when a person is overpowered with astonishment, he is said to be "much struck," a phrase forcible, but scarcely polite. "Huck-muck" is an expression of like character, meaning foul, miry, and in Devonshire a bedraggled, besmirched person is said to be "muckson up to the huckson."

In Gloucestershire a wavering, unstable or worthless man is called a "meckle-keckle fellow," and it is worthy of remark that in Derbyshire poor one is called "heckle-meckle." An awkward simpleton is called "hauvey-gauvey" in the neighborhood of Leeds. In Warwickshire they style such a one as "hob-gob," which may be a corruption of "hobgoblin," or else it is from "hob," a lout, and "bog," a lump. "Gobbinshire" is the abode—"that never was writ in the traveler's chart"—of uncouth folk. They say of a slovenly loafer in South Cheshire:

Gobbinshire, Gobbinshire, of Gobbinshire Green,
The roukest owd beggor as ever was seen.

—All the Year Round.

Sensible.

That was both a kind and a wise man who, when about to marry for the second time, settled $10,000 upon his unmarried daughter. "I should like to have her go on living at home," he said, "but who can tell whether she and her stepmother will be harmonious and quite happy together? She shall feel that she is free to go or stay." The consequence was mutually happy relations, since both women knew there was no dependence or necessity for them to live in closer relations than might prove agreeable.—New York World.

The earrings worn by Italian women indicate the part of Italy the wearers come from; the longer the earrings the farther south the women come from. In the extreme south most of the earrings hang close to the shoulders; in the far north they are quite short.

The town in Nebraska originally called Lancaster had its name changed to Lincoln when it became the capital.

A Wonderfully Liberal Offer!

Five Weeks for 10 cents.

A Trial Subscription for
THE NEW YORK LEDGER

Just to convince everybody before subscribing of the true merits of our beautifully illustrated journal, we will send the New York Ledger for

FIVE WEEKS FOR 10 CENTS.

These five numbers will contain the opening chapters of Paul Kemble's powerful and interesting story, "The Killnies of Killall," also the opening chapters (with synopsis) of Seward W. Hopkin's story of the great strike in the Pennsylvania coal mines, "On a Criminal Charge." The other continued stories in these numbers are by Hall Caine and Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. In addition to the continued stories, these five numbers of the New York Ledger, contain short stories poems, articles on the topics of the day, a brilliant editorial page, a children's column, a correspondence and scientific department, a Woman's World page devoted to everything of interest to women including a pattern department worth to any woman many, many times the price of the Ledger. The following is a partial list of the authors who contribute to these five numbers:

Hall Caine, Seward W. Hopkins, Paul Kemble, Ella Adelaide Rowlands, Elizabeth Olmis, Mary Lowe Dickenson, Amy Randolph, Hon. Henry L. Dawes, Mary Kyle Dallas, Prof. W. W. Kennedy, William Elliot Griffis, D. D., [illegible] Frederick Schwatka, Oscar Wilde, W. Thompson and others.

This vast quantity of delightful reading matter of interest to all members of the family goes to make the New York Ledger the most perfect National Family Journal ever offered to the American people. Your Postmaster, your Subscription Agent or your Newsdealer will receive your 10c. for us for your Trial Subscription and send us the money—or you can send the money direct to us. Try it, and judge for yourself what a great paper the New York Ledger is.

SEASONABLE SPORTS.

Curlers Defeated in Toronto by 28 shots—Hockey Tonight.

The Curlers' excursion was a success in point of attendance. The twelve rinks returned to Peterborough yesterday, having made a very creditable showing in Toronto, although defeated by 28 shots. They reported splendid treatment at the hands of the Granites and all had a most enjoyable time. The skips scored as follows:

HOCKEY MATCH TO-NIGHT.

Tonight on the rink at 10 o'clock the combined staffs of the Ontario Bank and Bank of Montreal will contest a hockey match with the bachelors of Ashburnham. The game promises to be close and interesting.

A hockey club was organised at Whitby last night when the following officers were elected: Hon. Pres., Fred Hatch; President, S. H. Graham; Secretary-Treasurer, C. S. Eastwood; Captain, Geo. Barnes; Committee, Frank Bryan, Chas. Stewart, J. W. Brant, L. S. Arnold. The Secretary will be pleased to receive challenges from any club in Canada.

SNAP CURLING SHOTS.

On the rink last night, Skip Harry Allen defeated Skip Edwards by one shot.

Skip Smith and Skip Weller played a close game, the former defeating the latter by one shot.

Barrie beat Collingwood at hockey on Wednesday night, on the latter's ice, by 8 to 4.

Mieses beat Janowski at Paris on Wednesday in the ninth game of the chess contest.

Duke Williams won the 2.50 trot at the Dunnville ice meeting on Wednesday in straight heats.

Buffalo curlers defeated Niagara Falls at the former place on Wednesday in an Ontario Tankard match by 44 to 30.

Queen's College defeated the Military College at hockey on Wednesday in an O. H. A. senior series game by 6 to 3.

The Galt Granites beat the Hamilton Thistles in a three rink curling game at Hamilton yesterday by 56 to 43.

Peter Jackson says he is willing to fight Charles Mitchell for £1,000 a side before the London National Sporting Club.

The Montreal Shamrocks defeated the Morrisburg players at hockey last evening by 6 to 1. The game was played at Montreal.

Purses aggregating $3,100 will be given by the Hamilton Jockey Club at their ice meeting, to be held February 13 to 16 inclusive.

THE WEATHER.

Probs.—Moderate to fresh westerly and northerly winds, fair and decidedly cold today and tomorrow.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers

The Charity Committee met last night.

An overdose of sociability is the latest excuse for drunkenness.

Next Sabbath is prison Sunday at all the churches in the province.

A lady's gauntlet and a logging chain await owners at the police station.

A fancy dress carnival will be held in Millbrook tonight. A number from Peterborough will attend.

The hockey match with the Morrisburg team, which should have been played today has been declared off.

A large contingent of young people will drive out to the carnival at Keene tonight. "Susy's" band is likely to go.

In the gloaming, O my darling,
  When the lights are burning dim,
I'm reminded that the gasman
  Said I owed a bill to him.

Mr. McKinnon, chief of the Hamilton police force, has sent in his resignation. There are 14 applicants for the positions.

Cavan and Millbrook will hold a township Sunday school convention in the Methodist church, Cavanville, on Tuesday Feb. 5th afternoon and evening.

The anniversary in connection with St. Paul's church will take place Sunday and Monday, Jan. 27th and 28th. On Sunday, special sermons will be preached by Rev. J. C. Davidson, of Peterborough, at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m.—Uxbridge Times.

The printing business must be at a pretty low ebb when capable journeymen advertise their services for a weekly wage of two loaves of bread, as was the case a few days ago in a Toronto paper. Then, again, in last Saturday's Empire a "diligent, speedy, and in every way reliable workman" offers his services for a weekly wage of "shelter from the cold."

Half an inch in length is a very small thing but if added to a man's nose it would make a marked difference in his personal appearance, and when a stick of firewood is just too long by half an inch for the stove it will do more to take the Christianity out of a human being than any thing else in the world, except possibly putting stove-pipes together. An half-inch advertisement in THE TIMES will secure a servant, a situation, or enable you to sell any article you may have for sale.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of the local paper with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was, he refused to tell her. The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what had been going on that her husband did not want her to know about.

A very large American eagle has taken up its quarters in Mr. Sinclairs' woods, near Cambray. A small boy noticed the bird first in the top of a large tree and whistled and clapped his hands with a view to frighten it away. The eagle was not at all alarmed but turning its head from one side to the other, uttered piercing shrieks of defiance and flapping its wings, drove terror in the heart of the boy, who hurriedly decamped. A sportsman, who was out after the bird, was seized with 'bush fever' at the first sight and missed the bird, though he claims he scattered his feathers. All the boys are out with their guns but so far without success.—Lindsay Watchman.

If a man were to give another man an orange, he would merely say, "I give you this orange;" but when the transaction is entrusted to the hands of a lawyer to put it in writing, he adopts this form: "hereby give, grant and convey to you all and singular, estate and interest, right, title and claim and advantages of and in the said orange, together with all its rind, skin, juice, pulp and pips, and all right and advantages therein, with full power to bite, cut, suck and otherwise eat the same, or give the same away, as fully and effectually as I, the said A B, am entitled to bite, cut, suck or otherwise eat the same orange, or give the same away, with its rind, skin, juice, pulp and pips, anything hereinbefore or hereafter, or in any other deed or deeds, instrument or instruments, of what nature or kind soever to the contrary notwithstanding.

AFTER CANADIAN LUMBER.

Chicago Men Trying to Buy the Rat Portage Mills.

Special to the Times.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 24.—Two Chicago capitalists who are here are endeavoring to purchase the entire lumber cut of Rat Portage district mills for this year, provided they can make satisfactory terms. They say that the pine forests of Minnesota are rapidly being depleted, which sends the United States dealers and lumberman into the Northwestern Ontario woods for their supply.

The Board of Trade propose to take action regarding the raising of insurance rates 5 per cent. to cover the cost of the Provincial tax. The insurance men will probably not insist on the extra 5 per cent.

SMALLPOX SPREADING.

A Nurse Takes the Disease—Her Physicians Anxious.

Special to the Times.

GUELPH, Jan. 24.—A report is current that Miss Turnbull, one of the two nurses attending Wm. Schwartz, the smallpox patient at the pest hospital here, is showing symptoms of the disease.

The medical authorities are slightly alarmed at her condition.

Schwartz's condition is much improved from yesterday, and every precaution is being taken to prevent any further spread of the disease. In case there should be, an addition is now being made to the building. The citizens generally are not particularly alarmed.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

John Mulroney, of Puslinch, Worried Himself to Death.

Special to the Times.

GUELPH, Jan. 24.—The report was given to the papers that John Mulroney of Puslinch, died of heart disease.

The truth is that the unfortunate man suicided. He had been suffering for some time by the worry incident to a suit for slander, and on Sunday while his people were at church he went to the barn and hanged himself. His son found him.

Mulroney was an old setttler of Puslinch, was 60 years of age, and generally respected.

Lord Churchill Dead.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Lord Randolph Churchill died at 6 o'clock this morning.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 20,000 rose trees in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories Bloor-st. west, Toronto. Visitors are always welcome. Mr. Dunlop is proud of his establishment and takes pleasure in speaking of his beauties. He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. Sale room, 445 Yonge-st., and 5 King street west.

ENVOYS OF PEACE

Will Start for Japan—Movement on Wei Hai Wei Causes a Panic.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—A despatch to the Central News from Shanghai says the Chinese peace envoys today made application to the agents of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company for transportation to Japan, and will sail on Jan. 26th. They will be transferred to a Japanese steamer at Shimonoseki.

A despatch to the Central News from Shanghai says:—The Japanese movement on Wei Hai Wei has caused a panic in Tien Tsin and Pekin. The Chinese peace envoys have been ordered to expedite the negotiations with the Japanese Government. Japanese cruisers are watching both channels at Wei Hai Wei. The attack upon the stronghold may be delayed a week. The siege trains move slowly, all the roads being covered with snow.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

Save Your Fuel.

Call at Calcutt's brewery and see how to save one-third your fuel. Our steam boilers will give one-third more power.

An Assembly.

The Catholic Literary Assocition held an assembly last night. There were a large number present. Dancing was the feature of the evening.

A Pleasant Affair.

Mrs. J. H. Cameron, of Stewart street, entertained a number of friends last night. Quite a number were present. A very pleasant social evening was spent.

Two Hours Late.

The 11.40 C. P. R. train last night was two hours late. It was rumored that a break down of a freight west of Peterborough occasioned the delay, but no authentic information could be learned.

Another Carnival.

At a meeting last night the Sons of Canada decided to hold their next carnival on Friday evening, February 22nd. A hockey match between the Peterboroughs and an outside team will open it. There will be a mile race open to the province, the winner to be declared the amateur champion of Ontario, and also presented with a medal.

In the Toils Now.

The clothes-wringer swindler who operated extensively in Peterborough, Port Hope, Colborne and numerous other places has at last ran afoul the police, and is now under arrest. He was caught at Trenton by the Chief Constable of Colborne. James Elves is his name. His wife is in Millbrook, where Elves has been conducting a repairing shop.

Diphtheria in a Camp.

Diphtheria has broken out in a construction camp in the Nipissing district, in the northern part of the county of Hastings and about 65 miles from Eganville. One man has already died and ten men are down with the disease. A medical health inspector, armed with a supply of antitoxine and a syringe, has been sent to the place and every effort is being made to prevent the spread of the epidemic among the other occupants of the camp.

The Obnoxious Dog Sleigh.

A small boy had quite an exciting time on George street yesterday morning. He had a dog attached to a sleigh, when the canine espied a stray cur that he wished to do up and set sail for him. In the rush the sleigh was upset and two vehicles came near running over the outfit. Finally the dog got so wound up in the rope harness that he could not pursue his prey and was caught by his boy-owner, who administered swift kicks and used complimentary epithets.

After Grants.

The County Council now in session have received many applications for grants. Mr. Geo. E. Elliott, president of the West Riding Agricultural Society, headed a deputation consisting of Messrs. T. M. Hunter and W. J. Green, and a deputation from the East Riding society consisting of Mr. T. Blezard, M.P.P., asking aid on behalf of the respective societies. The Otonabee and also the Smith, Ennismore and Lakefield societies will solicit grants this week.

Grand Carnival Masquerade Ball.

A novel and interesting entertainment, in the shape of a grand carnival masquerade ball, will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday, February 12th. The affair is expected to be unusually brilliant and amusing, and the management are sparing no pains to achieve that result. The proceeds over and above expenses will be donated to local charity. It is hoped and requested that as many as possible will come in fancy dress, to contribute to the effect of the scene. Special costumes, however, are not necessary, provided a certain amount of color is used in the dress. All should wear small masks of black or fancy velvet, silk or calico. Prizes will be given to the best dressed lady, the best dressed gentleman and the best comic costume. Music will be furnished by Butcher's orchestra and the batallion band. Dancing will commence at 8.30 p.m. and at midnight all the dancers will unmask. The well-known caterer, Mr. Wm. [illegible]man, will provide refreshments all evening. Tickets $1.00 admitting gentleman and lady, or two ladies, can be procured at Stratton's bookstore, Salisbury's bookstore, and the Street Railway office. The number of tickets is limited to 200. Procure costumes, secure tickets and come to the social event of the season.

LINDSAY SCORCHED.

Another Blaze Does Considerable Damage in that Town.

Within the last three weeks Lindsay has been visited with several disastrous fires. On Thursday more loss was occasioned by the fire element. The following gives the particulars:

LINDSAY, Jan. 24.—At three o'clock this afternoon fire almost completely destroyed the workshops and engine-house connected with the establishment of Anderson & Nugent, furniture dealers and undertakers, situated in the rear of their Kent street wareroom. The fire brigade had an uphill fight owing to the inflammable nature of the contents, but succeeded in extinguishing the flames completely before five o'clock. The building and machinery are insured in the Hartford for $1,300. Loss, $4,000.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

The Ontario Association Asking the Counties for Grants.

The special committee of the Ontario Rifle Association, appointed to deal with the matter of obtaining grants from the several County Councils now in session in the province has sent the following circular letter to the County Council:

"By direction of the president and council of the Ontario Rifle Association, I am instructed to solicit from the municipal corporations of the Province of Ontario a donation of $10, in aid of the annual prize meeting. This grant is solicited to enable the association to add to its programme a special match restricted to the younger riflemen of your own and other counties throughout the province, and thus give a much needed stimulus to rifle shooting among the younger members of the county battalions. The grant asked for is small, but if all contribute a sufficient fund can be raised for the purpose. Yours truly, W. George Mutton, Capt., Secretary."

TWO CURLERS DEAD.

Messrs. John McMillan and John Matthie of Lindsay Pass Away.

It is our sad duty this week to have to chronicle the death of two of the oldest and best known members of the club, viz., Messrs. John McMillan and John Matthie. The history of the curling lives of these two men would be almost the history of curling in Lindsay. Mr. Matthie was one of those who in the fall of 1876 met and organized the Lindsay Curling Club. Mr. Wm. Needler and Mr. G. H. Bertram are the only active curlers left of the first members of our club. Mr. John McMillan joined the club in the fall of 1877 and from that time on these two men were most active in the club's affairs, taking part in many of the most important home and foreign matches.

Mr. John Matthie was one of the famous rinks which played with such success at the Montreal bonspiel, and until the season of '92 he was an active member of the club, playing every year in nearly all the important foreign matches. Mr. McMillan, was elected skip in 1881 for the first time, and almost every season since he has been regularly chosen for the same position. He also played in quite a large number of foreign games and always gave a good account of himself. His fellow curlers recognized his zeal and earnestness in the club's affairs by electing him Vice-President in 1883, and President in 1884.

These men were known to hosts of curlers of this district outside of Lindsay, and were always heartily greeted by brother curlers wherever they met them. On the ice they were keen, active, skilful players, both withal generous and warm-hearted opponents. Both always worked hard for the success and advancement of Lindsay's curling club, and by their death, the club loses two royal and faithful members whose places it will be difficult to fill.—Lindsay Watchman.

THE PATRON POLICY.

Manifesto Issued by the Grand Board of the Order.

The Grand Board of the Patrons of Industry yesterday issued a manifesto outlining the demands made by the Patrons in connection with Dominion affairs.

In effect these are that no director or stockholder of any railway or other corporation obtaining aid from the Government shall be eligible for election to the House of Commons.

It shall be declared a breach of the independence of Parliament Act for any member of the House of Commons to accept emoluments other than his sessional indemnity for any services performed for or on behalf of the Government.

No member of the House of Commons shall receive a free pass from any railroad or steamship company; any member accepting such a free pass to be disqualified for membership in the House of Commons for any position in the gift of the Government for a space of five years.

The Government House at Ottawa shall be abolished.

The system of superannuation, gratuities and pensions, except for military services shall be abolished.

The Mounted Police of the Northwest Territories shall be abolished except for unorganised districts.

The Military College of Kingston shall be abolished and the expenditure on the militia force in the Dominion in times of peace shall be limited to $200,000.

The granting of subsidies and bonuses to railroad and steamship companies and other corporations shall be abolished.

The number of civil servants at Ottawa and their salaries shall be reduced.

The High Commissioner in Great Britain shall receive a stated salary, without any additions for assistance or perquisites.

The number of Cabinet Ministers shall be reduced.

Luxuries shall be taxed to the fullest extent, and the following shall be admitted free into Canada, viz: Cotton, tweeds, woollens, workmen's tools, farm implements, fence wire, binder twine, coal, oil, iron and corn.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!

SYMPTOMS—Moisture, intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. dc16

ALWAYS BUSY!

This store is blessed with plenty to do every day in the week and every month in the year. While you were Holiday shoppiug we were planning big surprises for January trade. And now that the WHITE GOODS SALE is well under way, we begin to plan for spring. No idle heels dangle over our counters. The entire organization is thoroughly wide-awake, and quicker than ever before to serve your interests acceptably.

We make business doubly active by anticipating needs, enlarging stocks and constantly adding such new goods as you seem to want. There's no limit to the possibilities of trade in this unpretentious building, and those who watch developements here will be more than surprised. Success grows with what it feeds upon, and when we emphasize trade activity in January, we force the momentum of busy days and quick sales right through the year.

WHITE GOODS SALE

We want everybody to know about it. Facts have already been printed which prove our right to your interest. When and where before have you known perfectly new goods to sell at bargain prices? Energy and enterprise, coupled with the biggest possible outlet for reliable goods, enables us to sell at these extremely low prices.

INS AND OUTS.

THE repeal of the liquor license by-law has met with almost general approbation. Not a single word of protest has been heard. The move was in the interest of the town and will not militate against the temperance cause.

⁂

ASHBURNHAM is willing to arrange terms with the town for future fire protection. What beautiful nerve. Ashburnham had better be making some arrangements to settle with Peterborough for five years' fire protection for which not one penny was paid

⁂

STREET CAR patrons are divided, on the sex-line, upon the merits of the electric heaters. Men passengers say that the heaters scorch their legs. Women, on the other hand, aver that the heaters are great things for drying skirts which have been bedraggled by rain or snow. The controversy is only interesting as showing that men do sometimes get a chance to sit down in the street cars.

⁂

THE persons who ask advice on matters of etiquette from the "home" magazines must be a raw and unsophisticated lot. Here is a sample answer: "Viola—It is proper to take a gentleman's arm when you are walking with him after dark."

A woman who read this gem thus commented: "The editor ought also to tell the fool that it is proper to go into the house when it rains."

⁂

A FEW days ago a startling dispatch flew the wires telling in awful sentences the drowning of 38 passengers on board the steamer The State of Missouri. Yesterday the dispatches tell us that none were drowned. We shall be prepared to believe by tomorrow that the steamer State of Missouri, alleged to have been sunk in the Ohio River, was only a row-boat occupied by a small boy and a yellow dog, and that both swam ashore.

As we enter the New Year we wish our many customers in town and country a happy and prosperous one.

January is our annual Stocktaking month and we must be finished by the 1st of February and we are now measuring and throwing out all odd lines on tables, to be cleared before that date. Such as

Ends of Dress Goods
Ends of Tweeds
Ends of Shirtings
Ends of Prints
Ends of Carpets
Ends of Cottons
Ends of Cretonnes
Ends of Embroideries
Ends of Laces
Ends of Ribbbons

These are all good, fresh goods, only in remnants and will be sold at remnant prices, We have still about 180 suits of that very heavy all wool Underclothing at $1 a suit. Sold everywhere at $1 50. Everyone who needs a suit of heavy underwear should see them.

The balance of our Sealettes, Heavy Curls and Mantles have been going steadily at the prices they were marked since we last talked about them, but we have still a few good Mantles and Cloths left, which some one will get a bargain of. We show a window of all styles of Hats and Placques, your choice for 35 cents. We preier to sell them at this price rather than pack them away.

A Metal Breadboard
THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread-board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

SESSION A CERTAINTY.

HON J. A. OUIMET AUTHORITY FOR THE STATEMENT.

"There Will Be a Session Before the Elections." He said—The Fighters in the Government Anxious For an Immediate Appeal to the Country.

Special to the Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 25—The general impression here now is that Parliament will meet before an appeal to the country. It is said, however, that the fighters in the Government are anxious for an appeal to the country at once, but they are hardly likely to carry the day.

Hon. J. A. Ouimet told your correspondent that there would be a session before the elections.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—The Globe this morning states that Sir Mackenzie Bowell approached the Governor-General with a view to ascertaining whether his Excellency would be favorable to granting a dissolution on the old voters' lists. The result, the correspondent says, will be known on Saturday.

Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister of Finance, will be one of the Conservative missionaries who will visit Galt and other places next.

The Croix, a French-Canadian clerical paper of Montreal, expresses regret that Mr. Laurier did not refer to the Manitoba school question in his Windsor Hall speech. The article concludes:—"The vote of Roman Catholics at the next election must belong to those who furnish the best guarantees on the school question. Both parties seem desirous of burying the question. This is useless. With Archbishop Tache, we repeat that a question is settled only when it is decided in the sense of justice and equity."

The Colonial Office persists in its refusal to lend monetary help to Newfoundland. The Islanders, so a despatch states, expects aid from Canada. Private succor may be given by Canadian citizens, but the Federal Government will think twice before it gives financial aid.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

The P. P. A. Extend Their Sympathy to Manitobans.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—At a meeting of the P.P.A. tonight the following resolution was proposed by Ontario members and unanimously passed "That the Grand Council for Canada in behalf of its delegates and of all the members of the order in this Dominion hereby declares its sympathy with the people of Manitoba in their struggle for the maintenance of national schools and urges them in the name of Liberty to stand firm, and pledges the honor of its members and of all the order that if Manitoba need counsel and aid, then be the cost what it may, counsel and aid shall not be withheld." The utmost secrecy was observed as to the proceedings, beyond the handing out of the above to the press.

ACTON'S SENSATION.

A Prominent Business Man Sent to Jail for Thirty Days.

Special to the Times.

ACTON, Jan. 25.—John Arthurs, one of Acton's business men, who at times indulges too freely, got considerably the worse of liquor Friday night last.

He became disorderly and had to be locked up in the cells on a charge of thrashing his wife.

During the night he broke out of his cell, smashed some windows in the Town Hall and went home. Next morning he was re-arrested and brought before J. P.'s Storey and Pearson, who sentenced him to thirty days in jail.

Constable Lawson took him to Milton jail Saturday afternoon.

A DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

A Man thrown Over a Six-Foot Embankment and Killed.

Special to the Times.

MIDDLETON, N.Y., Jan. 25.—Isaac Bartle, foreman of the stone quarry at Long Eddy, was killed this morning by a dynamite explosion. He was engaged in taking the tamping from a hole in a rock which contained three sticks of dynamite which had missed fire.

As Bartle was bending over the hole, digging out the dirt, the dynamite exploded, killing him instantly. The unfortunate man's body was thrown over a six-foot embankment and badly mutilated.

HE BROKE SEVERAL BANKS.

The Defaulting Treasurer of Dakota Located in Indiana.

Special to the Times.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 25.—It is probable that W. W. Taylor, the defaulting treasurer of South Dakota, has been located near this city. The authorities of that State are now on their way to Crawfordsville at the instance of John G. Overton.

Justice of the Peace and ex-County Supt. Overton declares that he has Taylor located beyond a doubt and says he is in no way troubled about his escape as he is dangerously ill, much of the time unconcious.

A THOUSAND STARVING.

Question of Union to Be Left to the Newfoundland People.

Special to the Times.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 25.—The Legislature will adjourn tomorrow for six weeks. The elections will be held in the interim and arrangements will be completed for the submission to the voters of the question of confederation of Newfoundland with Canada. An appeal from the clergy to the outside world, which was published today, says about a thousand families are now starving in this city.

Re-united.

BUFFALO, Jan. 25.—In 1891 Henry Hermann and his wife Jeannette were separated by judicial proceedings on the part of his wife. Since that time Hermann has been a resident of Welland County, Ont., until to-day, when he returned to Buffalo and joined his former wife, took an action to annul the limited divorce which she had procured four years ago, and Judge Spring on learning the facts ordered that the former proceedings be annulled and cancelled.

"JONIAUX CASE."

Evidence Accumulating Against the Deceased Said to Beat the Maybrick Sensation.

Special to the Times.

ANTWERP, Jan. 25.—The direct testimony in the celebrated Belgian mystery known as the "Joniaux case" is now beginning to come before the Assize Court. Interest is reaching fever heat, and ladies of the highest society are crowding the galleries.

The trial commenced on January 7, and it has attracted more and more attention every day, although the testimony that has been presented up to the present time has been little more than a repetition of facts which have been well ventilated in the public press. The prisoner, in spite of the severe examination to which she has been subjected, remains cool and collected.

WEAVING THE WEB.

Today two doctors, who examined the late M. Alfred Ablay for the Gresham Insurance Company, swore that at the time they examined him he was perfectly healthy and did not show any signs whatever of disease, and that he did not exhibit any indications of morphiamania. These witnesses added that they were astounded when they heard that M. Ablay was dead.

A servant employed by Mme. Joniaux swore that on the evening of a dinner given to M. Van Den Kerchove, the day before his death, Mme. Joniaux went to the kitchen and brought a cup of coffee, which she personally took upstairs to him.

WAR CLOUD THICKENS.

MEXICO AND GUATEMALA WILL DECLARE WAR ON EACH OTHER.

Already 6,000 Men are Ready for Action on the Frontier—Great Excitement in Mexico—Guatemala's Ultimatum Received.

Special to the Times.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 25.—Nothing is heard on the streets and newspapers but war talk. There is great excitement.

A meeting of the Cabinet has been called to meet early this morning at which time it is thought war will be declared.

Mexico, it is said, has 6,000 men on the Guatemalan frontier ready for action.

OFFICIAL COMMUNICATIONS.

The official communication of Guatemala to the demands of Mexico over the threatening international boundary dispute was delivered to the National Palace this morning. The document covers many pages of closely written matter. It will be presented at the meeting of the Cabinet today.

It is generally understood that the import of Guatemala's reply is the same as indicated in the telegram received from Mexican Minister Goday at the time it was delivered to him by the Guatemalan Government. The declaration of Mexico's position may be expected inside of four or five days, by which time the reply of Guatemala will have been considered in all its bearings.

WILL DECLARE WAR.

The Mexican authorities hold firm as ever to their position, and it is very generally understood that an early ultimatum will be sent to Guatemala by the corvette Zaragoza, which will at once declare war on that republic unless it accepts the demands of Mexico in every particular. The War Department in this capital is all activity, and an unusual spirit of life and general animation is seen on every hand.

The number of troops already on the frontier or marching thither is 18,000, and several more brigades are in readiness to be pushed to the front at a day's notice. No doubt Mexico could put 50,000 men on the Guatemalan frontier within a week or ten days, if occasion required it.

WHEN MONEY IS AT STAKE

The Course of True Love Never Does Run Smooth.

Special to the Times.

BUFFALO, Jan. 25.—Henry Herrman, a maker of wooden legs, to avoid paying alimony to his divorced wife, went across the river to Fort Erie to live.

Recently he became tired of life in that quiet village, and, as he dared not return here without risk of being thrown into jail for contempt of court, he effected an epistolary reconciliation with his wife, whereupon she petitioned the court to annul the order of divorce and commitment for contempt.

This being done, Herrman was ferried across to his true love.

COOK GANG NO. 2.

"Bill" is in Prison But His Followers Secure $25,000 on One Train.

Special to the Times.

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Jan. 25.—The men who held up the south-bound cotton belt train last night compelled Express Messenger Massey to open the safe, from which it is said they secured $25,000.

It is thought the robbers belong to the Cook gang No. 2.

THREE KINCARDINITES.

Fall Heirs to a Modest Two Million Dollars Each.

Special to the Times.

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 25.—J. D. Luttrell has received news, accompanied by proofs, that he has fallen heir to a quarter of an $8,000,000 estate in Ireland left by his uncle John Luttrell.

The other heirs are Mrs. Luttrell, Alexander Luttrell and Mrs. Mary Dunlap, residing in Kincardine, Ontario.

Two Betrothals.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—It is now positively announced that Lord William Beresford is to be married to the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Mrs. Louis Hammersley, during the coming spring.

PARIS, Jan. 25.—The betrothal of Mlle. Lucie Faure, daughter of the President of the Republic, to M. Paul Deschanel, a member of the Chamber of Deputies, is announced.

Found to Be an Embezzler.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Jan. 25.—In the days when royalty, dukes, earls and knights were the common every day guests of Dave Isaacs at the Prospect House on the Canadian side, his chief clerk was Morris B. Pike, a handsome, well dressed and gentlemanly person. He was known everywhere and highly respected, and the intelligence conveyed in a Cincinnati despatch that he has been arrested for embezzling $14,000 from the International Cement Company, of which he was vice-president, has shocked everybody.

WEI-HAI-WEI IN DANGER.

THE PLUCKY JAPANESE ARE PREPARING TO INVEST THE CITY.

But the City is Prepared to Stand a Long Attack—Women Missionaries Beaten—Chinese Claim a Victory.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—A despatch from Tokio to the Central News says that the steamer Sarsuma has arrived at Ujina, Japan. She reports that she, with other transports, left Talien Wan on the afternoon of January 19 and reached Yung Cheng Bay, near Wei Hai Wei, at daybreak on January 20. The Yayeyema and the other warships of the fleet landed a force of marines, who met a feeble resistance from four Chinese guns. This battery was answered from the small boats, and the defenders of the battery were dispersed by the guns of the warships. The Chinese guns were captured and shipped on board the Yayeyama and the landing was effected without loss. The Japanese troops began advancing towards Yung Cheng the same night. The first fleet of transports had nearly completed landing their troops in the afternoon of January 21, when the Sarsuma left. The second lot of transports arrived on the morning of January 21st, and the landing of their troops was also nearly effected. The weather was clear, the sea calm, and all of the conditions were favorable. The English, German and Chinese keepers who were found in the Shantung lighthouses were retained under their former conditions and pay and instructed to continue the usual light.

The Central News correspondent at Che Foo telegraphs that the Japanese have landed at Ninghai, 20 miles from Chee Foo, and intend surrounding Wei Hai Wei. The British gunboat Redpole has gone to Wen Chow, at the request of the British Consul at that place. It is reported missionary women have been beaten by the natives there, and that the Chinese officials display a bitter feeling against foreigners.

The flagship of Fremantle is lying off Wei Hai Wei watching operations.

A despatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Che Foo says the Chinese claim to have repulsed the Japanese in the vicinity of Wei Hai Wei, capturing nine guns.

The British, American, French and German warships have landed marines at Che Foo to protect the citizens of their respective countries, who are greatly excited over the situation. The foreign residents of Wei Hai Wei are leaving that place.

A Central News despatch from Tokio says:—The ordinary budget has passed the Imperial Diet. Prince Arisugawa, chief of the general staff, is dead. Field Marshal Prince Komatsu, of the Imperial Guard, will become chief of the general staff.

General Sakuma reports from Yung Chen, under date of January 21, as follows:—Upon the first arrival of the transports the landing of marines began. The snow was very heavy and deep. The Chinese earth batteries began firing upon the landing party, but after observing the formidable array of ships in the bay the Chinese troops retreated westward. The first troops that were landed pushed forward and seized Yung Chen fortress. It was a splendid rush. Field Marshal General Oyama and staff will join us at once.

The Times correspondent in Chee Foo says the Chinese declare that Wei Hai Wei has garrison supplies which will enable it to withstand a prolonged attack. The Japanese have withdrawn from Yeng Chow, where they landed merely to create a diversion.

THE BROOKLYN PROBLEM.

JUDGE GAYNOR'S IMPORTANT DECISION RE THE STRIKE.

Peace Being Re-Established—Death of One of the Victims—Wire Cutting Still Carried On No More Volleys Fired Upon the Strikers.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.—The sensation of the trolley strike today was a decision by Justice W. J. Gaynor of the Supreme Court against the companies in the mandamus proceedings. The Brooklyn Heights Company is severely censured for failing to operate its lines. The decision defines the rights of corporations holding franchises from the people in terms that caused great rejoicing in the ranks of the strikers and among workingmen generally. Justice Gaynor sets 10 a.m. tomorrow for a hearing by both parties as to whether a peremptory writ of mandamus shall issue. Aside from this decision the day was one of great gains for the companies. Very little disorder prevailed and a good showing was made on many lines. District Assembly No. 75 played its last card in ordering the electrical workers employed by the companies to join the motormen and conductors on strike. The order was not fully obeyed, and while it resulted in the stopping of three lines, three others which had not been open for ten days, were operated. More cars were run on other lines, and the presidents declare they have sufficient men to operate their roads.

NO MORE VOLLEYS.

There was no shooting today. The troops today had several lively practices scattering crowds who were indulging in wire cutting and blockading the tracks. Thomas Carney, the victim of yesterday's shooting, died at the Long Island College hospital at an early hour this morning. Col. Austin, in an official report to Gen. McLeer, says the firing in Hicks street was fully justified. Carney was the second man killed by the troops. Unless there is a change in the situation the 7th Regiment will be ordered home tomorrow. Order is slowly being established. Wire cutting still prevails in the outlying districts, but with less frequency. Cars are not yet run at night. No one seems to be anxious to take chances after dark.

TROOPS ORDERED HOME.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The big trolley strike is believed to be nearly over. Trolley cars are running on nearly all the lines.

They do not keep schedule time, but the great tie-up has been broken.

The Ninth Regiment has been ordered home and there is every likelihood that before the day is over the Seventh may be ordered back to New York.

It is believed the violence is ended.

Ill-fated Chicora.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 25.—Part of the cargo of the ill fated steamer Chicora is reported to have come ashore, including flour valises, pantry fixtures, etc. J. S. Morton says in a despatch there is no doubt now that the Chicora went down. Messages to that effect have been sent to the friends of the crew.

THE RABBI RAN A RAFFLE

AND PASSED A CHEQUE WHICH PROVED TO BE BOGUS.

Rev. Phillip Schweitz's Visit to Toronto Fraught With important Consequences to Himself—A Sensation in Jewish Circles.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Rev. Phillip Schweitz arrived in Toronto five weeks ago, and soon made known to the most infleential members of the Jewish fraternity that his mission here was to solicit aid for a financially embarrassed Hebrew congregation, situate in the poorer district of Rochester, N. Y. A raffle had been organized for a pair of silver candlesticks. The sale price of the tickets was placed at the nominal sum of 50 cents.

Among the first whose acquaintance Schweitz formed was Herman A. Gordon, 119 Edward street, employed with A. Bradshaw & Son. Mr. Gordon's sympathies were enlisted in the work in which the stranger represented himself to be laboring, and he invited the reverend gentleman to his home. Mrs. Gordon and Schweitz at once recognized each in the other a playmate of childhood days in Russia, and this recognition welded more firmly the bond of friendship already formed between the husband and Schweitz.

SOLD MANY TICKETS.

Mrs. Gordon next day introduced Mr Schweitz to many of the most influential Hebrews in the city and assisted him in the sale of the tickets.

The day before his departure, Schweitz, presenting a cheque drawn on the First National Bank, Buffalo, asked Mr. Gordon to endorse it for him. Gordon at first demurred and asked the advice of his wife. Mrs. Gordon had known Schwelt's parents to be highly respectable people and she prevailed upon her husband to endorse the cheque. He subsequently drew the money from the Bank of Hamilton and handed it over to his clerical friend. The cheque returned to Buffalo marked "No Funds," and Gordon reported the matter to the Detective Department and word was at once wired to Rochester.

WELL KNOWN IN ROCHESTER.

A despatch from Rochester last night said: Rev. Mr. Schweitz and his wife are boarding with Levi Bermin. Berman is secretary of the Rhine street Synagogue, over which Schweitz presides as pastor. The despatch from Toronto was shown him. He looked over it carefully, and expressed surprise at the accusations made against him, and stated that no intimation had before reached him that he was wanted across the border. Schweitz is about 35 years of age. He appears to be well educated. He speaks English with a strong foreign accent.

GREATLY SURPRISED.

He was greatly surprised at the information brought him by the reporter and emphatically denied passing the cheque upon Gordon with fraudulent intent. He said that when he went to Toronto from Montreal on Thursday last, he found himself in need of money. He appealed to Gordon and suggested that the latter either loan him money, or else endorse the cheque, signed with Miller's name. Gordon chose the latter course, and after securing his signature Schweitz had the cheque cashed. Schweitz claimed that the cheque was received from Miller, who is a travelling man, in return for money loaned him by the pastor; that be received it in good faith and passed it without the slightest suspicion that it was bogus. He did not know Miller's present address, Schweitz showed a letter signed by A. Levy, president of the Rhine street congregation, authorizing him to sell tickets at 50 cents each for a pair of silver candlesticks, which were to be raffled off for the benefit of the synagogue on Jan. 15.

THE RAFFLE POSTPONED.

On account of the small demand for the tickets the raffle was postponed by order of the officers until Feb. 24. He also had a letter, signed by Dr. Benjamin Cohn, pastor of a Buffalo synagogue, recommending him to the graces of the Jewish public in general. The letter from the president of the Rhine street congregation was sealed with the seal of the synagogue. Berman the secretary of the congregation, told the reporter that Schweitz had gone to Canada with the consent of the congregation to raise funds and confirmed the statement of pastor that the raffle had been postponed.

SCHWEITZ ENDORSED.

He said that Schweitz would not intentionally pass a bogus cheque. Schweitz left the house with the reporter for the purpose of sending a telegram to Gordon, expressive of his willingness to make good the amount of cheque which the Toronto man endorsed at his solicitation. He denied having swindled anyone out of a cent, either in Toronto or Montreal. C. Schweitz has been in the city for about six months. He came here from New York and was chosen pastor of the Rhine street synagogue shortly after he arrived in town.

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

A PRISONER WALKS OUT OF COURT AND ESCAPES.

Accident to a Street Car Conductor—The Hotelkeepers' Association—A Bowmanville Crook Sent Down—The News from Toronto.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, Jan. 24.—Just after the police court concluded this morning a man without a coat or waistcoat, apparently working about the place, walked into the dock from the cage by the prisoners' staircase and opening the door of the dock, passed out into the crowd and disappeared.

There was nothing very desperate or daring about the man and the manner in which he walked out of court was without hurry and not noticeable by any peculiarity. No one dreamt that he was a highway robber making his escape. Yet such he was. On Dec. 25th James Langford was committed to the Central Prison for 12 months for highway robbery. This morning he was brought up to answer a charge of larceny and was remanded.

James does not like the Central, and so when he got down into the cage again made up his mind to shake the whole concern. He took off his coat and waistcoat, rolled up his shirtsleeves and grasping the bars of the cage with his hands managed by a tremendous effort to spring them enough to permit the passage of his body. He squeezed through and then coolly walked upstairs.

Those who saw him paid no attention, thinking that he was a workman engaged in some odd job about the building, and in a few minutes James was outside, a free man, having hoodwinked the lynx-eyed guardians of the peace. His escape was not discovered for 25 minutes. He is 25 years old, 5 feet 5½ inches high, with blue eyes and dark hair.

FELL TWENTY FEET.

A street car conductor named John Young, who lives at 61 Jarvis street, was frightfully injured this morning between seven and eight o'clock at the Frederick street power house.

While engaged on the second floor he fell down the elevator shaft, alighting twenty feet below on his face. Dr. Sinclair was called in attendance and found that the unfortunate man's face had been terribly lacerated. He also sustained severe bruises about the body.

The injured man was removed to the General Hospital in the ambulance. He will recover, but throughout life his face will be awfully disfigured.

HOTELKEEPERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Toronto branch of the Hotelkeepers' Association yesterday afternoon elected these officers: President, John R. Wilson; first vice-president, H. Brown; second vice-president, J. R. Marshall; treasurer, John Stormont; auditors, S. Richardson and T. H. George.

There were many complaints of the inactivity of the big hotel men and those near the stations in the interests of the association. They are ready to profit by the work of the association, but sadly lacking when personal effort or money is needed.

It was proposed to call the organization "The Trade Protection Society," and admit butchers, bakers, dairymen and others who supply hotels. This, it is said, would make the association much stronger, and the dealers are anxious to come in.

A BOWMANVILLE CROOK.

Perry McWain, the Bowmanville crook who has been remanded several times, came before Magistrate Denison this morning on seven charges of theft.

He presented an ugly appearance as he had a broken jaw, sustained by falling into a cattle-guard four weeks ago.

The prisoner was found guilty on four charges and committed to the Central for one year.

PARKER DISCHARGED.

Chief Justice Meredith has given judgment discharging Charles Parker, the well-known lacrosse player, who was committed a few days ago for alleged larceny of a trifling nature from his employer.

CHURCHILL DEAD.

A Brilliant Statesman Passes Away—Son of the Sixth Duke of Marlborough.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Lord Randolph Churchill died at 6 o'clock this morning, surrounded by his family and friends.

His tour around the world, which was undertaken with the hope of improving his health, did not have the expected result, and his journey home was hastened in order that he might die in England.

Lord Randolph was the second son of the sixth Duke of Marlborough and Lady Frances Anne, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Londonderry. He filled the post of Secretary of State for India, under Lord Salisbury, in 1885. He married in 1874 Jennie Jerome, of New York.

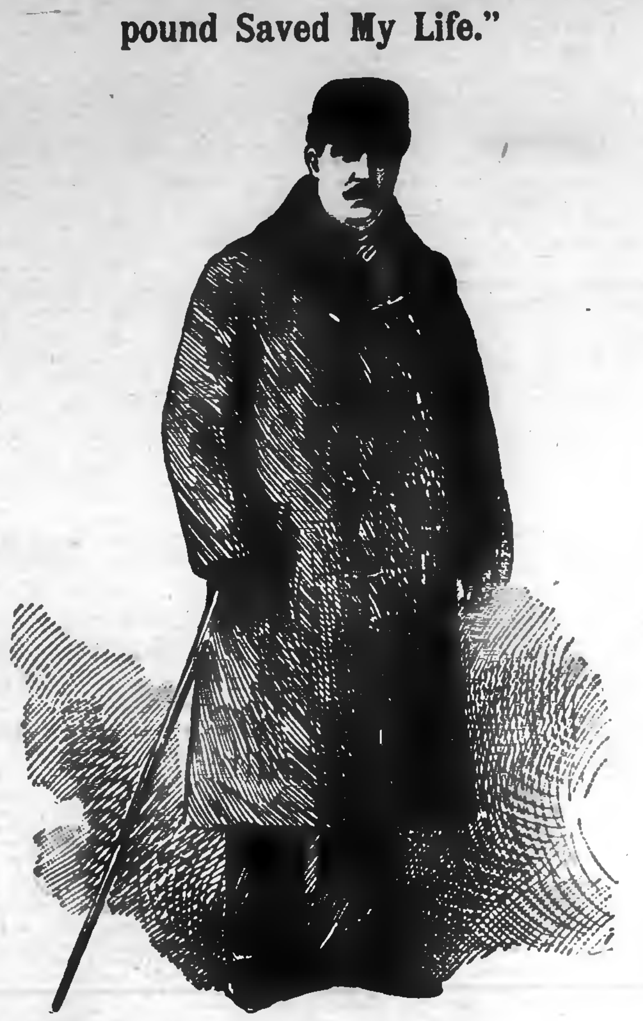
LONDON, Jan. 24.—During the morning a private funeral service for the family only over the body of Lord Randolf Churchill was held at the Churchill residence.

The remains will be interred on Monday next at Bladon church, near Blenheim, where the two younger brothers of the deceased are buried. The mother of the late Lord Randolf Churchill, Frances Ann Emily, Duchess of Marlborough, is seriously ill.

HE WAS AN OARSMAN AND ATHLETE

A Terrible Case of Kidney Trouble

Mr. Harry Ball says: "Paine's Celery Compound Saved My Life."



H. BALL.

Mr. H. Ball, the widely known and popular auctioneer, of Chatham, Ont., has a grand record as an oarsman and athletic. He was the great figure of the "Chatham four" who held the amateur championship of the Dominion. Mr. Ball has also rowed in singles against the best amateurs of the day.

Unfortunately for Mr. Ball that insidious and deadly trouble, kidney disease, was developed to fearful extent. Mr. Ball was confined to bed for four months, and all the able efforts of physicians failed to check or banish the awful disease. The work of banishing disease and cheating death of a victim was left to the life-renewing powers of Paine's Celery Compound.

Mr. Ball writes thus:

On August 6th, 1892, I was so seriously ill I was obliged to take to my bed, where I laid for four months. The doctors here and in Toronto said my trouble was Addison's disease of the kidneys, and told me I would never walk again. In November of the same year, I commenced to use Paine's Celery Compound. After having used a number of bottles I was enabled to attend to business, and felt like a new man. Before using the Compound I was very much reduced in flesh; to-day I weigh over 200 pounds. I can affirm with confidence and honesty that Paine's Celery Compound saved my life.

STRIKE ALMOST OVER.

CONSIDERABLE WIRE CUTTING AND RIOTING STILL.

The Companies Will Be Masters of the Situation in a Few Days—Many Shots Fired—One Man Dies.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.—Some rather indiscriminate shooting has been indulged in by the militia. Another citizen was shot today and many people had very narrow escapes. Wire cutting, obstructing tracks and bombarding cars are still continued in spite of the presence of the troops.

The strike of the linemen and electricians causes the companies much trouble but six new lines were opened today and they are bringing many men from outside places. Presidents Senis, Norton and Wicker says the three systems have practically won the strike and that traffic will be completely restored in a few days. The strikers proposed to arbitrate the matters in dispute but the presidents positively refused.

CARNEY DIES.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.—Thomas Carneye who, while working on the roof of a house on Hicks street yesterday, was shot by the soldiers of the Thirteenth regiment wh were guarding a car which had been started on one of the lines, died at the hospital this morning.

William McGrath, a conductor, and Richard Lyman, a motorman, were arrested for pulling down trolley wires this morning.

The wiring cutting continues to be more extensive than at any time since the strike began.

LINEMEN GO OUT.

The linemen and electrical workmen, after much deliberation, decided to strike out of sympathy with the conductors and motormen. Their action will increase the troubles of the presidents of the trolley lines. The latter made the best showing in the operation of cars of any day since the strike was ordered. Six new lines were opened and more cars were run on the others which have been open all of this week.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

Houses were riddled with bullets, windows were broken and many people had narrow escapes. From one window a man pointed a loaded revolver. He was captured. Another man was arrested who threw coal. About 40 shots were fired by the men of the 13th Brooklyn Regiment. Early in the day Troop A, New York City's swell organization, charged with drawn sabres to disperse a mob, which was stoning a gang of non-union workmen repairing tracks. In other instances troops fired at windows from which stones were thrown at them and used their bayonets to disperse crowds. Wire cutting, obstructing tracks and bombarding cars were continued in spite of the presence of the troops.

Italian Politics.

ROME, Jan. 22.—The political parties of Italy are preparing for a general election. The Socialists have selected as candidates a number of their comrades who were sentenced to imprisonment for taking part in the riots in Sicily.

Cavan and Millbrook will hold a township Sunday school convention in the Methodist church, Cavanville, on Tuesday Feb. 5th afternoon and evening.

The anniversary in connection with St. Paul's church will take place Sunday and Monday, Jan. 27th and 28th. On Sunday, special sermons will be preached by Rev. J. C. Davidson, of Peterborough, at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 7 p.m.—Uxbridge Times.

The printing business must be at a pretty low ebb when capable journeymen advertise their services for a weekly wage of two loaves of bread, as was the case a few days ago in a Toronto paper. Then, again, in last Saturday's Empire a "diligent, speedy, and in every way reliable workman" offers his services for a weekly wage of "shelter from the cold."

The Mechanics' Institute have added the following new books to the library:—The Play Actress, Trocket; The Odes of Horace, Gladstone; The Parasite, Doyle; Domestic Manners of the Americans, Trollop; For Cash Only, Payne; Ben Hur, Wallace; Christopher Tadpole, Smith; Adventures of Mr. Ledbury, Smith; Dog and his Shadow, Francillon; hhe Man and the Woman, Buchanan.

Half an inch in length is a very small thing but if added to a man's nose it would make a marked difference in his personal appearance, and when a stick of firewood is just too long by half an inch for the stove it will do more to take the Christianity out of a human being than any thing else in the world, except possibly putting stove-pipes together. An half-inch advertisement in THE TIMES will secure a servant, a situation, or enable you to sell any article you may have for sale.

It is related that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his appeals to her to come home. He finally hit upon a plan to induce her to return. He sent her a copy of the local paper with one item clipped out, and when she wrote to find out what it was, he refused to tell her. The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what had been going on that her husband did not want her to know about.

A very large American eagle has taken up its quarters in Mr. Sinclairs' woods, near Cambray. A small boy noticed the bird first in the top of a large tree and whistled and clapped his hands with a view to frighten it away. The eagle was not at all alarmed but turning its head from one side to the other, uttered piercing shrieks of defiance and flapping its wings, drove terror in the heart of the boy, who hurriedly decamped. A sportsman, who was out after the bird, was seized with 'bush fever' at the first sight and missed the bird, though he claims he scattered his feathers. All the boys are out with their guns but so far without success.—Lindsay Watchman.

If a man were to give another man an orange, he would merely say, "I give you this orange;" but when the transaction is entrusted to the hands of a lawyer to put it in writing, he adopts this form: "hereby give, grant and convey to you all and singular, estate and interest, right, title and claim and advantages of and in the said orange, together with all its rind, skin, juice, pulp and pips, and all right and advantages therein, with full power to bite, cut, suck and otherwise eat the same, or give the same away, as fully and effectually as I, the said A B, am entitled to bite, cut, suck or otherwise eat the same orange, or give the same away, with its rind, skin, juice, pulp and pips, anything hereinbefore or hereafter, or in any other deed or deeds, instrument or instruments, of what nature or kind soever to the contrary notwithstanding.

AFTER CANADIAN LUMBER.

Chicago Men Trying to Buy the Rat Portage Mills.

Special to the Times.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 24.—Two Chicago capitalists who are here are endeavoring to purchase the entire lumber cut of Rat Portage district mills for this year, provided they can make satisfactory terms. They say that the pine forests of Minnesota are rapidly being depleted, which sends the United States dealers and lumberman into the Northwestern Ontario woods for their supply.

The Board of Trade propose to take action regarding the raising of insurance rates 5 per cent. to cover the cost of the Provincial tax. The insurance men will probably not insist on the extra 5 per cent.

SMALLPOX SPREADING.

A Nurse Takes the Disease—Her Physicians Anxious.

Special to the Times.

GUELPH, Jan. 24.—A report is current that Miss Turnbull, one of the two nurses attending Wm. Schwartz, the smallpox patient at the pest hospital here, is showing symptoms of the disease.

The medical authorities are slightly alarmed at her condition.

Schwartz's condition is much improved from yesterday, and every precaution is being taken to prevent any further spread of the disease. In case there should be, an addition is now being made to the building. The citizens generally are not particularly alarmed.

THE OHIO WRECK.

It is Not Believed that None Were Drowned in in the Ohio.

Special to the Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., 24.—Capt. Conlan, of the lost steamer, State of Missouri, reiterates his story to the effect that no lives were lost in the disaster of Saturday night. The general public in this part of the country, however, knows to the contray. There were too many eyewitnesses who saw men drown all round them. Capt. Conlan also states that there were only nine passengers on board when the boat went down.

W. N. Crockett, a farmer, living two miles below this city, today found the cabin passengers of the wrecked State of Missouri, and reference to it showed there were 15 cabin and two deck passengers.

Men and Mules Killed.

STURGIS, Ky., Jan. 23.—About 11.30 o'clock last night at the mines of the Trade water Coal Co, five kegs of powder inside the mines exploded, killing five men and two mules.

THE LIME JUICE CLUB.

REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING OF THIS CHASTE SOCIETY.

A Very Large Attendance—Very Important Business Transacted—The President's Address—Reports of Committees—Capital Punishment.

Long before eight o'clock the thoroughfares leading to the Hall of Wisdom was black with people wending their way to the first meeting of the Lime Juice Club, in 1895. When Sir Richard ascended the pedestal of fame, every seat was filled the doors leading into the museum and the library having been thrown open to accommodate the members in these spacious wings. The front seats, as usual, were occupied by the old members, amongst whom were Henroost Bell, Hon. Talkaway Foulweather, Boneyard Bellyjim, Bombshell McNaughton, Annaias Burbee, Stoplog Dinwodie, Hon. Fortypercent Duncefort, Tiedup Garley, Threeply Murray and many others.

A strong delegation, headed by gentleman Morrison, was present from Lakefield, while Cautious Miller and Lemonade Gale represented the Keene branch. In fact all the important towns and cities in the Dominion were fully represented, while not a few delegates were in attendance from abroad.

THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH.

It was fully five minutes after Sir Richard stood up before the applause subsided sufficiently to allow him to proceed. It was evident that the President was as popular as ever with the members of the club. "We are gathered once more together," he began, as he straightened a cramp out of his left leg, "in this old familiar place, to perform the sacred duties of our calling as a great and powerful organization. This is our first inaugral meeting for the new year, and as such is of special interest. I am glad to see so many members present, indicating that we are progressing. I hope you have all spent your holidays pleasantly. Some of you have been in Europe, I am told, taking your vacation, while others spent their Christmas in Asia and Africa. As for myself I returned with Brother Duncefort and spent a few days quietly with Bro. Transparent Thompson, of Bobcaygeon, who entertained us most royally. (Loud cheer by mistake from Brother Whalebone Wells) I hope you are all the better of the rest and change of scene which the Christmas holidays afforded, so as to successfully tackle the momentous questions which are likely to come before this great club during the current year."

SAT ON.

The wisdom of the club in deciding not to permit any lecturer to enter the hall until he had passed an examination before a committee, was apparent when the Hon. Anvil Davis walked into Peterborough from Lakefield to deliver his lecture on "Can we ever be perfectly Happy?" The committee submitted him to the following examination:

"When was Robinson Crusoe born?

"What brought about the fall of the Roman Empire?"

"What nation first made use of the soup bone as a substitute for turkey?"

"Who introduce the game of pedro into this country?"

"Who was Navigator Davidson and why did he plough the raging Otonabee?"

"If I have 2,000,000 oranges and give a stranger 428000. how many have I left?"

"How long would a body weighing 2,422 pounds take to fall 1000 feet?"

The list of questions embraced thirty-one, and the Hon. Anvil could not return a correct answer to a single one of them. He grew quite indignant over the examination, claiming that the only two things which stood in the way of perfect happiness on earth was poor whiskey and the house fly; but the committee were firm, and he was told to jog along.

"The report of the committee will be accepted and adopted," observed Sir Richard, as he coughed a peanut shuck out of his windpipe, "and each member will consider himself formally thanked. Had the Hon. Anvil been permitted to take this mighty platform, we should have lost half an hour and been no wiser. He is an old member of this club, and I have known him to stop the clock with his tongue, and would no doubt have introduced the shell and pea game to finish up with. I may say he is the only individual that ever cut the hind buttons off my Sunday coat-tails without my knowledge. Let the regular proceedings now proceed."

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The Librarian reported the receipt of several valuable books during the past month, one of them being a volume containing the history, trial and execution of thirty different murderers. He also announced that the roof leaked in nine different places, and that much of the literature had to be placed in the oven and dried previous to being lent out to members. He asked an appropriation of $125 to stop the leaks.

"That's exactly the way with some folks," replied the President. "They buy a four hundred dollar carriage to be pulled by a fifty dollar horse. When we expended $125 to preserve $60 worth of books we shall have inaugurated a financial policy that will soon oblige us to rent post office boxes to receive our dunning letters."

The caretaker reported that another dastardly attempt had been made to wreck the Hall of Wisdom. Some unkown villian had entered the building through a window in the rear, and deposited half a pound of powder in the stove. Providentally the parcel was discovered when the janiter came to light the fire for to-night's meeting, otherwise a terrible catastrophe would have resulted. Fortypercent Duncefort would have been blown clean through the skylight, while Henroost Bell, Bro. Talkaway and Tiedup Garley, whose seats are next to the stove, would, in all probability have been fired with full force against the door leading into the museum. After demolishing this they would have brought up against the shelving on the nort-east wall, where many of the sacred relics are deposited. In fact the destruction of the building would probably have been complete.

"Let this be a warning," said Sir Richard, as he slowly rose to his feet, "not to cease keeping a vigilant eye on all strangers who visit our town. In case any member of this club happens to see any stranger lurking around the Hall of Wisdom in future, it will be his duty to go over to the police station and wake up a policeman and have him arrested."

The janitor reported that the north-corner of the hall had lately sunk eight inches, and he would recommend that half an inch be cut off the hind leg of the chairs, so that members would not be obliged to sit on a slant.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.

A communication was received from the Secretary of the Peterborough Fortnightly Club, as follows:

"We notice by the morning TIMES that the Lime Juice Club tavors capital punishment. Do you claim that hanging murderers' decreased the number of murders?'

"He understands our position on the question exactly right," replied the President. "This great club favors capital punishment, and it is not greatly opposed to seeing a sertain class of criminals left hanging to a limb. We don't agree that hanging a murderer will prevent future murders, but we do contend that it will diminish the number of villians on the face of the earth."

LEFT OVER.

Talkaway Foulweather secured the floor to suggest that, in view of the length of the evenings and the large attendance at the library, it might be a good thing to form a debating society. He had belonged to several during the last dozen years, and he believed himself to have been greatly benefitted.

"We will take the matter under advisement," replied the President. "I have had some little experience with debating societies, and this here scar on the back of head is the result of once being on the negative side when the question at issue was "What could We do without Women?"

AN IMPOSTER.

The following letter was received from Laktfield:

SIR RICHARD MCBRIDE,—Sir—One day last week a stranger entered this village, walking in the middle of the road. He made a bee line for the nearest hotel and there introduced himself as Talkaway Foulweather, of the Lime Juice Club. He exhibited a photograph of the President, at pedro pack and a certificate of identity purporting to be signed by three of the highest officers of the Lime Juice Club. Under pretense that he had come to lecture before the branch lodge here, he borrowed five dollars from various parties, booked Stoplog Dinwoodie's plug hat, and skipped out during the night. Was he the genuine Talkaway or not? Public opinion is divided, and the bets even.

Brother Talkaway swallowed a brass button which he was holding in his mouth to cure the earache in his haste to secure a heating and denounce the imposter, but the President waved him down.

"Of course it was'nt you, and you need not get unduly exited. No one will believe it was you. The secretary will offer a reward of $5,000 for the villian dead or alive, and a green circular will be sent over the country warning the public to beware of imposters."

A PETITION.

Some sixty or seventy petitions were received since last meeting, but the bundle was accidentally knocked off the secretary's table and probably burnt by the janitor when he built the fire. The janitor offered to make offidavit before R. S. Davidson, J. P., that his kindling consisted of two old ink bottles and a wheelbarrow full of old copies of the Review and Examiner, but he is a man who often labours under fits of absentmindedness.

Bro. Carese LeBrun, Chairman of the Committee on Thunderstorms, reported that the committee had agreed to his new theory regarding these disturbances. He offered to address the club giving all details, for $2 in money and a pair of curling rubbers. (Wild cheer by mistake from Bro. Col. Louks, who was promptly fined $1,600 and costs.)

When it was discovered that Bro. LeBrun held the theory that horseradish attracted lightning and asparagas repelled it and that greasing a wire fence would ship the lightening off to a neighbors' barn, the club laid his offer under the table.

THE CLOSE.

The balance of the business was placed in the safe, and the meeting fell asunder for one week.

EXPLOSION IN A MINE.

Five Miners Killed and Buried in the Wreckage.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 24.—A special to the Republic from Sturgis, Ky., says about 11.30 last night at the mines of the Trade Water Coal Company five kegs of powder exploded inside the mine, killing five men and caving the mine in on them. About 75 men were at work at 2 a. m., digging the bodies out of the debris.

The bodies of the five miners killed in an explosion of powder in the mines last night were recovered today.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 26 1895.

Good morning!

The French ought to be brave. None but the brave deserve the Faure.

Mr. Hartey's prospects of success were never brighter. Both Archbishop Cleary and Principal Grant keeping quiet.

Toronto's civic investigation cost $7,000. It was cheap at that sum. The Toronto people got more than $7,000 worth of fun out of it.

M. Felix Faure is the new President of France. We suppose they did on electing him was to sing Faure He's a Joly Good Fellow.

Three United States iron operators are in Belleville looking over the ground with a view to establishing smelting works and steel plants. This is a pointer for the Board of Trade.

No less than 165 chattel mortgages were given by civil servants in Ottawa last year. This is fifty-one more than the number given by any other class in the Dominion capital. The extravagance of the country's servants more than keeps pace with the liberality shown them.

As the Legislature has no powers to prohibit, the chances are that the poor man will not be deprived of his beer for a year or two; and no doubt the Government is simply heart-broken at the knowledge that it cannot put a stop to the promiscuous imbibing of strong drink.

A curious instance of how phrases are spread by school books is shown in the last number of Dr. Murray's Dictionary. No earlier authority could be found for the term "Black Death," describing the plague that devastated Europe in the fourteenth century, than Mrs. Markham's celebrated histories for young persons which first appeared in 1836.

Counciller Sproule made a valuable suggestion to a TIMES reporter a few days ago. His proposal is for the town to buy the extensive gravel bed at Hilliard's and arrange with the street railway to deliver it at certain points, using dump cars for the purpose. This gravel, it is claimed, is equal to the broken stone, and handled in this way all our leading streets would soon be macadamized.

The contract for the new Russian loan of 500,000,000f. for the Siberian Railway has been signed. A Paris correspondent says that this loan realizes a favorite idea of the late Tsar, who for eight years hoped to see it executed, and his son regards the scheme as a sacred bequest. He has accordingly adhered to it without any alteration. Success, the correspondent says, is perfectly certain especially as the terms are tempting.

The absurdity of the present police arrangements is apparent when it is known that two men travel together during the night up and down George street, while a third sits with his ear to the telephone at the station. If the latter should doze off, as it frequently happens, one of the other drops in and wakes him up. And over these men we place a boss policeman at $800 per year, and perquisites. Surely the force needs reorganising.

The poor Pullman company, which was kept running "at a loss" has been able to pay another dividend at the rate of eight per cent.

Our evening contemporary, the Examiner, says: "Chief McKinnon, of Hamilton, denies being guilty of immorality." The Hamilton Spectator in reply says that Mr. McKinnon has not been seeking to immortalize himself.

In Manchester, England, the Town Council is about to put $1,250,000 into clearing the slums. An over-crowded and unhealthy space of five acres in the centre of the city will be taken, the buildings torn down and new model workmen's dwellings erected in their stead, with large areas for playgrounds and trees an flowers planted in the open spaces.

A very pretty natural phenomenon was witnessed near Apollo, Pa., during the recent zero weather. A natural gas well of of great pressure had been driven, and a strong stream of water was forced out of the hole by the pressure of the gas. The water rose to the height of sixty feet, where it spread like an umbrella and immediately froze, making a veritable natural fountain of snow.

Some rich people in Europe now have their carriages lighted within and without with electric lamps supplied by a storage battery. The Prince of Wales set the fashion in London, and Emperor William has his court carriages lighted by electricity, while all over the harness are little colored lights which glow like fireflies and give a very gay appearance to the equipage.

It would'nt be a bad idea for the new council to pass a by-law putting a stop to taking ice from the Little Lake. We have heard so much about bacteria since the advent of the outfall sewer matter, that we may be considered an authority on the subject. It is not pleasant, apart from a more serious aspect of the case, to be obliged to take our cocktails during the summer with ice formed on the top of the sewer.

Every Reform paper in the country has private information to the effect that the next general elections will be held in the course of a few weeks. It is a bit mean of the Reform papers to keep giving the Government away in this fashion. The odd thing about it is that they seem to know more about the Government's plans than the members of the Government do themselves.

A Chicago judge ordered a jury to find for the defendant without leaving their seats. The jury refused. After a time 11 jurors consented to obey the judge's order under protest. The twelfth man declared he could not and would not find such a verdict. Whereupon the judge sent him to jail for contempt of court. If that is the American way the sooner the jury is abolished in that country, and the decision of cases left entirely in the hands of judges elected by the mob, the better for honest jurors.

According to their own account the Japs have won great victories with very little loss of life. Up to December 6th only 350 men had been killed in battle, while 430 had fallen victims to disease. General Osoko, with 1,500 men, is said to have defeated 10,000 Chinese, and a body of unarmed Japanese camp followers is said to have routed Chinese cavalry and infantry. If half of these stories are true, the Japs have fully justified their claim to the proud title of "The English of the Pacific."

Those who attended the Mayor's oyster supper resolved themselves into a mutual admiration society. Police Magistrate Dumble professed a great fondness for Chief Constable Rossel; the mayor referred in eloquent terms to the mighty legal attainments of the Town Solicitor; the Town Solicitor daubed a heavy coat of whitewash on the back of the Town Engineer, and so it went around. This was all for the benefit of the new councillors, who, it is feared, will be manly enough to carry out the wishes of a vast majority of the people and vote for a complete change in the legal, police and engineering departments.

Newfoundland is to send a delegation to Canada with a view to seeing on what terms she can come in out of the wet. For years the people of Newfoundland have been comforting themselves with the fond delusion that Canada was waiting for them with open arms, but they have held aloof. Now that they are anxious for union they find that the situation is not quite what they fancied it. There are a good many questions to be carefully considered before Newfoundland can be taken into the confederation. Newfoundland is heavily burdened with debt and is a bone of international contention. The diplomats of Great Britain and France have never been able to adjust the long-standing differences, and should Newfoundland become a part of the Dominion it simply means that this troublesome question will be turned over to Canada. What reason is there for supposing that Canada could settle it more satisfactorily than England? Looking at it from all points of view, the Newfoundland nut is a rather nasty one to crack.

THE DUTY OF THE COUNCIL.

There is a loud call for a change in the head of the legal department of the corporation, as well as a complete reorganization of the police force. The new members of the council who know the feelings of the people on these questions, must not allow themselves to be used by cunning wirepullers, who have axes to grind. It is all very well for men like the mayor and Messrs. Dumble, Edwards, Belcher and Chief Roszel to whitewash one another, as they did the other evening at the mayor's supper. It is a poor sort of a councillor who will be turned from his purpose of voting for a change on this account.

The new council know the wishes of a vast majority of the people, and it is their duty to give effect to these wishes.

TWO FARCES.

The Dominion government organized a royal commission on the prohibition question. This commission traveled all over the country and took evidence which ought to convince it that brewers, saloonkeepers, liquor dealers, and those fond of a glass, are opposed to prohibition; while "temperance" men generally are in favor of it. The expensive travelling and hearing of "evidence" being completed, the comission will publish that evidence in a big book, at an enormous expense to the country, and that will be the last of it.

The Ontario government sent out a royal commission to discover whether county officials should be paid by fees or by salary. To this end the commission traveled all over the province and examined many people. They found that all officials who were growing fat on fees, and their friends, were quite satisfied with the existing state of affairs—not one of the fee-fed being of opinion that it would be expedient to cut his salary down. They also found that some others were opposed to the fee system, and beleved in fixed salaries.

Both these commissions examined many people; but the prohibition commission did not examine one in a hundred of the population of the province, so that, as an expression of popular opinion the "evidence" goes for nothing. The Dominion government will not introduce prohibitory legislation as a result of the report of the prohibition commission, nor will Sir Oliver's government make any change in the mode of paying county officials by reason of the report of the fee commission. It is possible that Sir Oliver may make a change, but if he does it will be in consequence of the fact that a majority—or a very dangerous minority—of the legislature insists upon it. Then he will find his excuse in the report of the commission.

Neither government has any too much money, and it would be as well to put a stop to this royal commission farce.

The representives of the people in parliament or in legislature assembled ought to be able to decide the prohibition question and the fee question much better than any commission can do it.

THE LATEST MOVE OF THE JAPANESE.

That the Japanese cannot be [illegible] inaction by illusory overtures for peace is manifest from the fact that they have landed a large force near Wei-hai-wei with the evident intention of reducing that fortress, and have bombarded Teng-Chow, also situated on the promonory which forms the northeastern part of the Chinese province of Shantung. These demonstrations on the coast of China proper are not only of obvious strategic importance, but are likely to produce a profound moral effect on the perplexed, plundered, and hitherto deceived subjects of the Manchu dynasty. The capture of Wei-hai-wei by the power which is already master of Port Arthur will give it absolute control of the entrance to the Gulf of Pechili, and should enable it to gain possession of the remnant of the Chinese navy. Now that, moreover, the dreaded "Woken" have actually appeared on the sacred soil of the Middle Kingdom, the lying reports of victories, concocted at Pekin, will no longer be believed; and the patent failure of the Manchu Government to defend the country will exite such widespread distrust as to render almost impossible an organization of the national resources for defence.

We call China's overtures for peace illusory, because the absence of anything like haste on the part of her agents to begin negotiations indicates that their only purpose is to check the Japanese advance until the spring, by which time it is hoped that a large Chinese army can be trained by European officers and equipped with perfect weapons. The experience of Ward and Gordon in the Taiping rebellion proved that the Chinese, if disciprined and armed in European fashion may be made formidable soldiers. That the naming of commissioners to arrange terms for peace has no other object but delay is taken for granted, we observe, by the London newspapers, which know the real instutions of the Manchu authorities through their correspondents at Pekin, Tientsin, and Shanghai.

DISEASES CARRIED IN BOOKS.

The prevalence of an epidemic of diphtheria in and about Boston has led to a discussion as to the way in which the germs of the disease are carried in school and library books.

There can be no doubt that books are one of the best mediums for the transmission of disease germs. This is especially true of the germs of scarlet fever. A correspondent of the Boston Herald advises that measures be taken in that city to sterilize all school and library books which have been in infected houses by means of heat. It is said that diphtheria germs are killed by heat at a temperature of 122 degrees Fahrenheit. This correspondent says that he conducted experiments by putting books in an oven, and discovered that he could heat them through and through to a temperature of 158 degrees in three hours without injury to the paper or binding. He advocates, therefore, that rooms be provided in the schoolhouses where the books can be laid upon iron shelves and heated to the proper temperature.

The best physicians say that nothing but boiling the germs of scarlet fever, or subjecting them to great heat, will kill them, and it might be well for those who have books of which they are suspicious to treat them in the way suggested before they let persons who are likely to take the disease read them.

GLADSTONE AND THE GOVERNMENT.

The news from Cannes will boom the Gladstone end of the Liberal policy, and make it more difficult for the old Gladstone party in the Commons to desert the Government. Lord Rosebery's plan of preparing a platform on which to go to the country by hewing out the planks one by one in the Commons carpenter shop, beginning with Welsh disestablishment and closing with a sweeping condemnation of the Lords, is one that the different sections of his party can hardly find reasons to disagree with; unless they dispute about precedence. They can hardly ask that the Government appeal to the country without a definite policy, and they will not readily find a better means of advertising that policy than by putting its various features into concrete legislative form and sending them up to the Lords when the Conservatives must pronounce upon them.

Mr. Gladstone's appearance on the front benches, unencumbered by the responsibilities of the Premiership, will certainly excite a good deal of puplic itnerest. Among other things, it will be a guarantee that the Irish question will not be dropped; and will consequently, tend to prevent any falling away for the present in the McCarthyite support of the Government. It may also press the matter of the Armenian outrages to the fore and force a frank discussion of this diplomotically delicate question. The Opposition are apparently willing to let the Government select largely the ground for the coming contest. Apart from Mr. Chamberlain's semi-Socialistic schemes, they seem to have no positive programme to propose. They merely oppose. They are content that the country should pronounce upon the Liberal policy; ready, if the electors pronounce against it, to step in and take charge of affairs to be conducted on the lines. Truly Conservative are they at the present time—with the exception of the Chamberlain wedge—and worthy of the name that is so often misapplied.

It the Rosebery programme should collapse in the commons, then the Government would be compelled to go to the country most heavily handicapped. Collapse could only come because of disagreement between themselves, and the English Liberals would then face the electors in much the same condition that the American Democrats did last autumn. Party success would mean the triumph of so clear and definite policy; and the people do not like a party that does not know its own mind. "A practical programme," Lord Rosebery asks for; and the various sections of his following will find their only chance for immediate success in agreeing, by compromise or otherwise, upon such a programme.

DESTROYING THE DIPHTHERIA PLAGUE.

When the invention of anti-toxic serum was first announced there seemed reason to hope that it would prove an effective remedy for one of the deadliest ills to which flesh is heir to. Subsequently developments strengthened this hope into confidence. The remarkable testimony of the Paris doctors for the last month back, and that of Dr. Kinyann, in Washington, last week, must convince the most skeptical that the new treatment of diphtheria is of the greatest possible value. In cases of the disease without other complications, he assures us, anti-toxine is practically a sure cure. In fact, the death rate in Paris and Washington is reduced to zero. And where there are complications of other diseases, as is often the case, the remedy is still so effective as to lessen the morality by more than one half. Similar reports come from the Austrian Government, under whose patronage the remedy is being widely used. In Trieste for years past the death rate among diphtheria patients has been from 44 to 50 per cent. On August 24 last the authorities began dispensing anti-toxin gratis, and since that date the death rate in hospitals has been less than 23 per cent., and in private practice less than 7 per cent. In the Bukowina the death rate has by the same means been reduced from 63 to 15 per cent., and in other parts of the Empire similar results, and some even more favorable, are recorded. For two principal reasons it seems desirable that the manufacture should be under Government—or municipal—patronage. One is that thus its benefits may be enjoyed by the people. Anti-toxin is manufactured slowly, and by a process that makes it costly. And diphtheria is a disease that rages most among poor people. Unless, therefore, by Governmental dispensation the remedy can be distributed at a merely nominal cost, there is reason to fear that its benefit may be withheld from those who need it most. In Austria the Government is dispensing it gratis. In France the Pasteuo Institute is giving it out most appropriately, since this and similar discoveries are ultimately to be credited to the epoch-making researches of M. Pasteur. but the Institute is aided in doing with a liberal subsidy from the French Goverament. Our municipal, Provincial, and Dominion Governments. There is no doubt that the work belongs to them as much as that of quarantine, of food inspection, of saditary regulation of streets and buildings. It is a work purely for the promotion of the public welfare; and that is one of the chief functions of government.

The other main reason for official supervision is that thus will a supply of antitoxine of standard quality be assured. We have said that the process of manufacture is a slow and elaborate one. But at the price at which the product is now sold it is enormously profitable. There is serious danger, therefore, that many will enter upon the manufacture of it as a money making enterprise; that in seeking to increase their profits they will relax the scrupulous care which should be observed in every stage and detail of the work; and thus the market will be stocked with antitoxin of various makes and various qualities, some of it as good as can be, and some of it perhaps worthless, if not actually injurious. Anti-toxine is too valuable a remedy to be in anyway discredited or witheld from general use. Its quality ought to be as absolutely assured as that of the metal in a gold dollar, and it ought to be placed within the reach of every person in the land. If that is done, it seems entirely reasonable to expect that what is now one of the most destructive of all diseases will soon become practically extinct.

THE NEXT MOVE.

The Hamilton Herald says that by the decision of the Supreme Court the right to prohibit the liquor traffic rests with the Dominion Government, and we suppose it is good law that if the Dominion Government can prohibit it can also pass an act enabling the provinces to prohibit. Without taking any definite stand itself on the question the Dominion Government can empower the provinces to have prohibition whenever they feel like it, and in this way the question will be tossed back to the Local Legislatures again.

And it is likely that this will be the next move in the prohibition game. The liquor question is always a hot potato with the politicians. At present it is out of Sir Oliver's hands and in the hands of the Federal authorities, but the Federal authorities will never rest happily until they succeed in restoring it to Sir Oliver. It is always so much more comfortable and pleasanter in every way when the other fellows' fingers are being burnt instead of your own.

For the time being the agitation will be removed from the provincial field, but the question may be expected to play a rather prominent part in the Dominion elections which are now looming up. Heretofore it has been fairly well out of Dominion politics, but in view of the Supreme Court's decision it cannot be shelved any longer, and the fact will lend additional interest to the approaching campaign.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Jan. 25.—Live stock—Trade at the East End Abbatoir was anything but lievly today, although the supplies of cattle were smaller than for some time past. There were about 400 cattle, 40 calves and 500 sheep and lambs offered for sale here today, a considerable number of cattle having been offered at previous markets. There were no really prime beeves on sale to-day, and Mr. George Nicholson examined all the offerings without finding anything good enough for his customers. Dovers were asking higher prices for the best animals, but the sales were few and far between. Bulls are more plentiful than is usually the case before Lent, and some of these are very fine animals, but the larger number are of a scubby character. Prices of bulls range from 1⅞ to 3¼c per lb.; pretty good cattle sell at from 2½c to nearly 3½c per lb., and the leaner rough stock at from 2c to 2½c per lb.

The Times

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 26, 1895

THIRTY YEARS HENCE.

PETERBOROUGH AS IT WILL APPEAR IN THE YEAR 1925.

A City of 300,000 Inhabitants—The Trent Valley Canal Completed and the River Teeming with Craft—Elevated Cars, Electric Road Carriages and Flying Machines—A Wonderful Era.

On the evening of Friday, January 25, 1925, John Duponte alighted from the elevated car at the corner of George and Brock streets, Peterborough. It was 7.30 o'clock as indicated by the dials of the illuminated electric clockograph reaching 280 feet in the skies from the dome of the Metropolitan opera house in Central Park. The street at this particular time was crowded with a hurrying throng, some going to business, gayily dressed men and women on their way to the opening of the Grand Ice Carnival, others bound for the theatres, while workingmen, stevedores, sailors, and all classes jostled each other in the mad rush of the great city. Added to this was the whirr of the electric surface cars, the roar of the elevated trains, and the deafening rumble of cabs, omnibusses and heavy trucks. In the midst of this John Duponte stood as one suddenly dropped from the skies. He was as one dazed. Bewildered he passed his hand over his eyes and then looked around. A policeman having noticed this conduct, and thinking the man was an emigrant approached and addressed him.

"Well, sir, where do you wish to go?"

The addressed looked up with the same dazed expression. "First of all," he said, "tell me where I am."

"You are in Peterborough, at the corner of George and Brock streets," Is the man drunk said the officer to himself.

"Peterborough! Peterborough, Canada! Then direct me to THE TIMES office." The officer pointed to a brilliantly lighted 14 storey building, opposite the Metropolitan Opera House, and then left Duponte to order a cabman out of the way of 4 electric cycles that were endeavoring to pass.

At 7.45 on the evening of Friday, January 25, 1925, John Duponte stepped into the electric elevator in the business office of THE TIMES, at 11,274 Brock street. He read the instructions inside the elevator, and then wrote on the pad: "Editorial Rooms." Immediately a queer-looking machine to his left spoke out: "Foreign or Domestic." John jumped at the sound, and then, muttering to himself about it all being foreign to him, jotted down the word foreign. John thought he must have fainted, for all he could remember of what took place when the little machine once more spoke—uttering the words "Foreign Editorial Rooms"—was a flash of light, then blackness, and a sensation as if he had been dropped down a well 4,000 feet deep.

The chief editor of the Foreign department had John transferred to the Domestic editorial rooms. From these he was transferred to the telegraph editors, and from the telegraph editors to the chief editorial writers, and after several more trips in the elevator, and a passage through nine pneumatic tubes, John Duponte at last stood before the city editor, the man he had started out to find.

If John Duponte had been an ordinary looking individual the City Editor of THE TIMES would have granted him just about 30 seconds of his valuable time. But John was the strangest looking individual the city editor had ever seen. Not in facial expression, features or form, but in make-up and dress. Why the clothes that John Duponte had on looked just like those in the trunk the city editor's grandfather had worn, and how many times had he laughed when he thought of how funny he would look with them on. And here was a man wearing the same kind of clothes. Yes, the coat and vest had seams, actual seams in them, while his own, and everybody's were made out of one piece of cloth formed on a mould. So ruminated the city editor as soon as he cast his eye on his strange visitor.

John Duponte told his story and it outrivalled modern fiction. In a few words, Duponte had lived in Peterborough in 1894, thirty years ago. On the evening of Friday, Jan. 25th, 1895, he had fell in a well on his place in Ashburnham and had been stunned. The shock produced one of those phenomenas known as trance. Unlike the experience of many people who have gone into a trance, John didn't know what was going on and was entirely unconscious. A few hours before he reached THE TIMES office he had come to and crawled out of the well, which to his surprise, he found to be in the centre of a large building. The opening was covered with a grating, and pushing this aside he got out, found the street and, looking around, felt that he was in a strange land. He had no idea of the time that had elapsed. His every thought was [illegible] and a friend in the THE TIMES office and he would go to him. His bewilderment increased as he journeyed into the city. He had reached THE TIMES office, as stated above, and that was all he knew about it. The City Editor saw the point. Here was a sensation such as had never been recorded in history. He saw that Duponte was in no [illegible] condition to be of any use then, to placed him in a pneumatic tube and whirled him away to the Canadian Pacific hotel on Water street. Looking through the phonetoscope at his side, he saw that Duponte was seated in the dining room appeasing a 30 years' appetite. Later on he saw him shown to a room. The next day the City Editor drove Duponte all over the many miles of Peterborough streets, and shewed and explained to him the many wonderful improvements that had taken place in 30 years. These cannot be better conveyed to the minds of the present day people than as described by John Duponte in a letter to a friend:

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 26th, 1925.

MY DEAR GORDON,—It was just by chance that I learned you were still alive. I have had a hard time finding my old friends of 30 years ago. Of course you have read in the newspapers of my wonderful experience, but still you can't understand how utterly strange and queer everything is to me. You know you left Peterborough about a month before I met with the accident, and therefore the changes that have taken place here will be interesting to you.

In company with some newspaper men (who have lionised me) I have driven all over the city and have had a splendid opportunity to observe the many changes. Peterborough, as I remember it in 1894, was a town of 9,000 or 10,000 inhabitants. At that time I lived in Ashburnham. Now, the city has a population of nearly 300,000, has completely absorbed Ashburnham, which is now in the heart of the city, while Bridgenorth and Lakefield on the north, Fraserville and Cavanville on the south, Allandale, Douro and Bensfort on the east, and Fowler's Corners, Ida, and Omemee on the west are all flourishing suburbs, connected by electric railway and a suburban service on the Trunk lines. On Saturdays the flying machine of the Aerial Navigation Company, limited, also touch at these places.

You will doubtless be surprised at the progress and size of Peterborough, which owes its present importance and prominence in the commercial world to the completion of the Trent Valley Canal. Old citizens arriving in the city after an absence of thirty years at the C. P. R. depot, which now boasts of four platforms and immense freight yards, are astounded. Of course the elevated and surface lines connect with this depot. In the freight yards the first thing that attracted my attention was the innumerable freight cars loaded with merchandise and prominent among this, thousands of tons of iron ore, from the well-known Belmont and Central Ontario mines, awaiting shipment to Pennsylvania and other parts of the United states. Of course the enormous duty of 75 cents per town charged in 1895 which rendered the working of the mines impracticable then, is now reduced to a mimimum figure. At this depot are constantly thousands of passengers, en route to all parts of the continent, Peterborough being the central shipping and transportation point for Ontario via C.P.R. to the sea coast, the lower Provinces, the Hudson Bay Territory, Australia and the eastern empires. Here is an item that will interest you. You remember having a cow killed on the tracks. They now have electric gates.

While Water street is the principal business thoroughfare, George street is second. Every street in the city is paved with a new material called stonite, a mineral substance, found in large quantities while digging the Trent canal. This stuff is far ahead of asphalt for paving purposes, as, when laid, it is smooth, hard and practically indestructible. The Consolidated Stonite Company employ thousands of hands, and are making millions every year. But to revert to George street, it is now built up with solid business houses, mostly wholesale concerns. The elevated line runs on this street, as well as the surface cars. From Charlotte street, this thoroughfare extends southerly, following the banks of the Otonabee as far as the Yankee Bonnet, where we once upset while out canoeing, you will remember. From that point up to the Little Lake the river side of the street is lined with barges and all description of shipping craft, loading up with implements, merchandise, etc., for all points on the canal, the thickly-settled districts on the back lakes, Lakes Ontario, Erie and other waters. The northern portion of the street teem with pedestrians from the message boy loitering on his way and gazing with longing eyes in the windows of the stores, displaying samples of Ontario's magnetites—prominent amongst which are specimens of gold from the Peterborough County mines—to the English half pay officer, too poor to live on his pension in the old country and only too happy to satisfy his military propensities by settling down in Peterborough, where he can associate with the officers of the School of Infantry and cavalry stationed here.

On the corner of George and Simcoe streets are the magnificent new Street Railway Buildings containing the offices. There is a constant stream of conductors and motormen passing in and out both day and night, for now the cars run day and night. The company operate cars over 120 miles of track. As in other cities, the trolley has been superceded by the storage battery and the dangerous overhead wires done away with.

Nearly all the streets created and named thirty years ago are now business streets, built up with magnificent buildings. The business portion of the city covers an area of about three miles square. The residential portion is made up of beautifully laid out streets and avenues, [illegible] here and there by dozen of well laid out parks. At Dickson's Grove there is a most lovely natural park. How delightful to think that right in the heart of the city one can revel in the beauties of nature, resort alike for dude and lady, nursery maid and soldier.

There are hundreds of large new buildings which I have begun to enumerate, but I haven't had time to explore. The principal ones I noticed were the Stock Exchange and Board of Trade on Water street, the new Bradburn Opera House, the new Ontario Bank building, the Trent Valley Canal Company block, and THE TIMES' office, the highest structure in the city, with a dome from which a magnificent view can be had. This paper now issues an edition every hour, day and night, and has its own special trains.

I forgot to mention the new Court house. I made an inspection of this colossal pile. There were several courts in session, and in order to ascertain if there was any change in the mode of administering justice I was an attentive listener to several cases. Will you believe me that the first case I heard was that notorious Mason case, which has now been in the courts for 33 years. The costs now amount to nearly half a million. You know, originally, this affair could have been settled for a few hundred dollars.

I took a stroll through the new Municipal buildings, in company with Mayor Harry Phelan. There are 24 aldermen. In looking over the personnel of the Council, I found several familiar names. Walter English is now chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Walter Phalen is a member of the Board from Ward 10. Theodore McWilliams is chairman of the Finance Committee. Ed. Cox directs the deliberations of the Charity Committee, and George Edmison is chairman of the Property.

I glanced into the police station, and the first thing I missed was the sofa, upon which the policemen of our day used to loll and smoke. I could not but notice the intelligence and activity of the Chief of Police, who took great pleasure in showing me the workings of the system. He could not help sigh when comparing his onerous duties with those of his predecessor, whose main forte was raiding houses suspected of violating the liquor by-law and despatching emissaries to purchase liquor on draft from bottle houses. The new town solicitor's office is in the buildings. He is spoken of in highest terms. His by-laws have all proved O. K. and his careful counsel has kept the civic board from falling into litigation.

The Trent Valley Canal, as I mentioned is completed and the waters are teeming with barges and craft. Peterborough is thus the central shipping point for the Midland Counties, connecting with the great lakes. In the summer there are daily excursions to Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Montreal, the Lower St. Lawrence and to the sea shore direct by water. The steamboat principal landing places is where the sewer formerly emptied. The principal line of steamers is the Peterborough Navigation Company. This concern own and operate a dozen large and commodious passenger boats as well as numerous freight vessels. The electric railways connect with the wharves.

Those electric road carriages, self-operating, are great affairs. They are largely in operation here. I very seldom see a horse attached to any kind of vehicle. Next to these, I am struck with the clever mechanism and great comfort and speed of the electric cycle, which one can mount, touch a button, and away you fly. I took a trip in the flying machine yesterday. Toronto was our objective point, and the journey was made there and return in exactly an hour. The line in operation here is well patronised.

I must close for this time, my dear Gordon. I have an engagement to read a paper on "The Signs of the Times" at the Fortnightly Club at 8 o'clock and 43 bells are now striking the hour. I have given you a general idea of what Peterborough of 1925 is like, although only partially. In my next I will take up details and a more elaborate description than time now allows.

Your old friend.
JOHN DUPONTE.

OUR ELIGIBLE BACHELORS

A LIST THAT WILL BE EAGERLY READ THIS WEEK.

There are as Good Fish in the Sea as Ever Were Caught—Here is a Shoal of Them Worth Angling For.

There was a titter of excitement, both audible and visible, in the select circles of the Peterborough Anti-Benedict Association last week. It rippled and ran and spluttered during the entire week. It was caused by the list of "Eligible Bachelors" published in THE SATURDAY TIMES. It is still in motion. There will be increased excitement when this list appears. The people are watching for it. THE SATURDAY TIMES' special staff has been hustling all the week, looking up pedigrees, searching birth registers and conning Bradstreet's for facts, figures and details. Therefore the correctness of the information given can be relied upon.

A prominent jeweller writes as follows: "Mr. Editor: Continue your list of eligible bachelors. Since the last edition of THE SATURDAY TIMES there has been a rush at my establishment for engagement rings. I sold out in two days, and have many orders booked ahead. Some of my customers were included in your list and others were well-known bachelors who have been standing on the ragged edge of indecision, keeping some young woman waiting in hopelessness for years. They hope to escape your list. Soak it to 'em."

This is a sample of a pile of letters received. One well-known real estate man writes that he has rented 23 houses the past week to 23 prospective hubby's. So much for the good results of THE SATURDAY TIMES' enterprise. Here is this week's list. (N. B. The rating does not include diamond sleeve buttons, rented pianos or silver plated pocket flasks):

Morrow, W. G.—28 years of age; $50,000. Mr. Morrow is an exemplary young man, possessing sterling qualities. He is secretary of the Board of Education and as well holds several responsible positions. He is an acknowledged financier and business man. The young lady of his choice will indeed be a most fortunate individual. It is sincerely to be desired that to a Peterborough young lady will fall this good fortune.

Mason, E. F.—30 years of age; $10,000. This well-known and popular merchant is without a partner in the turmoil of life. Mr. Mason is a military man, and as captain of the local militia attained considerable creditable prominence in military circles. It is to be regretted that Mr. Mason is subject to an uncontrollable physical peculiarity, which consists in a proneness to slip and fall. However, it is altogether probable that this rather annoying weakness will entirely disappear when Mr. Mason joins the ranks of the benedicts.

Clarke, Dr.—40 years of age, (standard time); $25,000. Here is a confirmed bachelor, whose existence in the single state, has been a subject of much wonder. Dr. Clarke is a most desirable match. He drives a fine horse and turnout, and when it is considered that there is nothing that will so quickly ripen the apple of love as buggy riding, it is really surprising that Dr. Clarke is single today. He also owns a most palatial residence, handsomely appointed—a royal cage for any bird. The "pulse" of Madame Rumor indicates that the genial doctor has the notion, and will shortly summon courage to put it in execution.

Brown, Charles N.—30 years old; $10,000. Here is an all-round good fellow. Mr. Brown is in the flour and feed business on Simcoe street. The "boys" don't consider any of their gatherings complete without the presence of this gentleman. Mr. Brown is a good comedian, an excellent elocutionist and an author of no mean merit. He is also the composer of that touching and beautiful lyrical inspiration, "Climb up that Hill, Children," which was sung by the Peterborough minstrels, and which, when it first came out, created quite a furore in musical circles. Charley would make a model husband.

Wasson, Ernest.—23 years of age (wears his moustache a la Boulogne); $2,000. This is a nice, good natured, obliging young man who would make a kindly husband. Mr Wasson is supervisor of watch springs in the jewellery establishment of W. A. Sanderson, George street. He is a great favorite with the ladies and enjoys both their respect and confidence to a considerable extent. He is a connoisseur in engagement rings, and the girl of his choice will doubtless be the recipient of a handsome emblematic symbol of the betrothal, which, if it hasn't already taken place, is likely to before many moons.

Burnham, J. Hampden.—35 years of age; $25,000. Mr. Burnham is one of the rising young men of Peterborough, destined to shine in prominent diplomatic ranks. He is a gifted barrister, and has won the laurels of B. A., L. L. B. He is an author of considerable merit. It is the duty of such men as Mr. Burnham to marry. Handsome, intelligent and brainy men were never created to eke enjoyment out of single blessedness. Mr. Burnham is the secretary and principal factor in the Children's Aid Society. He possesses an admiral fondness for children, and in all sincerity, he would, without a doubt, make a kindly and responsible parent.

Snyder, James, 32 years of age; $10,000. Here is a young man who has been showing matrimonial indications for several years. Mr. Snyder is the assistant collector of customs, possesses a good business head, and displays remarkable devotion to the fair sex. Mr. Snyder hangs high in the matrimonial plum tree, but some of these days a stray shaft of Cupid's will knock him from his perch, down, down into the yawning abyss of connubial felicity.

Rogers, George—42 years of age; $20,000. A confirmed bachelor is this gentleman. He is a barrister of considerable reputation and a thorough man of business. There is not the shadow of a doubt that Mr. Rogers would make an excellent husband. His temperance principles are sound. Any man who can stay out a camping trip without confidential intercourse with the wicker bottle, even when persuaded by his companions, can never be accused of lack of spinal vertebrae. If Mr. Rogers is as sound on all other questions, and the assumption is in that direction, he is a rare character, and would make a good husband.

Brennan, Dr.—33 years of age; $10,000. Dr. Brennan is one of the few bachelor physicians of Peterborough. He is well liked, enjoys a lucrative practice and is a desirable "catch." Dr. Brennan is a gentleman of distinguished physique. Ladies are partial to men of this type. At present, his treatises of anatomy, pharmaceutical essays, bacteriological researches and herbial pills are his only companions. It is to be hoped he will soon take a sensible view of life and get married.

Robinson, Fred—28 years of age; $10,000. Mr. Robinson is a B. S. He is, in every particular, a desirable "catch." He stands prominent in the ranks of the miserable.

Lech, Wm., jr.—33 years of age; $10,000. This well known furrier is unmarried. He is a good business man, has excellent habits, and is the makings of a good husband.

Hall, Kelsey—36 years of age; $12,000. This is the popular president of the Postage Stamp Club. Mr. Hall is a law student and erstwhile collector of rare stamps. He is now the proud possessor of the greatest and most costly collection on this continent. Matrimony would not interfere in this occupation and Mr. Hall will very likely come to the same conclusion soon. There is a possibility of Mr. Hall disposing of his collection for a fabulous sum. This is given in strictest confidence as a pointer for the girls.

Parker, W. D.—30 years of age; $15,000. Mr. Parker is with the Ontario Bank, and is a most charming fellow. His delightful English accent has made him quite the rage in social circles. He will not withstand the fascinations of the fair sex. His early surrender is predicted.

Attril, T. P.—56 years of age, without a doubt; $100,000. Here is a confirmed bachelor, long since passed into that stage of the disease known as the "hard shell." Mr. Attril is a famous curler, and is a distinguished figure on the rink during the winter months. It will be hard to break him of this almost nightly pastime. He is the owner of a very nice residence and is one of the best matches in the populous Midland district.

Corkery, Peter—31 years of (looks like 18); $15,000. For a number of years Mr. Corkery has been with the business concern of Mr. H. LeBrun's. He affects a partiality for music and his rendering of the "Martial Lays" is said to be particularly pathetic. Mr. Corkery has a handsome suite of rooms at the Balmoral, luxuriously fitted up, containing a beautiful piano. This fastidiousness in a single man generally maintains after marital relations have been assumed, and is particularly attractive in a man from a woman's standpoint. There are several bets up among the "boys" that Mr. Corkery will be married when the June roses bloom again.

Manning, W. H.—36 years of age; $20,000. Now, here is a pearl. Mr. Manning is the well known dentist, very popular and considered the best dressed man in town. He exhibits extreme fastidiousness in his dress, from the delicate tints of his shirts to the tips of his polished shoes. Invariably he wears a bouquet. In fact he is spoken of as the "latest hint from Paris." Mr. Manning is a most desirable match. He possesses a rich tenor voice and therefore is in demand in musical circles. It is indeed strange that a gentleman of his popularity and standing should remain single so long.

NOTES.

Last week it was stated that Mr. Jos. Cahill was 35 years of age. It was a mistake. Mr. Cahill had rheumatism and was walking with the aid of a cane when "spotted" by the TIMES' man. His infirmity gave him an old appearance. In reality he is just a shade over 23 years of age.

Immediately after the issue of the last SATURDAY TIMES, Mr. Harry Allen applied at one of the town banks for a line of credit for $20,000. He was cheerfully accommodated, THE SATURDAY TIMES' rating being accepted without question.

A well known bachelor in town took legal proceedings and applied for an injunction to stop the publication of today's list, thinking his name would appear. The motion was dismissed with costs, the judge remarking that any man who could resist the charms of the fair sex of Peterborough for five years ought to have his name published.

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From our our own correspondent.)

DEAD.—After a lingering illness, Mrs. Joshiah Blewitt, wife of Mr. Josiah Blewett, of Young's Point, died on Saturday January 12th, 1895, at the family residence, at the advanced age of 94 years. The deceased lady was much respected by all who knew her, and leaves a husband, four sons and two daughters to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother. The funeral which took place on Monday January 14th to the Lakefield cemetery, was largely attended. The family has the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement.

MINSTRELS.—The minstrels of Peterborough, held a concert here in Mr. R. Heard's new hall on Wednesday, 16th, and had a large attendance.

BALL.—Invitations are out for a grand ball to be held in Mr. R. Heard's hall by the Young's Point Base Ball Club on the evening of Monday, January 28th, 1895. Supper will be served at the Carleton House. Butcher's orchestra, Peterborough, will supply the music. A pleasant time is anticipated.

PERSONALS.—Mrs. Costello, of Peter borough, has returned home after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Wm. McFarlane.

Mr. H. J. Kearney is visiting friends in Ennismore and Chemong.

Mrs. R. Pope, of Peterborough is visiting friends here.

Lost His Thumb.

HESPELER, Jan. 24.—Mr. J. Fisher, sawyer at Krib's mills, met with a painful accident. While running the circular saw his left hand was drawn in, severing the thumb. All of the fingers were badly cut, but the doctor thinks he can save them. Dr. Whitelaw, of Hespeler, is at Guelph attending Mr. Swartz, the smallpox patient. He expects to be away sixty days.

BRITISH PREPARATIONS.

PARNELLITES WILL OPPOSE EVERYTHING BUT HOME RULE.

Political Program—A Financial Sacrifice Necessary to Strengthen the Navy—Lord Randy Improving—Foreign News in Brief.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The medicine chest of the British steamer Prescott, which sailed from Sunderland Dec. 29th for Marseilles, together with the portrait of the first mate of that vessel has been washed ashore off the coast of Lincolnshire. Wreckage from this ship has been reported previously from Flamborough.

Mr. Theophile Davies, who accompanied the Hawaiian Princess Kaiulani to the United States on the occasion of her protest against the overthrow of the Hawaiian throne, was asked today by a representative of the United Press for an expression of his views on the recent attempt to restore the monarchy. Mr. Davies said: "I cannot make any statement. I am deeply grieved by the last news from the Hawaiian Islands, and especially at the death of Mr. Carter, for whom I personally had a warm regard." As Mr. Davies is the guardian of the Princess Kaiulani, his remarks may be taken as evidence that the Princess has abandoned any idea of further claiming her rights. The Princess, through Mr. Davies, declined to speak on the subject or to be interviewed.

Lord Salisbury as Conservative leader in the House of Lords has sent circulars to his followers stating that the nature of the business that will come before them makes it desirable that they be in their places at the opening of the coming session of parliament.

Similar notices to members to be present on the opening of the session have been issued by the Duke of Devonshire, Liberal Unionist leader in the House of Lords; Arthur J. Balfour, Conservative leader in the House of Commons, and Joseph Chamberlain, Liberal Unionist leader in the House of Commons.

Lord Randolph Churchill was slightly better this morning. He had another sinking spell just before midnight tonight, and the doctors were hastily summoned to his bedside.

In the course of a speech in Hull this evening Home Secretary Asquith said that the country must prepare for a serious financial sacrifice in order to strengthen the navy.

John Redmond, M. P., leader of the Parnellites, said in a speech in Waterford this evening that he and his colleagues will go back to Parliament with a determination to do their utmost to oust the Government. They will insist that no British business be transacted until home rule shall have been granted to Ireland.

Gen. Sir H. F. Ponsonby, the Queen's private secretary, who was recently stricken with paralysis, is steadily progressing toward recovery.

The Prince of Wales' cutter Britannia sailed from Cowes, Isle of Wight, today for the Mediterranean.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Shocking Accident to a Child in St. Cunnegonde.

Special to the Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—A shocking accident occurred at St. Cunnegonde Tuesday evening by which Anne Lamarre, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. E. Lamarre, barber, of the town, met with a terrible death. Mrs. Lamarre had left the child alone in an apartment while she went to another part of the house to attend to work. The little girl in some way obtained possession of some matches which were lying on a table nearby, and after playing with them for a while she lighted one.

The mother was attracted back to the room by the child's screams. Her clothes were in a blaze and before the terrified woman could extinguish the fire her daughter was fatally burned. She died shortly after.

An inquest was held yesterday and a verdict of accidental death returned.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 26, 1895.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENING OF THE DAY.

The Date Fixed.

A few days ago THE TIMES announced the probable visit of Hon. Mr. Haggart and a number of the Dominion Cabinet Ministers. The visit is now a certainty. On February 7th the following Ministers will address the citizens of Peterborough: Hon. George Foster, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. John Costigan, Hon. Dr. Montague and Mr. Clarke Wallace.

St. Paul's S. S. Teachers.

St. Paul's Sunday School teachers at their annual meeting elected the following officers: Superintendent, J. A. Fife, B.A.; Asst. Superintendent, W. Madill; Sec.-Treas., J. H. Connal; Pianist, Miss Code; Librarians, Robert Strachan, Arthur Lang, Harry Martin and Fred Dixon; Artist, John McCallum.

McCarthy is Coming.

Word was received from Mr. D'Alton McCarth yesterday to the effect that he would be in Peterborough and address a meeting on the evening of Feb. 8th. Mr. McCarthy sends this reply to an earnest invitation extended him by his supporters and sympathizers. A meeting to arrange for his reception will be held probably on Saturday.

Another Carnival.

At a meeting Thursday the Sons of Canada decided to hold their next carnival on Friday evening, February 22nd. A hockey match between the Peterboroughs and an outside team will open it. There will be a mile race open to the province, the winner to be declared the amateur champion of Ontario, and also presented with a medal.

Diphtheria in a Camp.

Diphtheria has broken out in a construction camp in the Nipissing district, in the northern part of the county of Hastings and about 65 miles from Eganville. One man has already died and ten men are down with the disease. A medical health inspector, armed with a supply of antitoxine and a syringe, has been sent to the place and every effort is being made to prevent the spread of the epidemic among the other occupants of the camp.

Provincial Appointments.

The Ontario Government has made the following appointments: William Allan McLean of Walkerton, local registrar of the High Court of Justice for Bruce County; Judge Mackenzie of Sarnia, local master of the Supreme Court of Judicature for Lambton County; John Lawrence of Christian Island, Police Magistrate for Christian Island without salary; Dr. Watson of Listowel, associate coroner in Perth County; William Suggitt of Lambton Mills, bailiff of the seventh and eight Division Courts of York County.

Grand Carnival Masquerade Ball.

A novel and interesting entertainment, in the shape of a grand carnival masquerade ball, will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday, February 12th. The affair is expected to be unusually brilliant and amusing, and the management are sparing no pains to achieve that result. The proceeds over and above expenses will be donated to local charity. It is hoped and requested that as many as possible will come in fancy dress, to contribute to the effect of the scene. Special costumes, however, are not necessary, provided a certain amount of color is used in the dress. All should wear small masks of black or fancy velvet, silk or calico. Prizes will be given to the best dressed lady, the best dressed gentleman and the best comic costume. Music will be furnished by Butcher's orchestra and the batallion band. Dancing will commence at 8.30 p.m. and at midnight all the dancers will unmask. The well-known caterer, Mr. Wm. Bowman, will provide refreshments all evening. Tickets $1.00 admitting gentleman and lady, or two ladies, can be procured at Stratton's bookstore, Salisbury's bookstore, and the Street Railway office. The number of tickets is limited to 200. Procure costumes, secure tickets and come to the social event of the season.

Exposition Awards.

The following will be interesting to those who were given awards at the World's Fair, and who are wondering when the medals are to be delivered: Mr. Hugh Johnston, 261 Spadina avenue, has received the following letter from Mr. A. T. Britton, acting chairman of the Columbian Exposition Committee of Awards, the letter bearing date of Washington, Jan. 17th:—I am in receipt of your favor of the 9th instant, requesting information as to when you will receive the medal awarded you at the World's Columbian Exposition, and in reply I would state that the act of Congress of August, 1892, made the appropriation for the preparation of the said medals and diplomas to the Honorable Secretary of the Treasury direct, and this committee is, therefore, without responsibility in the matter until the same are delivered to us for distribution. The diplomas are being prepared at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and the medals are being struck off under the supervision of the director of the mint. We are unofficially advised by the last named gentleman that the medal will be ready for delivery about May or June next.

THE WARDENSHIP.

It was with the greatest of pleasure THE TIMES learned of the election of Mr. J. B. Pearce, of Norwood, to the Wardenship of the County of Peterborough, because of the sterling character of the man and his fitness for a responsible position. We congratulate Mr. Warden Pearce upon his selection and the mark of public confidence so justly accorded him, and also the county councillors for the wisdom of their choice. The honor is well deserved and wisely bestowed. Mr. Pearce is a native of Norwood. He has been reeve of that village for six years and has held many other positions of confidence and trust. Mr. Pearce will make a good warden. The affairs of the county, under his directorship, are safe.

INS AND OUTS.

THE repeal of the liquor license by-law has met with almost general approbation. Not a single word of protest has been heard. The move was in the interest of the town and will not militate against the temperance cause.

⁂

ASHBURNHAM is willing to arrange terms with the town for future fire protection. What beautiful nerve. Ashburnham had better be making some arrangements to settle with Peterborough for five years' fire protection for which not one penny was paid

⁂

STREET CAR patrons are divided, on the sex-line, upon the merits of the electric heaters. Men passengers say that the heaters scorch their legs. Women, on the other hand, aver that the heaters are great things for drying skirts which have been bedraggled by rain or snow. The controversy is only interesting as showing that men do sometimes get a chance to sit down in the street-cars.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Ashburnham Council of 1895 held its first regular meeting Monday night.

There were present Reeve Burnham in the chair, and Councillors Craig, Rutherford, Calcutt and Smith.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From E. Courtney applying for the position of auditor for 1895.—Received.

From Messrs. John W. Morray, W. C. Kirk, James Stewart and R. W. Reed, asking to be appointed assessors for the current year.—Received.

VILLAGE OFFICERS FOR 1895.

Councillor Rutherford moved, seconded by Councillor Smith,—That Thos. Clithero be appointed auditor for the current year.—Carried.

A by-law appointing Frederick Dover and Thos. Clithero auditors at a salary of $8 each, then passed its several readings.

Councillor Smith moved that John T. Wright be appointed tax collector at a salary of $60.—Carried.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Craig,—That John Morray and John H. Thompson be appointed assessors at a salary of $40.—Carried.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford,—That Dr. Speers be appointed Health Officer for the current year at a salary of $50 a year.

A little discussion took place with reference to the salary, Councillor Craig maintaining that $50 per year was too much for the duties accuring from the office. The resolution was accordingly amended by substituting $30 in place of $50 for salary. The resolution was then carried.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Rutherford, that Jno. T. Wright Jno. H. Murray and Allan McCarthy be appointed a Board of Health for 1895.—Carried.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were submitted:

Archie Craig	$15 50
R. J. Weir	6 00
Review Printing Co.	4 50
C. Cassels	97
Municipal election account	24 40
John Davidson	2 50
Peter Hamilton	1 85
Light and Power Co.	14 60
Pay sheet No. 34	2 00
George Emerson	14 50
Stationery and postage	6 00

POOL AND BILLIARD TABLES.

A large number of ratepayers, petitioned the Council not to grant any licenses for either pool or billiard tables for the current year.

With reference to the above petition. Reeve Burnham, explained that the statue simply empowered the Council to License and not to prohibit. He was not sure that the Council could prohibit even were it so disposed.

Councillor Rutherford moved, seconded by Councillor Smith,—That a by-law be passed fixing the license for billiard and bagatelle tables at $100 for the first table and $20 each additional table.—Carried.

The following committees were then struck:

CHARITY—Councillors Smith and Craig for the North Ward, and Councillors Calcutt and Rutherford for the South Ward.

STREET AND BRIDGE—Councillor Craig moved, seconded by Councillor Calcutt,—That the Reeve and the whole Council form the Street and Bridge Committee, the seconder to be chairman of the same.

Some discussion took place concerning the advisability of reappointing Councillor Rutherford as chairman of his committee.

Reeve Burnham favored the reappointment of Councillor Rutherford, and receiving the support of the majority of the Council, Mr. Rutherford's name was substituted in place of Councillor Calcutt's as chairman of the committee.

TO INCREASE THEIR PAY.

Councillor Smith moved that the corporation laborers be paid $1.15 a day, and that the pay roll be made up to Friday evening of each week.

No seconder being forthcoming, the resolution fell through.

FIRE PROTECTION.

Councillor Smith moved, seconded by Councillor Calcutt,—That the Reeve and Messrs. Craig, Rutherford and the mover and seconder be a committee to meet the Town Council to make terms for fire protection, such terms to date from January 1st, 1895.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETED

For the Reception of the Cabinet Ministers on February 7.

A meeting of the Executive of the Conservative Association was held in the Mayor's office Wednesday afternoon, when arrangements were completed for the reception of the visiting Cabinet Ministers.

The Ministers will arrive from Bowmanville on the 5 o'clock Grand Trunk train on the afternoon of February 7th. They will be met by a deputation of the members of the Conservative Association and prominent citizens. Headed by the band the party will proceed to the Oriental hotel where a reception will be held.

Dinner will be served privately in a private room. Messrs. Stevenson, Burnham and Kendry will attend on behalf of and represent the Association.

At 7.30 the Ministers will be escorted to the opera house and at 8 o'clock the speaking will commence. The hall will be tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The visiting Ministers will be: Hon. G. E. Foster, Minister of Finance; Hon. John Haggart, Minister of Railways and Canals; Hon. Clarke Wallace, Comptroller of Customs; Hon. John Costigan, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Hon. Joseph Ouimet, Minister of Public Works; Hon. Dr. Montague.

The affair will be a grand Conservative rally in every sense of the word. Peterborough is indeed fortunate to be visited by such distinguished personages.

TWO CURLERS DEAD.

Messrs. John McMillian and John Matthie of Lindsay Pass Away.

It is our sad duty this week to have to chronicle the death of two of the oldest and best known members of the club, viz., Messrs. John McMillan and John Matthie. The history of the curling lives of these two men would be almost the history of curling in Lindsay. Mr. Matthie was one of those who in the fall of 1876 met and organized the Lindsay Curling Club. Mr. Wm. Needler and Mr. G. H. Bertram are the only active curlers left of the first members of our club. Mr. John McMillan joined the club in the fall of 1877 and from that time on these two men were most active in the club's affairs, taking part in many of the most important home and foreign matches.

Mr. John Matthie was one of the famous rinks which played with such success at the Montreal bonspiel, and until the season of '92 he was an active member of the club, playing every year in nearly all the important foreign matches. Mr. McMillan, was elected skip in 1881 for the first time, and almost every season since he has been regularly chosen for the same position. He also played in quite a large number of foreign games and always gave a good account of himself. His fellow curlers recognized his zeal and earnestness in the club's affairs by electing him Vice-President in 1883, and President in 1884.

These men were known to hosts of curlers of this district outside of Lindsay, and were always heartily greeted by brother curlers wherever they met them. On the ice they were keen, active, skilful players, both withal generous and warm-hearted opponents. Both always worked hard for the success and advancement of Lindsay's curling club, and by their death, the club loses two royal and faithful members whose places it will be difficult to fill.—Lindsay Watchman.

SEVENTH ANNUAL MEETING

Of the Peterboro' Workingmen's Building and Saving Society.

The seventh annual meeting of the Peterborough Workingmen's Building and Savings Society was held as the office of the secretary-treasurer Wednesday night.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—John Lynch.
Vice-President—T. B. McGrath.
Treasurer—W. Rudkins.
Secretary—John Corkery.
Directors—Jas. Murty, R. Sheehy, W. Hinchcliffe, M. Riley, E. H. D. Hall, R. S. Davidson, C. McGill, W. H. Hill, D. Donoghue, T. Cahill, J. P. Hurley, H. LeBrun.

RIFLE SHOOTING.

The Ontario Association Asking the Counties for Grants.

The special committee of the Ontario Rifle Association, appointed to deal with the matter of obtaining grants from the several County Councils now in session in the province has sent the following circular letter to the County Council:

"By direction of the president and council of the Ontario Rifle Association, I am instructed to solicit from the municipal corporations of the Province of Ontario a donation of $10, in aid of the annual prize meeting. This grant is solicited to enable the association to add to its programme a special match restricted to the younger riflemen of your own and other counties throughout the province, and thus give a much needed stimulus to rifle shooting among the younger members of the county battalions. The grant asked for is small, but if all contribute a sufficient fund can be raised for the purpose. Yours truly, W. George Mutton, Capt., Secretary."

LOTS OF MONEY

Awaiting the Relatives of the Late John Kallahan.

If the relatives of John Kallahan live anywhere in this vicinity, it will be to their interest to at once communicate with the address given below. The following letter, received by the Chief of Police, will explain why:

GUTHRIE, OKLAHOMA, Jan. 19.

Chief of Police, Peterborough:

SIR: Will you kindly inform me whether you have any people in your city by name of Kallahan or Kelleben? A man by that name, John Kallahan, but supposed to be Kelleben, died here on the 17th inst., leaving considerable property; but I have been unable to find any of his relatives. He told me he left Canada in 1867 and went to Kansas, where he worked at the printing business. He has never written or heard from his people. He said a father, mother, four sisters and three brothers were somewheres in Canada, but he did not give their address. If they do not live in your vicinity, please publish a notice in some paper that reaches the people generally. His relatives may be poor, and this estate will help them. Have all parties communicate with me. The man was of Irish descent.

Yours respectfully,
H. C. SCHNELL.

LINDSAY SCORCHED.

Another Blaze Does Considerable Damage in that Town.

Within the last three weeks Lindsay has been visited with several disastrous fires. On Thursday more loss was occasioned by the fire element. The following gives the particulars:

LINDSAY, Jan. 24.—At three o'clock this afternoon fire almost completely destroyed the workshops and engine-house connected with the establishment of Anderson & Nugent, furniture dealers and undertakers, situated in the rear of their Kent street wareroom. The fire brigade had an uphill fight owing to the inflammable nature of the contents, but succeeded in extinguishing the flames completely before five o'clock. The building and machinery are insured in the Hartford for $1,300. Loss, $4,000.

THE PATRON POLICY.

Manifesto Issued by the Grand Board of the Order.

The Grand Board of the Patrons of Industry Thursday issued a manifesto outlining the demands made by the Patrons in connection with Dominion affairs.

In effect these are that no director or stockholder of any railway or other corporation obtaining aid from the Government shall be eligible for election to the House of Commons.

It shall be declared a breach of the independence of Parliament Act for any member of the House of Commons to accept emoluments other than his sessional indemnity for any services performed for or on behalf of the Government.

No member of the House of Commons shall receive a free pass from any railroad or steamship company; any member accepting such a free pass to be disqualified for membership in the House of Commons for any position in the gift of the Government for a space of five years.

The Government House at Ottawa shall be abolished.

The system of superannuation, gratuities and pensions, except for military services shall be abolished.

The Mounted Police of the Northwest Territories shall be abolished except for unorganized districts.

The Military College of Kingston shall be abolished and the expenditure on the militia force in the Dominion in times of peace shall be limited to $300,000.

The granting of subsidies and bonuses to railroad and steamship companies and other corporations shall be abolished.

The number of civil servants at Ottawa and their salaries shall be reduced.

The High Commissioner in Great Britain shall receive a stated salary, without any additions for assistance or perquisites.

The number of Cabinet Ministers shall be reduced.

Luxuries shall be taxed to the fullest extent, and the following shall be admitted free into Canada, viz: Cotton, tweeds, woollens, workmen's tools, farm implements, fence wire, binder twine, coal, oil, iron and corn.

TWO SMALLPOX CASES.

A Guelph Student and an Aylmerite Down With Varioloid.

Just before the Provincial Board of Health finished its sitting in Dr. Bryce's office at the Parliament buildings on Saturday, the Medical Health Officer of Guelph telegraphed an announcement of a case of varioloid in that city. Dr. Bryce was instructed to go to Guelph and see what should be done.

Another case of smallpox is reported from Aylmer in the township of Malahide. This case has been quarantined with a doctor as nurse.

The Guelph case is an Agricultural College student named William Schwartz, who comes from Aylmer and had been several days in Guelph before he broke out on the 18th February. Schwartz is in the smallpox hospital under the care of Dr. Whitelaw and two nurses.

The case is a mild one and precautionary measures in the way of vaccination are being enforced. The students who have been in contact with any of the pupils of the dairy school, which Schwartz was attending, have been quartered in a separate building and it is not feared that there will be any spread of the disease.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

Save Your Fuel.

Call at Calcutt's brewery and see how to save one-third your fuel. Our steam boilers will give one-third more power.

Death of William Pratt.

Mr. William Pratt died yesterday at 627 Water street, the residence of his brother. Deceased was 30 years of age. The funeral will be private.

A Painful Accident.

Mr. William C. Lawson, of Otonabee, yesterday met with a painful accident. While chopping in the woods the head of the axe flew off, cutting the calf and fleshy part of his leg, also severing an artery. Mr Lawson was brought to town and had the wound dressed by a physician.

A House of Refuge.

As will be seen by looking over the report of the County Council, they have agreed that they will be willing to help to build a house of refuge, provided the Town Council see fit to help them with the project. Peterborough certainly wants an institution of this kind, but not at the present moment, as all our ratepayers and children are going to make a house of refuge out of the skating rink on Friday, Feb. 22nd. 1895, when the sons of Canada will hold their carnival, the prizes for which are on exhibition in gough bros.' window.

Correction.

In our editorial remarks in yesterday's issue, referring to the Mayor's oyster supper, the type made us say: "Those who attended the Mayor's oyster supper resolved themselves into a mutual 'adminisstrative' society." It should have read "mutual admiration society." We ourselves cannot help admiring the way certain town officers manage to pull the wool over the eyes of the people. If, however, the members of the Council will do their duty, as we believe they will, they will be the ones on whom the eyes of an admiring public will be focused.

A Warning.

The post office department calls attention to a practice prevailing in certain parts of the country of printing upon the envelopes or wrappers enclosing printed matter a request to have such matter returned to the sender in the event of its not being delivered within a certain number of days. This request is contrary to the regulations of the post office department, printed matter not being returnable to the sender. Such a request appearing on any wrapper or envelope enclosing printed communications means that the document will be promptly forwarded to the dead letter office.

Convention of Christians.

The 6th annual convention of "Christians" is being held in Toronto. About 400 members are present from various parts of Canada and some from the United States. Several representatives from Peterborough are present. Their is no formal organisation of these people; they simply meet and have devotional services and the relation of personal experience. Their meetings are for Christians only, though no one is excluded if he happens in: he is welcomed and politely given a hymn book. The meeting Sunday evening will be an open, public meeting, to which all are invited. Seats are free, and no collection is taken.

The Business World.

Margaret Nicklin, grocer, of Acton, has sold out. C. Heldman, tanner, Baden, has assigned to his father. J. H. Cleave, dry goods, Brantford, has transferred his assignment to W. A. Campbell Toronto. Joseph Larocque, baker, Glen Robinson, has assigned to D. E. McIntyre. The Electric Light and Enlarging Co., London, has sold out to G. Chavigneaud. E. A. Thornton, general storekeeper, Norval, has sold out. John Gilmore, furniture, St. Catharines, is offering 60 cents. T. L. Carson, veterinary surgeon, St. Thomas, has assigned to D. Coughlin. Ballantyne & Wilton, tinware, Brussels, are offering to compromise. J. W. Dale, dry goods, Mitchell, has assigned to A. G. Pearcey.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!

SYMPTOMS—Moisture, intense itching and stinging; most at night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. dals

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Water Company will be held on Monday February 4th.

A meeting of cheesemen and farmers has been called by the board of trade for today, at 1.30 p.m., in the council chamber, to consider the advisability of establishing a local cheese board.—Lindsay Post.

On Monday, January 28th, the Salvation Army of this place will have a big time. The officers of Peterborough will be present and have an enrollment of soldiers. A baby will also be dedicated to the cause.—Lakefield News.

An Ottawa lumber dealer is experimenting on the feasibility of introducing long wooden skates, (Ski, or Skidor), as an improved mode of travel for shantymen. They are in common use in Sweden and Norway, both for pleasure and as a speedy mode of foot travel in the snow.

The sisters of St. Joseph have written a letter of thanks to Messrs. H. LeBrun and E. Brown for the barrel of flour contributed. These gentlemen skipped rinks in a match for the flour which was to be paid for by the losing rink. Mr. LeBrun lost and immediately sent the flour to the hospital.

The Cobourg hockey club expect to arrange games with Lindsay, Belleville, Peterborough and Trinity College school at an early date. The boys expect to be in good shape in a few days to meet all comers, and put up a game that will be a credit to themselves. The material is in the town and it is intended to bring it out. —Cobourg Post.

The gross earnings of the C.P.R. for the eleven months to the end of November were $17,197,000, as compared with $19,328,000 in the same period in 1893, showing a decrease of $2,131,000. The net profits for the same period of 1894, as compared with eleven months in 1893, shows a decrease of $1,326,000.

A Sidney farmer says:—We let our timber rot and buy fencing. We throw away our ashes and grease and buy soap. We raise dogs and buy hogs. We let our manure go to waste and buy fertilisers. We grow weeds and buy vegetables and brooms. We catch five cent fish with a $4 rod. We build school houses and send our children off to be educated. And, lastly, we send our boys out with a $40 gun and a $10 dog to hunt for ten cent birds.

PLAYED WITH FIRE.

Little Babe Burned to Death in Markham Township.

The two-day-old daughter of John Smith, jr., lot 9, concession 5, Markham, was playing about the kitchen with the cover of a pasteboard box in its hand and, it is supposed, put the pasteboard in the damper of the stove and it became ignited.

The mother was startled by the child's screams, and rushing into the room was horrified to find the child's clothes in flames. She wrapped a rug about the poor child and extinguished the fire, but the injuries proved fatal.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

Opened Yesterday Morning with a Large Attendance in Belleville.

The annual convention of the Y.M.C.A., of Ontario and Quebec, was opened yesterday afternoon, in the John street Presbyterian church, Belleville, with devotional exercises led by J. J. Gartshore, of Toronto. The secretaries' conference was opened yesterday and closed at noon today. Many valuable papers were read. There were upwards of one hundred delegates in attendance, including two from New York, and the sessions bid fair to be highly interesting.

After the opening of the convention this afternoon the nominating committee was appointed. The following officers were elected:—President, W. Waugh, Hamilton; vice-presidents, D. Bentley, Montreal; W. W. Chown, Belleville; J. A. Anderson, Toronto; secretary, A. Jolley, Galt; assistant secretary, T. H. Martin, Peterboro'. The session was closed after an interesting Bible reading by Mr. Budge.

THE HOCKEY MATCH.

Four to Three the Score in Favor of the "Perch."

The event on the rink last night was the hockey match between the Ontario bank team and the "Perch" of Ashburnham. The game was watched by a large and interested crowd. It was one of the funniest matches of the season, resulting in a score of 4 goals to 3 in favor of the Montreal Bank boys. One of these goals was not allowed at first, but the "Perch" claimed it. Some declare the game a draw and others say the Ontarios were defeated. The teams were: Ontario Bank — Messrs. Crane, Montgomery, Thompson, McGill, Parker, Hamilton. Montreal Bank—Messrs. Wonham, Strickland, Parson, Lefevre Hudson, Benedict. Mr. J. P. Hurley umpired for the "Perch" and Mr. H. J. Grasett for the Ontario Bank. The referee was Mr. H. B. Dunsford.

After the game the boys adjourned to the Palace restaurant and partook of a generous spread prepared by the genial manager, Mr. F. Graham.

AT LAKEFIELD.

The Trent Valley Canal team journeyed to Lakefield last night and defeated a team in that village by 8 goals to 30.

THE WEATHER.

Grand Carnival Masquerade Ball.

A novel and interesting entertainment, in the shape of a grand carnival masquerade ball, will be held in Bradburn's Opera House on Tuesday, February 12th. The affair is expected to be unusually brilliant and amusing, and the management are sparing no pains to achieve that result. The proceeds over and above expenses will be donated to local charity. It is hoped and requested that as many as possible will come in fancy dress, to contribute to the effect of the scene. Special costumes, however, are not necessary, provided a certain amount of color is used in the dress. All should wear small masks of black or fancy velvet, silk or calico. Prizes will be given to the best dressed lady, the best dressed gentleman and the best comic costume. Music will be furnished by Butcher's orchestra and the batallion band. Dancing will commence at 8.30 p.m. and at midnight all the dancers will unmask. The well-known caterer, Mr. Wm. Bowman, will provide refreshments all evening. Tickets $1.00 admitting gentleman and lady, or two ladies, can be procured at Stratton's bookstore, Sallsbury's bookstore, and the Street Railway office. The number of tickets is limited to 200. Procure costumes, secure tickets and come to the social event of the season.

Eluding the Customs.

BUFFALO, Jan. 25.—There was a great falling off in customs receipts here the past year. The officers say there is an immense amount of petty smuggling from that port, particularly on Queen's birthday and Dominion day, when carloads of young women from Canada go over and stock up, carrying the goods home concealed under their skirts.

Fell from a Hayloft.

QUEBEC, Jan. 25.—Joseph Dumond, of St. Joseph de Levis, was accidentally killed this morning. He was at work in his hayloft, when by some means he missed his footing and fell to the pavement below, breaking his neck. Death was instantaneous.

Two Soldiers and $3,000 Missing.

HALIFAX, Jan. 25.—The military authorities here have ordered the arrest of Pay-Sergeant Balham and Corporal Hotson, Royal Engineers, who are supposed to have deserted, taking with them $3,000 belonging to the corps.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 161 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

STRIKERS STILL FIRM.

THE MEN STILL CARRYING ON AN AGGRESSIVE FIGHT.

Troops are on Duty—Judge Gaynor Favors the Strikers—Talk of Dynamite—People Aroused Against the Militia.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 26.—The troops are still in the city, although everything is fairly quiet. Several cavalry charges and quick details of infantry occurred during the day, but the militia did not fire upon the mobs. Since the Hicks street riot the soldiery have received orders not to fire except in case of absolute necessity, but to arrest anyone who failed to obey commands. The disturbance has spread from King's county to Queen's county, the sheriff of which has called for troops.

Justice Gaynor listened to argument for the Brooklyn Heights Railway Company and the plaintiff in the mandamus proceedings at ten o'clock this morning. The remarks he made from the bench fairly warrant the assumption that the Chief Justice will grant the peremptory writ that is asked for to compel the officers of the company to keep their road in a state of efficient operation.

A CONFERENCE.

Mayor Schieren held a conference at police headquarters at 9 o'clock tonight with Commissioner Wells and Superintendent Campbell. The Mayor declined to discuss the nature of the conference, but it is known that the three presidents of the systems tied up by the strike informed the conferees that all the lines will be in operation tomorrow. They must be well aware that any attempt to do so will cause a great amount of trouble.

Part of the Seventh regiment is under marching orders, and it is understood they are to be moved to Green Point, Erie Basin and other points, where trouble is brewing, tomorrow morning.

The striking street car employees are hanging together well and very few have deserted from the ranks. Some progress was made in getting cars in motion on lines that have not been in operation at all since the strike, and outside of some slight accidents the companies are making a very good showing; but the trouble is not over yet.

INDISCREET ACTIONS.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 26.—It is reported that the strikers are now resorting to incendiarism to aid them in their efforts to cripple the trolley companies. The police came on a number of wire cutters on the corner of North Third street and Bedford avenue and succeeded in arresting all of the gang. The officers were compelled to draw their revolvers to compel the men to submit to arrest. Many of the gang succeeded in making their escape.

Master Workman Connelly, the strike leader, is still of the opinion that the men will win.

DYNAMITE RUMORS.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 26.—Rumors of dynamite were current today. An alleged bomb was found on the trolley tracks at Fulton street and Flatbush ave. A man who failed to give his name carried the bomb to the first precinct station here. The suspicious looking thing was at once sent to Superintendent of Police Campbell who hurried it to the navy yard for the experts there to make an examination. All efforts to explode it failed and the navy officials came to the conclusion that the thing was a hoax.

MILITIA CENSURED.

BROOLYN, Jan. 26.—A body of residents of Hick's street have petitioned the grand jury to investigate the "disgraceful and murderous" conduct of the militia under Major Cochran and their shameful conduct in firing on innocent women and defenceless children. The citizens denounce the conduct of Mayor Schienen in allowing the city's streets to be overrun with "irresponsible and murderous militia men." They characterize the shooting and killing of Carney as a cold blooded murder at the hands of Major Cochran.

BOUNDARY DISPUTE.

President Diaz Urged to Seek a Peaceful Solution.

Special to the Times.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 26.—A telegram has been received at the U. S. legation here from Secretary Gresham, expressing President Cleveland's hope that Mexico and Guatemala would agree upon some favorable means of settling the boundary dispute between themselves, or failing in that, would agree upon a reference of the controversy to friendly arbitration. This message has been transmitted to President Diaz.

CANADA AND HOME RULE.

Contributions to the Irish Party—How the Dominion Compares with Uncle Sam.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Justin McCarthy, chairman of the Irish Parliamentary party, has issued the following statement of accounts for the year, ending with December 31, showing the amount contributed for the expenses of the party from various parts of the world: Canada gave £3,049; the United States, £2,715; Australia, New Zealand, Siam and Newfoundland together, £491; Ireland, £5,225; England and Scotland, £962—total, £12,492.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Five Lives Known to Be Lost, with a Probability of More.

Special to the Times.

MENDOLIA, Ill., Jan. 26.—A boiler explosion shook this city and the surrounding country for miles this afternoon. Five dead men and seven injured are the known casualties. The explosion was in the brewery of C. Hennig & Sons. The entire structure was wrecked, and the work of searching for any more victims is hampered by the furious blizzard which is raging. There is also danger to the searchers from a big chimney, which is expected to fall any minute. The loss to the proprietors is $60,000. Until the wreckage is cleared away no one can tell how many lives were lost.

ANTIPODEAN ECONOMY.

Reductions in Official Salaries from the Governor Down.

Special to the Times.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 26.—The Victoria Parliament yesterday passed the income tax bill and fixed the salary of the Governor at £7,000 a year, a reduction of £3,000. The salaries of agents general were also reduced to £1,500, the reductions to go into effect July 1, 1895. At the conclusion of this legislation, Parliament was prorogued.

A conference of the Australian premiers to discuss the subject of federation will be held at Hobarttown, Tasmania, on Jan. 29.

IN HIS STOMACH

Does a Young Man Force a Sword While Practicing Sword Swallowing—Physicians Cut Him Open.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 26.—Last night Albert Heilling, 21 years of age, was practising sword swallowing. His colleagues locked him in a room alone at his request so he would not be bothered.

He sunk one sword down his throat, closed his mouth and opened it again, and as the second one entered it struck the top of the first, which had no hilt, driving it down into the pit of the stomach.

He made several efforts to recover it but failed. He called to his partners and related very coolly his awful accident and walked several blocks with them to a doctor's office. Three physicians cut him open and recovered the weapon.

He may die.

TAIL END PITCH IN

On the Central Vermont Bridge at St. John's, Quebec—A Serious Accident.

Special to the Times.

ST. JOHN'S, Que., Jan. 26.—A somewhat serious accident occurred on the Central R. R. bridge here this morning. A freight train hauling in got stalled and was cut in two on the bridge, the forward part hauling into the yard. The conductor went back with his lamp to signal the incoming passenger train, but owing to the storm the signal was not seen and a tail-end pitch in occurred. The van and a freight car took fire and were nearly totally destroyed. The fire department was called out and laying some five hundred feet of hose, soon extinguished the fire. One car was toppled over to the ice below and two others were derailed on the bridge. A brakeman named Aldrich, who was on top of the car, was thrown on to the ice below and is thought to have a hip broken.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Emperor William has sent a wreath for Lord Randolph Churchill's coffin and a message of condolence to his widow.

THE OBSTRUCTIONISTS WIN.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 26.—M. de Lantshure, President of the House of Representatives has resigned his office today because the majority failed to help him defeat the obstructive tactics of the Socialists. The sitting was suspended when he announced his resignation.

RIBOT HAS A TRIAL.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—M. Ribot went to the Elysee at 9 o'clock this evening and told M. Faure that he was making satisfactory progress with the construction of a Cabinet. It is believed that M. Honataux, the last Minister of Foreign Affairs, ex-Premier Loubet and deputy Maurice Lebon have consented to serve.

MONTREAL BANK CASE.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today heard the appeal of Simpson and Molson versus the Molsons Bank, regarding the right of the applicants to recover certain shares from the bank. The council reserved judgment, without calling upon Mr. Edward Blake, who appeared for the respondent bank.

IRISH PARTY CONTRIBUTIONS.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Justin McCarthy, leader of the anti-Parnellite Home Rulers and chairman of their parliamentary organization, has published the financial statement of his party for 1894. According to this statement the party received contributions of £3,000 from Canada; £2,700 from the United States; £490 from Australia, New Zealand and Newfoundland; £5,250 from Ireland, and £940 from Great Britain.

DID THEY CONSPIRE?

ROME, Jan. 26.—A despatch from Massowah says that General Baratieri was received magnificently yesterday upon his return from his victorious campaign against the Mahdists. Peace has been restored in Italian Africa. The Lazarists, who were expelled by General Baratieri because they excited the natives against the Italians, have sent to Rome a memorial to the effect that they in no way conspired against Italian authorities.

MLLE FAURE TO MARRY.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Mlle Lucie Faure daughter of the president, has been betrothed to Paul Deschanel, member of the Chamber of Deputies for Eure-et-Loire.

President Faure summoned M. Ribot to the Palace this morning and requested him to form a ministry. It is expected M. Ribot will be supported by the Moderates, with the aim of passing the Budget bill without the cause providing for an income tax.

FISHING BOAT DISASTER.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Count Keratry has written a letter to the Figaro treating of the frequent disasters to fishing boats on the banks of Newfoundland through collisions with larger vessels. It is impossible, he says, to prevent the fast steamships from traversing the banks, and, this being the case, a strict exercise of vigilance is demanded. Most of the mishaps to fishing boats are due to their own carelessness, and they ought to be compelled to observe rigidly the article relating to the display of signal lights.

RIBOT AND THE PRESS.

They Call the New Premier an Anglo-Maniac—Cabinet Making.

Special to the Times.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Some of the papers denounce the Anglomania of M. Ribot and predict disastrous results from his administration. Nevertheless M. Ribot went to the Palace of the Elysee at 11 o'clock today, and definitely accepted the task of forming a ministry. It is expected he will have completed a cabinet tonight.

Aberdeen's Good Heart.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Lord Aberdeen has offered to provide for the maintenance of the late Sir John Thompson's two sons until such a time as they will be able to look after themselves.

FROM THE QUEEN CITY.

TWELVE INCHES OF SNOW ON TORONTO THOROUGHFARES.

Traffic Blockaded—The Most Violent in Years—A Boy Runs Away and Causes His Parents Much Anxiety.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TORONTO, Jan. 26.—The greatest storm that has visited Ontario in years came upon us last night and swept everything before it. It was first noticed in Texas early on Thursday morning by a falling barometer, and by evening the barometer had fallen still lower. During Friday the storm rapidly increased in energy, and moved northward into Illinois. This morning the centre of the tempestuous wave was over Lake Huron district and proceeding eastward, covering Ontario and a portion of Quebec.

IT BLEW ITSELF OUT.

The storm has blown itself out in Toronto and vicinity, but its strength is unabated in the east and will remain unabated until the Atlantic Ocean is reached. There is every probability that this severe storm will be succeeded in Ontario and westerly gales with the weather turning and remaining colder for several days.

Yesterday morning the astronomical specialists at the Observatory notified the railway people as far east as Montreal that the gale was approaching and to be prepared for it. The Associated Press was also given a report which circulated throughout the entire Dominion, and in the probabilities of Thursday morning it was observed that the storm which had taken rise in Texas would probably sweep over Ontario in a few days.

STORM OF DECEMBER, '93.

In many ways this violent storm was more severe than that which visited us in December, '93, when the telegraph, telephone and trolley wires and poles were torn down by hail and sleet. That gale formed in the Mexican Gulf district, a few hundred miles east of where last night's storm gathered into form and was therefore, as is almost invariably the case, much milder, the temperature gradually rising throughout.

During the storm of last night and this morning the thermometer was almost stationary, and for hours the wind and snow gathered rather than relinquished in violence.

Twelve inches of snow fell in the city, although the driving wind drifted it to such an extent that in many places it would appear as if five times that quantity had fallen.

When the storm settles down upon the Maritime Provinces and before it leaves Canada, the people down at the sea will get an abundance of light rain and snow instead of the pelting hard snow which visited us last night.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME.

An eleven-year-old lad named Johnnie Harkins, whose parents live at 497 Queen street west, ran away from his mother while being taken to school last Tuesday and has not yet returned to his home. The police are searching for him.

THIRTY DAYS FOR THEFT.

Adolphe H. Folger, who was brought back to Toronto from Berlin yesterday by Detective Davis, was arraigned before the Magistrate this morning on a charge of obtaining $8 from Wm. E. Medland under false pretences. He was convicted and committed to jail for 30 days.

TWENTY-TWO LIVES LOST.

More Wreckage Supposed to Indicate the Loss of the Chicora.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 26.—No telegram or other information later than last night have reached Mr. Graham from the scene of the wreckage gathering at South Haven. Mr. Mortin's return with pieces of mahogany door frames, with brass hinges on, and his graphic report of thousands of pieces of floating boat fixtures, boards and wreckage in general, was conclusive enough that the ill-fated Chicora had gone to the bottom. No definite arrangements have yet been made for sending boats out to look for wreckage. Mr. Graham has been in telegraphic communication with the Dunham Wreckage Company of Chicago for the past two or three days, but no arrangements have been concluded yet. There was some expectation of securing the services of the tug Thompson from Ludington, but the same difficulty presents itself there as in Chicago. It is impossible to find a crew that will venture out in the heavy seas. Every effort is made to release the tug Tramp from her icy prison, just outside St. Joseph's Harbor, where she has been imprisoned for several days. No bodies have yet been found. An official list given out by the Graham & Morton Transportation Company, owners of the lost Chicora, show that 22 men lost their lives when she went down, instead of 26, as was first stated. There were but four deck hands instead of eight.

RIPE FOR UNION.

The People of Newfoundland Bent on Confederation.

Special to the Times.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 26.—The legislature adjourned tonight for ten days. A further adjournment for a month will follow, when the government intimates very important despatches will be laid before the members. It is said these papers will be the proposals for confederation with Canada.

BLOWN TO SEA.

Two Coal Barges Part from the Tug—Five Men on Each.

SANDY HOOK, N.J., Jan. 26.—At 1.30 this morning, during a heavy south east gale and fog, when off Long Branch, about seven miles off shore, the coal barges "Paopua" and "Fisher" parted the hawser connecting them to the tug "Ice King."

They were coming from Philadelphia with a cargo of coal. Both barges were shortly lost to sight. Five men are on each barge. The tug Ice King has started out to look for them.

SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

The Mishap that Befell a Pennsylvania Sleighing Party.

Special to the Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 26.—A special to the Telegraph from Lewiston states a sleighing party was struck by a train near Kreamer, on the Lewiston division of the Pennsylvania railway this morning. Isaac Rousing and his son were killed, a lawyer named Patter had both legs cut off, and Miss Burns had a leg taken off and an arm broken. Two others named Hummel were severly injured.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 28 1895.

Good morning!

The man who thought that the old fashioned winter was a thing of the past has had his telephone taken out.

Dozens who came to our office on Saturday for a copy of the paper became permanent subscribers. From all parts of the midland districts subscriptions are pouring in.

THE SATURDAY TIMES is an immense success. Our issue of 6,000 copies was exhausted early in the day, and more had to be printed. Advertisers who use our columns are the ones who will do the business.

The doctor who pulled the old Ameer of Afghanistan through his late illness is a young lady of Ayshire, Scotland, Miss L. Hamilton, M. D., who took her medical degree three years ago in Brussels and practiced in Calcutta before she went to Afghanistan.

The Sons of God, a crank set in Fredona, Calhoun county, Michigan, attempted to cure a diphtheria patient by faith. The patient died, other members of the family came down, and now the county authorities have turned down the Sons of God, taking charge of the matter themselves.

The Farmer's Sun figures that the maintenance of the Senate represents an annual cash outlay equivalent to the produce of 11,000 acres of wheat, yielding twenty bushels to the acre and selling at sixty cents a bushel. This is a striking way of calling attention to a great waste.

The Patrons demand, among other things, the reduction of the cost of the Mounted Police to $200,000 a year, the abolition of the bars in the Ottawa Parliament buildings, withdrawal of the grant for the maintenance of Rideau hall and closing up of the Canadian Senate. These are all sound planks and are of the kind that the people of Canada are just now clamoring for.

Fruit Commissioner Rufus Bronson says the "yellows" is spreading rapidly among peach trees in western Michigan, and thousands of orchards may have to cut down. Unless radical steps are taken at once, peach culture is doomed, as one diseased tree in a thousand will exterminate all the rest within four years. Coloma, Watervliet and Hartford orchards particularly are in danger.

The New York Journal says: "How to pass the winter months and enjoy every moment of the fine, clear, cold weather has been reduced to a science in Canada. These people welcome the cold weather and give a sigh of regret when the blustery winds of March give warning that another winter has come and gone." They do, do they? If the cheerful idiot who wrote that paragraph would dwell for a space in Canada, he would find that the sighs of regret are heaved when the furnace requires poking and the coal bills have to be paid and the snow has to be shovled off the sidewalk. When the blustery winds begin to blow, blow, blow we order out the band and looked forward yearningly for the coming of the rose-scented days of happy June.

THE THREE SONS.

A DRAMA IN THREE ACTS.

Translated from Le Figaro of Paris, for THE TIMES.

BY JAMES PENNY.

ACT THE FIRST.

With its lofty windows overlooking Varenne street, its massive stone steps and its profusely ornamented ceilings the hotel—the silent hotel—notwithstanding its silence and quietude still appeared to be inhabited.

Three men seated in the drawing room of the first floor listlessly looked at one another without uttering a word. They were three brothers, Monsieur le Marquis, Monsieur le Count, and Monsieur le Viscount. They calmly and nonchalantly awaited the termination of a medical consultation held in an adjoining chamber.

At any moment they might learn from the senior of the consulting physicians if any hope remained of prolongation of the life of Gabriell Anne Sophie, Dowager Marquise de Guebrianges, relict of the late Marquis Hercules de Guebrianges.

The eldest of the three sons the Marquis was tall and slender with a highly gentlemanly appearance, and dressed comme-il-faut. A glance would shew that he was scarcely thirty years of age. His hair was aristically cut and combed, and not being either strong or abundant covered but sparsely the surface of his cranium in itself of small dimensions.

He wore an eyeglass, a simple oblong crystal, inserted beneath his left eyebrow, without either setting or cord. In falling off his horse one day he was unfortunate enough to break his leg, but his glass was not displaced—budged not a whit. His friends and acquaintance cited that fact as a distinguihing trait in his character—a trait of coolness and aplomb—which was almost beyond the bounds of belief.

The Count, the second son, who was more floridin his appearance end character than the elder brother, bore with all due equanimity the ennui and lack of excitement of his twenty-three years. His auburn red moustachios, worn in a soldierly fashion, a-la-militaire, indicated an open impulsive nature, burning to distinguish itself in the world, and he bore the reputation of being the most intelligent of the family.

The youngest brother the Viscount, scarcely arrived at the verge of his twentieth year, appeared to be already old. The wrinkles on his beardless face accented themselves with a fearful precocity. He was of an astounding delicacy of frame, and frequently afflicted with a cough which seemed to tear his narrow breast in twain. His head was ever thrown back and his mouth distorted, whilst his lips and compressed jaws were ever the color of pale violets.

The door was gently opened and four gentlemen entered in Indian file holding in their hands immensely oppressive looking hats, hybrids between fashion and quakerdom.

They seated themselves in a formal manner, side by side, as silent as automatons.

The eldest, the president, the specialist, the one to whom the others deferentially bent their heads and listened, and even regarded his movements with demonsrations of respect, expressed himself with great gravity, weighing his words as carefully as a preacher on a dogma broached by an antagonist in polemical strife,

He gave a succiend history of the malady, expanded on the ulceration of the trachea, touched slightly on the atrophy of the kidneys, and tersely combined all their conclusions, from a medical point of view, pure and simple.

His colleagues nodded their sapient heads in sign of approval. When he had finished he rose up and his chest expanded while he heaved a deep sigh. Then turning towards the three young men, he said, with the sound of tears in his voice, "Gentlemen, however painful it may be for me to speak—but—but—you are men—you will be men—will you not?—TAIS IS THE END."

He paussed here, then added in continuation, with his eyes thrown up towards heaven, and in the low impulsive tones of a grand climax of pious entreaty, in which his medical subalterns immediately by soft murmuring sounds concurred, "unless we should see another miracle."

They retired without another word.

The doors closed softly after them. Professional etiquette was now quickly emancipated from thraldom, and as they stepped along the passage and across the vestibule their voices became high, strong and distinct to the listeners in the chamber.

"You will come along with me to the musical matinee?"

"No, I cannot, it is totally impossible to-day."

"Well, well, on Tuesday we will go to the Palais Royal together."

"Adieu—Adieu—Adieu—Au revoir."

The three brothers quickly entered the sick chamber, where the gloom was intensified by closed shutters and carefully drawn curtains, and was lighted only by a small wax candle in an antique brass candlestick. They held themselves motionless, side by side of each other, near the bed where thir mother listlessly lay extended on her back, wrapped in the extreme unconsciousness of appraching dissolution.

The eldest who seemed to speak for himself and his two brothers, said, "Do you suffer much my mother?"

With her long pointed fingers, as attenuated as the fragile body of a starved worm, she made a negative sign; the next moment here arm raised but for one instant fell lightly upon the silken coverlet and she resumed her mummy-lik attitude of both mind and body.

Her skin appeared to be emaciated, wrinkled and yellow—but she still displayed and an abundance of fine white hair.

WEI-HAI-WEI IN DANGER.

THE PLUCKY JAPANESE ARE PREPARING TO INVEST THE CITY.

But the City is Prepared to Stand a Long Attack—Women Missionaries Beaten—Chinese Claim a Victory.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A despatch from Tokio to the Central News says that the steamer Sarsuma has arrived at Ujina, Japan. She reports that she, with other transports, left Talien Wan on the afternoon of January 19 and reached Yung Cheng Bay, near Wei Hai Wei, at daybreak on January 20. The Yaycyema and the other warships of the fleet landed a force of marines, who met a feeble resistance from four Chinese guns. This battery was answered from the small boats, and the defenders of the battery were dispersed by the guns of the warships. The Chinese guns were captured and shipped on board the Yayeyama and the landing was effected without loss. The Japanese troops began advancing towards Yung Cheng the same night. The first fleet of transports had nearly completed landing their troups in the afternoon of January 21, when the Sarsuma left. The second lot of transports arrived on the morning of January 21st, and the landing of their troops was also nearly effected. The weather was clear, the sea calm, and all of the conditions were favorable. The English, German and Chinese keepers who were found in the Shantung lighthouses were retained under their former conditions and pay and instructed to continue the usual light.

The Central News correspondent at Che Foo telegraphs that the Japanese have landed at Ningbai, 20 miles from Chee Foo, and intend surrounding Wei Hai Wei. The British gunboat Redpole has gone to Wen Chow, at the request of the British Consul at that place. It is reported missionary women have been beaten by the natives there, and that the Chinese officials display a bitter feeling against foreigners.

The flagship of Fremantle is lying off Wei Hai Wei watching operations.

A despatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Che Foo says the Chinese claim to have repulsed the Japanese in the vicinity of Wei Hai Wei, capturing nine guns.

The British, American, French and German warships have landed marines at Che Foo to protect the citizens of their respective countries, who are greatly excited over the situation. The foreign residents of Wei Hai Wei are leaving that place.

A Central News despatch from Tokio says:—The ordinary budget has passed the Imperial Diet. Prince Arisugawa, chief of the general staff, is dead. Field Marshal Prince Komatsu, of the Imperial Guard, will become chief of the general staff.

General Sakema reports from Yung Chen, under date of January 21, as follows:—Upon the first arrival of the transports the landing of marines began. The snow was very heavy and deep. The Chinese earth batteries began firing upon the landing party, but after observing the formidable array of ships in the bay the Chinese troops retreated westward. The first troops that were landed pushed forward and seized Yung Chen fortress. It was a splendid rush. Field Marshal General Oyama and staff will join us at once.

The Times correspondent in Chee Foo says the Chinese declare that Wei Hai Wei has garrison supplies which will enable it to withstand a prolonged attack. The Japanese have withdrawn from Yong Chow, where they landed merely to create a diversion.

MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

The P. P. A. Extend Their Sympathy to Manitobans.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—At a meeting of the P.P.A. tonight the following resolution was proposed by Ontario members and unanimously passed "That the Grand Council for Canada in behalf of its delegates and of all the members of the order in this Dominion hereby declares its sympathy with the people of Manitoba in their struggle for the maintenance of national schools and urges them in the name of Liberty to stand firm, and pledges the honor of its members and of all the order that if Manitoba need counsel and aid, then be the cost what it may, counsel and aid shall not be withheld." The utmost secrecy was observed as to the proceedings, beyond the handing out of the above to the press.

ACTON'S SENSATION.

A Prominent Business Man Sent to Jail for Thirty Days.

Special to the Times.

ACTON, Jan. 28.—John Arthurs, one of Acton's business men, who at times indulges too freely, got considerably the worse of liquor Friday night last.

He became disorderly and had to be locked up in the cells on a charge of thrashing his wife.

During the night he broke out of his cell, smashed some windows in the Town Hall and went home. Next morning he was rearrested and brought before J. P.'s Storey and Pearson, who sentenced him to thirty days in jail.

Constable Lawson took him to Milton jail Saturday afternoon.

Two Soldiers and $3,000 Missing.

HALIFAX, Jan. 28.—The military authorities here have ordered the arrest of Pay-Sergeant Balham and Corporal Hotson, Royal Engineers, who are supposed to have deserted, taking with them $3,000 belonging to the corps.

ALL MEN

WARFARE WITH SNOWBALLS.

Napoleon at School Was Made the Leader of the Sports.

Professor W. M. Sloane tells many interesting anecdotes of the school days of Napoleon in his new "Life of the Little Corporal" in The Century. Writing of the time when Napoleon was at Brienne, Professor Sloane says: "Each of the 150 pupils had a small garden spot assigned to him. Buonaparte developed a passion for his own, and annexing by force the neglected plots of his two neighbors created for himself a retreat, the solitude of which was insured by a thick and lofty hedge planted about it. To this citadel, the sanctity of which he protected with a fury at times half insane, he was wont to retire in the fair weather of all seasons with whatever books he could secure. In the companionship of these he passed happy, pleasant and fruitful hours. His youthful patriotism had been intensified by the hatred he now felt for French schoolboys and through them for France.

"'I can never forgive my father,' he once cried, 'for the share he had in uniting Corsica to France.' Paoli became his hero, and the favorite subjects of his reading were the mighty deeds of men and peoples, especially in antiquity. Such matter he found abundant in Plutarch's 'Lives.' Moreover, his degradation by the school authorities at once created a favorable sentiment among his companions, which not only counteracted the effect of the punishment, but gave him a sort of compensating leadership in their games.

"The well known episode of the snow forts illustrates the bent of his nature. When driven by storms to abandon his garden haunt and to associate in the public hall with the other boys, he often instituted sports in which opposing camps of Greeks and Persians, or of Romans and Carthaginians, fought until the uproar brought down the authorities to end the conflict. On one occasion he proposed the sport, common enough elsewhere, but not so familiar then in France, of building snow forts, or storming and defending them and of fighting with snowballs as weapons. The proposition was accepted, and the preparations were made under his direction with scientific zeal. The intrenchments, forts, bastions and redoubts were the admiration of the neighborhood. For weeks the mimic warfare went on, Buonaparte, always in command, being sometimes the besieger and as often the besieged. Such was the aptitude, such the resources and such the commanding power which he showed in either role that the winter was always remembered in the annals of the school."

THE DRUMMER'S BAGGAGE.

If There's a Lot of It, It Shows That He Is New to the Business.

"I can tell after a single glance at the baggage carried by a drummer about how long he has been on the road," said a lawyer at the Commercial Travelers' club. "When the young man first starts out to the grand tour of the west or south, he is likely to carry in one large trunk enough samples to stock a village store. Another trunk will contain changes of clothing and linen sufficient for a trip around the world. He will carry two large hand satchels—one containing samples, the other a bountiful supply of gents' furnishings and toilet articles. Two overcoats—one light, the other heavy—a shawl or blanket and a mackintosh rolled up and strapped, a leather hat box containing a 'sixer,' an umbrella and a cane and a large pair of fieldglasses swung over his shoulders on a strap will complete the outfit.

"Six months later this young man will have discarded one of the trunks, the hatbox, the cane and the fieldglasses. At the end of a year two satchels and the umbrella will comprise his belongings. He has gradually learned that every first class hotel in the country can do laundry work in 12 hours; that umbrellas can be hired at the checkroom; that one middle weight overcoat is sufficient for his wants; that a cane is in the way; that the place for a silk hat is on the head, or, better still, that a derby is good enough; that blankets are supplied in the Pullman service; that fieldglasses are only of use on race tracks, and then behold the angel of commerce with his change of linen on one side and his samples on the other of a single traveling bag, selling more goods in a day than he formerly sold in a week and not paying out from $3 to $10 a day on excess of baggage."—New York World.

Skulls For Drinking Cups.

The barbarous custom of converting the skulls of enemies into drinking cups was a common one in ancient times among the fierce tribes of northern Europe and was not unknown to the people of the more civilized regions farther south. The Italian poet, Marino, causes an assemblage of friends to quaff their wine from the skull of Minerva, and in his "Wonder of a Kingdom" Torrent makes Dakker say:

Would I had ten thousand soldiers' heads,
Their skulls set all in silver, to drink healths
To his confusion who first invented war.

Thomas Middleton, a dramatic writer of the early part of the seventeenth century, is believed to be the originator of the phrase, "A soldier's drinking cup," as applied to a human skull. In "The Witch," one of his most celebrated plays, the duke takes a bowl, which he is told is a human skull, whereupon he exclaims:

Call it a soldier's cup.
Our duchess, I know, will pledge us, though the cup
Was once her father's head, which as a trophy
We'll keep till death.

One of the delights of the immortals, as represented in the old Scandinavian sagas, is that of drinking to drunkenness from the skulls of vanquished foes.

Misplaced Charity.

"I was dining in the restaurant of a hotel awhile ago," said George Carney of Mobile, "with a couple of friends. Our table was near one of the windows, and we were engrossed in conversation when I suddenly looked up and out of the window. On the street, leaning against the railing and gazing intently at us, I saw a middle aged man. Thinking he might be a poor fellow looking longingly at our meal and hungry, I raised the window and threw a quarter to him, saying, 'Go and get a feed for yourself.' The quarter fell at the man's feet, but he made no move to pick it up, and when I again told him that the coin was beside him he surprised me by stooping down and picking it up and throwing it through the window at me. Then he walked off. One of the cabmen saw him and laughed. When I finished my meal, I asked the cabby if he had ever seen him before.

"'Why, yes,' he replied. 'He is a character who hangs about the various hotel dining rooms during meal hours and always watches people eating. They say he is a rich man and a miser, but I don't know him.'

"Hereafter," added Mr. Carney, "I'll be careful to whom I throw money."—New York Telegram.

SMALL WONDER.

'Tis the woman of thirty whose reign has begun,
And the chit of sixteen's but a bore.
The debutante's day in the world is done.
Ingenues are amusing no more!"
These the words overheard in a flower girl ball
At a typical end of the century ball.

And the listener smiled as he wondered who
Had discovered the words that were penned
When the century and Balzac were new,
On this day—at the century's end.
And then for a glimpse of the speaker sought he.
He smiled again. 'Twas a woman of forty!
—J. P. Pollard in Kate Field's Washington.

SEEN IN A STORM.

Some of us said that our friend Cecil Wake was the most nervous man they had ever known. And yet his health seemed always good, although the susceptibility of his temperament was such that it appeared as though the wear and tear of existence must soon prove too much for him. He was temperate—very temperate—and yet the amount of twitching that his facial muscles underwent when he was moved and excited made one fear that the next thing he would do would be to weep.

Circumstances that did not affect other men produced an amount of moisture, especially in the corner of his right eye, which soon culminated in an actual teardrop, always hastily brushed away before it fell. The Germans, in whose country he had been for some years of his youth, have a saying of such a man that "he is built near the water." Now, emotion on certain occasions is always permissible, even to the male sex. When, for instance, a favorite daughter or niece is married, the "God bless you!" uttered by the master of the deserted home is apt to be gutturally and even chokingly—nay, often inarticulately—expressed.

Perhaps it has been observed by those who do not go down themselves to the sea in ships, but who like to see a ship launched for the purposes of those who intend to inflict on themselves such discomfort, that, when the said ship is launched, men among the crowd of witnesses of the operation blow their noses, and their eyes become watery. Cecil Wake's always became watery on such occasions. The cheering of the men on board of a ship of war, the march past of troops, even the hurrying of firemen to a conflagration, made his vision very misty. Some said that this was to the credit of his heart; others said it was not to the credit of his nerves.

Did he ride? Yes, sometimes and well. The successful termination of a fox hunt and the tragic death of the fox were events which were alleged by gossips to produce much the same effect upon him as the above mentioned cases of marriage, launching, cheering or fire extinguishing, but then fox hunting takes place when the air is cold and eyes are apt to be moist from intense sympathy with an east wind.

Nothing tangible on the nerve subject could be fairly deduced from such evidence. What are nerves? Nobody knows. Husbands swear that they are rubbish. Wives declare that their whole being consists of nothing else. What is certain is that they sometimes show themselves, or rather their influence shows itself, all of a sudden.

A danger is laughed at and defied, but in a moment, although the danger may not be there, the mere imagination that it is present makes us feel uncomfortable. The boldest men are not always quite sure of themselves. One, a general, who had faced fire over and over again, laughed at the idea that he could feel anxious when taken down a steep toboggan slope. "Me? No, never felt nervous in my life." And he took his place in front of the person who was to steer him down the ice. But he had hardly seated himself before he felt an irresistible impulse not to go forward, but to hang back. "Stop one moment—are you quite sure you can steer?" was the question in which his nerves unexpectedly betrayed themselves. We truly do not know what is going on within us, and it would not surprise any doctor to be told confidentially by any one that a discovery had been made that the nerves were giving way.

Imagination has a great responsibility in these matters. Men of little imagination are not "given to give way." So, if you have to do anything which is trying and requires an assistant or companion, don't take a man endowed with imagination. Look rather for a fool than a clever man. At all events, do not attempt anything risky with a man who thinks too much.

All these sapient thoughts arise because of Cecil Wake, who, although an excellent fellow, thought too much. Perhaps it was because of this that he had become better than any barometer for telling a change in weather. Snow always gave him headache, thunder always gave him headache, but he bore these afflictions uncomplainingly. But we knew in summer from an extra twitch about his mouth that we should have thundery weather. In winter snow faithfully followed the same signals. We discovered another peculiarity in him, and some of his friends declared that they had found a treasure in him at last, because he had one gift that could be usefully employed for money. He was a marvelous water finder. For this he employed the time honored instrument, the hazel fork. He held the two ends of the hazel between his thumb and forefinger, the fork turned downward, and whenever he came anywhere near running water the fork end of the hazel rose in the air, and the stick not only did this, but twisted and turned in his hand as though in agony. It made his arms ache, he said, and he described the sensation as especially unpleasant along the nerves and muscles of the forearms.

In an African desert he would have been invaluable, and we often told him that one of the African companies should give him a salary and employ him to find water in dry places. When he walked with us, often and often he has told us that water ran somewhere far down under his feet. We believed him or disbelieved him, as we liked, for it was only when we knew that a stream was close at hand that we could test him. He had also a sensation when placed near certain metals. Whether all this arose from magnetism or from some electrical affinities we were not wise enough to determine.

To electricity I ascribed his sensitiveness. Others called it by other names. At all events, there it was, a most palpable fact, showing itself with a power so strong that if, for instance, he grasped our wrists we became aware of a force running into our being, and it lifted hazel twigs in our hands when he was thus holding us, so that we felt the wood pressing itself against our fingers if we resisted the impulse given to it by him through our bodies.

Why should persons formed exactly alike as far as the mere presence of blood, bone, sinew and nerves is concerned be so variously affected? If there be such forces at work, why do they not pervade all con-

HUNTING THE SEA LION.

Herds of Them Driven For Miles to the Slaughtering Ground.

At the close of the fur seal killing season the natives proceed to lay in their winter's supply of meat. A number of picked men go to Northeast point, steal down to the shore in the dead of night and crawl along at the water's edge until a line of men is disposed between the sleeping herd and the water. At a given signal the men all spring to their feet, yell, discharge pistols and terribly frighten the sleeping sea lions. Those that lie with their heads toward the water plunge forward and quickly disappear, but those headed landward naturally enough start forward away from the uproar. Being continually urged on, they soon find themselves fairly inward, with all chance of escape cut off.

The groups of from 20 to 50 caught thus each night are driven up on to the level ground and held until from 300 to 500 are taken, when the grand drive begins. Then the whole herd is actually driven ten miles overland to the village. According to the condition of the weather the drive requires from six days to three weeks, but in the end every sea lion who does not die of heat and exhaustion on the road actually carries his own carcass to market.

This animal yields about the same class of products as the walrus, and its flesh forms the principal food of all the natives of the fur seal islands. The skin is thickly covered with coarse, stiff hair of a brownish yellow color, but it is destitute of "fur," and hence is of no value in our market.

Steller's sea lion is about twice the size of the fur seal, the old male being from 10 to 11 feet in total length, from 8 to 9 feet in girth, and it weighs on an average about 1,200 pounds. The females are not quite half as large in actual bulk as the males. Although cowardly in their disposition toward man, the males are among themselves the fiercest fighters in the world. It is hard to obtain an old specimen whose neck is not crisscrossed all over by long deep gashes or old scars, made by the powerful teeth of jealous rivals.—St. Nicholas.

A STRATEGIC SON-IN-LAW.

How He Brought About an Exchange of Prisoners and Peace.

"One of the funniest experiences I remember of my boyhood times was that of a couple in our neighborhood who ran away and got married," said Newt Moore. "After the bridal tour was over the couple went to the young lady's home to make peace with the old folks. The young lady's father met them at the door, and taking his daughter by the arm thrust her into a room and locked her up, and gathering up the shotgun ordered his son-in-law off the place and threatened his life if he ever returned. The young man went home and sat down and did some hard thinking.

"Finally he sent word to the young lady's mother to come and get her daughter's clothes and and everything that belonged to her. She did so, and the young man held his mother-in-law as a prisoner and hostage for the return of his wife. He, too, took a shotgun and stood guard.

"The second day after the father of the young lady came over to negotiate a surrender of prisoners. As soon as he came in sight he waved his white handkerchief in token of a truce. The result was there was a mutual exchange of prisoners. The young man made such a good impression upon his mother-in-law during her captivity that all differences were patched up, and the hatchet was buried."—St. Joseph Herald.

A Great Well.

At Bourne, in Lincolnshire, at a depth of 66 feet, water impregnated with iron was encountered, but this chalybeate liquid was excluded as the tubes were carried deeper. Some 12 feet lower the main spring was tapped, and the water rose very slowly up the tube, and it was 24 hours before the water overflowed. As the depth increased so did the volume of the ascending current, and by the time the well had reached the depth of 100 feet the flow was 1,300 gallons per minute, or 1,872,000 gallons per day.

Although this was an enormous flow, yet the engineers thought that by going a little deeper a still larger supply would be available. Numerous cases are on record where, under similar circumstances, the deepening of the well has resulted in complete failure. It will be readily understood that in such instances increased boring has carried the well through the nonporous rock upon which the water bearing layer rested, thus allowing the water to escape. With the Bourne well, however, the deepening of the bore hole had the desired effect, for at a depth of 120 feet the outflow increased to 1,800 gallons per minute, or no less than 2,592,000 gallons per day.—Chambers' Journal.

First Use of Potatoes In Ireland.

In the garden adjoining his house at Youghal Raleigh planted the first potatoes ever grown in Ireland. The vegetable was brought to him from the little colony which he endeavored to establish in Virginia. The colonists started in April, 1585, and Thomas Harriot, one of their number, wrote a description of the country in 1587. He describes a root which must have been the potato:

"Openauk are a kind of roots of round form, some of the bignesse of walnuts, some farre greater, which are found in moist & marish grounds growing many together one by another in ropes, as though they were fastened with a string. Being boiled they are very good meat."

The Spaniards first brought potatoes to Europe, but Raleigh was undoubtedly the first to introduce the plant into Ireland.

Edison's Fun.

Edison is a great lover of practical jokes. Once upon a time when the phonograph was more of a novelty than it is at the present time he hid one of these machines in a grandmother's clock which stood in a guest chamber. One night as a friend was preparing to get into bed he suddenly heard a voice exclaim, "Eleven o'clock; one hour more." He crept into bed and lay perfectly still, frightened out of his life and hardly daring to breathe. At midnight he heard the same voice again exclaim, "Twelve o'clock; prepare to die." This was more than mortal flesh could stand, and springing out of bed, with a shriek, he flew out of the room into the arms of Edison and another friend, who had been sitting up awaiting his appear-

THE BROOKLYN PROBLEM.

JUDGE GAYNOR'S IMPORTANT DECISION RE THE STRIKE.

Peace Being Re-Established—Death of One of the Victims—Wire Cutting Still Carried On No More Volleys Fired Upon the Strikers.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 24.—The sensation of the trolley strike today was a decision by Justice W. J. Gaynor of the Supreme Court against the companies in the mandamus proceedings. The Brooklyn Heights Company is severely censured for failing to operate its lines. The decision defines the rights of corporations holding franchises from the people in terms that caused great rejoicing in the ranks of the strikers and among workingmen generally. Justice Gaynor sets 10 a.m. tomorrow for a hearing by both parties as to whether a peremptory writ of mandamus shall issue. Aside from this decision the day was one of great gains for the companies. Very little disorder prevailed and a good showing was made on many lines. District Assembly No. 75 played its last card in ordering the electrical workers employed by the companies to join the motormen and conductors on strike. The order was not fully obeyed, and while it resulted in the stopping of three lines, three others which had not been open for ten days, were operated. More cars were run on other lines, and the presidents declare they have sufficient men to operate their roads.

NO MORE VOLLEYS.

There was no shooting today. The troops today had several lively practices scattering crowds who were indulging in wire cutting and blockading the tracks. Thomas Carney, the victim of yesterday's shooting, died at the Long Island College hospital at an early hour this morning. Col. Austin, in an official report to Gen. McLeer, says the firing in Hicks street was fully justified. Carney was the second man killed by the troops. Unless there is a change in the situation the 7th Regiment will be ordered home tomorrow. Order is slowly being established. Wire cutting still prevails in the outlying districts, but with less frequency. Cars are not yet run at night. No one seems to be anxious to take chances after dark.

TROOPS ORDERED HOME.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The big trolley strike is believed to be nearly over. Trolley cars are running on nearly all the lines.

They do not keep schedule time, but the great tie-up has been broken.

The Ninth Regiment has been ordered home and there is every likelihood that before the day is over the Seventh may be ordered back to New York.

It is believed the violence is ended.

A DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

A Man thrown Over a Six-Foot Embankment and Killed.

Special to the Times.

MIDDLETON, N.Y., Jan. 25.—Isaac Bartle, foreman of the stone quarry at Long Eddy, was killed this morning by a dynamite explosion. He was engaged in taking the tamping from a hole in a rock which contained three sticks of dynamite which had missed fire.

As Bartle was bending over the hole, digging out the dirt, the dynamite exploded, killing him instantly. The unfortunate man's body was thrown over a six-foot embankment and badly mutilated.

The Defaulting Treasurer of Dakota Located in Indiana.

Special to the Times.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 25.—It is probable that W. W. Taylor, the defaulting treasurer of South Dakota, has been located near this city. The authorities of that State are now on their way to Crawfordsville at the instance of John G. Overton.

Justice of the Peace and ex-County Supt. Overton declares that he has Taylor located beyond a doubt and says he is in no way troubled about his escape as he is dangerously ill, much of the time unconscious.

In the Storm King's Chilling Grasp.

Peterborough Visited by a Blizzard of Snow, Sleet and Wind.

A Terrific Storm Sweeps Over Western Ontario Piling Snow Everywheres—Railways Blocked and Traffic Paralyzed—Roads Almost Impassable—A Carnival Party Has a Hard Fight in the Blinding Storm of Friday Night—Americans Catch it Also.

For three days Western Ontario has been in the icy grasp of the Storm King. A veritable blizzard has been raging almost unceasingly. A great quantity of snow has fallen and is still falling. Roads and thoroughfares, while passable, are only travelled under the greatest difficulty, consequently business to a certain extent has been paralyzed.

Shortly after midnight on Saturday morning the thermometer began falling, a fierce and biting wind arose and this was accompanied by a perfect deluge of sleet and snow. The storm came up suddenly, although forecasted by the weather bureau. In less than half an hour a blizzard was raging. Great clouds of snow and sleet were whirled and driven by the fierce winds until it was impossible to see a dozen feet ahead. In an hour the ground was covered to the depth of several inches with light drift snow. This was caught up by the furious winds and massed in huge piles on roads and streets, making navigation either on foot or in cutter, almost impossible.

The storm raged all night. When daylight dawned the work of the storm was visible. Streets were piled high with drifts, and pedestrians ploughed up to their knees in the beautiful on their way to business. The snow plow was out early and cleared a path on all the principal streets, but the snow was quickly drifted back and an hour after the plow passed all trace of its work was obliterated. The Street Railway Company's sweeper was out early and battled through huge drifts. At 10 o'clock the cars were running. Later in the day the tracks were again filled up and traffic was abandoned.

ALL TRAINS LATE.

The storm caused a general blockade on the railroads. The 11.40 C.P.R. through train of Friday night, did not reach Peterborough until 9 o'clock on Saturday morning. The locals on the G.T.R., were hours behind time and some trains were cancelled. The Lindsay train due here at 9 p.m. of Saturday has not arrived yet. Early yesterday morning the snow plough engine left here to clear the track to Port Hope. At midnight last night it had yet not arrived there. Traffic on the railroads can be said to be partially paralyzed.

On Friday night a large number attended the carnival at Keene. Some went in open cutters, the majority going in busses. Very few reached Peterborough that night, and those who did reported a terrible time. The cold was intense, and the storm so blinding that it was impossible to keep the roads. The occupants of one cutter drove unawares into a large field, and it took them three hours to find out the road. By this time they were nearly exhausted, and more by good luck than anything else at last they reached home about 4 o'clock. Another couple got off the road and after driving through the storm all night, found themselves at daybreak, almost frozen, in the village of Norwood.

MUCH ANXIETY FELT.

There was great anxiety felt in many homes in Peterborough on Friday night and during the early hours on Saturday morning, when sons and daughters did not arrive. The telephone office was besieged with distracted parents, who sought to learn of the whereabouts of their children, at Keene. Their fears were not allayed by the invariable answer that so-and-so and such-and-such a party had left the Keene hotels at midnight before the fury of the storm had asserted itself. There was no means of communication between Keene and Peterborough and the fate of those who were out in the raging elements was unknown.

About 10 o'clock on Saturday morning the two busses and nearly all the single and double rigs returned. Several upsets were reported. It was impossible to drive over the blockaded roads and the parties found shelter at the various farmhouses along the route. Two young men accompanied by two lady friends, in a double cutter, after several upsets, found that it was impossible to come any further and decided to put up at some farmers. After floundering in snow drifts and fields a farm house was at last reached. The farmer had shelter for the young ladies but none for the tired horses, so the boys left their companions and ploughed on again for several miles, when another farmer was found who had sufficient barn room for the beasts, while the young men were invited to the hospitable fireside, where they found numerous others of the party, who, likewise, had got stuck in the snow. As there was not enough sleeping accommodation for all, the whole party philosophically decided to "sit up," and this they did, wiling away the long hours by games and story-telling, and in this manner a not unpleasant time was put in.

THE STORM CONTINUES.

On Saturday morning the wind went down, but started afresh towards night. All of Saturday night, Sunday and last night it raged with renewed fury. The light snow was blown in clouds from the roofs of buildings into the streets, and from the streets into huge drifts. During last night another snowfall took place, though not as heavy as the former, but the drift is quite as bad and streets and railways will be equally as blockaded as on Saturday. The thermometer sank several points towards morning, and it looks as if Peterborough was in for an old time cold snap, such as old-timers delight in telling about.

THE BOYS SAFE.

Peterborough was all excitement yesterday over the possible fate of two young men who left here on Friday night for the Keene carnival in a cutter secured from Fitzgerald's livery. The boys did not return on Saturday and at that time no anxiety was felt, as it was thought they had taken shelter at some farm house, and would show up on Saturday night.

On Saturday night they had not made an appearance. Mr. Fitzgerald telephoned to Keene and learned that they had left the hotel there at 12 o'clock. When this was known grave doubts were expressed for them. Saturday night passed and on Sunday morning the boys were still missing. It was common conjecture that they had lost their way and were frozen somewhere along the road. This belief became stronger as the day advanced and still they did not appear. During the day the father of one of the boys started for Keene.

A SEARCHING PARTY.

It was decided that if the boys or any trace of them could not be found last night that a searching party would start out at daybreak this morning and scour the country between here and Keene. In the meantime the relatives of the young men were almost distracted with anxiety.

Shortly after 6 o'clock last evening a telephone message from Keene contained the joyful information that the boys were safe, having just arrived from Farmer Drummond's, where they had taken refuge during the storm. It seems that when they reached the vicinity of the farm, their horse ran away, upsetting the cutter and dumping them out. They hung on to the horse and fought their way through the storm to the farm house which they reached almost exhausted. The robes and other articles in the cutter were lost. On Saturday morning, not feeling able to continue the trip to Peterborough, a man was despatched to Keene to telephone that they were safe. The fellow failed to do so.

IN OTHER PLACES.

OTHER TOWNS VISITED BY HEAVY SNOWFALLS AND BLIZZARD WINDS.

CHICAGO GETS IT, TOO.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Chicago is nearer being snow-bound than at any time during the last eight years. The storm began yesterday evening, the snow coming down in sheets, which were hurled through the streets by a gale blowing 65 miles an hour. The streets were nearly impassable.

NOT MUCH IN BRANTFORD.

BRANTFORD, Jan. 26.—Early last night a high wind from the north-east accompanied with snow set in and continued all night.

This morning the snow is about nine inches on a level and drifted. Trains are moving but somewhat late. The wind has changed to the west, it is still snowing and getting milder.

SPOILS THE MARKET.

GUELPH, Jan. 26.—A very high wind set in last evening, accompanied by heavy, soft snow, which drifted badly, blocking the roads.

Few farmers were able to come in today to the usual Saturday market. The morning trains on both divisions of the Grand Trunk and C. P. R. were from half an hour to three hours late. Light snow is still falling.

BELLEVILLE'S QUOTA.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 26.—Since midnight about 15 inches of light snow have fallen. Country roads are badly blocked by drifts, and all stages are late.

Railway traffic is moving slowly. The Peterborough train did not leave till 10 this morning.

BROCKVILLE'S BLIZZARD.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 26.—A severe blizzard which started about 2 a.m. is raging in this vicinity. The Grand Trunk train from the west which is due at 4 a.m. arrived here at 9.55 a.m., being blocked at Manitoba siding by snow for one hour and a half. The Brockville and Westport train arrived on time.

ABOUT A FOOT OF SNOW.

KINGSTON, Jan. 26.—Heavy snow storm here. About a foot fallen last night and this morning. Very little wind and no drifts.

Railway service not much effected as yet. It is still snowing.

COBOURG IS BURIED.

COBOURG, Jan. 26.—A terrible snow storm has been raging here all night, fully four feet of snow having fallen and drifted in many places six feet deep. Trains are all from two to three hours late.

IT CAUGHT OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26.—A severe snow storm reached here early this morning. It is accompanied by a strong wind and the roads are badly blocked.

All the trains running to the city are behind time. The Toronto train, due here at 6 a. m., was six hours late.

The street cars are running.

Mine Ablaze.

HAZELTON, Pa., Jan. 26.—The Hazel mine slope, the deepest in the Lehigh region, is on fire. The steam pipes have been broken off half way down the mine, and the pumps cannot be worked to fight the flames. The fire has already climbed to the slope mouth, and the tower of the breaker is burning. An effort to save the breaker is being made. The colliery is the property of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company.

Seven Went Down.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The fishing boat Tweed, owned at Dunbar and manned by a crew from that place, went down during the recent storm and her crew of seven were drowned.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 20,000 rose trees in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories Bloor-st. west, Toronto. Visitors are always welcome. Mr. Dunlop is proud of his establishment and takes pleasure in speaking of his beauties. He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. Sale room, 445 Yonge-st., and 5 King street west.

CITY AND COUNTY NEWS.

LOCAL AND DISTRICT HAPPENINGS OF THE DAY.

Save Your Fuel.

Call at Calcutt's brewery and see how to save one-third your fuel. Our steam boilers will give one-third more power.

Robinson Acquitted.

William Robinson, charged with perjury, had a hearing before Judge Weller on Saturday, and was acquitted, there being considerable doubt as to the reliability of the evidence.

Sure Sign of Spring.

On Saturday, Feb. 2nd, the proverbial bear will leave his den to look about for fine or foul weather which he will determine by the appearance of the sun. If his eyes are bleared and he fails to see his shadow, he will polish himself up and start out on his season's ramble.

Curling at Lindsay.

The curlers journey to Lindsay this afternoon, when the return match in the Lindsay cup contest will be played. Several out-of-town matches are being arranged for this week, two in Toronto and one in Port Hope. So far, Peterborough curlers have held their own fairly well.

Special Missionary Services.

Missionary services were held in the two local Methodist churches yesterday and special sermons were preached. At the George street church Rev. Thos. Manning, B. A., of Whitby, preached in the morning and Rev. Dr. Galbraith, President of the Toronto Conference, conducted the evening service. At the Charlotte street church Rev. Dr. Galbraith preached in the morning and Rev. Mr. Manning in the evening.

Business World.

Thos. Broughton, builder, Brantford, is dead. W. T. Junkin, drugs, Fenelon Falls, has assigned to W. McArthur; the creditors have been called together for Feb. 1st at Lindsay. T. Chislett, general store, Pemberton station, has assigned. Andrew Robertson, grocer, Newmarket, has assigned to Wm. C. Widdifield. B. Wilcox, fancy goods, Owen Sound, has assigned to W. K. Doherty. W. R. Watson, grocer, Woodstock, has assigned to Sheriff Brady.

Entertainment at Downer's Corners.

An entertainment under the auspices of L. O. L. No. 321, is to be held next Friday evening in the Orange hall, Downer's Corners. The programme will include choice musical and literary selections and a stereopticon exhibition with descriptive lecture by Mr. R. M. Roy. An oyster supper will be combined with the entertainment. Messrs. Jos. Saunders, T. Holden, W. H. G. Armstrong and J. G. Weir are the efficient committee in charge of arrangements.

Suicided.

It was only last week that Mr. McMillen, the well known cutter for Messrs. Dundas & Flavelle, in Lindsay, visited this village. It was noticed at the time that he was not in his usual spirits, but his numerous friends were much startled on Friday when it was reported that on the previous evening he committed suicide by hanging himself. He went out into the shed, and, not returning for some time, he was found hanging to a beam, and past recovery.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

GROWING IN POPULARITY.

The Saturday Times is growing in popularity and its appearance is eagerly looked for. Last week the subscriptions poured in so rapidly from our agents canvassing the country villages, that a six thousand edition was necessary. Early in the day the street sales became so large that it was necessary to start the presses again. The consequence was that instead of a six thousand edition as was announced for the benefit of our advertisers, this edition of The Saturday Times was only a few hundred copies short of a ten thousand edition. The special features are filling the paper. In this connection the public will understand that we have only commenced to push The Saturday Times to the front and that each edition will be an improvement on the preceding one. This week the special features will be particularly interesting—something new in the line of local bits. The edition will be [illegible] 9,000. This is a pointer for advertisers who will do well to watch us as we grow and extend. Look out for the announcement of what the next issue of The Saturday Times will contain.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers.

Snowshoes are in demand.

Everything quiet in police circles.

Wedding bells will ring this week.

The Fortnightly club will hold an open meeting tonight.

There were several friendly curling contests on the rink Saturday night.

In George street and Charlotte street Methodist churches yesterday, missionary anniversary services were held.

The Foresters of Selwyn will give a concert on Wednesday night. A party from Peterborough will attend.

In all the churches yesterday special prayers were offered up for the prisoners of the country. Yesterday was known as prison Sunday.

A sensation was created in Napanee last Thursday by a young man who tried to inveigle three young girls into a building. He was arrested and gave his name as Joseph Wall, a Frenchman, who speaks fair English. He said he came from Minneapolis, but was born in Cornwall. He is about 60 years of age. He was remanded for eight days.

On Wednesday morning early, fire was discovered in Mr. J. W. Freeman's grocery store by Mr. E. Covell. Riel, the big Russian dog, was there and would not allow anyone to enter. Mr. Freeman was aroused and was on hand in a short time. The fire was caused from a box in which saw-dust was kept for the benefit of smokers; and there is not a doubt but some one had dropped a cigar end or knocked the ashes out of his pipe in the box causing the sawdust to ignite. It was a narrow escape and should be a warning to all parties to dispense with such conveniences.—Brighton Ensign.

It is strange how closely men read the papers. We never say anything that anybody don't like but we soon hear of it, and everybody tells us of it. If, however, once in a while we say a good thing, we never hear of that—nobody seems to notice it. We may pay a man a dozen compliments, and give him a dozen puffs, and he takes it as a tribute to his greatness, and never thinks it does him any good. But if we happen to say anything this man don't like or something he imagines a reflection on his character, see how quickly he flares up and gets excited about it. All our evils are duly charged to us, but never apparently do we get any credit for what good we do.

IS A SLACK TIME.

So the Grand Trunk is Laying Some Men Off Temporarily.

A general reduction is being made among the employees along the line of the Grand Trunk.

No general rule for laying off men has been adopted, but whenever an employee could be spared heads of departments have been instructed to dispense with his services. As a result quite a number of men along the whole length of the line have been discharged.

"Traffic has been very poor," said one of the officials, "and the reduction became a necessity. It is altogether likely however, when things improve the men laid off now will be taken back again."

A RADIAL RAILWAY.

One to Be Built From Peterborough to Bridgenorth.

The Port Hope Guide says: "The Peterborough and Chemong Park Electric Railway Company has received permission from the Smith township council to build an electric railway from Peterborough to Bridgenorth on the road allowance, provided the road bed be located to the satisfaction of the council and that no interference be caused to the ordinary traffic at present and provided that the building of the road be commenced not later than the first day of June and completed by the following December.

We hope this will induce stockholders to take steps for the building of the electric railway between Port Hope and Bewdley and thus establish accomodating connection with that magnificent chain of lakes to the North.

DIPHTHERIA SCOURGE.

Provincial Board of Health Issues a Report on the Disease.

The Provincial Board of Health, in its report just issued, has some remarks regarding diphtheria. The report says on this point: Diphtheria is as contagious under the conditions of close contact, contact in the close and foetid atmosphere of a church or school room as smallpox or any other of the eruptive diseases. Even with the imperfect methods of collecting information the disease was reported during 1894 from 110 municipalities, or more than one seventh of all organized in Ontario, and during the last quarter at least 75 municipalities have reported its presence. In a town with a population under 10,000 25 cases in 14 days of the present month were reported. There is present a disease causing a percentage of deaths of from 25 to 35 of the cases, mounting up during the year at the present rate of several thousands. Were smallpox present to even a hundredth part that diphtheria has been during the past few months, the business of the province would be paralyzed.

All local boards of health are urged to exercise the utmost caution on their treatment of diphtheria cases, and to use to their full extent the power with which they are clothed to protect the public from the contagion. Throughout our northern district there has been a sad succession of deaths from the disease, and in many instances the local boards have failed to perform their duties.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread-board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 161 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

IT IS HARTY!

Returned By A Majority of 432.

DR. SMYTHE NOT IN IT.

Harty Gets a Majority in Every Ward But One—A Large Vote Polled—No Returns Available Yet from West Algoma.

Special to the Times.

KINGSTON, Jan. 28.—The election held here today was one of the most exciting that Kingston has ever witnessed. It resulted in the return of Hon. Wm. Harty by a large majority. The total vote polled was 4134, which is the largest number of votes ever polled in an election in Kingston.

Every subdivision in the city and suburbs, with the exception of two, gave Harty a majority. The vote by wards was as follows:

HARTY MAJORITIES.

Sydenham ward, 66; Ontario, 66; St. Lawrence, 48; Cataraqui, 80; Frontenac, 73; Rideau, 54; Portsmouth, 51; total, 434.

SMYTHE MAJORITIES.

Victoria ward, 2.
Total majority for Harty, 432.

IN WEST ALGOMA.

VOTERS TRAVEL MANY MILES IN DOG SLEIGHS TO THE POLLS.

Up to 12 o'clock last night no returns had been received at Toronto from any of the polling places of West Algoma. It may be several days before the result is known.

RAT PORTAGE, Jan. 28.—This is a great day throughout West Algoma. Both sides are confident of victory. Much depends on the Rainy River district. King, the Conservative candidate, has done good work up there, but the Conmee party are hopeful.

The snows are deep and the weather is bitterly cold. Many voters have to travel by dog sleighs 10 to 25 miles over frozen streams and lakes to vote.

As in the last election, the result may be in doubt some days, as returns will come in slowly.

A LARGE ASSIGNMENT.

Foster & Pender Carpet Dealers Liabilities Will Exceed $100,000.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—One of the heaviest failures reported in Toronto for some time was announced late Saturday evening, when Messrs. T. G. Foster and David A. Pender, trading under the name of T. G. Foster & Co., wholesale upholsterers supplies and carpets, and Foster & Pender, retail upholsterers, made an assignment to E. R. C. Clarkson, for the benefit of their creditors. The liabilities will exceed $100,000, the principal creditors other than the Dominion Bank being English houses. The assets are understood to almost equal the liabilities.

The firm formerly dealt extensively in the wholesale trade. Their warehouse in Colborne street was destroyed by fire five or six years ago. There was considerable salvage, and the firm decided to dispose of it at retail. They secured immense premises at 14 King street east and subsequently decided to continue the retail business in connection with the wholesale department. The firm were pushing and energetic, but the loss occasioned by the fire, together with the large expense they were put to in fitting up the new warerooms, the immense stock they had to carry to meet the competition in their line, and the slowness of collections, crippled them. A member of the firm visited England and secured an extension, and an effort was recently made to secure a further extension, but this failed, and the assignment followed.

It is understood that the Dominion Bank is secured.

WILL SURROUND THE CITY.

Another Chinese Stronghold Invested—A Powerful Fleet in the Bay.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A despatch to the Central News from Che Foo says that Wei Hai Wei was invested yesterday by a fleet of twenty Japanese warships, nineteen transports and twenty torpedo boats which entered Shan Tung Bay. The English and German flagships are also in the vicinity. The land forces of the Japanese are now advancing from the bay intending to completely surround the city.

A SERIOUS COLLISION.

Steamer Michigan Collides with an Unknown Steamer—A Bark Goes Ashore.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—The British steamer Michigan, Captain Findlay, which sailed from this port on the 26th instant for Baltimore, has returned here, having been in collision with an unknown steamer off Dungess. The Michigan's starboard bow is cut down to the water's edge.

The bark Harvester, from Port Elizabeth, C. C., for Delagoa Bay, which went ashore near Lourenzo Marques, had to be towed off by the German warship Cormorant and taken to Lourenzo Marques harbor.

Quiet in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, N.Y., Jan. 28.—The trolley cars on the Halsey street line are running regularly this morning. The Seventh regiment has been relieved from duty. The 71st regiment and the 1st battery have received orders to pack up. The situation this morning was much improved. The lines which have been opened during the past few days were all running and with more cars than any day since the strike was begun.

MURDEROUS

Was This Assault Upon a Citizen of Berlin—Thomas Bishop Brutally Beaten by Three Firemen.

Special to the Times.

BERLIN, Ont., Jan. 28.—A most disgraceful affair took place here last night, which may yet end in a murder trial, as one man concerned is in a very precarious condition at present. From what can be gathered from people who were near at the time, it appears that three members of the fire brigade attacked a man named Thomas Bishop while the latter was in a half-intoxicated condition, and beat him in the most brutal manner.

Bishop, it seems, had, at some time or other, incurred the disfavor of some of the brigade, and last night, about 7.30, when three of their number found him in an intoxicated condition, near the corner of King and Queen streets, they resolved to vent their spite. Bishop attempted to remove his coat, when one of the assailants struck him a vicious blow in the face, knocking him down like a log. The fellow then followed up his cowardly work; and proceeded to jump on the prostrate body, while the others kicked him most brutally about the head and body. The result of this could only have been death to the poor wretch had not a man come running up and taken matters into his own hands.

With well directed blows the cowards were sent sprawling into the middle of the street, and then poor Bishop was raised. One of his eyes had been knocked out, and his head and body were most terribly bruised. He was removed to a doctor's office, and meantime his assailants made their escape. The doctor says the injuries may prove fatal. It is expected arrests will follow.

TORONTO'S CHIEF DEAD.

CHIEF ARDAGH DIES FROM INJURIES RECEIVED AT THE FIRE.

Heart Disease Supervenes—The Story of the Accident—The Fire Department Loses a Faithful and Brave Head—Forty-Seven Years a Fireman.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 28.—Chief Ardagh is dead. This was the news which spread rapidly through the city Sunday morning, and caused general regret, alike from the circumstances surrounding the sad event, and the esteem in which deceased was held by all classes of the community. The chief is the second member of the brigade whose death is due to the great conflagration of the 6th inst., Robert Bowrey, who died the day of the fire, being the other member whose injuries terminated fatally.

It is fresh in the recollection of all how early in the morning of January 6th fire broke out in the Globe offices and spread with amazing rapidity, destroying other buildings in the neighborhood, and how during the terrible fight with the flames part of the wall of the Globe building fell on the aerial truck and ladder, inflicting such injuries on Robert Bowrey, one of the firemen, that he died that same morning in the General hospital. Several other members of the brigade were also injured, some of them severely; but Chief Ardagh, as events have proved, was the only other member, in addition to Bowrey, who was fatally hurt.

ACCIDENT AT THE FIRE.

The following is the account of the accident as related by Chief Ardagh himself to a reporter of the Mail on the afternoon of the day the fire took place: "Charles Smedley, Frank Forsyth and myself entered the second building south of the Globe building. The roof of the building was on fire. We mounted to the second floor, and I remarked that we must try and get a branch into the building and cut the fire off, so as to prevent it spreading further. Frank Forsyth said: 'We cannot go any higher. It is dangerous for us to be here. We had better go down.' Frank was on the stairway at the time. Then there was a fearful crash, caused, I believe, by part of the Globe building falling upon the building we were in. The staircase and floors were carried away, and Frank disappeared with them. I cannot account for his marvellous escape. Smedley and myself were left on a piece of flooring about twelve feet square. The hoist shaft was still standing, and the hoist was there also. We tried to get down by it, but it would not work, and by this time we were surrounded by flames. We jumped from the hoist and threw ourselves faces downwards upon the flooring. While lying there I said 'Charley Smedley, we are caught. There's a window close by—and our only chance is to jump.' Smedley answered,

'WE'LL BE KILLED.'

I replied, 'I'd rather be killed jumping out of the window than be burnt to death here.' Charley wanted me to jump first, but I told him that it was no time for argument. I would go last. The window faced on a lane between the Globe building and the Lithographing Company's department. Smedley swung out of the window, let himself down to the full extent of his arms and dropped. I followed him. Before dropping we both called for a ladder, but no one heard us. Just before I dropped a shutter right under me blew open, and I had to wait until it closed again. If I had fallen on it it would have, literally speaking, cut me in two. I alighted on my feet, but fell immediately, and I have an impression that I was knocked down by falling bricks. Charley Smedley crawled over to me and tried to raise me up. Together we managed to crawl out of the lane on to the street, where we lay in the snow until we were picked up and sent home."

A PINERO AMAZON.

A Woman Who Had Masqueraded as a Man for Sixteen Years.

Special to the Times.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 28.—A sensation has been created in the county jail by the discovery that the prisoner booked as Milton B. Matson was a woman. She was arrested at Los Gatos on a charge of issuing bogus checks.

The discovery was made through a remittance from Englewood to Louisa Matson on the Bank of British North America, while Matson was in jail here.

The woman says she has masqueraded as a man for 16 years, but has committed no crime.

Will Reside in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Jan. 28.—Roland Gideon Israel Barnett, who served a six years' term in Kingston for complicity in wrecking the Central Bank, has decided to make this city his home. He arrived here last night and will go into the real estate business with his brother here.

SHE MARRIED FOR MONEY

BUT MADE THE MISTAKE OF MARRYING TOO OFTEN.

That is Why Mrs. Dempster Was Arrested for Bigamy and Brockville Has a Sensation—The Same Old Story of Waning Affection.

Special to the Times.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 28.—There is an interesting story behind the conviction of Mrs. Annie Dowsley, who has pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy in marrying James Dempster while husband No. 1 was yet alive.

Annie Graham was born in Mallorytown in the front of Yonge township, where she is known as a pretty child and a beautiful and an ambitious young woman. She knew not what it was to want for any of the material luxuries of life when she was young, but she deemed her existence altogether too prosaic, and she wanted to see more of the world.

In June, 1890, she married Jas. Dowsley, a plodding ne'er-do-well, who very soon seemed in her eyes altogether too common place for the hero her imagination had pictured as an ideal husband. She had been married two months when a girl friend in Brockville wrote asking if she would not come there and go into service. She was tired of her husband and hated her home and the chance seemed to be an opening that promised to lead a new field of experience.

ASSUMED AN ALIAS.

She entered service as Annie Dowsley, but when she appeared in Gananoque, where the immediate story of her crime begins, she was known as Annie Macdonald.

She entered into a conspiracy with a marble dealer named Williamson, who was to arrange a marriage between her and James Dempster, an aged farmer living near New Dublin in Elizabethtown Township. She was to induce the old man to deed his $25,000 worth of property to her and then turn one-half of it over to her accomplice.

Dempster married Annie on August 18, 1894, and subsequently deeded his property to her, retaining a life interest in it. She carried out the bargain with Williamson, but none of the deeds were registered. Dowsley made his debut and asked half the property as the price of his silence. The woman refused, and was arrested for bigamy. Williamson fled, but the Attorney-General's department secured the deeds.

NOT TO BE BOUNCED.

Carnival Merry Makers Catch a Tartar in a Cabinet Minister.

Special to the Times.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—The Carnival Owl Brigade, composed of O.A.A.C. snowshoes who bounced everybody without regard to distinction, during the carnival week, came to grief on Saturday night.

They tackled Hon. John Haggart but failed to bounce him. In their efforts to send the Minister skywards Mr. Haggart hit out and slugged three of them. The bouncers had their faces well punched, one having three teeth knocked out.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 29 1895.

GROWING IN POPULARITY.

THE SATURDAY TIMES is growing in popularity and its appearance is eagerly looked for. Last week the subscriptions poured in so rapidly from our agents canvassing the country villages, that a SIX THOUSAND edition was necessary. Early in the day the street sales became so large that it was necessary to start the presses again. The consequence was that instead of a six thousand edition as was announced for the benefit of our advertisers, this edition of THE SATURDAY TIMES was only a few hundred copies short of a TEN THOUSAND EDITION. The special features are selling the paper. In this connection the public will understand that we have only commenced to push THE SATURDAY TIMES to the front and that each edition will be an improvement on the preceding one. This week the special features will be particularly interesting—something new in the line of local hits. The edition will be fully 8,000. This is a pointer for advertisers who will do well to watch us as we progress and extend. Look out for the announcement of what the next issue of THE SATURDAY TIMES will contain.

Good morning!

If this is not an old-fashioned winter we are having, it is the finest imitation of one that can be produced at short notice.

There ought to be a hot campaign up in South Huron. At all events the Liberals there have chosen as their president A. Mustard.

What has become of the curfew by-law. It should at least prevent children from sellig newspapers on the streets at a late hour.

Reducing expenses is the watchword in nearly every municipality in the Province. In Toronto the police force has been largely reduced, and many of the officials dispensed with. We are patiently waiting to see what Peterborough Council will do.

The change in Presidency of the "P. P. A." ends any hope the Conservatives may have had of capturing that organization. The new leader is a McCarthyite, has been engaged in stumping North Bruce for Potts, the McCarthyite candidate, and in the last two local contests there worked for McNaughton, the Patron.

Thursday and Friday of next week will be interesting days for our local politicans. The first named will see a number of Dominion cabinet ministers here, who will tell the people all about the prosperous times we are having. Friday Dalton McCarthy will visit Peterborough in his official capacity as leader of the Third Party, and will address the electors.

A bill for the abolition of capital punishment has been introduced in the New York assembly by Mr. Blake. The measure provides for a new trial of persons imprisoned for life provided new evidence of importance be discovered. The author of this bill recognises the fact that there is as much danger of imprisoning for life an innocent man as there is of killing such an one by legal process.

THE THREE SONS.

A DRAMA IN THREE ACTS.

Translated from Le Figaro of Paris, for THE TIMES.

BY JAMES PENNY.

A warm ray of affection shone out of her blue eyes which seemed to laugh at the bottom of their orbits as the eyes of a illyosotis at the bottom of a well. It was easy to see a whole lifetime of unhappiness and of incessant sacrifices, borne with patience and resignation, in the expression of those now quivering eyelids. Her teeth were clinched and she respired in the faintest manner possible, economising the last moments of her life as though she did not care to exaust by the slightest effort the little of here-below which reigned in her lungs and delicate body.

The Marquis spoke once more, "Mother, do you recognize us?"

An almost undistinguishable whistling noise escaped from her lips. It was the faint sound of her reply. Each of her sons bent slightly over the bed and lent an attentive ear to catch her last words.

The Viscount placed his handkerchief over his mouth in the vain attempt to crush back the violent cough which ordinarily afflicted him.

"My children" at length murmured the dying lady, "I am about to die, I feel it, I know it."

The eldest son interrupted her with the soft low exclamation "Oh! mother! My mother!"

They listened with wet eyes and in an attentive and respectful attitude.

She continued, "Do not wee—wee—weep for me, rather pra—pray for—me. Oh! yes, fervently! I am a—a—bad—bad—mother, I have committed a grave fault—yes a sin—a crime. Oh! I have frequently beg—begged God's pardon. And now, yes,—before I meet him face to face, I ought—I know, I ought—I must—I am bound to make confession to you all—to say—wherein I sinned."

She hesitated a minute, yes minutes, from extreme emotion and exhaustion, then lowering her eyelids as though to soften or hide some deep feelings of shame or regret, she said.

"I have been unfaithful to your—father—your good father—I sinned—I deceived him—one—of you—is not—is not—his son—not his son. It is—it is—it is——."

She hesitated—stopped—bent slightly on one side—and expired with her face turned slightly from her children and towards the lone dark narrow lane on that side of the mansion.

With one glance at the now still form they instantly left the the death chamber on tiptoe.

ACT THE SECOND.

They soon paused, however, and posted themselves in an adjoining apartment.

The Marquis who showed some slight symptoms of emotion commenced to speak. "We have just heard the preliminary of a sad and astounding avowal that the rigid hand of death has not permitted our poor mother to finish."

"I am quite certainthat the idea of accusing the one who is now departed from us would never enter the minds of either of you, my brothers, nor of myself.

"The dreadful secret which has been only partially revealed to us will remain a secret for us alone for ever.

"The world will not—cannot suspect anything so outrageous of our house, of our family. Behold everything promptly and naturally arranged.

"To the eyes of all others I, John, am still and ever the Marquis. Rene will be Count, and Francois, Viscount de Guebrianges. But to us who know that one amongst us has strange alien blood in his veins, less pure, possibly than that of our father, will it be possible to remain vis-a-vis of one another in such a false embrrassing and annoying condition of affairs?

"Will not our very ignorance, our almost voluntary ignorance of the facts be in itself culpable and a crime? Is it not our common interest to dissipate within the limits of a clear and logical possibility those doubts which hang over the legitimacy of our birth, even though it should bring to one a change from an unhappy uncertainty to the sharp pangs of a painful and poignant certainty? I, for one, demand to be purged of the uncertainty and consequently of the stain?"

"What think you of it? Say! Speak!"

"I thnk responded the Count Rene, "that you are right, and if I read the thoughts of the Viscount aright he is entirely of my opinion. If you had not spoken my dear brother, I was ready—nay, anxious—to express the self same opinion that you have expressed upon the blow which has attainted our honor and the honor of our ancient family.

"You have forestalled me but I could not have better thought out, the idea nor better expressed my thought, and I thank you for it. So in order to give you here, absolutely at once, the proof of my sincerity you must permit me, although I shall suffer deeply by it, to put a stop for ever to all your anxieties and annoyances.

"I believe that my mother intended to designate me—me—alone—in the painful revelation that she has not had sufficient strength to conclude.

"I will try and explain myself briefly.

"You, John, our eldest brother, came into the world only just within the year which followed the marriage of our late father and our lamented mother, consequently you have the fullest right to demand that your legitimacy and your name shall not be attainted by the least suspicion.

Rumor shall not have birth.

"You Francois, the youngest, the one who is cherrished by us all, you have been born some months after the death of our sister Bertha; of that dear sister that our mother has not ceased to lament in sorrow every day and every night since the sad event.

SEEN IN A STORM

tient flesh? We ask many questions, but the true replies are not as yet vouchsafed to us—perhaps they will never be. There will always be creatures whose eyes see and ears hear what is unknown to many. The presence of influences in the world around us will thrill through those who, endowed with ethereal qualities, feel things which most of us, fashioned with more earthly substance, failed to discern.

Notwithstanding his exquisite susceptibility, Wake was a pleasant companion and did not take amiss any amusement afforded to his grosser comrades by his peculiarities. He was fond of making excursions on foot through the Swiss highlands, and one companion only was what he asked and generally obtained, for we all liked him, and he was easily pleased.

Content with almost anything, except constant noise or stormy weather, he would plod along, singing sometimes to himself and full of interest in all he saw. The only circumstance that made him seem at all unreasonable was in the matter of accommodation at an inn. The hotels were often crowded, but however full they might be Wake always insisted on having a room to himself. He said he could not sleep with another person snoring in another bed, however remote, in the same room.

This unreasonable apprehension was especially aggravating when I was with him on one of these excursions, for I am an excellent walker and an excellent sleeper and feel certain that I never snore. People don't who lie on their sides and not on their backs, and I know that I never lie on my back, and if ever disagreeable I am only disagreeable when I am awake.

But this assertion had no influence with Cecil Wake. We had arrived late and hungry at an inn, and were shown a room where there were two beds, the one with its back to the side of the room where was the window, the other placed with its head the other way and near the door. There was a considerable interval between the beds. Wake told the landlord he wanted a room to himself, however small. Excellent as Swiss hotels are, they cannot contain more rooms than they do contain, and the landlord said he could not give another unless he gave his own, and that he could not do, for he had a wife and I don't know how many children sleeping there.

So there was no help for it, and the landlord retired. I told Wake that I feared there was no avoiding the inconvenience, and that he must allow me a bed, and that I promised not to snore. But, although he at first made no demur, and although I had my bag carried up to the room, he presently began to look so unhappy, so ridiculously put out and twitchy, that I, to whom it was a matter of perfect indifference whether I slept in a bed or on a sofa, said that I had made up my mind not to plague him by my presence, and that I would go down and sleep on a couch I had observed in the dining room of the hotel, which we had passed as we came in before mounting the stairs.

He thanked me effusively, and although I thought him rather selfish I shook his hand and wished him pleasant dreams. He said that he would not act thus were it not that he felt that he himself would be an annoyance to me, for unless he slept well his restlessness would be sufficient to keep us both awake.

"Besides," he added, to my astonishment, "there are very peculiar influences at work here, and especially, as it seems to me, in that part of the room where your bed"—indicating the one near the door—"is placed, and I would much rather that no friend of mine slept there. I cannot tell you what it is, but it is palpable, palpable," he repeated, with a sigh and a shudder, "and I shall certainly take the bed near the window, where I can get fresh air."

I said: "Nonsense, old man! Thunder in the air, and on your nerves, as usual. Nice clean bed—what's the matter with it?" But as I said this a draft coming from the door blew out my candle and made his flicker so that he shaded it with his hand, causing the shadow to fall on that side of the room where the door and the bed were, and I looked, and while I was speaking the shadow of his fingers above the bed seemed to make them point on the wall at something, and underneath the shadow of them the bed appeared to my fancy to be shining in an odd way. Waves of phosphorescence, like that seen in the sky when it is lit by auroral light, floated over it and illuminated the white sheets. I hastily lit my candle again at his, and repeating my "Good night!" went out at the door, an odd, chilly sensation passing down my back as I did so. I found the couch in the dining room, lay down on it, put my plaid over my legs and was soon sound asleep.

During the early hours of morning there must have been a storm, which failed to wake me. As it came nearer, however, I became half conscious, and my thoughts, taking pleasant shapes, made me in my dreams imagine myself at breakfast with Wake, preparatory to a start for a mountain ramble. I saw before me on the clean tablecloth the low glass jar of the inevitable Swiss honey, and my mouth seemed filled with the excellent bread and butter, and I lifted to my lips the cup of cafe au lait, but a sudden jar made me drop the cup, and with a start I awoke. A loud peal of thunder shook the hotel, and I lay on my back, thinking what would happen were the lightning to strike the house. The position of Wake's room immediately over the dining room occurred to me. I ran over in my mind the construction of the place, its verandas and its many windows under the tall roof, which had a great gable.

I wondered if there was a lightning conductor and thought how the chimney was placed, and if the stories of bolts coming down chimneys were true. Pah, what nonsense! Why should I have such ideas? Let me go to sleep again. What did it matter, one thunder storm or more among the Alps, which were always re-echoing such concerts? Then I looked round me, and I saw the door I had entered by slowly opening, and in another moment Wake's face appeared, then his body followed, clothed in his dressing gown.

"Are you here, D.?" he asked.

"Yes, yes. Here I am, quite comfortable," I replied, thinking lazily that he might have suddenly become uneasy about my accommodations. "Here I am, woke up by this beastly thunderstorm. I suppose it woke you?"

He came to me without answering, and by a night light I had kept burning I saw that he looked much disturbed.

"Never mind me now," I said. "I am all right. What it is that has disturbed you?"

He was silent a moment and then said in quick, whispered tones, "I want you to come with me."

"Where to?" I asked.

"Up to my room. I wish to see if you see what I see there. Come at once."

I was feeling very lazy, but I felt that he was in earnest and rolled out of the sofa with a grunt, saying: "All right, old man, anything to please you." Then,

THE AGED MADE STRONG.

A Boon For All Who Are Advanced in Years.

MR. GEO. CRAWFORD NOW THOROUGHLY ENJOYS LIFE.

Paine's Celery Compound Gave Him Health, Strength Appetite and Regular Sleep.

GEORGE CRAWFORD.

No discovery in medicine has ever done half as much good for men and women of advanced years as Paine's Celery Compound. This wonderful medicine of nature gives true life-power to the weak and declining; it makes rich blood, braces the nerves, strengthens the limbs and muscles, gives a healthy appetite, and promotes natural sleep and rest. Mr. Geo. Crawford, of London, Ont., a gentleman 79 years of age, writes thus:—

"After using eight bottles of Paine's Celery Compound I wish to let you know the results. I had a painful fullness and an unnatural heat in the top of my head, and it felt as if something was rolling through it. I had dizziness, I slept little and irregularly, was troubled with restlessness and uneasy dreams, and my appetite was bad. I am now vastly changed by the use of your medicine; I sleep well and relish my food, and my nervous system is greatly renewed. I feel my whole system better. I cannot expect at seventy-nine years of age to be as I was at thirty, but Paine's Celery Compound has done wonders for me."

Waste of Fuel in Smoke.

It has long been claimed that the enormous volumes of black smoke rolling from the chimney tops of factories and mills represents just so much waste of fuel, and that were this element properly managed and utilized the gain would be considerable. Exhaustive experiments recently made under the direction of a body of mechanical engineers disprove this statement. They have ascertained that there is but an infinitesimal quantity of heat producing substance in this waste, being only 51.46 grains of soot in 100 cubic feet of smoke. As only 60 per cent of soot is combustible, it will be seen that the waste is but trifling. It is therefore upon esthetic and sanitary grounds that smoke consumption is demanded by these experts. It might be said in addition that there certainly would be an economy of labor and materials in a smoke consuming device, as the clothing destroyed and the wear and tear of scrubbing are an important item in domestic management.—New York Ledger.

One Sure Method.

There is a story of a medical student before a board of examiners to whom the question was put again and again of how he would produce perspiration in a patient. He proposed all sorts of things, to which one importunate examiner always replied:

"Well, and if that would not do?"

At last the poor young man, driven to his wits' end, exclaimed, "I would send him before this board to be examined, and I warrant that would make him perspire."—Liverpool Mercury.

Some Puritanism Left.

Culture and skepticism and the growth of luxury and refinement are no doubt affecting English character, but to an extent which only seems considerable because the cultivated and skeptical, the refined and luxurious minority exaggerate it. The exaggeration is apt to deceive, because the classes which have outgrown the influence of Puritanism are disproportionately vocal, as they are relatively small, while the classes among whom that influence is still dominant are a virtually voiceless multitude.

But the impartial student of the national character is constantly being confronted with evidence to the fact that the process of so called "emancipation" has reached but the merest fringe of the community, and that the great bulk of middle class Englishmen are still, to all intents and purposes, the true spiritual descendants of a Puritan stock.—"Social England," H. D. Traill.

The Morphine Habit In France.

Dr. Jules Rochard, in The Union Medicale, draws a gloomy picture of the increase of the morphine habit in France and elsewhere. The habit, he finds, becomes incurable at the end of six months of indulgence. The fair sex and the doctors are, in his opinion, most deeply addicted to morphine. He draws an unpleasant comparison between the behavior of each kind of delinquent. Women, he says, delight in declaring how they indulge in this vice and show ornamental hypodermic syringes to their friends. Dr. Notet states that a lady, having broken the needle of her syringe in a remote country village, wounded her skin with scissors and thrust the stump of the needle into the wound, injecting in this manner till a new syringe arrived from Paris.

An Extra Heavy Fish.

Frank Buckland, who was my cousin, told me this story. He belonged to a fishing club on the Thames, which held its meetings once a week, and the chairman for the evening was the one who had caught the heaviest fish. On one occasion a Mr. Jones was the fortunate individual. It was the first time that he had earned the honor, and he was very proud of it, though his prize fish had only been a barbel. One of the members of the club was unable to stay for dinner and asked Jones for the fish to take home with him, as it was not to form part of the menu. He consented, though rather unwillingly, and nothing was heard of the matter till the next meeting, when Buckland chanced to be present.

"A curious thing happened about that barbel which Jones gave me last Saturday," observed its recipient. "It had swallowed a little pike."

"You will not make me swallow that," observed Buckland confidently. "A barbel could not do it. Its conformation forbids it."

"You may theorize as you like," returned the other, "but I must be allowed to believe the evidence of my senses. I saw the jack taken out of the barbel with my own eyes."

"I don't believe it," said Buckland.

The conversation, in fact, was growing very warm, when Jones broke in with: "Don't quarrel, gentlemen. You are both of you right. The fact is, I was so afraid that somebody might catch a heavier fish than I that I poked the little jack down the barbel's throat with my fishing rod to make him weigh more."—James Payn in Contemporary Review.

Easy to Work.

"I told the peddler to carry 75 cents' worth of potatoes into the basement, and when he did it I gave him a $5 bill."

This was Mrs. Fifty-second street.

"He gave me a 25 cent piece and then counted four $1 bills. I don't see now what made him so nervous, poor man. He wet his finger and thumb and lifted up the ends of the four bills over and over until I lost patience and just took the money from his hands and went into the house with it. When I happened to want some more money, I discovered that he had given me only three $1 bills, one of them folded so that both ends were between the ends of the other two. You see, he had counted each of those two ends for a dollar. Think how badly he'll feel when he discovers it! He may even think I suspect he did it purposely to cheat me. When do you think he will return it?"

"When flimflammers have grown honest," replied Mr. Fifty-second street, and his wife wondered what that had to do with it.—New York Sun.

An Old Time Stage Journey.

"When I used to go home, 60 years ago, from Maryland to Ohio," said an octogenarian, "the journey consumed a week. Sometimes I went by way of Cumberland. The rival stagecoaches raced all the way from that town to Wheeling. We nearly starved during those long rides, for although there was a stop every ten miles to exchange horses the time allowed for what was miscalled refreshments was cut down so that one had to choose between hunger and certain indigestion."—New York Sun.

A Wife's Privilege.

Mr. Youngley—Were there no letters for me this morning, Bridget?

Bridget—Sure, I think there was, sir—two or three.

Mr. Youngley—Well, where are they?

Bridget—Sure, I don't think Mrs. Youngley's through reading them yet.—

He Couldn't Help It.

"How do you feel?" asked a sympathetic bystander as a trolley victim opened his eyes.

"Quite run down," whispered the humorist, who even in his agony could not let a chance slip, and the crowd, seeing the humor of the joke, laughed merrily until the ambulance arrived.

STRIKERS STILL FIRM.

THE MEN STILL CARRYING ON AN AGGRESSIVE FIGHT.

Troops are on Duty—Judge Gaynor Favors the Strikers—Talk of Dynamite—People Aroused Against the Militia.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 28.—The troops are still in the city, although everything is fairly quiet. Several cavalry charges and quick details of infantry occurred during the day, but the militia did not fire upon the mobs. Since the Hicks street riot the soldiery have received orders not to fire except in case of absolute necessity, but to arrest anyone who failed to obey commands. The disturbance has spread from King's county to Queen's county, the sheriff of which has called for troops.

Justice Gaynor listened to argument for the Brooklyn Heights Railway Company and the plaintiff in the mandamus proceedings at ten o'clock this morning. The remarks he made from the bench fairly warrant the assumption that the Chief Justice will grant the peremptory writ that is asked for to compel the officers of the company to keep their road in a state of efficient operation.

A CONFERENCE.

Mayor Schieren held a conference at police headquarters at 9 o'clock tonight with Commissioner Wells and Superintendent Campbell. The Mayor declined to discuss the nature of the conference, but it is known that the three presidents of the systems tied up by the strike informed the conferees that all the lines will be in operation tomorrow. They must be well aware that any attempt to do so will cause a great amount of trouble.

Part of the Seventh regiment is under marching orders, and it is understood they are to be moved to Green Point, Erie Basin and other points, where trouble is brewing, tomorrow morning.

The striking street car employees are hanging together well and very few have deserted from the ranks. Some progress was made in getting cars in motion on lines that have not been in operation at all since the strike, and outside of some slight accidents the companies are making a very good showing; but the trouble is not over yet.

INDISCREET ACTIONS.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 28.—It is reported that the strikers are now resorting to incendiarism to aid them in their efforts to cripple the trolley companies. The police came on a number of wire cutters on the corner of North Third street and Bedford avenue and succeeded in arresting all of the gang. The officers were compelled to draw their revolvers to compel the men to submit to arrest. Many of the gang succeeded in making their escape.

Master Workman Connelly, the strike leader, is still of the opinion that the men will win.

DYNAMITE RUMORS.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 28.—Rumors of dynamite were current today. An alleged bomb was found on the trolley tracks at Fulton street and Flatbush ave. A man who failed to give his name carried the bomb to the first precinct station here. The suspicious looking thing was at once sent to Superintendent of Police Campbell who hurried it to the navy yard for the experts there to make an examination. All efforts to explode it failed and the navy officials came to the conclusion that the thing was a hoax.

MILITIA CENSURED.

BROOLYN, Jan. 28.—A body of residents of Hick's street have petitioned the grand jury to investigate the "disgraceful and murderous" conduct of the militia under Major Cochran and their shameful conduct in firing on innocent women and defenceless children. The citizens denounce the conduct of Mayor Schieren in allowing the city's streets to be overrun with "irresponsible and murderous militia men." They characterize the shooting and killing of Carney as a cold blooded murder at the hands of Major Cochran.

LITTLE BROWN DOG AT THE DOOR.

Early and late you watch and wait,
 Little brown dog at the door,
For a quick footfall and a boyish call,
 For your master to come once more,
  Eager to follow, through field and hollow,
   Wherever his feet may roam,
  Content to stray if he leads the way.
   Wherever he is, is home.

But you never hear the whistle clear,
 Nor the sound of the boyish call,
Nor the scamper of feet all bare and fleet
 Down through the shadowy hall.
  Though long you wait at door and gate
   For your playfellow of old,
  With his eyes so blue and his heart so true
   And his hair like the sunshine's gold.

'Tis a year and a day since he went away
 To a country beyond our ken,
And those who go that way, we know,
 Never come back again.
  Still early and late you watch and wait,
   Little brown dog at the door,
  But the voice is still, and watch as you will
   Your master comes no more.

—Dorothy Deane.

TEMPERING DAMASCUS BLADES.

An Old Record Says That Each Operation Cost a Human Life.

Professor von Eulenspiegel and party in delving among the ruins of ancient Tyre unearthed what seems to have been the workshop of an ancient armorer, or "waffenschmidt," with a quantity of sword blades in different stages of manufacture, though badly corroded. A copper cylinder, with a close fitting tap, was found among a pile of dry rotted wood, evidently the remains of an arm chest, the brass nails and copper bands of which had retained their original form. This cylinder contained a parchment inscribed in ancient Syriac characters and in a fair state of preservation. The professor pronounced it an extraordinary discovery—one calculated to cast much light upon the heretofore mysteries of the ancient craft of weapon making, giving in detail the methods followed in making the perfect Damascus blades.

The manner of tempering these blades when intended for a ruler or an officer of high rank was as follows: "Let the high dignitary furnish an Ethiop of fair fame, and let him be bound down, shoulders upward, upon the block of the god Bal-hal, his arms fastened underneath with thongs; a strap of goatskin over his back and wound twice around the block; his feet close together, lashed to a dowel of wood, and his head and neck projecting over and beyond the end of the block. Then let the master workman, having cold hammered the blade to a smooth and thin edge, thrust it into the fire of cedar wood coals, in and out, the while reciting the prayer to the god Bal-hal until the steel be of the color of the red of the rising sun, when he comes up over the desert toward the east, and then with a quick motion pass the same from the heel thereof to the point six times through the most fleshy portion of the slave's back and thighs, when it shall have become the color of the purple of the king. Then, if with one swing and one stroke of the right arm of the master workman it sever the head of the slave from his body and display not nick nor crack along the edge, and the blade may be bent round about the body of a man and break not it shall be accepted as a perfect weapon, sacred to the service of the god Bal-hal, and the owner thereof may thrust it into a scabbard of ass' skin, brazen with brass and hung to a girdle of camels' wool dyed in the royal purple."—Berlin Tageblatt.

These Tobacco Abstainers.

Much complaint has been made of late concerning the outrageous conduct of male, and especially of female, abstainers from tobacco, who force their way into railway smoking carriages, and, in spite of the protests of the other occupants, persistently abstain from smoking during the longest railway journey. It may be asked why the smoker does not quietly continue to smoke, regardless of the presence of the abstainer. Of course this is practicable, but what decent and humane man can take any pleasure in smoking when there is seated opposite to him a middle aged woman, who is perhaps the mother of young and helpless children, but who shamelessly and sniffingly proclaims her vicious hatred of tobacco in every look and movement?

The presence of the abstainer must necessarily cast a gloom over any railway compartment, and the smoker, filled with disgust and pity, loses all interest in his pipe. What is the most painful feature of the whole matter is that the abstainers have actually formed societies for the forcible suppression of smoking, and, not content with their own degradation, are striving to degrade all other men and women to their level. The remedy is, however, plain. If the abstainers have a right to crush smokers by law, smokers have a similar right to crush abstainers.—W. L. Alden in Idler.

A Dissecting Room Triumph.

Every one knows that the nerves in the human body are almost without number, threading every part of the system. The difficulty of dissecting to preserve these nerves can thus be imagined. In a glass case in the museum of Hahnemann college is shown the entire human cerebro-spinal nervous system, every nerve arranged in its proper order and all intact. This remarkable piece of dissection is the work of Dr. R. B. Weaver, one of the college professors. It took him six months, working eight hours a day, to accomplish the work. He received in recognition an official ribbon from the World's fair, where the work was exhibited. Every nerve emanating from the brain and spine has been preserved, and the subject looks like a fishnet in the case. Some of the nerves are quite thick and others as fragile, seemingly, as a spider web.—Philadelphia Record.

On Choosing Pork.

If young and well fed, the lean is easily broken between the fingers and the skin indented if nipped with the nail. The fat is white and waxy and the rind thin and clean. Stale pork is easily detected by the skin looking dark at the top and clammy between the creases of the legs and shoulders and by its strong, tainted smell.—New York Dispatch.

Popping It Gravely.

In putting "the question of questions" a Scotchman took his inamorata to his family burial ground and said, "Would ye lie there, Jeanie, by and by?"

She said she would, and thus the thing was settled.—Harlem Life.

General Francis Nash of Revolutionary army gave a name to Nashville. It was first called Nashborough, which was objected to on account of being hard to spell. Nashton was suggested, but Nashville finally accepted in 1784.

The Columbia river was named after the Boston ship Columbia by her captain, Robert Gray, in 1788. The Spaniards called the stream Rio de St. Roque.

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 29, 1895

THE TOWN'S HEALTH.

Board of Health Meets—Dr. Clarke's Annual Report.

A meeting of the Local Board of Health was held in the clerk's office yesterday afternoon. There were present: Chairman J. Hartley, and Messrs. B. Shortly, Henry Denne, sr., Charles Stevenson, R. Innes and the Medical Health Officer, Dr. Clarke.

The adoption of the reports of the Medical Health Officer and Sanitary Inspector was the principal business done. The reports were as follows:

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Health of the Town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—In presenting my report for the year 1894, I am glad to be able to say that the sanitary record has been a satisfactory one. No serious epidemic has visited us. The date rate of 1893 was 14.1 per thousand, an exceptionally low one. That of 1894 is somewhat higher, being 15.7 per thousand, a rate, however, considerably lower than the standard aimed at by sanitarians. The percentage of infectious disease is about the same as in former years, although the occurrence of some of these cases has a significance to which I shall refer later on. The amount of sanitary work done has been large and the organization better than in any year in which no special sanitary inspector was appointed. There have been fewer complaints, which is usually a good test of the efficiency with which the inspections have been made.

The points to which your officers' attention has been directed are as follows:

SLAUGHTER HOUSES—No complaints have been heard except in reference to Matthews' packing-house, to which I refer by name, as an explanation can thereby be given of the nature of the alleged nuisance. Formerly, although much was carted away, a certain amount of the blood and refuse of the animals found its way into the river, where it became, to a certain extent, offensive, especially when the water was stirred up by passing boats. Of late a desiccating apparatus has been placed in the establishment which dries and reduces all the offal, blood included, to a powder, which is used for fertilizing purposes. The fumes in this drying process are somewhat pungent, and, although carried well above the building, in certain conditions of the atmosphere, float around, and, while not positively detrimental to health, are, to a certain extent, disagreeable. The work has been done, as much as possible, at night, and the Company are putting in a condenser by which the vapors are passed through water and thereby deprived of much of their offensiveness. I have inspected the factory several times personally and received frequent reports from the sanitory inspectors. I can say that the company is doing all in its power to keep down nuisance.

REMOVAL OF GARBAGE AND EXCRETA.—This is now carried out very thoroughly, no hitches having taken place as in the preceding year. The only cause of complaint has been the violations of the regulations as to scavengers avoiding main streets and doing their work at certain hours of the night.

PURITY OF WATER.—I have analysed a large number of samples from wells and find it of greater average purity than in former years, owing, no doubt to the more thorough removal of garbage. The supply from the Water Company has always been good and is now better since the construction of a new pumping station higher up the river. But it cannot be too often repeated that when diphtheria is prevalent all water used for drinking purposes by young children should be boiled.

ICE.—I have received no complaints as to the quality of ice sold in town, nor is there any suspicion of disease caused by impurities in it. I have examined, as requested by the Board, samples from time to time and have never found it unfit for use. The fears expressed that the discharge from the Edison sewer into the lake would destroy its usefulness as a source of ice supply have so far proved unfounded. The expert evidence at the recent arbitration between town and townships which ought to be printed—showed conclusively that the remarkable effects of sunlight, oxidation and sedimentation in purifying water once polluted with sewage.

MILK SUPPLY—Fewer complaints have been made as to watering milk than during the preceding year. There have been no complaints as to its purity and no evidence of disease from its use.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES—Thirty-seven cases of scarlet fever were reported during the year of which four proved fatal. Twenty-six cases of diphtheria occurred with nine deaths. Eighteen cases of typhoid fever occurred with six deaths. There is no doubt that but for the present measure of isolation and disinfection there would have been a wide spread epidemic of scarlet fever and many lives would have been lost. The old impression that scarlet fever is a disease which children ought to have and be done with is rapidly passing away, and it is to be hoped that one of the possibilities of the near future is the total extinction of a disease that has slain thousands. Regarding typhoid fever I wish to call attention to the fact that several severe cases have occurred in the central part of George street. This means a great deal more than double the number of cases occurring here and throughout the town. It means that the central parts of the town are becoming so congested as to be ripe for an epidemic unless something be done to avert it. It means that the necessity for a system of sewerage has become imperative. This Board may be called upon to say whether on sanitary ground sewers should not be constructed on certain streets, and it is to be hoped they will realise their responsibility and speak with no uncertain sound.

The Provincial Board of Health now send down blank forms to be used for the annual report. These contain a series of questions to be answered, and deal very exhaustively with the sanitary condition of municipalities. I have filled one out and will send it to the Provincial Board with this report. I am, gentlemen,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. C. CLARKE, M. D.,
Medical Health Officer.

GEO. I. ROSSEL,
Chief of Sanitary Police.

Dr. Clarke reported that there were two cases of diphtheria in town, one on Park and the other on Elm streets. There are also two cases of scarlet fever over Edgecomb's store.

The statutory meeting of the Board will be held on Monday.

CORBETT KNOCKED OUT.

"It is awful strange to me," writes an old-timer of San Francisco to a Boston paper, "why some paper has not printed the story of how Champion James J. Corbett was once as clearly knocked out as any pugilist ever was in the ring. Of course the majority of people who read about or witness fights fancy that Corbett has never tasted the sweet repose occasioned by a square knock out blow. Still, it is an undeniable fact that he has been laid low and senseless. It happened when Joe McAuliffe was in the height of his glory, and predictions ran high that he would prove a worthy successor of the only John L. Sullivan.

"Corbett was at that time boxing instructor of the Olympic Club in San Francisco, the best amateur club west of the Mississippi. One day McAuliffe's backer met Corbett, who was then locally noted for his matchless cleverness, and asked Jim to go and show Joe a few scientific points and teach him new tricks. Corbett promised to do so and next day he packed his grip and hied him to McAuliffe's training quarters. The men stripped and adjusted the gloves and then the bouts began. Corbett was making what is known in sporting parlance as a 'sucker' of his man, in hitting him and evading him, until the tanner's right hand caught him fairly on the jaw and he went out as cleanly as any pug you ever saw.

"When Corbett came to he went back to 'Frisco with his head buzzing like a swarm of bees. McAuliffe's backer, who was not present at the set-to, meeting Corbett, asked: 'Say, Jim, did you go out there today?' 'Yes,' replied Jim, 'but you can't learn that big slob anything.' Going to the training quarters, he told Joe what Corbett had said. 'Why,' said McAuliffe, 'I knocked that mug completely out.' McAuliffe was hot, and, putting on his hat and coat, he at once proceeded to San Francisco and to the Olympic Club in quest of Corbett. Calling him to one side, the big tanner said, 'I hear you called me a slob. You put on a set of gloves and we'll have it out right now.'

"Mr. Harrison, president of the club, put an end to any hostilities, but McAuliffe and others who saw the episode of Corbett's bout with him will make oath that McAuliffe administered a square and unquestionable knockout to the present champion of America."

The only scientific and practical Electric Belt made for general use, having batteries that generate a strong current of Electricity that is under perfect control and can be applied to any part of the body, for the cure of

Nervous Diseases

Thousands of people suffer from a variety of Nervous Diseases, such as Seminal Weakness, Impotency, Lost Manhood, etc., that the old modes of treatment fail to cure. There is a loss of nerve force or power that cannot be restored by any medical treatment, and any doctor who would try to accomplish this by any kind of drugs is pursuing a dangerous practice. Properly treated, these diseases can be

Positively Cured

Electricity, as applied by the Owen Electric Belt and Suspensory, will most assuredly do so. It is the only known power that will supply what is lacking, namely nerve force or power, impart tone and vigor to the organs and arouse to healthy action the whole nervous system. It will most assuredly cure, Postponed.

By request it is stated that the ball which was to have taken place at Young's Point under the auspices of the baseball club has been postponed until the evening of February 4th.

Broke His Arm.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner while skating on the rink at the Millbrook carnival on Friday night fell and broke his left arm near the wrist. The injured limb has been reset and Mr. Kenner now carries it in a sling. The accident will incapacitate him from his teaching duties for a number of days.

An Open Meeting.

The open meeting of the Fortnightly Club last night was largely attended and was one of the most interesting sessions of the club held for some time. The subject was "Ruskin,"—paper by Mr. Wm. H. Murray; speakers, Rev. Herbert Symonds, Mr. Jas. Hall and others.

Refused Grants.

The County Council has refused the grants asked for by the Agricultural Societies of East and West Peterborough. The plank of economy which is conspicuous in the platforms of corporations both private and public these days, seems to be sticking out more prominently than usual this year.

Dr. Sutherland Very Low.

Rev. Dr. D. G. Sutherland is in a very critical condition. He has been confined to his bed for the past three weeks, and last evening his family had little hopes of his recovery. He is somewhat better today.—Toronto Star, Jan. 28. Dr. Sutherland is well-known in Peterborough. His many warm friends here will be pained to learn of his serious illness.

Echoes of the Storm.

The effects of the storm proved more serious to the railways than was at first anticipated. The G.T.R. suffered particularly. Yesterday trains on this line were running something more like on time. The C. P. R. trains were running as usual. The high winds have subsided, and no more trouble is feared, as the snow has become packed and not so liable to drift.

A Word to the Wise.

Many complaints have been received at this office of boys and others who make a habit of stealing the papers delivered at citizens' doors in the morning. This kind of petty thieving is very annoying and creates a great deal of trouble. Newspaper thieves were dealt very severely with by the Police Magistrate in Toronto. THE TIMES will prosecute the first individual caught stealing the papers delivered by the route boys in the mornings.

Port Perry Races.

Mr. William Sherin, trainer, left yesterday for Port Perry taking "Sandy B" owned by Mr. Ed. Brown, "Jessie Wilkes," owned by Mr. Murray, of Toronto, and "Hasty B," owned by Mr. H. LeBrun. The animals were in excellent condition, and will doubtless carry off prizes. There are four racing events scheduled at Port Perry with prizes amounting to $125 in each. Some of the local sports intend leaving tomorrow morning. Mr. Sherin has telephoned that the track is in excellent condition.

RETIRED FROM SERVICE.

Lieut.-Col. Boulton of Cobourg Resigns His Commission.

It is somewhat strange to have to chronicle the retirement of an officer who has spent over half a century in the Canadian militia but such a thing was done when the commander of the Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons, Cobourg, Lieut.-Col. D'Arcy Boulton, handed in his resignation after 57 years service.

The resignation of Lieut.-Col. Samuel Lazier, of the 15th Battalion, Belleville, has been accepted and he has been permitted to retire retaining rank. The order of June 1 dismissing him was cancelled. Major and Brevet Lieut.-Col. Lawrence H. Henderson has been appointed in his place.

Lieut.-Col. Boulton is well known in Peterborough and has a host of friends here.

Lieut.-Col. Thomas Bogg, of the 16th battalion, Picton, has resigned, retaining rank. Major Alexander MacDonnell succeeds to the position.

The resignation of Lieut. William C. C. Chadwick, of the Royal Grenadiers, is accepted.

The Fire Brigade Band will meet tonight. A full attendance is requested.

The Liberals of East Durham will hold a convention in Port Hope Feb. 7, to select a candidate for the Dominion election.

The Epworth League of Christian Endeavor of the George street Methodist church, will hold an Orange Social this evening.

The members of the Rugby Minstrel combination are requested to meet tonight in Mr. Jackson's rooms on Aylmer street at 7 instead of 8.30 as previously announced.

Reports from all over Ontario, the Western and Northwest States indicate that Friday night's storm was the severest for years. From four inches to two feet of snow fell, and business and traffic were generally impeded. Trains were delayed and all tell of a severe struggle. The snow was accompanied by a high wind.

The train going north did not leave the station here until 9 o'clock, instead of 7.15 Saturday. She had two engines attached. The local from Peterborough, due here at eight, did not arrive until nearly nine, and had two engines which were completely enveloped with snow. In coming in, the train went through a snow drift that broke the cab windows, smashed the glass water guage and for a moment the engineer hardly knew where he was.—Port Hope Guide.

The Dundas Banner says: For a long-lived family, the children of the late William Binkley certainly have a record. There were ten in the family, four of whom have died. The six remaining are Mrs. Thomas, Dundas, aged 86; Mrs. Best, Walpole township, Haldimand, aged 82; Mrs. Isaac Smith, Rockview, aged 80; Elijah Binkley, Millgrove, aged 75; Mrs. Parkhill, Orillia, aged 73, and Henry Binkley, Dundas, aged 70. Of those who died, Samuel was over 70. The father died aged 67, and Mrs. Binkley at the age of 73. Very few families have six members living whose aggregate ages amount to 466 years.

MARKET FEES.

The County Council Will Amend the By-Law—Important Changes.

The market bylaws of the town met with objection on the part of the Special Committee of the County Council, and some amendments will be made. The report of this committee was as follows:

Your special committee appointed to consider the market bylaws of the town of Peterborough beg leave to report as follows:

1. Your committee met a special committee of the Town Council who discussed with us objections to the present bylaws and who asked us to place in writing any reasonable amendments which we would consider fair and desirable.

2. Your committee consider that in many respects the town bylaw is not in itself over exacting, but that in the interpretation thereof the town officers overconstrue the bylaw to their own advantage. For instance, a farmer brings in a load of say 20 hogs. For weighing this load, which only requires one draft, the market clerk taxes him 5c each hog or $1 for the load. In order to obviate the state of things your committee would recommend that section 16 of town bylaw, No. 434, be amended as follows, viz:

For each load of hay, including market fees	$ 15
For each load of straw, including market fees	10
For each head of cattle, horses, etc	10
For all other drafts up to 5 lbs	01
For all other drafts over 5 lbs up to 20 lbs	02
For all other drafts over 20 lbs up to 100 lbs	03
For all other drafts over 100 lbs	10

3. Your Committee would also recommend that the said bylaw be amended so as to make no charge for a market toll on each waggon, sleigh, etc., with oats, barley or peas for sale.

4. Your Committee would recommend that a copy of this report be sent to the town council.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAS. MIDDLETON,
Chairman.

County Council Chambers,
Peterborough, January 26th, 1894.

The report was adopted.

HOCKEY AND CURLING.

The Volts Win a Match in the Town League Series.

On the rink last night the Junior Peterboroughs played a match with the First Volts in the town league series. The latter won by a score of seven goals to six. The "strong" player of the Junior Peterboroughs is "Sam" Jones. His vigorous playing last night was vociferously applauded by the spectators and was the admiration of the ladies. The boys are going to give Mr. Jones a supper at the "Palace" some night this week. The Senior Peterboroughs are anxious to replace their weak spot with this brilliant hockeyist.

The Peterborough Seniors did not go to Lindsay last night as was arranged. A telegram from that place, stating that the Lindsay club was not in trim to give the Peterboroughs a battle worthy of their steel, was received. In consequence the match was declared cancelled.

LINDSAY, Jan. 28.—A capital game of hockey was played in the skating rink on Saturday afternoon, between U. C. College Hockey Club and Lindsay, resulting in favor of U. C. College by a score of 6 to 3.

A CAB WRECKED.

Horses Take Fright and Dash Into a Telegraph Pole.

A cab driver for Mosley's livery was driving a team attached to one of the best cabs in the stable last night, when the horses took fright and ran away.

The driver was just leaving the stables on Charlotte street, to drive to the 11.40 C.P.R. train. The horses dashed down the street at a furious rate of speed, and brought up with terrible force against a telegraph pole in front of the Balmoral hotel. The cab was completely wrecked, the damage amounting to over a hundred dollars. The driver and the horses escaped injury.

An organizer wanted for every county.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread-board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 161 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

Agents wanted in every town and county in the Dominion. $100 to $200 a month easily made. For further particulars address

REMEDIAL LEGISLATION.

PRIVY COUNCIL DECIDES THAT THE DOMINION GOVERNMENT CAN GRANT IT

To Manitoba Catholics—Minority Appeal Can Now Be Heard—Manitoba Ministers Say They Will Never Recognize Separate Schools.

Special Cable to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has handed out its decision in respect to the Manitoba School case. It allows the appeal, without costs.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The decision was delivered this morning. There were present the Lord Chancellor Baron Herschell, who presided, Lords Watson and MacNaghten, Lords of Appeal, and Lord Shand.

As member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, Lord Chancellor Herschell, delivered the judgment which comprises 24 printed pages. The document begins by reciting the two acts of the legislature of Manitoba passed in 1890, relating to education and summarizes the litigation arising from these acts. Continuing the judgment declares that section 22 of the Manitoba Act deals with the same subject matter as section ninety-three of the British North America Act. The second sub-section of section 93, the decision says, may therefore be disregarded, as it manifestly applies only to Ontario and Quebec. It is section 22 of the Manitoba Act which has to be concurred in in the present case.

Their Lordships do not think that the second and third sub-sections thereof are only intended to enforce the prohibition contained in the first section. Bearing in mind the conditions of 1870, it does not appear an extravagant notion that in creating a legislature for the province, with limited powers, it should have been thought expedient in case either the Catholics or Protestants became predominant to give the Dominion power to legislate upon matters of education in order to protect the Protestant or Catholic minority.

Under the Acts of 1890 Catholic schools cannot receive state aid, but must depend for their support entirely upon the contributions of Catholics while the taxes from the collection of which state aid is granted to schools as provided by the statutes fall upon the Catholic and the Protestant alike. Moreover, while the Catholic inhabitants remain liable to local assessment for the maintenance of schools, the proceeds of that assessment is no longer destined to support Catholic schools.

In view of this condition, it is impossible to say that the rights and privileges of the Catholic minority and their relation to the situation which existed prior to 1890 have not been affected. It is true that the religious exercises prescribed for the Public schools are not distinctively Protestant, for they are non sectarian; but this is not to the purpose. As a matter of fact, the objection of Catholics to the schools, which alone are receiving state aid under the Act of 1890, is conscientious and deeply rooted. There were acute differences of opinions between Catholics and Protestants on the educational questions prior to 1870. There is no doubt as to what the points of difference were, and it is in the light of these that section 22 of the Manitoba Acts of 1870 must be construed.

Their Lordships further decide that the Governor-General in-Council has the power to make the declarations or remedial orders asked for, but the particular course to be pursued must be determined by the authorities to which the matter has been committed by statute.

It is not for this tribunal to intimate, their Lordships continue, the precise steps to be taken, but their general character is sufficiently defined by the third subsection of section 22 of the Manitoba Act.

Doubtless the system of education embodied in the acts of 1890 commends itself to a great majority of the inhabitants of the province, but all legitimate ground of complaint would be removed if that system were supplemented by provisions, removing the grievance upon which this appeal was founded. Their Lordships advise her Majesty that the questions submitted should be answered in the manner indicated by the foregoing views.

CONMEE DEFEATS KING.

THE MAJORITY WILL BE AT LEAST ONE HUNDRED.

Forty Ahead and the Rainy River District Yet to Hear from—He is Sure of a Majority in that District.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—Conmeé (Liberal) elected in West Algoma by 60 majority with Rainy River to hear from, which will give Conmee a majority. The Liberal's victory is a sweeping one and King's defeat crushing.

Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Jan. 29.—A new political deal is likely to be consummated tomorrow whereby Whiteway is to resume the Premiership. A new allocation of offices is being made. Writs have also been issued for bye-elections.

Four men were killed at the Port au Prince asbestos mine on the west coast today by a landslide.

A Mishap to the Premier.

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 28.—The cab which conveyed Sir Mackenzie Bowell to the station this morning upset in a drift. Sir Mackenzie's head was slightly cut with the glass.

Picking up Diamonds in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The Sun says: For some days there have been rumors of diamond robberies in Maiden Lane by means of fraudulent memorandum orders, and it is said the swindler got away with diamonds to the amount of $25,000. Ten or twelve houses have lost $2,000, and one of the losers says the swindler's name is Donelson.

A Needle Extracted.

BATH, N. Y., Jan 29.—Dr. Robbins extracted a needle from the leg of Mrs. Durham recently. Mrs. Durham swallowed the needle 30 years ago and it has been roaming about in her body ever since. Sometimes she felt it in her toe, sometimes in her arms, again under her left shoulder. Last week Mrs. Durham felt excruciating pains just below her left knee. Dr. Robbins cut into the muscle and extracted the needle, which was as bright as on the day it was swallowed.

SIX MEN DEAD.

A Terrible Boiler Explosion in a Brewery Kills Six and Injuries Seven Men—Awful Calamity in Illinois.

MENDOTA, Ill., Jan. 29.—A terrible explosion shook this city and the surrounding country for miles. Six dead and seven injured are the known victims of the calamity. The explosion was in the brewery of C. Henning & Sons.

The names of the known dead are: Christian Seifert, foreman; David Cheer, engineer; David Wells, fireman; Adam Bercheidt, laborer; J. Kennedy, well borer, of Chicago.

The injured, so far as known, are:—Henry Pearl, scalded and leg broken; Harry Barmore, Rising City, Neb., scalded; J. Love, arm broken; C. Reed, head bruised; H. Freeman, G. Parker, S. McCloud.

The whole of the center of the large structure was wrecked and the work of searching for more victims is hampered by the furious blizzard which is raging. There is also danger to the searchers from a big smoke stack, which is expected to fall any minute. The loss to the property is $80,000.

HIS SUDDEN END.

A Brockville Citizen Expires While Warming Himself.

Special to the Times.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 29.—An old and highly respected resident of this town, Turner Koyle, was found dead early this morning sitting in a chair in the dining room beside a radiator, clothed only in a dressing gown.

Not feeling well it is supposed he came down stairs during the night to warm himself without awakening members of the family and died alone. Heart disease was the cause.

He was 70 years old, leaves a widow and four children, two of whom are doctors.

The Brockville and Westport railway is still suffering from effects of the storm. No train has reached Brockville from Westport since Saturday. Later accounts state express embedded in snow bank two miles from Lyn.

THE STRIKE AT AN END.

MEN CAPITULATE UNCONDITIONALLY TO THE COMPANIES.

They Will Not be Taken Back in a Body But Individually—Two Men Shot by Policemen in Street Encounters—To Attack the Charter.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 29.—Beaten at every point, except the one doubtful victory in the courts, the strikers practically surrendered to the trolley railway companies this afternoon, only to be told that their places are to be filled. President Norton of the Atlantic avenue system contemptuously spurned the offer of his old men to return and threw their formal letter in the waste basket. President Lewis of the Brooklyn Heights Company sent a formal reply, in which he courteously informed his old men that he would take them back as individuals upon his own terms as long as he had vacancies to fill. Of the 7,000 men who went out on strike on January 14th, there are places left for less than one-third. It is not at all certain tonight that these will accept places. Strike leader Connolly declares that the strike is not over by any means, and that the men tendered their services in order to remove all questions of fact as to the ability of the roads to obtain men and thus furnish a new basis upon which to apply for a peremptory mandamus against the companies. The men say they have funds and will fight the companies in court and by boycott till they give in. The strike is practically over, as the companies have gradually resumed the operations of their lines.

TWO MEN WERE SHOT

by policemen in different encounters with the mobs today. One man is a critical condition, the other is less seriously wounded. Acts of violence were less frequent today than during the days of last week but they indicate that the safety of the public is far from being established. Early in the day the troops of the 1st Brigade began leaving for their homes. The strike has lasted 15 days. It cost the railroads half a million dollars. The troops have cost the city $189,000. The strikers have lost $9,000 in wages and the roads in loss of revenue $228,000 The general paralysis of business has amounted to a loss of many millions to the general public. Two lives have been sacrificed and many people injured. At eight o'clock this evening the police shot their second man. Today a car of the Gates Avenue line left Ridgewood depot and got as far as Hamburg avenue, where it was assailed by a mob. Two men who had been riding on the rear platform threw the non-union conductor down and kicked and struck him. The police raised clubs but the crowd was too much for them. They finally drew their revolvers and 16 shots were fired by them. The non-union motorman of the car was hit in the leg by a bullet aimed at his assailant.

THE COMPANIES REPLY.

At 7 o'clock tonight President Lewis replied to Master Workman Connolly saying, the company will not in any case discharge any of its present employees to make room for others, but will be glad to accept the services of as many of its old employees as are needed to fill vacancies in its service. Men desiring employment may make application at any of our depots. Such applications will be sent immediately to the company's general office where they will be considered in the order in which they are made.

TO ATTACK THE CHARTER.

The strikers, under the advice of counsel, have decided to move, before the Attorney General, for forfeiture of the charter of corporation, known as the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company. This is the company against whose officers Justice Gaynor issued the writ of mandamus.

THE DOG CAME BACK.

Relic of the Chicora—The Only Living Thing Saved.

Special to the Times.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 28.—When the steamer Chicora went out of St. Joseph on her last trip there was a dog aboard. On Saturday the dog was brought into the city alive. The return of the animal indicates that the Chicora was within a half mile of the shore Tuesday night, the second night out. The place where the dog came ashore, Pottowattamee Park, is eight miles north of Benton Harbor. Many are inclined to think the vessel must have sunk not far from that point.

HIS HEAD SLICED OPEN.

CUT IN TWO BY A RIP-SAW AND THE MAN LIVES.

A Remarkable Case—The Pieces Were Clapped Together and the Victim Enjoys Life as of Yore Retaining His Mental Faculties and Control of Limbs.

Special to the Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 28.—The most peculiar and interesting case ever sent to this city is that of Horatio Stetson, an engineer in Stetson & Post's mill, whose head was cut half in two yesterday by a rip-saw. Stetson stooped under a table to fix a belt, and ran his head against the saw. His head was cut across the top just in front of the ears. The saw went down into the brain fully three inches, the point of exit on either side of the head being on a level with the top of the ears.

HEAD CUT IN TWO.

Stetson crawled out from under the table and was grabbed by his brother who clapped the two pieces of his head together. The brother says that "blood and brains were coming from his head, which looked as if it were falling apart."

The wounded man was hurried to the hospital, and while on his way there was possessed with a sort of mania of swinging his right arm. It could not be held. He was speechless but understood everything said to him. When he was placed on the operating table it was thought that he was dying, for the longtitudinal sinews could not be stopped from bleeding. He went through the trephining operation, however, and was put to bed.

GETTING ALONG NICELY.

Toward night partial paralysis of his arms and legs set in, but he regained the power of speech and called for his mother. At that time he was not suffering pain. During the night he was restless, but toward dawn he took a bowl of beef tea. From this time on he became stronger, the power of motion of his legs and arms came back to him, and his mind was perfectly clear He could talk, but with great difficulty. His temperature was normal, and his pulse remained all day and up to 8 o'clock at night in the condition of a perfectly well man, and there was no inflammation in the wound, and at last accounts there was no indication of fever setting in.

Many physicians do not wonder at his being alive, but they are mystified at his being possessed of all his mental faculties and retaining the control of his limbs, having a good appetite and being perfectly normal in all other conditions of his body.

MINISTERS AT GALT

Address a Monster Mass Meeting of South Waterloo People.

Special to the Times.

GALT, Ont., Jan. 29.—The Conservative association of South Waterloo held their convention this afternoon in Preston, President Geo. Pattinson, of Preston, in the chair. A resolution of condolence was passed to Lady Thompson, also a resolution to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, expressing confidence in him as a leader. Mr. Geo. Clare, of Preston, received the unanimous nomination of the convention as a candidate in the next general election. The attendance was the largest in the history of the Conservative party in this riding. In the evening a monster mass meeting was held in the Town hall, Galt, addressed by the Hon. G. E. Foster, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. J. C. Patterson, Hon. J. Costigan, Hon. Clarke Wallace and Hon. Dr. Montague.

A CURVE TO DEATH.

WRECK OF A VANDALIA TRAIN GOING AT FULL SPEED.

Over Thirty Passengers Hurt—Two Persons Were Almost Instantly Killed—Twelve Were Perhaps Fatally Injured—Another Railway Disaster.

Special to the Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29.—Vandalia train No. 2, due here at 2.35 this afternoon was wrecked at Cateville, 28 miles out. Two persons were killed and about twelve injured. The dead are: John W. Norton, of St. Louis, theatrical lessee and manager and Mrs. W. S. Towers, of Carthage, Mo.

The train was running full speed and was about ten minutes late. It had just passed the town and was rounding a curve when the track spread.

The private car of President W. R. McKeene, which was in the rear, jumped the track. This was followed by the parlor and then the ladies' car. All went off the track, the two rear cars going down the embankment ten feet before the train could be stopped. The smoker left the track, but did not go over. The rear two cars caught fire, but were extinguished, when the work of rescue began. Mr. Norton died soon after being taken from the car.

In his pocket were found letters giving his name and showing that he had come from St. Louis. He was carried to a school house unconscious and lived about twenty minutes. Mrs. Towers died while being taken to the school house. The injured were carried up the embankment to houses alongside the track, and soon the towns-people and physicians gathered to give assistance.

The Death Chair.

SING SING, N.Y., Jan. 29.—The murderer Hampton was electrocuted this forenoon. The current was turned on at 11.15. After 57 seconds he was pronounced dead. Everything worked successfully. Hampton, who was a colored man, murdered Mrs. Annette Ahrens, a widow of over 70 years of age, in her rooms at No. 42 West 29th street, New York city, on the night of Dec. 29, 1892. Hampton and his wife had lived with Mrs. Ahrens, but were turned out by her because she claimed they had robbed her of $65. The murder was done partly out of revenge and partly for plunder.

Rough on the Atlantic Coast.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 28.—The storm of Saturday was very severe on this coast. It is thought the Portland schooner E. F. Williard is lost. She was driven ashore on the rock at Cape Small Point. It is believed the crew are safe, as Capt. Frank York, who was in command, has been heard from.

Snow in Europe.

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Heavy snowstorms are general throughout Great Britain and the west of Europe. Five inches of snow has fallen at Nice and the storm continues.

A Handsome Lady's Opinion

My head of hair, as you may observe, is perfect. Yours, if not, may become so by using Tully's Chemical Hair Grower. It will do just what is represented—it makes the hair grow when coming out; it cleanses the scalp of dandruff; restores the color when turning grey; prevents baldness, and is an elegant dressing, and the price is reasonable, 50c. a bottle. I am sure that there is no better preparation. Sold only at

PETERBOROUGH, JANUARY 30 1895.

GROWING IN POPULARITY.

THE SATURDAY TIMES is growing in popularity and its appearance is eagerly looked for. Last week the subscriptions poured in so rapidly from our agents canvassing the country villages, that a SIX THOUSAND edition was necessary. Early in the day the street sales became so large that it was necessary to start the presses again. The consequence was that instead of a six thousand edition as was announced for the benefit of our advertisers, this edition of THE SATURDAY TIMES was only a few hundred copies short of a TEN THOUSAND EDITION. The special features are selling the paper. In this connection the public will understand that we have only commenced to push THE SATURDAY TIMES to the front and that each edition will be an improvement on the preceding one. This week the special features will be particularly interesting—something new in the line of local hits. The edition will be fully 8,000. This is a pointer for advertisers who will do well to watch us as we progress and extend. Look out for the announcement of what the next issue of THE SATURDAY TIMES will contain.

Good morning!

THE SATURDAY TIMES is away ahead in point of circulation. Our next issue will consist of eight thousand copies, and even this number is likely to be largely increased in the near future. Advertisers who want business should use our columns.

It might not be possible to find a more temperate body of men than the locomotive engineers. Of course temperate habits are required on all railroads, but there are many engineers who, though they may never have taken any pledge, are more than temperate—they are teetotalers from personal choice.

In referring to the vacancy at the head of the Police force, the Hamilton Herald says: "Surely there is one among the 50,000 people of Hamilton who is qualified to be a chief of police!" Hamilton may follow Peterborough's example and employ a stranger and a non-resident, and then be poorly suited.

The plea that Canada should take in Newfoundland to prevent the United States obtaining the island that commands the entrance to the St. Lawrence is shattered by the knowledge that Great Britain's interests will never permit her to surrender such an important possession, to the advantages of which England is fully alive.

Sir Roger Tichborne has been discovered again in Australia. This time he is a lunatic, named William Creswell, in the asylum at Paramatta. Jean Line, who figured in the trial, tells a story of Tichborne's sailing from Rio Janiero in 1854 on the ship Bella for New York, of the ship's being stolen by captain and crew, changed in appearance, called the Osprey, and taken to Australia, where she was sold. He identifies Creswell as the lost baronet. On the other hand, a Catholic priest asserts that Tichborne died in an asylum for the improvident at Geelong in 1853.

THE THREE SONS.

A DRAMA IN THREE ACTS.

Translated from Le Figaro of Paris, for THE TIMES.

BY JAMES PENNY.

"You cannot, without insulting the memory of her who reposes in eternal sleep within a few steps of us, I say, you cannot believe yourself the offspring of a a materal fault. Whilst, as for me—let a half word, an allusion suffice—save me and save yourselves those researches so full of poignant anguish and regret. I accept the situation sad though it be.

"I was born out of France, when our father Monsieur de Guebrianges was ambassador at St. Petersburg. My mother was beautiful and attractive—was twenty-nine—highly intelligent, spirituelle—was the ambassadress Sophie, as she was generally called—in fine, she intended to, designate me as the stained one, I feel it a certainty past contradiction, and, oh! I pray that my mother may pardon me for evoking into the light of day that vital error of her otherwise blameless life.

"She desired to humbly avow her youthful fault before leaving this world.

"I carry out her latest, yes her very latest, wish in speaking as I have done.

"SHE WAS MY MOTHER.

And now I await your decision as to what step shall be taken in respect to our own future intercourse and line of conduct."

The eldest and the youngest brothers the Marquis and the Viscount, had, during this impassioned speech gradually approached each other both in person and in sentiment.

The Marquis—propriety of birth counts for something nay, counts for much, very much, in La Belle France as well as in Old England—the Marquis stretched his figure to its full height and said in tones studiously cold and cautious, "Monsieur Rene, I and my brother sincerely thank you for your frankness. For us, and not for us alone, for the public, you will remain Count de Guebrianges. Only, and mark my words, only, we cannot any longer inhabit the same mansion together.

"WHEN SHALL YOU SET OUT."

ACT THE THIRD.

In intense astonishment and surprise the Count said.

"But, But, But, Oh! after the funeral, after the obsequies of my dear mother."

Simply saluting one another by a cool shake of the head, without another word, without another look, all three passed into the chamber of death and bent their heads and their knees by the side of the corpse of their mother, but as promptly sprang up and drew back in the utmost terror.

La Marquise, their late mother, moved. Visibly she was not yet dead.

She had ostensibly died, but in reality had only fainted and became unconscious from extreme weakness when they had last left the chamber.

Now as her three sons stood rigid as statues with their dilated eyeballs riveted upon her pallid features, she fairly raised herself upon one elbow and almost instantly fell back upon the pillow, dead, dead without a shadow of doubt, having first articulated in clear although extremely tremulous tones.

"It was the Marquis, I meant to say.

"It was John, my first born, who was the son of another father.

"OH! GOD!——G-O-D!"

Immagination must paint the scene that followed this avowal, and imagination alone could pourtray the chagrin, the crest fallen appearance of the arrogant Marquis at this astounding revelation.

No pen could limn even the faintest outlines of the tableau.

Pride shall have a fall! This fall was immense and notwithstanding all the care taken by the family rumor caught an inkling of the facts and blazoned them forth with all the embellishments of her thousand tongues, so that the alliance of the Soi-disant Marquis was rejected by several of those who pride themselves in the purity of their blue blood, and who had formerly sought and rejoiced in his acquaintance.

(The end.)

India is getting nearer to England year by year. New and faster steamers have been put upon the P & O. line and letters are now delivered in London 12 days after their departure from Bombay. The mail, of course, travels across the continent by rail to Brindisi, a route which would not be available for the transportation of troops in the event of war. The troops could be carried from Great Britain to India, it is believed in 18 days.

Prof. R. T. MacDougal of the Minnesota University is going to make a study of the influence of electricity upon growing plants. Currents of electricity from the weakest (registered by a galvanometer) to the full strength of the city electric light current will be sent through the earth in which plants are growing, and the effects will be minutely observed. Prof. MacDougal is merely doing in a modern way what has been attempted from time to time for a century.

La Grippe has taken a hold on New York city, and it is probable that the entire country will have to undergo another epidemic. Now is a good time to be especially careful in avoiding excesses in eating and drinking and to guard against draughts of cold air in the office or home. One of the worst things a person can do is to take a bath and go out into the cold air before the natural oils have got to working through the pores. If any reader feels that he really must bathe, let him bathe at night and at once jump into a warm bed. Those who have had "the grip" once don't want it again, but they will be very apt to get it unless they are very careful indeed. If there is a weak spot in a person's anatomical machinery "the grip" will find it, and for this reason it is particularly dangerous to old people.

CORBETT KNOCKED OUT.

"It is awful strange to me," writes an old-timer of San Francisco to a Boston paper, "why some paper has not printed the story of how Champion James J. Corbett was once as clearly knocked out as any pugilist ever was in the ring. Of course the majority of people who read about or witness fights fancy that Corbett has never tasted the sweet repose occasioned by a square knock out blow. Still, it is an undeniable fact that he has been laid low and senseless. It happened when Joe McAuliffe was in the height of his glory, and predictions ran high that he would prove a worthy successor of the only John L. Sullivan.

"Corbett was at that time boxing instructor of the Olympic Club in San Francisco, the best amateur club west of the Mississippi. One day McAuliffe's backer met Corbett, who was then locally noted for his matchless cleverness, and asked Jim to go and show Joe a few scientific points and teach him new tricks. Corbett promised to do so and next day he packed his grip and hied him to McAuliffe's training quarters. The men stripped and adjusted the gloves and then the bouts began. Corbett was making what is known in sporting parlance as a 'sucker' of his man, in hitting him and evading him, until the tanner's right hand caught him fairly on the jaw and he went out as cleanly as any pug you ever saw.

"When Corbett came to he went back to 'Frisco with his head buzzing like a swarm of bees. McAuliffe's backer, who was not present at the set-to, meeting Corbett, asked: 'Say, Jim, did you go out there today?' 'Yes,' replied Jim, 'but you can't learn that big slob anything.' Going to the training quarters, he told Joe what Corbett had said. 'Why,' said McAuliffe, 'I knocked that mug completely out.' McAuliffe was hot, and, putting on his hat and coat, he at once proceeded to San Francisco and to the Olympic Club in quest of Corbett. Calling him to one side, the big tanner said, 'I hear you called me a slob. You put on a set of gloves and we'll have it out right now.'

"Mr. Harrison, president of the club, put an end to any hostilities, but McAuliffe and others who saw the episode of Corbett's bout with him will make oath that McAuliffe administered a square and unquestionable knockout to the present champion of America."

Sioux Indians in North Dakota have a court of their own, in which three judges dispense justice. They hold court in a large tepee emblazoned with many colored pictures of horses, owls and eagles. Big Mane, Black Elk and Sam White Bird are the judges. They wear store clothes, and Judge Mane sports a watch and chain. They are at liberty to call court for any hour of the day they see fit. When a session of court is called, the Indian agent sends out Indian policemen to notify witnesses to appear in court at the appointed time. If, when court meets, it is found that some of the witnesses summoned have failed to put in an appearance, Indian police are again sent out, and they never return without bringing in the person or persons they were sent after. The judges themselves examine the witnesses, displaying considerable ingenuity in drawing from the reluctant and bashful witness his or her testimony.

When the examination has been completed, the tent is cleared, and the judges consult until they arrive at a decision. All offenses against common law as well as tribal laws, sun, scalp or war dances and the practicing of medicine men come before them for adjudication. A record of each case is carefully kept after the following fashion: "Chasing Crane was arrested by police for stealing Solomon Yellow Hawk's wife. Was sent up for 30 days at hard labor."

Bull Talker had a row with Mrs. White Deer, and she gave him an unmerciful drubbing. He was exceedingly crestfallen at being whipped by a woman, but his wife was not to be trifled with and was not disposed to see her husband imposed upon and thrashed by Mrs. White Deer, so she had the amazon arrested on the charge of "fighting and beating my husband." The trial was held in due time, the charges were sustained, and Mrs. White Deer was required to serve ten days in the agency jail.—New York Advertiser.

ON A CHERRY STONE.

A Talented Convict Carves There His Petition For a Pardon.

Geza Berger, the actor and newspaper man, has a picture in calligraphy that has a remarkable history. It is in size 30 by 42 inches and is the work of Joseph Loew, the most noted counterfeiter that the Austrian government ever knew.

When an application is made for a pardon in Austria, the red tape policy of that country compels the applicant to address the emperor with all his titles. Emperor Ferdinand had about 40 titles. Loew engraved all of these names, together with his petition for a pardon, on a cherry stone.

The letters were so fine that it required the aid of a powerful microscope to decipher them. One day, when the emperor visited the prison, Loew in person presented a cherry stone to the emperor and told him what it contained. The emperor made an examination and was so amazed at the work that he gave him an unconditional pardon. Not only did he pardon him, but gave him a position as a detective to trail down counterfeiters. Loew was a well informed man in all the arts and rascalities of counterfeiters, and in less than two years after his pardon he ran to the earth almost every counterfeiter in Austria and died a few years ago covered with detective honors. The picture, although made 50 years ago, is in a remarkable state of preservation.—Chicago Times.

Egypt's Cotton Crop.

Eight or ten years ago Egypt was insolvent. Today she is bristling with prosperity. The position of the fellaheen is constantly improving. The corvee is abolished, and the people have no more compulsory labor, except to keep the Nile within bounds at high flood, for which they are paid. The land taxes are gradually being reduced, and extortion and corruption seem to have been stamped out. She sells cereals enough to pay for the imported articles necessary to maintain her simple standard of life. I can't help thinking that cotton—or the money it produces—has played a part of no small importance in the work of administration that has brought all these blessings.

A birdseye view of the area of cotton cultivation would give the outline of a half opened fan. From the point of the delta near Cairo it stretches nearly to Port Said on the northeast and beyond Alexandria on the northwest, this simile being helped by the great arc curving into the Mediterranean, the narrow strip devoted to cotton along the Nile from Cairo, 100 miles southward, forming the handle. This area is veined with innumerable canals, branching from the Rosetta and Damietta arms of the Nile, which distribute the vitalizing waters.—North American Review.

How Samson Would Fight Corbett.

Some one in the crowd asked Strong Man Samson if he had ever had a setto with a boxer.

"I never have," said the athlete, "but I thought one time of challenging Corbett, and for three months I hatched a theory of attack and defense. My family objected to my engaging in any such contest, and I abandoned the idea. My idea of conquering the champion pugilist was to reverse the tactics of all fighters, which is to keep out of reach of their opponent's arm, and to keep so close to him in the battle as to render it impossible for him to strike with his full power at arm's length. At the same time my scheme was to play on his arm and wrist and to disable him with a few well directed blows at those points. I thought of putting myself in training for three months or more under the direction of a competent trainer. I'll guarantee that, if an experienced fighter will adopt my tactics, he can best Corbett. I don't claim to be a pugilist, and a good boxer could undoubtedly knock me down despite my strength."—Washington Post.

Poor Tommy.

Belle—Why doesn't Tommy get married?

Nell (contemptuously)—Can't afford it.

Belle—Well, he and his wife could live on "bread and cheese and kisses," couldn't they?

Nell—Yes, they might, but Tommy hasn't been able to find any girl who could provide the necessary bread and cheese as yet.—Somerville Journal.

SEEN IN A STORM

as I followed his retreating figure, I asked, 'But what is it?"

"Never mind, come—come," he said. and we re-entered the bedroom.

He had a candle burning beside the bed he had occupied, the one near the window. The other bed, next the door, had evidently remained untouched. There was no sign of any pressure on the pillow, nor was there any disturbance of the blankets and sheets. As I passed to the interior of the room I again felt chilly for a moment. We approached the window, which was seamed with the beating rain. Wake faced round and asked me to look at the bed near the door.

"Can you see anything there?" he asked.

"Why, no. The bed—what do you mean?" I replied.

"Wait," he said, "for the next flash, and then tell me what you see, keeping your eyes on the bed," he added excitedly, but in a low and, as it appeared to me, fear struck voice.

We waited, but not for long, for very soon a fierce light beat in again as the lightning ran down, illuminating every corner of the room and showing the white unruffled bed most distinctly.

"Now—and now—there!' Wake exclaimed.

"Well, all is dark, except for your candle light, which seems weak and yellow enough after that flash," I said loudly, for the thunder had pealed out as soon as the flash disappeared and rolled on with its reverberations as though the sound would never cease.

"Look at them. You must see that group around him," Cecil said. "No—you don't. Well, wait till the next flash."

"What is it?" I asked, and feeling a little faint, which I had hardly ever felt before, I sat down on the bed on which he had reposed. He sat down on it also, seating himself more toward its foot, as I had placed myself next the pillows. His body was thus between me and the other bed. He took my hand, then seeing that I rather shrank from this childlike treatment he put his hand on my arm and said, "Hush—do wait and see again if you see nothing!"

So we watched, the rain making its noise against the window. I whispered, "Do you see anything, that you keep on telling me to watch, and looking so oddly always at the corner?"

"Yes, I see them still, but fainter," he replied.

Then came another blinding flame of blue light, and I—I, looking at that empty bed, saw upon it the form of a man, and around him was gathered a group of figures, half seen, but lighted with the light that had filled the room with the flash and had gone again. There it was, lingering still on that form in the bed and lighting up the side of the figures around him. The figure on the bed was that of a dead man, but although the corpse was phosphorescent under the half closed lids the eyes gleamed as though their blind orbs were of living fire.

The glow coming from him seemed to be the radiance that lighted the sorrowing group that gazed down upon him. As I looked the apparition became fainter and fainter until the little yellow candle flame was all that lit the room, and the bed again was empty, and the white sheets lay close up to the pillow next the wall as though nothing had ever been there. I now felt my arm aching where Wake's hand was on it, and I moved it and gently displaced his hand with my disengaged one and said, "Wake, I thought I saw a group of men around a body in that bed, but it must be some odd effect of the lightning playing tricks with reflections from the mirror!"

"You think so?" he said, with a sad smile that softened the twitching of the corners of his mouth. "Well—if you stay, you may see it again. I see it now."

"But I don't, and it's all nonsense," I said desperately, determined not to give in, "but I'll tell you what it is, Cecil, I'll not leave the room. Give us a hand with your own bed. I'll take the feathered cushion thing and a blanket and lie near you until morning, and that bed may take care of itself. I agree so far with you that I won't sleep in it."

The storm was moving farther away. There were some fainter flashes, but I saw nothing of our strangely lit companions, and after tossing about on the improvised bed on the floor and seeing Cecil still half raised on his pillows and gazing still at bed No. 2 I became unconscious of storm, Cecil or phantoms and slept till the morning light, and the boot's cheerful "Sechs Uhr" and double knock warned us to prepare for our day's work. Cecil rose, and we went together down to the dining room, both very silent and wondering if anything would be asked by host or waitress about our night's rest.

We breakfasted. The host came and wished us good morning and gave information about our route and spoke of the storm, but of nothing else, and I turned to Cecil after he had gone, saying that I could not explain the night's vision, but thought we must have eaten something that had produced a disagreement in our digestions and an agreement in our symptoms. He was still excited and nervous and looked as though he had not slept at all.

"I am sorry I called you," he said amiably.

"Oh, we had best not talk of the effect of light we thought we saw, and it's of no use to mention it to others!" I replied.

"Why?" he asked.

"Simply," I said, "because nobody will believe us."

We left the hotel, and I think it must have been at least a week afterward that in another hotel we came upon a number of an old illustrated newspaper in the reading room. Cecil had it in his hand and gave it to me, pointing with his finger at a paragraph which read thus:

"We regret to learn that a sad accident took place last Wednesday at ——gen, the particulars of which have cast a gloom over the place and have so affected the amiable host of the ——hoff that he has shut up his house a full fortnight before the usual end of the season, which has always filled his hospitable and excellent place of entertainment and healthy lodging. Mr. G., an English gentleman, who was traveling alone, was carried into the hotel during a thunderstorm, struck dead by lightning, which damaged also a little part of the house, close to which he was standing under the shelter of a chestnut tree. The body was placed on a bed, and means were tried to produce sensibility, but without avail. His brother has arrived from England, and the corpse will probably be buried at ——gen, his brother thinking that the carriage to England of the gentleman's body is unnecessary, although he has, it is said, a fine estate in that country and might have expected to have ended his life amid English 'home and comfort' and to have rested with his ancestors."

I put down the paper.

The place mentioned was that where Cecil Wake had caused me to see what I still try to think was an effect of his own imagination.—Blackwood's Magazine.

LIFE ON 18 CENTS A DAY.

The Fearful Problem That Confronts the Paris Working Woman.

A working girl living alone cannot live honestly in Paris on less than 650 francs a year. This in American money is $130. For 300 days in the year she must make nearly 45 cents a day. A room within a reasonable distance of her work will cost $30 a year. The slight saving which she might effect by going into the outer suburbs would be eaten up in the expense of tramway, omnibus or even shoe leather. Her food will cost her $80 a year. This estimate allows her bread, meat and milk sufficient to keep her in good health six days in the week and provides for a dinner on Sunday at one of the working people's restaurants. The menu of this meal would be something like this:

Bread	2 cents
Wine	6 cents
Soup and beef	9 cents
Vegetables	5 cents
Cheese	3 cents
Total	25 cents

The amount of money she would have to spend on her clothes depends in some measure upon the nature of her work. It could hardly be less than $16 a year, including shoes and outdoor wraps. For heat, light, washing and car fare there would remain $14.

Now, on this sum a girl can live honestly in Paris. She cannot live honestly for less if she has to take the entire care of herself. The figures I have given are not ironclad. Of course there must be a certain amount of flexibility in any general estimate. But I am quite within the bounds of moderation when I put the minimum living wage of the Parisian working woman, who is single and alone, at 40 cents a day for 300 days in the year. How do they earn it? These vestmakers, shirtmakers, flower makers, embroiderers, milliners, cloakmakers, washerwomen, ironers, matchmakers, leadworkers, this army of toiling women. Not three-fourths of them earn this little wage. The first working girl with whom I discussed this question was a trifle more intelligent than her class. She had come from Auvergne and had been five years in Paris. She worked in a match factory in the Twentieth arrondissement, out near La Villette. It is work in which a certain amount of technical instruction is necessary, and in consequence the wage compares favorably with that of other employments open to women.

"How much do you make a day?" I asked.

"I make 20 sous a day, all a woman can make in Paris," she replied, "and that is not enough to live on."

This 20 cents a day is more than the majority of women earn.

"I have a room over there," and she pointed to one of the cardboard tenements which are being jerry built in all that region between Pere la Chaise and the basin of La Villette, "and it costs me 50 cents a week. I have $1.20 a week for food and clothes and medicine. I have to take medicine—that's on account of the sulphur."

"Do you live on that?"

"I can't," she said. "Bread is 8 and 9 cents a kilogram (a loaf of about two pounds); milk is 10 cents a quart; the cheapest kind of meat—beef, I mean—costs 20 cents a pound. I have to have fuel and light. It cannot be done. I tried it for a year, and I was starving all the time. I should have been dead by this time if I had kept it up. Now? Oh, now I am not 'honest.'"

It is to be remembered that this girl had come from the country. She was used to heavy food and the open air. The privations of a working woman's life were more to her than to one to the manner born. In addition she probably had not the art, instinctive in the Parisian girl, of sweating her sous and buying to the best advantage. I met plenty of Paris women who kept themselves alive and kept themselves from vice on 20 cents a day. Of course they had neither happiness nor comfort, but they had existence. That was assured them as long as they were able to work 16 hours a day. It is said that 16 hours of continuous work is the limit of a woman's endurance. Thirteen hours is the average length of the woman's working day in Paris.—Paris Letter in New York Commercial Advertiser.

Chinese Victims of Consumption.

That there is a large Chinese population in Boston is well known, and yet it is seldom that one hears of a death in the Chinese quarter. The proportion of Chinese residents is small as compared with those of other nationalities, and there is no way to tell the exact number of deaths among them, as they are recorded by the city officials under the head of miscellaneous nationalities. Inquiry reveals the fact that Chinamen in nearly every case die of consumption. They are ill, as a rule, but a short time. In their native country their principal diet is rice, which, from its healthfulness, tends to lengthen life. When they begin business here, all their habits change. They work early and late, seldom leaving their shops, and as they succeed they begin to eat American food. It is remarked by all with whom they have dealings that they always buy the best the markets afford. It is their custom to work until midnight or after and then enjoy a hearty meal. If they are well to do, they are certain to have chickens and whatever fruit can be procured, no matter how expensive it may be. If they have just started in the laundry business, it is quite likely that they will form a company and adjourn to the nearest "night lunch wagon" or restaurant.

Living, as most of them do, in such small rooms, when sickness overtakes them they cannot receive proper care, and they are carried to the hospitals.—Boston Transcript.

The Cruel Plant.

A Canadian climber, the Physianthus albens, has received the name of "cruel plant" from its ill treatment of butterflies. It flowers in the month of August, and the butterflies, attracted by the perfume, hover around it in large numbers and push their trunks into the corollas to sip the honey. A pair of sensitive vegetable pinchers in the heart of the flower grips the delicate proboscis, and in spite of struggles to get free the butterfly hangs suspended until it dies. Apparently the plant has nothing to gain by the death of the insect, as it is not "carnivorous," like the Venus fly trap. In fact, if the butterfly were allowed to come and go, it would tend to foster the species by assisting cross fertilization. It appears, however, that the "cruel plant" came originally from Brazil, where the butterflies are much stronger and extricate their suckers from the trap. We may add that another Canadian plant, the Cnicus discolor, is charged with cruelty. The flower has a gland which secretes a viscous liquid capable of liming insects which are fond of it. Moreover, they seem to be stupefied and poisoned by it, and no reason can as yet be assigned for the deadly consequence.—Cassell's Magazine.

BULL FIGHTING IN MEXICO.

A Woman Who Showed Herself the Most Skillful of Toreadors.

"The prohibition of bull fighting in Mexico by laws enacted there about seven or eight years ago has practically done away with such exhibitions in that country, and they are rarely to be seen, except during a few days known as Pascua or feast time, at the close of each year," said F. G. Stratton, a cattleman from the southwest.

"I shall never forget a most brilliant contest that took place just prior to the taking effect of the decree against bull fighting. I was fortunate enough to witness it, and I saw one of the most skillful, daring and expert of the professional fighters of Mexico engaged in the leading part.

"This performer was a young woman, Senorita Hernandez, and she had advertised for the wildest and fiercest bulls the country could produce and agreed to fight them while she was wearing stilts. The novelty of a young girl engaged in a bull fight, handicapped by having stilts fastened to her feet, was sufficient to attract a crowd of fully 5,000 people to the large amphitheater. The animals provided for the occasion were small, active and wholly untamed, and each had his horns trimmed and polished until the horns were quite as bright and almost as sharp as needles.

"The fair Castilian was under an advertised obligation while wearing the stilts to kill at least one bull with a sword scarcely more than two feet in length. This was to be done by the toreadora at the time the animal was making a charge, the fatal thrust to be given while she was directly in front of and fairly facing the bull. The animal selected for this contest was a beautiful specimen, black as coal, agile as a cat, savage and wild. After he had entered the arena and had been permitted to make a charge or two to warm him to his work the governor, who presided on the occasion, gave a signal, and the bugle sounded the 'death call.'

"The senorita with stilts of one foot in height, securely fastened to her limbs, received the short sword, saluted the governor, and, turning toward the bull, gave a shout of defiance and waved her scarlet cloak to arouse his anger. The bull, quivering with excitement and pawing the earth in his rage, his eyes flashing fire, lowered his head to the ground and started at full speed toward the senorita.

"The brave girl waited until the beast was within 20 feet, when, bracing herself firmly, she held her sword at shoulder height, ready for his coming. When within four feet, she threw her body suddenly forward, gave a quick thrust with the sword, and without waiting to see the effect of the blow swung quickly around and again saluted the governor. In the twinkling of an eye she turned to face the bull, and as she did so he dropped dead so close to her that without moving from her position she placed one foot upon the neck of her helpless enemy. The sword, directed by the strong arm of the self possessed girl, had severed the spinal cord, and death was instantaneous and probably painless."—St. Louis Republic.

Unsound Teeth.

The belief that unsound teeth belong only to a highly civilized state of life seems to be a prevalent one. But J. Howard Mummery informs us that a very different conclusion was reached by his father more than 20 years ago after an inquiry extending over more than a decade. Over 2,000 skulls were examined, including all the available collections in Great Britain. Among 36 skulls of ancient Egyptians there were 15 with carious teeth; among 76 Anglo-Saxon skulls, 12; among 146 skulls of Romano Britons, 41, and among 44 miscellaneous skulls of ancient Britons, 9. Several other collections gave like results. Examining skulls of savage races, 27.7 per cent of Tasmanians were found to have dental caries, 20.45 per cent of native Australians, 24.25 per cent of the natives of east Africa and 27.96 per cent of the natives of west Africa.—Nature.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers.

The cold weather continues.

A squaw was sheltered at the police station last night.

A number from town will attend a concert at Selwyn tonight.

Both the Finance and Manufacturing Committees of the Council met last night.

Mr. W. Brine had his wrist crushed on Monday night while handling a barrel of vinegar.

The non-commissioned officers drilled last night in the gymnasium of the Collegiate Institute.

There were a few "scratch" matches played by the curlers on the rink last night. The ice was in excellent condition.

The damage to the cab, occasioned by the runaway on Monday night, was not as great as was reported. The driver turned the horses into the sidewalk to stop them.

We may live without fools, politicians and cranks;
We may live without love, we may live without thanks;
We may live without dudes and society's fads,
But where is the merchant who can live without ads?

There was a heavy snowfall throughout England on Sunday night, and yesterday intensely cold weather prevailed. In Lincolnshire there have been cases of persons frozen to death.

On Saturday morning last, when Mr. Robert German paid his usual morning visit to his mother's residence on King street, Picton, he was shocked to find her lying at the stairs dead. Upon examination her neck was found to be broken. It is supposed that, in some manner, she had fallen down the stairs. She was an aged lady and lived alone.

The next meeting of the Fortnightly Club will be held on Monday, the 18th of February. Programme: "The Mineral Resources of Ontario;" Mr. J. A. Fife, B. A. Special speakers: Mr. T. A. Hay, Mr. H. T. Strickland and J. M. Irwin. Mr. Burnham, Q. C., has announced that the subject of his paper will be: "The Utility of Canals at the Present Time."

The following new books have been added to the library at the Mechanics' Institute: Standard Dictionary, Funck & Wagnall; Upper Berth, Crawford; The Vagabonds, Woods; The Devil's Playground, Mackie; Mr. Jervis, Crocker; The House of Martha, Stockton; At the Gate of Samaria, Locke; Beyond the City, Doyle; Concerning Oliver Knox, Colmore; Justification of Andrew LeBrun, Barret; Micah Clarke, Doyle.

The danger of publishing alleged "cures" in the newspapers is illustrated in the following instance. The note appears in the Lindsay News-Item, and is signed "Medico":—In your issue of January 8th you published what is believed to be the formula of the gold cure for drunkenness, and in doing so a serious error crept in. Instead of one ounce nitrate of strychnine it should read one grain. The recipe as published says that after the second or third day "the desire for drink will cease." This is undoubtedly true—or a desire for anything else, for that matter.

WITH THE SPORTS.

Lindsay Curlers Defeat the Orillia Rinks—Other Sports.

The great racehorse Banquet has won $107,[illegible] during his six years' career on the American turf.

Jim Corbett says he will fight Peter Jackson for $25,000 a side in nine weeks after his match with Fitzsimmons.

The tour of the combined English cricket and football teams to America next season is now considered certain.

A four rink curling match at Brantford yesterday between the home team and Paris was won by the former by seven shots.

At Aurora yesterday the Richmond Hill team defeated the local players in a friendly curling match, coming out ahead by 30 shots.

The winning horses at the Alexander Island races yesterday were Kenna, Syria, Doc Birch, Fredericks and Dr. Johnston.

Hulse, Davidson and Young are among the Toronto entries for the Canadian skating championship races at Montreal next Saturday.

At St. Mary's yesterday the home curlers beat the Forest City Club of London in a friendly game, the score being 72 to 52.

The tenth chess game at Paris between Misses and Janowski resulted in a draw. The score now is: Misses 5, Janowski 3, drawn 2.

The schedule game of hockey in the O.H.A. played at Ayr last night between Ayr and Guelph resulted in favor of Ayr 12 goals to 5.

A Tankard curling game took place at Niagara Falls yesterday between the Buffalo and Thorold teams, 3 rinks a side. Buffalo won with ease, the final score being 58 to 25.

At Syracuse yesterday Bob Fitzsimmons was held in $10,000 bail to answer the charge of manslaughter in the first degree in killing the pugilist Con Riordan. He pleaded not guilty.

It is said that the trio of fast skaters, Johnston, Davidson and Rudd, will sail for Norway in a few days to compete in the championship races at Hamar on February 23 and 24. Manager T. W. Eck will look after their interest.

The track was very soft and wet at New Orleans yesterday, and mud horses had the best of the going. The following were the winning horses: Burrell's Billet, 6 to 5; Legrande, 6 to 5; Lagniappe, 14 to 5; Nero, 6 to 5; Woodruff, 5 to 1.

At the skating races at Red Bank, N. J., yesterday, over 4,000 people were in attendance. Harley Davidson won the 300 yards race, and Johnston the two mile handicap and three mile scratch. Moshier won the half mile scratch.

At the Ottawa Driving Club's ice races at Lansdowne Park yesterday, No Trouble won the free-for-all. In the 2.50 class, which was unfinished, rumors of crooked work were rife, and the second heat was decided no race, the judges thinking that Joe B. threw the heat to let Sedona win.

A New York Herald special from Bristol, R. I., says: It was discovered yesterday, what was intended to be a carefully guarded secret, namely, that the Herreshoffs have signed a contract not to build a cup defender for any one outside the Iselin-Vanderbilt-Morgan syndicate.

CHINA'S RESISTANCE

Is Discovered at Wei-Hai-Wei—An Ineffectual Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Times' correspondent in Shanghai says:—"According to Chinese official accounts, the Japanese troops, supported by the fleet, twice attacked the west side of Wei-Hai-Wei on the 26th and were repulsed. They threatened the east side on the 28th, but, finding the defenders prepared, they retired. They wished to attack the Che-Foo forts, but the foreign fleets prevented it."

South Waterloo Conservative Convention

PRESTON, Jan. 29.—At the Conservative Convention for South Waterloo today George A. Clare was nominated to contest the riding for the Dominion House. Mr. Clare was the standard-bearer in the last general election, when he was defeated by a majority of 312.

THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL.

Digest of His Holiness' Address to American Catholics.

Special to the Times.

ROME, Jan. 29.—Pope Leo XIII. has issued his Encyclical to the American people.

He reminds them of the planting of the cross upon America by Columbus, the evangelization of the savages by Jesuits and Dominican missionaries and the friendship of George Washington for the first Catholic Bishop and proceeds to deal with the relations of Church and State. In regard to this the document says:

That it would be erroneous to conclude that the type of the most desirable status of the church is to be found in America or that it would be universally lawful and expedient for Church and State to be dissevered or divorced as they are in America. Catholicity in America is prosperous, because she spontaneously propagates herself, but she would bring forth more abundant fruits if she enjoyed the favor of the laws and the patronage of the public authority.

The document then recites the motives leading to the establishment of the Roman Catholic University, Washington, and Mgr. Satolli's mission to America, after which it deals with the sacrament of matrimony. The firmness in principle and practice respecting marriage, which prevails among the Americans, is eulogized, and the statement made, that the indissolubility and unity of the marriage bond is the strongest bond of safety to the family and society, and that many who disagree otherwise with Roman Catholic dogmas, being terrified by the licentiousness resulting from divorce, admire and approve the Romanish teaching and customs in this regard.

The encyclical warns Catholics who enter societies lest while seeking aids for the promotion of their own interests they imperil far weightier interests. It asks them that at no time to be parties to the violation of justice and avoid those who are not steadfast for the right and friendly to religion.

Dealing with the press it speaks in no uncertain terms. It says that when writers presume to take bishops to task they are sowing the seeds of discord. The bishops are to be obeyed as well as revered.

War Unlikely.

CITY OF MEXICO, Jan. 29.—At 10 o'clock this evening it became known that the Guatemalan Minister had been instructed to make concessions. Neither he nor any member of the Cabinet would comment on this report. Late tonight the opinion gains ground that war will be averted.

Austin, of Haliburton, has been appointed Bailiff of the Second Division Court of Haliburton, in succession to J. Stothart, resigned.

The Railway Blockade.

The snow blockade on the Grand Trunk, east of Toronto, was raised yesterday afternoon, and the Montreal express, which should have arrived in the city on Sunday morning, steamed into the Union station shortly before 5 o'clock Monday afternoon. About 60 available men, sectionmen, freight-handlers, and others, were shipped at an early hour to the scene of trouble between Newcastle and Newtonville, and at noon the imprisoned [illegible] train was liberated. By three o'clock the line was clear, and the express left Port Hope, where she had been lying at 2.45 p. m. For many miles between Pickering and Port Hope the drifts were from six to eight feet deep, and considerable difficulty was experienced in opening the road. The Grand Trunk lines near Owen Sound and Wiarton were blocked yesterday, but all available snow ploughs were put to work, and it is expected that traffic will be resumed uninterruptedly early this morning. The C. P. R. trains from the north and west were several hours late, but east of Toronto they were running on time.

MANY COMPLAINTS

About the Loose Delivery System in the Post Office.

A number of anonymous communications have been received at this office complaining of the loose manner in which the mail delivery at the post office is conducted. While there is a great deal of truth in the complaints, the letters will not be published, but will meet the fate of all anonymous communications.

In addition to these letters, several complaints have been made in person by citizens. A well known merchant showed THE TIMES a letter stamped with the Lindsay postmark on Jan. 21st and also the Peterborough postmark of the same date. He did not receive this letter until the 27th, six days later, although he visited his post office box several days in the interval. The letter was from a business firm in Lindsay, telling him not to go to Lindsay as had been arranged. In consequence of not receiving the letter, he went to Lindsay and had the trip for nothing. The letter reached the Peterborough office on Jan. 21st as evidenced by the postmark. Looseness in the delivery department is the only solution of the delay.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.

Mr. Alfred Parker Presented with a Silver Tea Set and Service.

Mr. Alfred Parker, the genial proprietor of the Peterborough Steam Laundry and Dye Works, was made the recipient of a handsome silver tea set and service last night by the employees. The occasion was the eve of Mr. Parker's marriage, which event will take place at 9 o'clock this morning. The address was read by Mr. Robert Beach, and the presentation by Mr. Sharp, foreman of the laundry department. The address was as follows:

"To Mr. Parker, upon the Eve of His Marriage, January 29th, 1895:

"DEAR MR. PARKER—We, your employees, desire on this the eve of a most happy and momentous occasion to tender you our individual and collective congratulations. Our relations, as employer and employees, have always been most amicable and friendly, and this is due not so much to anything we have done, as to the uniform kindness and consideration with which you have always tempered your actions and bearing toward us.

"We appreciate the great interest you have at all times manifested in your employees; therefore, our feelings towards you cannot but be of a most friendly nature, and, as evidence of the esteem in which we hold you, we ask you to accept—for yourself and for the one who will soon be your loyal helpmate—this tea set and service, and with it the hearty wishes of us all, that only happiness and prosperity, contentment and joy will attend the step you are about to take, and be yours and Mrs. Parker's through life."

Mr. Parker was taken greatly by surprise, which did not deter him, however, from replying in a very fitting manner.

"RESERVED" FOR LADIES.

To the Editor of the Times.

DEAR SIR,—What a gallant inspiration it was that prompted those in charge of the Conservative Rally on February 7th to reserve the gallery of the Opera House exclusively for the ladies.

The gallery of the Opera House is, and always has been, the cheapest seating part of the house, and the poorest possible place to sit, either to hear or see what is transpiring on the stage. In addition to this it is cramped and inconvenient, and merits as does similar parts of other play houses the appellation of "peanut gallery."

Again, if it is difficult to see from this "point of vantage," it is equally as difficult to be seen, and how can the citizens expect the ministers to speak with fervor and eloquence, if the beauty of Peterborough's fair sex is to be hidden from their view, cooped up in a narrow, uncomfortable gallery pungent with the fumes of peanuts and tobacco. How will the ministers feel about this robbery of inspiration?

The best seats in the Opera House are the first dozen rows. These should be reserved for ladies and their escorts, for very few will attend if they have to be separated from their husbands and male companions. Suppose the ladies are forced to sit in the gallery, imagine, if you can, Mr. Editor, the confusion that would ensue when the meeting disperses. There would be a rush and a bustle for wives and sweethearts and who can fortell what the results will be, if some husbands get mixed up and go home with other men's wives. There will be a crush at this meeting and this contingency is not only possible but very probable.

The only advantage I can see in the present arrangement, is that the ladies can, if they desire, chew peanuts unobserved. Is it the intention of the committee in charge to supply peanuts?

But, seriously, Mr. Editor, the arrangement is ridiculous. I do not consider it fair nor right to let the gentlemen have the best seats in the Opera House, and force the ladies to occupy a most undesirable location. I sincerely trust some better provision will be made for the accommodation of the ladies of Peterborough.

CONSERVATIVE.

THE INSPECTORSHIP.

Public Opinion Is that Mr. Garvin Should be Given a Hearing.

A special meeting of the Board of Education has been called to meet on Thursday evening of this week. Presumably, the purpose of the session is to approve of the recommendation of the Committee on Appointments, and to dismiss Mr. Garvin.

THE TIMES is not championing Inspector Garvin, nor are we questioning the right of the Board of Education to dismiss its servants, nor the motives that may prompt such action, but if Mr. Garvin is to be dismissed there should be some reasons assigned—some act or acts on his part that will justify the Board in dispensing with his services.

The dismissal of Inspector Garvin has been recommended. It is presumed the Committee on Appointments had reasons for making this recommendation. If the Inspector has been inefficient and derelict in his duty or in any manner laid himself open for censure or suspicion, there is no reason why the public and Inspector Garvin should not be informed. If there are charges against Mr. Garvin he should be acquainted of their nature, and given a chance to defend himself before the Board and the citizens.

Surely the Board of Education will not try, condemn and dismiss the school inspector without a hearing. Such a procedure would be a gross violation of the first principles of British fair play, and would savor of old-time Western justice as administered by the cowboys, which hanged men first and tried them afterwards.

The public would like to know why Mr. Garvin is to be dismissed, and all fair minded people will agree with THE TIMES that he should be given a hearing. The Board of Education is composed of honorable, fair minded men, and if, after hearing Mr. Garvin's defense to the charges that will be made, the members can honestly find that he has failed in his duty or by his actions forfeited their respect and confidence, the action of the Board in approving of his dismissal will neither be questioned by the public or this journal.

THE TIMES voices public sentiment in urging that Inspector Garvin be granted a hearing.

ALWAYS BUSY!

This store is blessed with plenty to do every day in the week and every month in the year. While you were Holiday shopping we were planning big surprises for January trade. And now that the WHITE GOODS SALE is well under way, we begin to plan for spring. No idle heels dangle over our counters. The entire organization is thoroughly wide-awake, and quicker than ever before to serve your interests acceptably.

We make business doubly active by anticipating needs, enlarging stocks and constantly adding such new goods as you seem to want. There's no limit to the possibilities of trade in this unpretentious building, and those who watch developements here will be more than surprised. Success grows with what it feeds upon, and when we emphasize trade activity in January, we force the momentum of busy days and quick sales right through the year.

WHITE GOODS SALE

We want everybody to know about it. Facts have already been printed which prove our right to your interest. When and where before have you known perfectly new goods to sell at bargain prices? Energy and enterprise, coupled with the biggest possible outlet for reliable goods, enables us to sell at these extremely low prices.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

A FORGER IN THE TOILS.

SAID TO HAVE FLEECED NEW YORKERS OUT OF A COOL $100,000.

Arrested in Toronto While Hiding Under His Bed—A Remarkable Career—Will Fight Extradition.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—The most important capture that has been made by the city police for some time was that effected between four and five o'clock this morning by Detectives Slemin and Verney.

Early last Monday morning a German Jew named Herman Brenzel arrived here from New York City and proceeded at once to Inspector Stark's office where he stated that a German 40 years of age named Fred Tiedeman had committed forgeries in New York and was believed to have come to Canada several months ago.

Detective Slemin was detailed on the case and yesterday afternoon succeeded in locating the stranger at No. 3 Lappin avenue, near the C. P. R. track, west of Dufferin street. He was travelling under the name of Alfred Shutte and had for some time past been engaged in selling life sized pictures for Reid Bros., of Spadina avenue. Tiedeman was not at home when the officer called, so he went away and returned last night accompanied by Detective Verney.

CAUGHT UNDER THE BED.

Along about four o'clock this morning the alleged fugitive returned to his home and it is assumed that his wife told him what occurred during his absence. After waiting around for a while longer the detectives entered the place and after a long search found their man hiding under the bed.

He protested that his name was Shutte and had never lived in New York. The officers handcuffed him and took him away to police headquarters where he was charged with theft, forgery, and malicious injury.

This morning Herman Brengal appeared before him and the accused admitted that his name was Tiedeman and that he had been living here under an assumed name.

Subsequently Tiedeman was brought before the Magistrate who sent him over to the Extradition Judge.

A REMARKABLE CAREER.

From what Brenzel states this prisoner has had a remarkable career. During the Franco-Prussian war is is said that Tiedeman, who was living in one of the large German cities, went to the front with the German army and took part in a number of important engagements with France.

He was then but a boy of 16, and upon the cessation of hostilities began the study and subsequently the practice of criminal law with a brilliant career before him to all appearances. After he had been practising a few years, however, a charge of perjury was preferred against him and he was convicted of the crime. He served a term in prison and as soon as released disappeared from the country. His right name was Tieman, and when next heard of, in New York city, he went under that name, but changed it from time to time as it suited him in his dishonest transactions.

HAD MANY NAMES.

After that he travelled under the aliases of Tiedeman, Friedeman, Tindeman, Schaaper, Tattman, Schultz and others. He took out naturalization papers and was for a time a highly honored citizen. Two years ago, and twelve years after he had entered the country, Tiedeman's honesty began to be called into question, but he avoided arrest.

At that time and until last March, Brenzel was in the brokerage business. Tiedeman was his agent, and they loaned large sums of money on mortgage security. Early in March Brenzel alleges that Tiedeman gave him an indemnity bond amounting to $10,000, signed by one Mrs. Nussbaum, a very wealthy woman, of New York. On the strength of this bond Brenzel gave Tiedeman power of attorney to collect money on outstanding mortgages.

SKIPPED WITH $8,000.

Tiedeman collected about $8,000 and disappeared from the country. It then came out Mrs. Nussbaum's bond was a forgery and Brenzel began looking for his agent. Other forgeries extending for the past 12 years were then brought to light and a reward was offered for his arrest. It was learned that he left pier 41 of the North river on May 14th and nothing more was heard of him until yesterday. Brenzel is of the opinion that Tiedeman's defalcation during the past dozen years will aggregate in the neighborhood of $100,000, as it has been shown that in the last year he has received not less than $30,000 on forged paper.

This morning, when Tiedeman appeared in the dock he showed no signs of distress. He wears a red beard and has the appearance of an ordinary German laborer.

WILL FIGHT EXTRADITION.

Lawyer Murdoch has been retained by him and he is determined to fight the case to the end. The prisoner's wife and four children are still at their house on Lappin avenue, where the arrest was effected. There is nothing very elegant about the place, but it is comfortable. The police, however, are of the opinion that the papers taken possession of at the time Tiedeman was arrested will enable them to locate several thousand dollars that was brought over by the prisoner when he fled from New York. When confronted by the Detectives Tiedeman made no resistance, but stoutly protested his innocence.

Before he yields to extradition it is believed the ex-German criminal lawyer will resort to every possible means of resistance.

The prisoner was taken before Judge McDougall and remanded for a week.

TIDINGS OF DISASTER.

The German Warship Stein Sunk with All Hands.

Special to the Times.

ATHENS, Jan. 29.—The Greek Government and the British Minister have received information that yesterday a bottle was found off the coast of Zante, and in the bottle was a paper with these words: "Sinking rapidly, inform German Admiralty, German warship Stein." The Stein is an iron and wood frigate of 2,810 tons. The German naval list for 1894 says that the Stein carried 446 men, and was assigned to the East American station.

Germany and The Transvaal.

PRETORIA, Transvaal, Jan. 29.—At a banquet given here in celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the German Emperor, President Kruger toasted Emperor William. In speaking to his toast, the President said the time had arrived to establish the closest friendship between the Transvaal and Germany. He added that he had striven to effect a union with British subjects, but they had frustrated his efforts and refused to join in the defence of the Transvaal.

They Attack Wei Hai Wei but Are Repulsed by the Chinese with Heavy Loss China's Peace Offering.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan 30.—The Times correspondent in Shanghai says: According to Chinese official accounts Japanese troops, supported by the fleet, twice attacked the west side of Wei Hai Wei on the 26th and were repulsed. They threatened the east side on the 27th but finding the defenders prepared they retired. They wished to attack the Chee Foo forts also but the foreign fleets prevented it.

A despatch to the Central News says China is negotiating for a gold loan of $3,000,000 at 6 per cent., through the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank.

The Central News correspondent in Tokio says:—General Nogi reports from Huntsai that there are 10,000 Chinese near New Chwang, and that 14,000 Chinese are advancing from Tapinshan.

PARIS, Jan. 30.—The Herald's special correspondent with the advance troops of the Japanese second army in Manchuria, reports that the Japanese forces reached Hantsai on Monday evening. Scouts reported that the enemys forces in the vicinity of Yiano have been materially increased. The scouts are unable to proceed beyond Laopong. The Chinese appear to have advanced along the whole line.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 30.—Advices from Tokio, dated January 13, state that the basis of the peace mapped out by the Chinese Government for the guidance of its envoys is an indemnity of from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 gold, a solatium of $10,000 000 for the families of the Japanese officers and soldiers who were killed in the war, a formal acknowledgment of the independence of Corea and an exchange of prisoners, but no cession of Chinese territory. The Chinese offered these terms two months ago through the non-official channel of communication that has always been kept open and they were rejected.

SKIPPED OUT.

Warrant Issued for a Yonge Street Merchant Who Sold Out Hurriedly.

Special to the Times.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—A warrant was issued late yesterday for the arrest of Clinton S. Herbert, the Yonge street dry goods man who has been running the attractive-looking emporium on the corner of Shuter street since Sept. 1st last year. The warrant was sworn to by Messrs. Alexander, Anderson & Co., the Front street wholesale dry goods merchants, and charges Herbert with fraudulently disposing of his estate to the detriment of his creditors. The police are very reticent as to the details of the case, but from what can be learnt it appears that Herbert sold out his stock to Mr Nicholas Garland of the Garland Manufacturing Company, Wellington street, for $8,000, and immediately upon realizing on the sale he left the city for parts unknown.

Herbert came from Detroit last fall and started in with considerable display and extensive advertising to establish a business. He made a specialty of low priced lines in dry goods and American notions, and it is believed that he secured somewhat extensive credit both in this city and in Montreal. He employed quite a number of hands, made an attractive show of merchandise, cut prices very fine, and no doubt did a fair business for the time being. That doubt had began to arise in the minds of some members of the commercial world may be gathered from the fact that no longer ago than two weeks or so a well known boot and shoe house in the city refused him a line of credit to the amount of $1,500. Others, however, were not so fortunate, and it is feared his unsatisfied liabilities will be found to be considerable.

Mr. Herbert lived with his family in a comfortable and well-appointed house on Jarvis street, but inquiries there last evening failed to locate him, the only information vouchsafed being that he was out of town.

DRAMATIC ENDING.

Prof. Anderson Blew His Flute and Brains Out at the Same Time.

Special to the Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Prof. Vigo Anderson, one of the finest flutists in the world, and a prominent member of the Theodore Thomas Orchestra, made a dramatic ending of his somewhat eventful life last night.

He called together practically all his friends and gave them a grand musical entertainment. Then he shot himself through the head.

One of the invited guests was Miss Frances Streigel. Anderson killed himself virtually at her feet.

Among his effects was found a notice to appear in court to answer a bill of complaint filed by his wife in a divorce proceeding.

MAY BE MURDER.

Suspicious Marks on the Body of the ex-Convict. Found in Hamilton Bay.

Special to the Times.

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 29.—An inquest on the body of Thomas Ringer, who was found in the bay last night, frozen to death, was opened this morning before Coroner White.

The jurors in viewing the body found a terrible bruise under his left eye, another behind the left ear, and a broken nose. Many of them believe he was met with violence.

Another theory is that be jumped from a freight train when approaching Hamilton and sustained the injuries. The investigation will be searching.

DROWNED IN A RACEWAY.

A Merritton Young Man Meets His Death Last Night.

Special to the Times.

ST. CATHARINES, Jan. 29.—A young man named Kenneth Bessey, employed in the cotton mills, Merritton, was drowned in the raceway at that place about 11 o'clock last night.

He was engaged at the time in keeping the raceway clear of ice and fell in. The body has not, as yet, been recovered.

A HIGHER TRIBUNAL

Will Try Charles Donovan—Fell Dead in a Court Room.

Special to the Times.

LA JUNTA, Col., Jan. 30.—Charles Donovan was arraigned yesterday for attempting to assault a nine-year-old girl.

Donovan was attacked with an epileptic fit in the court room, and before the preliminary examination could be had he was dead.

Donovan has relatives in Vermont who have been wired concerning his death.

TROUBLE MADE HIM ILL.

ANNIE GRAHAM'S SEPTUAGENARIAN DUPE A SICK MAN.

Dempster Will Secure the Return of the Deeds Obtained from Him—The Woman's Alleged Accomplice Not Yet Caught.

Special to the Times.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 30.—James Dempster the New Dublin farmer who was inveighed into a marriage with the wife of James Dowsley and induced to deed over his property to the woman, is a very sick man according to his medical attendant. Yesterday he positively refuse to take any more medicine, on the plea that it was too strong for his stomach and "bloated him up with pains." Enquiry revealed the fact that he had eaten a whole apple pie, three apples, a lot of meat and vegetables, some cake and fruit, and imbibed a quart of soup, all within a few hours. He made it a point of etiquette to eat all and everything supplied him. His attendant said he ate more than a shantyman, and would have it. Measures have now been taken to cut off the supply and the attendant has orders to prevent entry to the house of all provisions except such as he orders himself.

DIDN'T GET THE DOLLAR.

Mr. Dempster talks freely of his lat adventures. As stated in a previou despatch Provincial Detective Greer recovered for him the deed of the farm which he executed to his supposed wife, and the lease from her to him. The papers were in the hands of Messrs. Hutcheson and Fisher, barristers, Brockville, who delivered them up on demand.

The deed is made in duplicate upon regular printed forms, dated Dec. 5, 1894, signed by James Dempster, and witnessed by W. A. Williamson. It covers the whole farm of 97 1 4 acres, with the exception of half an acre and two acres previously sold. The consideration mentioned is "the love and affection which the said party of the first part bears to his wife, the party of the second part, and the sum of one dollar."

Mr. Dempster says that the love and affection part was all right at the time, "but damn the dollar I ever got, d'ye see."

A UNIQUE DEED.

The deed, it appears, was signed by Dempster in his own house, and was an absolute conveyance of the land to "Mary Ann Dempster." Then she executed what purported to be a life lease of the land to him. The lease bears the same date as the deed, signed and sealed, and witnessed by W. A. Williamson. It is a masterpiece of composition in the way of showing how a party of the first part could turn the property over to a second party and at the same time retain full control and possession of it. After describing the parties and the land in regular form, the document goes on: "The said party of the first part hereby leases and by these presents doth lease unto the said party of the second part all the above described property, to have and to hold during his natural life. The said party of the first part is to have the use of the farm and is to run it or farm it in a good husband-like and careful manner and allow the said party of the second part to have the privilege of working or not as he sees fit, and to enjoy the same privileges about his home and farm as heretofore, as far as having a good comfortable home and living. And if the said parties can agree on selling the farm for the $75,000 they are to sell it. And the said party of the first part is to improve the farm and buildings as she sees it necessary and to furnish the money to do the repairing."

Under the lease Dempster's right in the land was dwindled to the mere privilege of "holding" it during his natural life and working or not as he pleased. While his wife was to do all the bossing in her "husband-like manner."

Williamson has not yet returned to Canada.

Mr. Dowsley-Dempster will be sentenced on Wednesday, the authorities having decided not to go on with the charge of conspiracy to poison in the meantime.

GRAND CIRCUIT DATES.

They Will be arranged when the Western Clubs Are Heard From.

Special to The Times.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The Executive Committee of the New York Driving Club held a meeting last night and discussed in a general way the grand circuit dates.

After the meeting Andrew Miller said:—"The grand circuit dates cannot be arranged until we hear from the West. We shall have a conference a week from tonight about the spring meeting, with representatives from Baltimore, Philadelphia, Parkway, Allentown, Pottstown and Albany driving clubs."

GROWING IN POPULARITY.

THE SATURDAY TIMES is growing in popularity and its appearance is eagerly looked for. Last week the subscriptions poured in so rapidly from our agents canvassing the country villages, that a SIX THOUSAND edition was necessary. Early in the day the street sales became so large that it was necessary to start the presses again. The consequence was that instead of a six thousand edition as was announced for the benefit of our advertisers, this edition of THE SATURDAY TIMES was only a few hundred copies short of a TEN THOUSAND EDITION. The special features are selling the paper. In this connection the public will understand that we have only commenced to push THE SATURDAY TIMES to the front and that each edition will be an improvement on the preceding one. This week the special features will be particularly interesting—something new in the line of local hits. The edition will be fully 8,000. This is a pointer for advertisers who will do well to watch us as we progress and extend. Look out for the announcement of what the next issue of THE SATURDAY TIMES will contain.

The Greek crisis, which have culminated in the resignation of the Ministry, is due to popular discontent against high taxes. Greece, like the United States, is suffering from a currency problem the difficulties of which are increased by a deficiency.

If the Conservatives desire to coin the next election the Government must shew that it means business in respect to the immediate completion of the Trent Valley Canal. The people who are mainly interested in this enterprise have lost all faith in the promises of ministers.

"Some men seem to able to stand horrible sights in one way and not in another," said a veteran soldier. "I new a man once, a soldier, who was never disturbed in the slightest degree by the sight of men killed or wounded in action, but who could not bear to see an amputation. I've known him to faint at the mere story of one. That's curious, isn't it?"

Of twenty yearling race horses sold for $5,000 or over apiece in England in 1893, only three won races last year. The combined cost of the horses was $160,500, while the winnings were only $24,302. In the ten years, from 1882 to 1892, 292 yearlings sold at $5,000 or over, cost $2,415,000, and won $929,000. Last year 22 yearlings brought that sum or more, the highest price being $20,500 paid for the Duchess of Montrose's Roquebrune, a daughter of Saint Simon, by Saint Marguerite.

The war fever seem to be pretty well aroused in Mexico. President Diaz has sent an ultimatum to Guatemala and troops are being hurried rapidly toward the frontier. Mexico has not had a foreign war since the French were driven out, but there have been enough civil wars to keep the people in good fighting trim. It is believed that the other Central-American States are back of Guatemala, in which case the result of the war may be the practical incorporation of Central America with Mexico.

THE MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

The report cabled to this country as to the probable decision of the Imperial Privy Council in the Manitoba Schools case have turned out to be well founded. The decision was made public on Tuesday morning, and the effect of it is that the Dominion Government has the right to grant remedical legislation, the Council having sustained the appeal of the Roman Catholics without costs. This brings the Government face to face again with a very embarrassing question.

Ontario has no direct concern in the matter. In this province most of us have long since made up our minds to regard Separate Schools as a necessary evil. We do not like them but we see the wisdom of making the best of them and we make the best of them accordingly. The people of Manitoba are less philosophical, and in all fairness it must be said that they have good reason to be so. When Manitoba entered the confederation the establishment of Separate Schools in that province was not made part of of the bargain, and one would think that the Legislature of the province would have every right to deal with the issue finally in its own way. The Privy Council however, thinks differently, and as the Privy Council is the highest court of appeal in the British Empire, there is nothing for it but to submit to the decision with the best grace possible.

The chief interest here will be in watching the course of the Dominian Government now that the burden of the matter has been thrown upon its shoulders. The question is a most complex and annoying one for the politicians to handle, and they would gladly shirk it if they could. Whichever way they move, there is sure to be trouble. If they grant the remedial legislation the Roman Catholics are seeking, there will be a wild howl from the Protestants, and if they refuse it, the Roman Catholics will make a disturbance. If ever there was a case of the Government being clearly between the devil and the deep sea this is it.

JENNESS MILLER MONTHLY

FOR FEBRUARY.

JENNESS MILLER MONTHLY for February contains an animated descriptiou of the New Year's reception at the White House, bearing the novel name of "The Golden Gate," which acts as foil to Mrs. Jenness Miller's keenly intellectual article on "Law, Order and And Art in Dress." The latter is the sixth chapter in a series which is attracting widespread attention, and which has elicited warm comment from many artists and other cultivated people who appreciate Mrs. Miller's true conception of dress, and are ardent believers in her ideals. This clever woman has created a new era in dress, and has a clear conception of the philosophy of her art. Her articles on "Law, Order and Art in Dress," are characterized by broad and independent thought, and by a certain charming originality peculiar to their author. Mrs. Miller's work alone could not but insure the popularity of her magazine, but the publication is crowded to overflowing with so many good things of a social, literary, domestic and hygienic nature that all the wants of the household and its inmates are abundantly filled, the MONTHLY being in reality a small but comprehensive library in itself. No publication in this country has a better Household Science Department, and Society is treated from a unique standpoint in a page known as "Afternoon Tea." The MONTHLY contains also an excellent Kindergarten Department, and a most practical one known as "Occupations for Women." Bits of choice fiction and poetry adorn the pages. The editorial is novel and entertaining, but the most characteristic feature of it all, perhaps, after Mrs. Jenness Miller's article, is the fashion paper, which is known in the February number as "Some February Philosophy About Clothes." In this the writer gives expression to many interesting ideas, all of which are deduced from the principles taught by the JENNESS MILLER system, the keynotes to which are beauty, individuality, hygiene and general well-being.

At Your Gate.

Parton Gray.

My darling! My darling! My darling!
  Do you know how I want you to-night?
The wind passes, moaning and snarling,
  Like some evil ghost in its flight;
On the wet street your lamp's gleam shines redly
  You are sitting alone—did you start
As I spoke? Did you guess at this deadly
  Chill pain in my heart?

Out here where the dull rain is falling,
  Just once—just a moment—I wait;
Did you hear the sad voice that was calling
  Your name as I paused by the gate?
It was just a mere breath—ah! I know, dear,
  Not even love's ears could have heard;
But, oh! I was hungering so, dear,
  For one little word.

Do you think I am ever without you?
  Ever lose for an instant your face,
Or the spell that breathes always about you,
  Of your subtle, ineffable grace?
Why, even to-night, put away, dear,
  From the light of your eyes though I stand,
I feel as I linger and pray, dear,
  The touch of your hand.

Once again with its wonted caressing
  It soothes my deep wound like a balm;
Once again with an exquisite blessing
  It hushes my grief into calm;
And all the dear charm of your presence,
  My darling, is with me again,
And takes, like some mystical essence,
  The sting from my pain.

Ah, me! for a word that could move you
  Like a whisper of magical art!
I love you! I love you! I love you!
  There is no other word in a heart.
Will your eyes that were loving still love me?
  Will your heart, once so tender, forgive?
Ah, darling! stoop down from above me
  And tell me to live.

THE BAGGAGE FIEND.

He Who Makes Travel a Terror and Sends Everything to Smash.

There are two of them—the one who flits from station to station and dumps your poor dumb trunk with force enough to drive piles in a government breakwater, and the one who loiters around the depot watching for his chance to shatter your baggage. The depot baggageman is the most culpable of the two species. In his long and dark career of smashing trunks he has knocked the hoops off his conscience, and there is no remorse brave, foolhardy and reckless enough to tackle his heartstrings and play on them.

The cowboy ropes the Texas steer for fun, but the baggageman ropes your trunk for a quarter of a dollar. No matter though your trunk be shod with half inch strap iron and armed with solid steel corselets on the corners and double locked with a burglar proof combination, the station baggageman wants to rope it all the same, and usually he terrifies all the passengers into letting him have his own way. He approaches you with a smile, goes away with 25 cents and ties up your bruised and battered kister with a tow string.

The strong, iron bound chest of the drummer and the aristocratic though fragile frame of the Saratoga meet on a common level, and when they do meet the splinters fly, and while the owner of the Saratoga is wringing her lily white hands and tucking stray bits of lace, ruffling and birdseye linen into the fractured corners the drummer is using the most vigorous and spiritual language he can compound, and a great deal of it, warming up with the eloquent brilliancy of his discourse. As the prayers of the wicked avail naught, so neither do the tears of the belle nor the curses of the commercial gentleman. The time table of the railroad is not changed in the least, and the sympathetic passengers are obliged to go abroad. The wounded trunks are thrown into the ambulance—baggage car—and whirled away to the next slaughter house farther up the road. And the dear, sweet dude, and the starchy old deacon, and the grand and impressive member of the legislature are all alike powerless in the hands of the fiend of the check ring. Tyre and Sidon have passed away, and so will our trunks. The Goths and Vandals swarmed down upon Rome, and it fell. Verily, so do the Goths and Vandals of the modern railroad prey on our baggage, and it is all broken up.—Texas Siftings.

A Little Too Quiet.

Jersey and Guernsey are gardens, says a recent French visitor to the Channel islands. The fields are so neat, so carefully kept, that they seem rather like garden plots. The least corner of earth is cultivated—the roadsides, every little hollow, and even "an inch of earth on the end of a rock."

But these Edens are silent, the traveler goes on to say. Now and then people on the islands smile, but no one ever laughs. Laughter is unbecoming, and to laugh aloud would be scandalous.

The birds sing, but not the people. Even the children are sober—little men and women rather than children. The trees are yews, cypresses and weeping willows.

When the people go to walk, they take to the cemeteries. Lovers exchange vows upon tombstones, and houses that are near graveyards rent more readily and at better prices on that account.

"We are admirably situated in our new house," said a young Jersey woman to the French writer. "We are right opposite the cemetery, and I can see the tombs from the windows of my bedroom. In the moonlight the view is lovely."

And still the Frenchman has to admit that there is something very attractive in this solemnity and stillness. The longer he remained in the islands the less he felt like coming away.—Youth's Companion.

Delaware's Hundreds.

In the days when the Saxons dominated England, prior to the coming of William of Normandy, the people were formed into divisions of hundreds. This was done mainly for military purposes and the convenience of assembly upon the summons of the powerful earls and barons to whom the people owed allegiance. These hundreds usually consisted of ten families, each family being computed at a minimum of ten persons. In time the families increased in membership, but did not lose their individual identity nor change the designation of organization. In the natural order of events these hundreds expanded into communities and ultimately into geographical divisions and took on geographical designations.

Some of the American colonists adopted this form of geographical division, and thus we still have hundreds in Delaware and Virginia, although in the latter state that form of designation is but seldom used. But in Delaware hundred is universally used to describe the divisions of a county and is equivalent to the township in Pennsylvania and other states.—Philadelphia Ledger.

STRAUSS AND HIS DOG.

A Story of the Waltz King, a Retriever and His Feminine Admirers.

"The Strauss jubilee," said a New York impresario to a reporter, "reminded me of an incident of the visit of the great composer to Boston at the time of the Gilmore jubilee which I do not remember ever to have seen in print. At that time Johann was in the full blaze of his glory, and the 'Blue Danube' waltzes were as well known in this country as 'Yankee Doodle,' and so when the composer was found to be a handsome, dapper little man, with lovely eyes and a mass of wavy black hair that was almost as extravagantly long as Paderewski's, the Boston musical women went wild over him. He was courted and caressed and feted and followed until it is a wonder his head—hair and all—was not turned, but Strauss had too much good business tact to lose control of himself, and he accepted everything—civility and compliment—with a smile that was as comprehensive as it was stereotyped.

"Strauss was a great dog fancier at that time and was accompanied by a magnificent black retriever. Toward the last of the great concert days some enthusiastic young woman sprung the idea of getting a lock of Strauss' hair for her locket—lockets were worn by everybody in those days you remember. The fashion grew into a fad, and from a fad blazed up to fury, and with his comprehensive smile Johann promised every applicant a memento. And in due time the locks were distributed—how many hundreds of them I don't know—each one accompanied by the compliments of the waltz king. Some statistical cuss said that enough hair had been cut off and distributed to make Strauss look as though he had been sandpapered, yet when he left Boston for New York his locks were as bushy and profuse as ever. It was remarked, however, that when Johann's beautiful black haired dog was put into the baggage car the poor creature looked like a shorn poodle."—

DECEPTIVE APPEARANCES.

To Look at He Was Not Much of a Lawyer, but Then—

Said a gentleman who is well acquainted in the mountain countries: "I noticed in the city an attorney from an eastern Oregon county who came here to appear before Judge Fee in chambers. He wore a felt hat, with no less than five inches of brim. His neckgear was by no means such as would be furnished by a city outfitter. His coat was a miserably poor fit, and, as for pantaloons, they were decidedly picturesque. The bag in these pants hung out conspicuously four or five inches below the knee, and the dust of the street was swept by the lower edges trailing along behind him. The mustaches worn by this attorney were and of course are yet such as to lend a particularly fierce appearance to an otherwise unique figure. As this lawyer passed along the streets toward the courthouse some one inquired who the person was and was informed he was a disciple of Blackstone. I thought there was an amused expression on the inquirer's face.

"Now, I wish he could have gone with me to the lawyer's house in one of the mountain towns. He would have been greeted by the lady of the house in the most cultured manner. Entertainment would have given evidence of the presence of refinement. A library would have been at the visitor's disposal composed of some of the rarest volumes extant. And these volumes would be found to be as familiar to my friend, the attorney, as Mother Goose's melodies to the average person. In the mind of this attorney could be found a wonderful store of valuable information; facts digested, and with the meaning and bearing on men and events extracted therefrom—in short, one of the most remarkable minds I have ever met. And then I would enjoy watching the face of the inquiring man as that attorney went before a jury and poured out a matchless and convincing eloquence. Educated liberally, trained in West Point Military academy and for years a captain in the regular army, later thoroughly educated in the law, that tall, peculiarly accoutered lawyer would prove a most agreeable surprise to one who came in contact with his disciplined and well filled mind. The name of this personage will occur to all members of the bar. It is the same as the title to one of Sir Walter Scott's best known novels."—Pendleton East Oregonian.

Lord's Prayer In Thirty-two Languages.

The Russians now have possession of the Mount of Olives, the spot where the Lord's Prayer was first uttered. The apex of the mount is nearly 200 feet above the hill upon which Jerusalem is built, 2,700 feet above the level of the Mediterranean and about 3,900 feet above the sluggish waters of the Dead sea. On this elevation, upon the exact spot which, tradition says, the prayer was first spoken, the Carmelite Sisters have, through the kindness of Mme. de la Tour d'Auvergne, who furnished the necessary funds, built a large convent. The exact, or what is claimed to be the exact, spot pressed by our Saviour's feet on that celebrated occasion is marked by a pure white polished marble cross, and the walls of the convent have the prayer inscribed upon them in 32 different languages. In some instances the letters forming the prayer are engraved in marble panels; in others they are letters of wood glued to backgrounds suitable to their colors. The Russian portion of this wonderful collection of inscriptions is said to be in letters of pure gold, each capital stem being 6½ inches long and four-fifths of an inch in width. Among the languages which one would hardly expect to find represented are the Hebrew, the Chinese, the Coptic, the Tartarian and the Japanese. The Arabian, as it had been a task to relinquish Mohammedanism, ends with "Great is Christ."—St. Louis Republic.

Millionaires and Their Sons.

On the average great fortunes in America have probably done more good and less harm than might have been expected. They have undertaken enterprises which could not otherwise have been undertaken and tried experiments which could not otherwise have been tried. The luxury and display of their owners are limited by the conditions of democratic society, which among other things preclude large establishments of servants such as are kept by the magnates of Europe, since in America one domestic will not take orders from another. Besides men who have made their own fortunes commonly retain the simplicity of their early habits of life.

The worst sin of the millionaires as a class probably has been the corruption of politicians in the interest of railways or other commercial concerns, and even here they have acted largely on the defensive. In politics they take little part, desiring only to be let alone. The worst of them is that they die and leave their wealth to idle and worthless sons. We give up the jeunesse doree of the great American cities without reserve to Mr. Stead's apostolic severity, though we cannot go so far as to say with him of men convicted of no actual crime that "any well regulated community would be justified in sinking them in the nearest bog till the breath had left their bodies.

A Cool Man.

"He was a cool man, was the colonel of my regiment," remarked a long legged old chap to a militia youth in a great display of uniform. "I never seen his like."

"Was it in the late war?" inquired the youth.

"The same, and he was the dandyfiedest little feller you ever see. That's the reason I don't laugh when I see you fellers," added the old one encouragingly. "Clothes ain't no sign of what kind of a soldier is inside of them."

"Thanks."

"Don't mention it. As I was saying, my colonel was the coolest man you ever see. Down there before Richmond once, when he was only a captain, he had his company covering a hill that was in the range of the enemy's shells, and they was dropping them there thicker'n potatoes. He had on a brand new uniform and was looking like a beau on parade, but he stood right out where the shells was plowing up the ground all around him and throwing dust over everything, but he never moved except to knock the dirt off his clothes about every minute. After awhile the general in command sent for him to come back out of range behind the hilltop.

"'What do you think of it?' asked the general, meaning the outcome of the fight, I suppose.

"'It's perfectly outrageous, general,' says the captain, 'and I don't see why in thunder they don't throw whisk brooms along with their shells.'"—Detroit Free Press.

The Uncomfortable Howdah.

The elephant's howdah is that bed of Procrustes in which one can neither sit nor stand with any approach to reasonable ease, and in which a recumbent attitude is impossible. Its advantages are (1) that, standing in it, a man can shoot on every side of him; (2) that it is convenient for the carriage of the occupant's paraphernalia, his guns on racks on either side, his ammunition in a trough in front, his other requisites in leather pockets here and there on the sides of the machine, or, as to that, bee blanket, on his seat, and (3) that in the hinder compartment an attendant can sit or stand to hold that monstrous umbrella over his head, or, when quick loading is required, take from his hand the gun just fired and recharge it. Those are advantages; otherwise the howdah is an abomination.—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Smart Boy.

"What are you doing, Freddie?" said the painfully smart boy's uncle.

"Drawin pictures on my slate."

"What is this supposed to represent?"

"A locomotive."

"But why don't you draw the cars?"

"Why—er—the locomotive draws the cars."—Washington Star.

Unable to Negotiate.

"Do you wish to engage a competent instructor," asked the man at the door, removing his hat, "to give lessons to any members of your family in music or German?"

"No, sir," answered the housewife. "I think not."

"Perhaps," he suggested after a moment's pause, "you could make use of the services of a teacher of dancing and physical culture?"

"I don't think I could."

"Or a private tutor in elocution?"

"No."

"I have had considerable experience as a teacher of Delsarte. Possibly I might make some arrangement for imparting instruction in this fascinating branch of"—

"I don't think you could."

"Madam," said the man, with a regretful sigh, "I am sorry we are unable to place this matter on a business basis. I have exhausted the list of professions or vocations in which I consider myself fitted to engage as a means of gaining a livelihood. As there appears to be no opportunity to exercise any of them for the relief of present emergencies, I am compelled to ask you, madam, if you will be kind enough to give me a plate of warmed over victuals?"

"I will not."

"May I inquire, madam, if anybody has previously tried to work this game on you?"

"I don't remember that anybody has."

"Then I must have struck a thundering poor neighborhood," rejoined the man, putting on his hat and turning away. "This is the sixth house I've run against in this block without hitting anything."—Chicago Tribune.

In Akbar's Palace.

In the royal "hall of repose" Akbar's colossal bedstead of red sandstone, with sculptured pillars, still occupies its accustomed place. Like David of old, the great Mogul climbed up into his bed, a broad flight of stone steps assisting him in this gymnastic feat, though a final leap was required to land him safely in the gigantic four poster. External stairs ascend to the red arcades and fantastic kiosks of the level roof, where shadowy cloisters offer cool retreats from the burning sun and extensive views of the surrounding country. Indigo, poppy, jute and tobacco alternate with the pale green of springing corn and the vivid emerald of waving rice.

The metallic tints of castor oil plants glisten against the black belts of jungle, and innumerable tombs dot the wide expanse of rolling plain with gray domes and pillared porticoes, for northern India, like ancient Egypt, is thickly strewn with memorials of departed greatness. The blue waters of the Jumna flow in a shrunken current through a waste of sand, and the scene, though destitute of actual beauty, suggests the impressive idea of infinity which is only conveyed by a level landscape viewed from a lofty height.—All the Year Round.

THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL.

Digest of His Holiness' Address to American Catholics.

Special to the Times.

ROME, Jan. 29.—Pope Leo XIII. has issued his Encyclical to the American people.

He reminds them of the planting of the cross upon America by Columbus, the evangelization of the savages by Jesuits and Dominican missionaries and the friendship of George Washington for the first Catholic Bishop and proceeds to deal with the relations of Church and State. In regard to this the document says:

That it would be erroneous to conclude that the type of the most desirable status of the church is to be found in America or that it would be universally lawful and expedient for Church and State to be dissevered or divorced as they are in America. Catholicity in America is prosperous, because she spontaneously propagates herself, but she would bring forth more abundant fruits if she enjoyed the favor of the laws and the patronage of the public authority.

The document then recites the motives leading to the establishment of the Roman Catholic University, Washington, and Mgr. Satolli's mission to America, after which it deals with the sacrament of matrimony. The firmness in principle and practice respecting marriage, which prevails among the Americans, is eulogized, and the statement made, that the indissolubility and unity of the marriage bond is the strongest bond of safety to the family and society, and that many who disagree otherwise with Roman Catholic dogmas, being terrified by the licentiousness resulting from divorce, admire and approve the Romanish teaching and customs in this regard.

The encyclical warns Catholics who enter societies lest while seeking aids for the promotion of their own interests they imperil far weightier interests. It asks them that at no time to be parties to the violation of justice and avoid those who are not steadfast for the right and friendly to religion.

Dealing with the press it speaks in no uncertain terms. It says that when writers presume to take bishops to task they are sowing the seeds of discord. The bishops are to be obeyed as well as revered.

CHINA'S RESISTANCE

Is Discovered at Wei-Hai-Wei—An Ineffectual Attack.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—The Times' correspondent in Shanghai says:—"According to Chinese official accounts, the Japanese troops, supported by the fleet, twice attacked the west side of Wei-Hai-Wei on the 28th and were repulsed. They threatened the east side on the 29th, but, finding the defenders prepared, they retired. They wished to attack the Che-Foo forts, but the foreign fleets prevented it."

THE DOG CAME BACK.

Relic of the Chicora—The Only Living Thing Saved.

Special to the Times.

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Jan. 28.—When the steamer Chicora went out of St. Joseph on her last trip there was a dog aboard. On Saturday the dog was brought into the city alive. The return of the animal indicates that the Chicora was within a half mile of the shore Tuesday night, the second night out. The place where the dog came ashore, Pottowattamee Park, is eight miles north of Benton Harbor. Many are inclined to think the vessel must have sunk not far from that point.

MINISTERS AT GALT

Address a Monster Mass Meeting of South Waterloo People.

Special to the Times.

GALT, Ont., Jan. 29.—The Conservative association of South Waterloo held their convention this afternoon in Preston, President Geo. Pattinson, of Preston, in the chair. A resolution of condolence was passed to Lady Thompson, also a resolution to Sir Mackenzie Bowell, expressing confidence in him as a leader. Mr. Geo. Clare, of Preston, received the unanimous nomination of the convention as a candidate in the next general election. The attendance was the largest in the history of the Conservative party in this riding. In the evening a monster mass meeting was held in the Town hall, Galt, addressed by the Hon. G. E. Foster, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. J. C. Patterson, Hon. J. Costigan, Hon. Clarke Wallace and Hon. Dr. Montague.

South Waterloo Conservative Convention

FISHING FOR COD.

A TRAMP PRINTER'S VOYAGE TO THE BANKS OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Fog and Fish Were Plentiful—Weird Sensations Experienced Alone In the Mist. The Dangers of Setting the Trawls Are Many and Serious.

There are few situations in life, however strange and precarious, in which the tramp printer is not to be found; but, save myself, I know of none that has been fool enough to try his luck as a "roustabout" on a banker or fishing craft bound for the "stormy Georgias."

One day, weary of the monotony of typesetting, I went on board the 108 ton sloop Trident lying off Spruce street wharf and was hailed by Captain Sam Macy, a tall, bony Yankee in red cap and rubber boots.

"Want to ship for the grand banks fur cod? Ever tried fishing, hey? Well, I want a 'gutter' and will give $22 a month. Get yer plunder aboard. We sail tonight."

So on a very cold and windy night the sloop passed Black light with a stiff wind astern. We had a crew of seven men, four of them Finns. After standing my watch I went into the little fo'cas'le. Going to bed on a banker means lying down on some one else. After a minute's trial I crawled from under a big Finn and finished my 40 winks on the wet deck, the waves flying over our low rail. For four days we did nothing but hold on, and after three days more jumping the seas the Trident anchored in Machias harbor, Maine.

Here we bought bait, caplin and mossbunker, broken up and barreled, and these covered our deck. Next it was "Ho, for the Grand banks!" and on the 30th of March the cry was "The banks on the lee bow!"

A cloud of gray mist, and this our vessel entered as through a gateway, and then it closed, so thick that the man at the wheel could not see the jib, 30 feet away. Groping our way, we anchored in 30 fathoms. Around us the toll of ship bells is plainly heard, and soon comes a hail. We are 40 yards away from old friends and yet cannot see them. Around us is one gray waste of water, breaking into short waves. The fog thickens, and in the northeast it is getting black, and by night the storm comes on, and for 40 hours we are fairly pinned to the deck by the wind.

It was my task to toll the bell. I grew dead weary and pulled the cord mechanically. How sweet to close one's eyes and dream! The sloop rises and falls with a lulling motion, and I am a thousand miles away. Suddenly a deep boom awakens me. All the crew rush on deck and unite in one loud yell, "What's the matter?" I see a huge black wall hanging over the sloop, a glare of scorching light and a rush like a million of Tartar cavalry. It is gone. Captain Macy walks aft and says: "A close call. You must keep your eyes open. That was a Cunarder, blast her!" An ocean liner had swept by us 50 feet to leeward.

And now we commenced fishing for cod. Each man had three lines, and these were pulled every minute, the fish released with a jerk and the hook baited and thrown in. The cook and I opened the fish and put a handful of salt inside, while the captain packed them away. The cold was intense, and so we worked for 18 hours, and then came dinner and supper in one. I was too tired to eat, although the food was good and plenty of it.

Then came laying the trawls, the most dreaded work of all. Two men get into a dory—double bowed skiff like a big dish—and lay out a mile of line baited and hooked every two feet. Ten feet from the sloop the mist closed around us like a pall. We had a compass, a keg of water and biscuit. After six hours' work we found the sloop and next day started again to overhaul the trawl—most exhausting work. One man hauls into the heaving boat the line. Halibut weighing 200 pounds are on the hooks, and these must be gaffed and as the boat rises hauled in, the boat gun'le under water. Often she upsets and then good by. Sometimes men lose their bearings, and ships often find the dories drifting in midocean, with the shrunken and blackened remains of the occupants in the bottom. For 28 days we worked, the only intermissions being when the storm swept down on us. Once a steamer passed so close that her wake dashed the white water over our boat. Every day hails came to us through the blinding fog. "Ahoy! Seen anything of our dory?" Captain Macy had lost three sons and a nephew on one voyage two years before and in the terrible "Lord's day gale," August, 1873, 800 of the New England fishing fleet were dashed to pieces.

On Sundays we rested, mended our clothes, smoked, spun yarns and slept. Nothing was more surprising to me than the strange shapes taken by the mist when blown by a gale. It rolled up like ranks of women with floating garments and trailing hair or swept by for hours the semblance of an army of horsemen breaking, uniting and again forming in ranks.

Our Finns were very superstitious and full of curious old sea lore. Every move of the fog and wind had a significance, and once the whole crew was raised to listen to the wail of women far off to the windward. Heard in the silence of night it was very impressive. It was seals coming from the north on floating ice.

Our cruise had been very successful, and our hatches were locked down over a splendid catch of halibut. So one morning we raised our anchor, struck our bell three times—the signal of departure—and this was answered, and under a chorus of goodbys the jib and mainsail were sheeted home, and in 20 hours the Trident entered Gloucester harbor. Our destination was New York, but I had had enough of it, so the captain paid me, remarking graciously "that I wasn't as big a fool as I looked."—Philadelphia Times.

Telegraphic Abbreviations.

Soon after the advent of typewriting machines in telegraph offices about five years ago senders of news messages began to abbreviate, and the manager of one of the news associations invented a code of abbreviations which is almost as intricate as the sign code itself. For instance, the sender telegraphs "hag," and the receiver writes it on his typewriting machine "in consequence of." Likewise "pes" means principles, "ayt" means anywhere, "auoby," authenticity; "sum," sales unimportant; "sbpun," small business, prices unchanged; "fpabnd," full prices asked, but no demand; "xr," exercise; "wam," with amendment; "uts," under the circumstances; twp," tomorrow afternoon; "pep," presented a petition; "ogt," on the ground that; "scotus," supreme court of the United States; "knw," adjourned sine die; "ehv," either of which; "ehx," committed suicide; "cbi," covered by insurance.—Troy Press.

A Wonderfully Liberal Offer!

Five Weeks for 10 cents.

A Trial Subscription for

THE NEW YORK LEDGER

Just to convince everybody before subscribing of the true merits of our beautifully illustrated journal, we will send the New York Ledger for

FIVE WEEKS FOR 10 CENTS.

These five numbers will contain the opening chapters of Paul Kemble's powerful and interesting story, "The Killuiles of Killail," also the opening chapters (with synopsis) of Seward W. Hopkin's story of the great strike in the Pennsylvania coal mines, "On a Criminal Charge." The other continued stories in these numbers are by Hall Caine and Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. In addition to the continued stories, these five numbers of the New York Ledger, contain short stories poems, articles on the topics of the day, a brilliant editorial page, a children's column, a correspondence and scientific department, a Woman's World page devoted to everything of interest to women including a pattern department worth to any woman many, many times the price of the Ledger. The following is a partial list of the authors who contribute to these five numbers:

Hall Caine, Seward W. Hopkins, Paul Kemble, Effie Adelaide Rowlands, Elizabeth Olmis, Mary Lowe Dickenson, Amy Randolph, Hon. Henry L. Dawes, Mary Kyle Dallas, Prof. W. W. Kennedy, William Elliott Griffis, D. D., Lieut. Frederick Schwatka, Oscar Wilde, W. Thompson and others.

This vast quantity of delightful reading matter of interest to all members of the family goes to make the New York Ledger the most perfect National Family Journal ever offered to the American people. Your Postmaster, your Subscription Agent or your Newsdealer will receive your 10c. for us for your Trial Subscription and send us the money—or you can send the money direct to us. Try it, and judge for yourself what a great paper the New York Ledger is.

A few young men of the town entertained their friends last night at Febert's Hotel, Chemong Park. About 50 young couple drove out, and all had a delightful time. A sumptuous supper was served and dancing was indulged in.

Another Case of Smallpox in Guelph.

Provincial Health Officer Bryce has been notified of another smallpox case at Guelph Experimental Farm. The patient was a daughter of Green, at whose house William Swartz, the student afflicted with the disease, boarded. The patient was removed to the city hospital.

A Good Plan.

Over in Ashburnham all applicants for charity have been supplied with snow shovels and set to work cleaning the side walks. There are about twenty-five at this work now. This is a pointer for the town charity dispenser, and one that should be acted upon at once.

Port Hope's Big Ball.

Invitations are out for a large ball to be given under the auspices of the "Gentlemen of Port Hope," in that town next week. The affair is the social event of Port Hope's society circles. Peterborough will be represented by quite a galaxy of ladies and gentlemen. It is probable that a special train will be arranged for.

McCarthy Coming.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy will address a gathering of his sympathizers and the public generally in the Opera House on the evening of February 8th. The gifted politician will be accompanied by Col. O'Brien and Messrs. Godfrey and Hunter, of Toronto, who will also speak. Further announcements will be made by street bills this week.

Amended Jurors Act.

A proclamation, dated January 24th, has been issued by the Provincial Government, calling into effect on the 28 instant the Act which was passed in the session of [illegible], and by which the number of grand jurors was reduced from fifteen to thirteen. The amended Acts directs that wherever the words "twenty-four" appear in schedule B of the Jurors Act, they shall be replaced by the word "thirteen," and also directs the reduction of the requisite number of jurors, as cited above.

Married in Keene.

A very large and pleasant affair took place in Keene last night, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Thomas Armstrong to Miss Aggie Miller, eldest daughter of Mr. William Miller. Mr. Armstrong is an old Ashburnham boy, while the bride is well known in town. About 200 invitations were issued and the gathering was both large and fashionable, quite a number from Peterborough attending. The newly wedded pair received a shower of congratulations and presents. They left immediately for points west.

A Noted Lecturer.

Mr. Alexander Sproule, J. P., brother of Councillor Sproule, of the Denemona House, Fintone Island, has returned to his native heath, accompanied by his daughter, and will spend the winter here with his father. Mr. Sproule is one of the nine [illegible] appointed by the Unionist party of Ireland, and holds a responsible position. He has been engaged to deliver lectures at several towns and cities in the Province—one in Toronto. Mr. Sproule is one of those rare gentlemen who are ever on the lookout for a chance to do good. The proceeds of his lectures have always been devoted to charitable institutions and purposes. The proceeds of one lecture in Ireland netted £150 sterling. It has been suggested that Mr. Sproule give a lecture in Peterborough, and he is not averse to the proposition, provided the receipts are contributed to some deserving cause or charity. It is to be hoped some of the charitable institutions will arrange with Mr. Sproule to have him lecture in his native town.

LITTLE LOCAL LINES.

Items of Interest Intelligently Presented for Busy Readers.

Everything quiet in police circles.

The Board of Education will meet tonight.

The Sons of Canada held a meeting last night.

Peterborough lodge, I.O.O.F., will meet tonight.

The Ashburnham Council will meet on Monday night.

The Marine Minstrels give a performance in Lakefield tonight.

Sergt.-Major Rundle has opened a school of callisthenics in Ashburnham.

Tomorrow night a social and oyster supper will be held at Downer's Corner's.

Mr. E. A. Kemp has invented and will patent a device for holding street car tickets.

WEDDING BELLS.

Mr. Alfred Parker and Miss Minnie Friee United in Wedlock.

A very pretty wedding took place at 9 o'clock yesterday at the residence of Mr. John Friee, McDonnel street, when his fourth daughter, Miss Minnie, was joined in holy wedlock to Mr. Alfred Parker, the well-known and popular proprietor of the Peterborough Dye Works. The Rev. W. R. Young officiated.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Lillian Friee, while the best man was Rev. D. G. Harrison, of Albert College, Belleville. The bride wore a neat travelling suit of grey material. The newly wedded pair were the recipients of many and beautiful presents. They are both well-known and popular in social and church circles. At noon they took the C. P. R. for Montreal and Ottawa.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Gossip of People You Know and Those You Don't Know.

Mr. C. D. Orde, of Lindsay, is in town today.

Mr. Philip Brown, of Madoc, is in town on business.

Mr. James McLean, of Port Hope, is at the Grand Central.

Mr. James McKee, Toronto, is stopping at the Grand Central.

Messrs. A. M. Hamilton and H. Bensley, of Warkworth, are in town.

Mrs. E. Corbin and son leave today for their home in London. Mr. W. S. Corbin has so far recovered from his severe illness that their presence is no longer necessary.

The following Torontorians are registered at the Snowden House: Messrs. J. M. Grover, B. Grose, W. T. Abell, Morgan Davis, George B. Woods and T. B. Frankish.

ANTITOXINE NOT NEW.

Inoculation by Poison Dates as Far Back as Mithridates, King of Pontus.

There is nothing new under the sun. Inoculation with antitoxine, it appears according to a learned and ingenious correspondent of a Munich medical journal, is by no means new, nor even modern, having been employed by no less a person than Mithridates, King of Pontus. The authority for their statement is the Roman naturalist Pliny, who relates that this monarch, for reasons known to himself was afraid of being poisoned, and therefore made himself proof against all such attempts by gradually accustoming himself to all known poisons, producing the state known from him as mithridatism. He was accustomed to make use of an antidote called mithridatism, whose principal ingredient was the blood of the Pontic duck, this creature having been chosen because it had the reputation of living on poison. Here, therefore, we have the case of the blood of an immune animal being used to make another animal immune.

SNOW BOUND.

Experience of a Party Forced to Remain on a Train 19 Hours.

The regular train due here on Saturday night at 10 o'clock was stopped at Garden Hill on the account of conductor Britton's train getting stalled near Dale. Beside the train hands there was on board Mr. and Mrs. Crossen, of Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. Bannerman, of Orillia; Mrs. Joseph Cooper, Port Hope; Mr. J. C. Moynes, of Belleville; Mr. N. Doody, of Cobourg; Mr. Joseph Little, Cobourg; Mr. R. G. Harris, Belleville, and J. B. Oke, of Port Hope. They were detained at Garden Hill 19 hours and to while away the time swapped jokes, told yarns, sang songs, etc. The life of the crowd was J. C. Moynes, of Belleville, the genial traveller for James McCready & Co., Boots and Shoes, Montreal. He kept the party in good humor. The travellers had breakfast at mine host Webber's on Sunday morning and in the afternoon William Campbell sent over to the party a large basket full of sandwiches and a pail of coffee that proved very acceptable to the half-famished crowd of delayed travellers. Mr. Campbell was voted a gentleman, and it will be some time before the acquaintance, formed under such unusual and discouraging circumstances, will be forgotten. "All is well that ends well," so writes the Bard of Avon, and it proved true in this instance, for late Sunday night those tired travellers reached Port Hope, glad to think that no mishap had happened to them.—Guide.

NOTES OF THE SPORTS.

The tankard competition has been postponed until Tuesday.

There were several "scratch" matches between the curlers on the rink last night.

There will be a contest on the rink today between the Belleville and Peterborough colts. The game will be very closely contested.

The Collegiate Institute's first team will play with the Volts II tonight on the rink in town league series. This will be the third match.

ALWAYS BUSY!

This store is blessed with plenty to do every day in the week and every month in the year. While you were Holiday shoppiug we were planning big surprises for January trade. And now that the WHITE GOODS SALE is well under way, we begin to plan for spring. No idle heels dangle over our counters. The entire organization is thoroughly wide-awake, and quicker than ever before to serve your interests acceptably.

We make business doubly active by anticipating needs, enlarging stocks and constantly adding such new goods as you seem to want. There's no limit to the possibilities of trade in this unpretentious building, and those who watch developements here will be more than surprised. Success grows with what it feeds upon, and when we emphasize trade activity in January, we force the momentum of busy days and quick sales right through the year.

WHITE GOODS SALE

We want everybody to know about it. Facts have already been printed which prove our right to your interest. When and where before have you known perfectly new goods to sell at bargain prices? Young Liberals Convention.

The Young Liberals Provincial Election will be held in Toronto on February 5th. About 150 delegates are expected from Guelph, Welland, Hamilton, Windsor, Sarnia, Brockville, Kingston and other places. Peterborough will be represented. It is proposed to provide for an annual meeting of a Federation of Young Liberals through which not only the policy of the party can be strongly placed before the country, but through which, also, after the manner of the National Liberal Federation of England, reforms can be agitated for.

A Snow Tunnel.

Since the big snow storm "snow drift yarns" have been going the rounds. Conductor Morris has a good one which he has been springing on his credulous friends. The genial "Con" says that about four miles from town on his run, the snow plough encountered a huge drift, some 25 feet high. It was impossible to move this big pile of the beautiful, so the plough and engine bored through it, creating a passage which has been enlarged by each passing train. The snow has hardened and become compact, forming a veritable snow tunnel on the top of which the small boy drags his sled and slides down the sides.

How C.P.R. Treats Passengers.

The passengers on the C.P.R, east, who left Toronto on Friday night and who have returned, are loud in their praises of the treatment accorded them by the C.P.R. authorities on Saturday when they were delayed by snow storms on the line. On Saturday when they awakened they expected to be in Ottawa but found themselves only at Myrtle. Soon after they reached Peterborough, where a first class breakfast was brought aboard the train and served up, and at Smith's Falls, which they reached in the afternoon, an excellent meal was provided in the refreshment rooms there, and the passengers entertained by the company. They reached Ottawa before 6 o'clock.

Schooner Starling Burned.

The brilliant reflection in the sky in the vicinity of Gooderham's distillery at about 11 o'clock last night led many to believe that Toronto was visited by a third big fire and a large number of people hastened to the foot of Cherry street, where the schooner Starling was ablaze. Captain Michael Mullin and his wife, who live aboard, left the boat at 7 o'clock to visit friends up town, and on their return found their vessel on fire. An alarm was given from box 214 and on the arrival of the firemen the flames had gained considerable headway. It was an hour before the blaze was extinguished. The schooner Starling hails from Belleville, Mrs. Mullin of that place being the owner. The value of the boat was about $4,000, which will be a total loss, as there is no insurance.—World.

Mr. Cavanagh's Case.

It will be generally regretted when it is learn that in the case of Timothy Cavanagh, no appeal can be taken from the Magistrate's decision. Mr. Cavanagh was liberated under the misapprehension that an appeal could be entered. In consequence he will have to serve the term the Magistrate imposed. The police have been notified by Sheriff Hall to apprehend Mr. Cavanagh on sight. Had the Chief of Police allowed the conviction to go as a first conviction, as a less vindictive person would have done, Mr. Cavanagh's case would have been settled by the payment of a nominal fine, a punishment, which in effect would have carried out the intent and purpose of the law. There is a great deal of spite vented in the guise of duty. Mr. Cavanagh has the sympathy of a large number of citizens. To a man of his age, imprisonment means loss of health, perhaps permanently.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread-board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of these boards.

AWFUL OCEAN TRAGEDY.

THE STEAMSHIP ELBE SUNK WITH 350 LIVES.

Shocking Struggle for Life—A Survivors Story—Rescued by Plucky Fisherman—A Missing Boat—Passengers Supposed to be on Board.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The North German Lloyd steamer Elbe bound from Bremen for New York, was sunk in a collision with a small steamer fifty miles off Lowestoft early this morning. She carried 380 souls and but 21 survivors have been landed, but a few others may still be afloat in one of the ship's small boats. At 10 o'clock this evening the number of lives lost was given out as 350. The survivors of the wreck were landed at Lowestoft by the fishing smack Wildflower at 5.40 o'clock this evening. They are Stollberg, third officer; Neussel, first engineer; Weser, paymaster; Schultzees, Linkmeyer and Sitting, assistant paymaster; first chief and vice steward, Wenning, Singer and Seibert, sailors; Batko, ordinary seaman; Deharde, German pilot; Greenham, English pilot; Hoffman, of Nebraska; Eugen Schlegel, of Cleveland; Vera, Bolthen and Miss Anna Bueckert, passengers. Hoffman's wife and boy went down with the ship. All of the rescued were in a pitiable condition. The passengers were but half clothed, and their few garments were frozen stiff. Their hair was coated with ice. Anxiety and effort had exhausted them so completely that they had to be helped ashore. The officers and sailors were fully dressed, but their clothes had been drenched and frozen, and they had been almost paralyzed with the cold, and they had been ashore three hours before they had recovered sufficiently to

TELL THE STORY OF THE WRECK.

Their accounts agreed with the following points: The Elbe left Bremen on Tuesday afternoon. The few hours of the voyage before the disaster was uneventful. At 4 o'clock this morning the wind was blowing very hard and a tremendous sea was running. The morning was unusually dark. Numerous lights were seen in all directions showing that many vessels were near by. The captain ordered therefore that rockets should be sent up at regular intervals to warn the craft to keep out of the Elbe's course. It was near 6 o'clock and the Elbe was some fifty miles off Lowestoft, coast of Suffolk and the lookout signalled a steamer of 100 tons approaching. He gave the word and as a precaution the number of rockets was doubled and they were sent up at short intervals. The

WARNING WAS WITHOUT EFFECT.

The steamer came on with unchecked speed and before the Elbe could change her course or reduce speed notably, there was the terrific crash of collision. The Elbe was hit aft her engine room, when the smaller steamer wrenched away. An enormous hole was left in the Elbe's side. The water poured through [illegible] into the engine room in a [illegible] and the room filled almost instantly. The engines were stilled and the big hulk began to settle. The passengers were in bed. The bitter cold had prevented an early rising and only the officers and crew on duty were on deck when the ship struck.

TERRIBLE SCENE.

The shock and crash roused every body. The steerage was in a panic in a moment. Men, women and children, half dressed in their night clothes, came crowding up the companion ways. They had heard the sound of the rushing water as the other steamer worked off, and had felt the Elbe lurch and settle. They had grasped the fact that it was then face death with them, and almost to a man had succumbed to their terror. They clung together in groups, facing the cold and storm, and cried aloud for help or prayed on their knees for deliverance. The officers and crew were calm for a few moments. They went among the terror stricken groups trying to quiet them and encouraging them to hope that the vessel might be saved. It was soon apparent, however, that the Elbe was settling steadily. The officers were convinced that she was about to founder and gave orders to lower the boats. In a short time three boats were got alongside, but the seas were breaking over the steamer with great force, and the

FIRST BOAT WAS SWAMPED

before anybody could get into it. The other two boats were lowered at about the same time, and were filled quickly with members of the crew and some passengers, but the number was small, as the boats held only 20 persons each. The boat carrying the 21 persons who were landed at Lowestoft put off in such haste from the sinking steamer that nobody in it noticed what became of the other boat. The survivors believe, however, that she got away safely. They say that they tossed about in the heavy seas for several hours before they sighted the Wildflower. The little smack bore down on them at once and took them aboard. They were exhausted from exposure, and several of them were in a state of collapse and had to be carried and dragged from one boat to the other. Miss Anna Baucker,

THE ONLY WOMAN IN THE PARTY,

was prostrated as soon as they got clear of the Elbe. She lay in the bottom of the boat for five hours with the seas breaking over her and the water had been half covering her body. Although her physical condition was gone she showed true pluck, however, and did not utter a word of complaint, and repeatedly urged her companions not to mind her but look after themselves.

Hoffman's leg was hurt severely while changing boats. The survivors can't say too much in praise of the Wildflower's crew, who gave them every possible attention. Upon landing, the survivors were taken in charge by Bradbeer, the German consul at Lowestoft, who sent some of the sailors home and others to the Suffolk hotel. Miss Bucker, who took passage on the Southampton, will probably be able to go to London in a day or two.

AN OFFICER'S VERSION.

The third officer, Haltberg, says that he cannot explain the collision, and that it is unlikely that any adequate account will be obtained, as all the deckwatch on duty at the time were drowned. The captain was on the bridge when the collision occurred, and Officer Stollberg heard him shout in a loud, firm voice that the women and children were to be saved first. The captain's voice reached a considerable distance. His order was repeated by the chief officer and must have been heard by everybody on board. Officer Stollberg expressed the firmest gratitude to Skipper Wright and the crew of the Wildflower. The roughness of the sea, he said, made the work of rescue extremely perilous. The fishermen gave the survivors the use of everything aboard the smacks and fed and clothed them. There is some hope that the missing boat has been rescued, inasmuch as there were several smacks in the vicinity of the collision. Probably some women and children got into the missing boat. A number of persons were waiting in Southampton to take passage on the Elbe for New York. The Steamship Company has deferred until morning its decision as to sending the survivors to New York. The passengers on the steamship Fulda were intensely excited when informed at Southampton of the loss of the Elbe.

THE COLLISION.

The exact place of the collision is forty-seven miles southwest of the Hook Light ship. Mr. Neussell, the first engineer, told a Daily News reporter that it was only the position the vessel assumed when the water made its volume felt that prevented the launching of the boats. Despatches from Germany say that Bremen is in a state of consternation and the whole country is excited by the news of the wreck. The passengers come from all parts of the Empire. A steamer has been ordered sent from Lowestoft by the North German Lloyd to search for the other life boat.

THE UNKNOWN VESSEL.

A despatch from Amsterdam says the steamer Crathie, from Rotterdam for Aberdeen, has returned to Waasluis with her stern stove in. Her captain reported that about five o'clock this morning she collided with a vessel whose name he could not learn, some 30 miles from the Hook of Holland. It is supposed that the Elbe is the steamer in question. The Crathie was not leaking when she entered port.

A BIG BLAZE.

The Town of Coaticooke, Que., Wiped Out By a Disastrous Conflagration—Elora also Scorched.

Special to the Times.

COATICOOKE, Stanstead Co., Que., Jan. 31.—Conflagration here last night wiped out 20 stores. Loss about $100,000.

BURNING FOR HOURS.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Jan. 31.—Report from Coaticooke states fire broke out there at 2 a.m., and at 6 a.m. the business part of the town was almost entirely wiped out. Assistance has been sent from here. Fire was still burning at 8 a.m.

ELORA'S FLAX MILL BURNED.

ELORA, Ont., Jan. 31.—This morning, about 4.20, fire broke out in the flax mill, which with its contents were destroyed. The cause is unknown. The building was owned by the Grand River Manufacturing Company, and the loss is covered by insurance.

WAR TO THE DEATH.

Brooklyn Trolley Companies Have a Hard Time.

Special to the Times.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 30.—The strikers have appealed to the Attorney General to move for the revocation of the charter of the Brooklyn Heights Railway Co. for failure to operate their road. The managers of the road treat the matter lightly, saying that the men who ask the aid of the law are themselves lawbreakers, whose lawlessness necessitated the calling out of the National Guard. Discharged employes are each suing for one week's salary, and merchants want damages for loss in trade. Labor organizations have boycotted the cars; the grand jury is investigating [illegible] violations of the speed law; the Aldermen are seeking to oust the companies; the Board of Arbitration is reporting on the strike at Albany, and a committee from the Legislature is coming here to investigate. Twenty-two men were held for trial in the Police Court for various misdemeanours in interfering with the trolley lines. Troops scattered a mob on Fifth avenue, and several accidents resulted from inexperienced motormen.

Master Workman Connolly says the strikers are not beaten. Proceedings for a mandamus will also be taken against the Brooklyn, Queen's County & Suburban Railway Co., and the Brooklyn Heights Company must appear tomorrow before the Attorney General at Albany in an action to forfeit their charter. Warrants are asked for against officers of this line for violating the 10-hour law, an offence punishable by $500 fine or three months' imprisonment. The employees who threaten action number 1,000.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Desperate Affray Between two Manitoulin Island Farmers.

Special to The Times.

GORE BAY, Jan. 31.—Joseph Bailey, 22, attempted to murder Samuel Wright a few days ago by striking him on the head with an ax. Bad blood existed between the two owing to a law suit. Wright was at the house of James Benedict, township of Burpee, when Bailey, coming up, struck at him, the ax being buried in Wright's shoulder. The latter drew a revolver, when his assailant decamped. Bailey is under arrest.

USED GASOLINE

To Light the Fire—One Boy's Funeral is To-Morrow.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Jan. 30.—An explosion occurred at the Orphans Home last night, in which Willie Bush, a boy aged nine years, lost his life, and his brother, aged eleven, was fatally burned.

The boys attempted to light a fire with gasoline, when an explosion occurred. The report caused a stampede among the other children, but order was finally restored.

Willie Bush's clothes were burned from his body, and his body burned to a crisp.

SUFFOCATED AND FROZEN.

Mother and Son Found Dead in Their Beds at Strongsville

Special to the Times.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 31.—The bodies of Mrs. Verona Musiat, aged 60 years, and her son, Roman Dreher, 30 years old, Poles, were found frozen stiff in their beds in a small farm house at Strongsville to-day.

They had been dead since Sunday, and the remnants of a charcoal fire in an open furnace in their room indicated that they were suffocated.

AN AWFUL EXPLOSION.

A Boiler in a Power House Bursts Killing Two Men.

Special to The Times.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 31.—A boiler in the Denver Tramway Company's Lawrence street power house exploded late last night, killing two men outright and severely injuring five others, one of whom will die.

The exploded boiler blew over five hundred feet and the force of the explosion wrecked the entire building, destroying property valued at $100,000.

A CUSTOMS SENSATION.

CHARGES AGAINST A PROMINENT DEPARTMENTAL OFFICER.

The Allegation is Misappropiation of Rather an Insignificant Sum of Money—Mr. T. J. Watters Served with a Warrant.

Special to the Times.

OTTAWA, JAN. 31.—If a bomb had exploded at his feet as he sat in his office in the west block at five o'clock last evening Mr. Thos. J. Watters, the acting commissioner of Customs, could not have been more astounded than when he was confronted with a warrant for his arrest.

Nor would the news that Mr. Watters had been the victim of a fatal explosion have caused a more painful sensation in the community than did the report of the arrest. For like all ill news it travelled apace, and in a few hours was the subject of discussion in club, social and business throughout the town.

The warrant was served upon the Commissioner by Inspector O'Leary, of the Dominion police. It was based upon information formally attested to by his chief, as is usual in such cases. The information set forth the charge that the Acting Commissioner of Customs had appropriated to his own use something in the way of $500 of the money of that institution.

Mr. Watters telephoned to his counsel, Mr. A. Ferguson, Q. C., and the three proceeded to the office of Magistrate O'Gara, where bail bonds were made out. The sureties were the Commissioner himself in $2,000 and Messrs. James Isbester and Joseph Kavanagh in $2,000 each.

THE CHARGE.

To understand the nature of the charge it is necessary to state that for some years past Canadian customs officials have been stationed at different points in the United States for the convenience of Canadian railways having termini there. For instance two officers are stationed at Chicago, one at the Grand Trunk depot and the other at the C. P. R. (the Wabash). These officers do the work which would otherwise be done at the frontier, that is they examine the baggage of passengers destined for Canada and obviate the necessity of the travelling public having often to be awakened from their sleep at night in order to open their baggage. The scheme works well and has been found to be of great convenience and advantage.

THE OFFICERS' SALARY.

Inasmuch, however, as this is done for the convenience of the railway people and their patrons and has necessitated the duplication of custom officials, it has been held that the salaries of these officers stationed at Chicago should be paid by the railway companies. The officers, however, being Canadian custom officials, are paid directly by the department, not by the railway companies. The railway companies remit the amounts to the department and the specific charge against Mr. Watters is that since January, 1894, he has appropriated to his own purpose, or failed to account for, certain cheques forwarded to the department by the Wabash Railway Company, the United States agents of the C.P.R. The total sums amount to $513.

Mr. O'Gara, police magistrate, was at his office until after six o'clock last night, when Mr. Hogg, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Watters, Mr. J. Kavanagh and Mr. J. Isbester waited upon him. Mr. Watters offered bail in $2,000 himself and Mr. Isbester and Mr. Kavanagh $1,000 each. The bonds were considered satisfactory, and this morning Mr. Watters will appear in the police court to answer to the allegations made against him.

WHAT MR. WATTERS SAYS.

Seen last evening by a Citizen reporter, Mr. Watters said: "The whole affair has come upon me as an utter surprise. I have simply to say that I deny the allegations most emphatically. Every dollar of Government money which I have received has either been deposited to the credit of the Receiver General or at any time [illegible] amount was available for deposit. If the Government can show that they have ever lost a dollar there, I am at fault; but they cannot show it.

"I have handled thousands upon thousands of dollars of Government money, and it cannot be supposed for a moment, surely, that it would be considered worth the while of a man in my position to take $300 or $600 of government money. But," he added with just a slight touch of bitterness, "I quite appreciate what is behind it all."

Except this, Mr. Watters said, he did not wish to say anything further.

The assistant commissioner will be at his office as usual today. It was said last night that an order for his suspension had been made by the Controller of Customs, but that Mr. Watters would not recognize such an order from any other than the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Of the six cheques aggregating the amount of $534 alleged to be in default three of them, it is said, were deposited with the Receiver General, some time subsequent to their receipt. This would leave three cheques for about $90 each to be accounted for, according to the allegations of the accusation.

RESIDENCE LIGHTING.

Progress of the Peterborough Light and Power Company, Ltd.

In June, 1892, this company first commenced supplying electric light to residences by meter, charging the price which was found to be usual at that time in other places of a similar size. On the first of January, 1893, the rate was reduced 25 per cent. in consequence of the increasing number of consumers, and at this rate the light was being supplied more cheaply in Peterborough than in Port Hope, Belleville, Kingston, Chatham or Hamilton. The number of consumers has since increased considerably, and on this account the Company are again able to make a reduction in their price; and with a view to induce a large number of people now using other forms of illumination to adopt the electric light, they have decided to allow a cash discount of 33 1-3 per cent. from all accounts for current supplied by meter in residences, on and after January 1st, 1895, if the monthly account is paid within the first ten days of the following month.

This reduction will make the price charged for lighting 10 per cent. lower than is charged in the city of Toronto, and 33⅓ per cent. less than charged in Montreal and Quebec, and should bring electric light within the reach of every household in Peterborough.

1600 Ice Cutters on Strike.

KINGSTON, N.Y., Jan. 31.—The first ice strike of the season of any proportion on the Hudson River is now on at Glasco, where about 1600 men have quit work, demanding an increase of 25 cents a day. The strikers held a meeting, and decided to visit the Knickerbocker and other houses and compel the men to quit unless they are receiving $2 a day for indoor work.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

GROWING IN POPULARITY.

THE SATURDAY TIMES is growing in popularity and its appearance is eagerly looked for. Last week the subscriptions poured in so rapidly from our agents canvassing the country villages, that a SIX THOUSAND edition was necessary. Early in the day the street sales became so large that it was necessary to start the presses again. The consequence was that instead of a six thousand edition as was announced for the benefit of our advertisers, this edition of THE SATURDAY TIMES was only a few hundred copies short of a TEN THOUSAND EDITION. The special features are selling the paper. In this connection the public will understand that we have only commenced to push THE SATURDAY TIMES to the front and that each edition will be an improvement on the preceding one. This week the special features will be particularly interesting—something new in the line of local hits. The edition will be fully 8,000. This is a pointer for advertisers who will do well to watch us as we progress and extend. Look out for the announcement of what the next issue of THE SATURDAY TIMES will contain.

The Toronto Star says: "It will be an outrage if with the material at hand the Council goes outside of Toronto for a chief for the fire brigade." And yet in Peterborough a few years ago we imported a bran new chief of police, while scores of better men were anxious to take the job for hundreds of dollars less. All of which goes to show that home production is the best.

Uncle Sam's financial condition is one of chronic disorder nowadays, and there seems to be good ground for the fear that if he doesn't keep a sharp eye on himself he will wake up some of these mornings to find that he is being sold out by auction. With the politician pulling in various directions as a result of sectional interests there is not much hope of the U. S. currency system being put on a satisfactory basis for some time at any rate.

Massachusetts is struggling with a novel question relating to the durability of the ink recently furnished the various state departments. The best ink was contracted for, but the article furnished is found to ferment in the inkstand and to evaporate rapidly, leaving a sediment. One report is that the ink has been tampered with by a disappointed firm of contractors. The state chemist has been on to make an analysis, and the manufacturers also have employed an analyst, so a battle of the experts is the next thing in order.

The new magnet constructed by Col. King will hold 24 tons weight. It is 17 feet long and four feet in diameter. All iron within its magnetic field becomes magnetized, and five cannon balls, each weighing 325 pounds, are held suspended from its muzzle, one clinging to the other. Iron chains hanging near became rigid, and a swinging block a few feet off, by reason of its suspended iron hook, was drawn to the magnet and held against all efforts of the workmen to remove it. The heaviest crowbar brought near will at once fly to the magnet, and drag with it strongest man if he persists in clinging

TEMPERANCE & GENERAL

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Synopsis of the Annual Report Which Was Submitted at its Annual Meeting on 23rd inst.

(Detailed reports can be had on application at head office or to any agent of the Company.)

The report shows an income from premiums after deducting payments for reinsurance of $129,199.34, and from interest of $13,475.72, being an excess in total income of $16,020.84 over the previous year's income.

The net death losses were 16 for $22,099, which was a loss rate of 3.8 of the average number of lives at risk, and $4.03 per $1,000 of the average amount of insurance in force.

Briefly stated, the company's cash income for the year was $142,675 06, while its net death losses, payments for surrendered policies and expenditures for all other purposes amounted to $86,881.92, leaving the handsome sum of $55,793.14 from current cash income for permanent investment.

Referring to its assets, the report says: "We did not have a single dollar's worth of real estate on our hands or a single dollar of interest overdue and unpaid.

"Our assets at the end of the year amounted to $365,566.71, being an increase of $67,144.38 over what they were at the end of the previous year."

The liabilities were $284,826.99, being an increase of 47,467.03 over the previous year. This was an increase of 41.5 per cent. more in assets than in liabilities.

One thousand eight hundred and thirteen applications for $2,100,000 of insurance were received, and 1,634 for $1,883,725 were approved.

At the close of the year the Company had 4,793 policies in force on 4,519 lives for $5,877,958.51 as follows: There were 3,650 policies in the Temperance Section for $4,256,879.51 and 1,143 policies in the general section for $1,621,079.

A division of surplus to the amount of $6,726.44 was recommended to take place amongst the policies entitled thereto, those in the Temperance Section being entitled, according to the experience of the Company, one-third more on similar policies than those in the General Section.

A dividend of 5 per cent. was declared on the paid-up capital.

The concluding sentences of the report are as follows:

So far this year, not only has the payment of our outstanding and deferred premiums been more prompt and satisfactory than in any previous year, but the amount of new insurances applied for has also been in excess of any previous year's record.

We have pleasure in referring again to the loyalty and efficiency of all the members of our office and field staff. They have our fullest confidence and deserve our highest commendation.

Independent audits have been regularly made by the Company's Auditor, and by the Auditing Committee of the Board, whose certificates are attached to the Finance Statement, and are warrants for its correctness, and for the correctness of our accounts.

By Section 9 of our Act of Incorporation, all the Directors retire, but are eligible for re election.

Dubuque county, Iowa boasts the possession of the most unique subterrenean lake in the world—an underground body of water with a bottom formed throughout of pure crystals of lead. The farm upon, or rather under, which this curious lake is situated is near the city of Dubuque, in the heart of the lead regions which made that portion of the Northwest Territory famous before the opening of the present century.

A system of watch insurance is a new scheme of a firm of watchmakers in the United States. For $2 the insured's watch is put in good running order and kept so for one year. The insurance covers all ordinary risks of minor accidents, but of course, is hardly held to cover damages to a watch run over by a cable car. The scheme is the same as that of typewriter insurance, which has been in successful operation for several years. One company doing this business keeps in repair thousands of typewriting machines, cleaning them monthly, and supplying all worn or broken parts of the machine.

Twenty Thousand Roses.

There are nearly 20,000 rose trees in bloom now at Dunlop's conservatories Bloor-st. west, Toronto. Visitors are always welcome. Mr. Dunlop is proud of his establishment and takes pleasure in speaking of his beauties. He ships them by mail and express to all parts of Canada, and as these orders are filled direct from the trees, he guarantees them to arrive in good condition. Sale room, 445 Yonge-st., and 5 King street west.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!

SYMPTOMS—Moisture, intense itching and stinging most of the night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. dele

TROUBLE MADE HIM ILL.

ANNIE GRAHAM'S SEPTUAGENARIAN DUPE A SICK MAN.

Dempster Will Secure the Return of the Deeds Obtained from Him—The Woman's Alleged Accomplice Not Yet Caught.

Special to the Times.

BROCKVILLE, Jan. 30.—James Dempster, the New Dublin farmer who was inveighed into a marriage with the wife of Jame Dowsley and induced to deed over his property to the woman, is a very sick man according to his medical attendant. Yesterday he positively refuse to take any more medicine, on the plea that it was too strong for his stomach and "bloated him up with pains." Enquiry revealed the fact that he had eaten a whole apple pie, three apples, a lot of meat and vegetables, some cake and fruit, and imbibed a quart of soup, all within a few hours. He made it a point of etiquette to eat all and everything supplied him. His attendant said he ate more than a shantyman, and would have it. Measures have now been taken to cut off the supply and the attendant has orders to prevent entry to the house of all provisions except such as he orders himself.

DIDN'T GET THE DOLLAR.

Mr. Dempster talks freely of his lat adventures. As stated in a previou despatch Provincial Detective Greer recovered for him the deed of the farm which he executed to his supposed wife, and the lease from her to him. The papers were in the hands of Messrs. Hutcheson and Fisher, barristers, Brockville, who delivered them up on demand.

The deed is made in duplicate upon regular printed forms, dated Dec. 5, 1894, signed by James Dempster, and witnessed by W. A. Williamson. It covers the whole farm of 97 1-4 acres, with the exception of half an acre and two acres previously sold. The consideration mentioned is "the love and affection which the said party of the first part bears to his wife, the party of the second part, and the sum of one dollar."

Mr. Dempster says that the love and affection part was all right at the time, "but damn the dollar I ever got, d'ye see."

A UNIQUE DEED.

The deed, it appears, was signed by Dempster in his own house, and was an absolute conveyance of the land to "Mary Ann Dempster." Then she executed what purported to be a life lease of the land to him. The lease bears the same date as the deed, signed and sealed, and witnessed by W. A. Williamson. It is a masterpiece of composition in the way of showing how a party of the first part could turn the property over to a second party and at the same time retain full control and possession of it. After describing the parties and the land in regular form, the document goes on: "The said party of the first part hereby leases and by these presents doth lease unto the said party of the second part all the above described property, to have and to hold during his natural life. The said party of the first part is to have the use of the farm and is to run it or farm it in a good husband-like and careful manner and allow the said party of the second part to have the privilege of working or not as he sees fit, and to enjoy the same privileges about his home and farm as heretofore, as far as having a good comfortable home and living. And if the said parties can agree on selling the farm for the $75,000 they are to sell it. And the said party of the first part is to improve the farm and buildings as she sees it necessary and to furnish the money to do the repairing."

Under the lease Dempster's right in the land was dwindled to the mere privilege of "holding" it during his natural life and working or not as he pleased. While his wife was to do all the bossing in her "husband-like manner."

Williamson has not yet returned to Canada.

Mr. Dowsley-Dempster will be sentenced on Wednesday, the authorities having decided not to go on with the charge of conspiracy to poison in the meantime.

INDIAN LANGUAGES.

UNIQUE LIBRARY OWNED BY A WASHINGTON ETHNOLOGIST.

Evidences of Early Printing Done In Some of the Indian Tongues—Syllabary Produced by a Half Breed Cherokee—A Periodical Published by a French Priest.

Perhaps the most remarkable small library in this country is the property of James C. Pilling, the well known ethnologist of Washington. It is the largest existing collection of books in Indian languages, and of these languages there are no less than 55 in North America north of Mexico. All of them are distinct tongues, as different from one another as Chinese and English.

More than one-half of the 500 dialects into which the 55 languages referred to are divided are preserved in books. It is believed that the first book printed on this continent was in the Indian language—the "Nahuatl," published at the City of Mexico in 1539. The first Bible printed in America was in the Indian tongue—the celebrated Eliot Bible. This is one of the most costly of all rare books. About 40 copies of it were specially prepared, with a dedication to Charles II. One of these, in good condition, is now worth about $2,000.

The first printing done west of the Rocky mountains was in the Nez Perce language. It was a primer for Indian children, turned out from the mission press at Clearwater, Ida., in 1839. The press that did the work had been brought by the missionaries all the way from the Hawaiian Islands.

The first book printed in Dakota was a dictionary of the Sioux language, produced in 1866 at Fort Laramie. It was prepared by two officers of the United States army, Lieutenants Hyde and Starling, to pass away the weary hours during a long and cold winter at that lonely outpost of civilization. They were aided in the work by an intepreter and by the Indians who loafed about the fort. The type was set up by the soldiers, and 50 copies were struck off on a crude hand press. Only two copies are now known, one of them belonging to General Starling of New York, a brother of the author, and the other to Mr. Pilling.

The only existing alphabet that is the product of one man's mind and in which a literature has been printed was the invention of a half breed Cherokee Indian. His name was Se-quo-yah, and he had no education whatever, but it occurred to him that he could express all the syllables in the Cherokee tongue by characters. Finding that there were 86 syllabic sounds in the language, he devised for each one of them a peculiar mark. For some of the marks he took characters of our own alphabet, turning them upside down. With these symbols he set about writing letters, and by means of them a correspondence was soon maintained between Indians of his race in Georgia and their relatives 500 miles away.

At present this alphabet, or, more properly speaking, syllabary, is in general use among the Cherokees. In no other language can the art of reading be learned so quickly. Whereas a fairly bright child learns to read well in English in 2½ years, a Cherokee youngster is able to acquire fluency in reading books written in this syllabary within 2½ months. In 1827 the American board of foreign missions defrayed the cost of casting a font of type of the characters. The literature composed with them is now very extensive, numerous books and some of the newspapers of the Cherokees being published in the syllabary.

Later, in 1840, an improved syllabary was devised by the Rev. James Evans, a missionary among the Crees. It was phonetic, and the characters were simpler, being composed of squares and parts of squares and circles and parts of circles. The zealous clergyman cut his type out of wood and made castings from the original blocks with lead from tea chests, which he begged from officers of the Hudson Bay company. He manufactured ink out of soot and on a hand press of his own construction printed many little tracts and leaflets for the benefit of the Indians. With some modifications his characters have come into general use not only with the Crees, but also among many tribes of the northwest which speak languages in no wise akin to that of the Crees, and scores of books have been printed in them.

The queerest periodical in existence is a weekly now published by a French priest at Kamloops, British Columbia. It is called the Kamloops Wa-Wa, which means "writing," and is in the Chinook jargon. This jargon is a sort of international speech, composed of half a dozen different Indian tongues, mixed with fragments of English, French and German. It is the language of trade intercourse among all the people of the sparsely settled northwest as far as Alaska.

The mission field of the holy father who publishes this periodical extends over about 500 square miles. Much of his time is spent in making long journeys between distant settlements, and during his pauses for rest on the way he amuses himself with editorial work. The weekly is written in three columns—the first column in jargon, the second in shorthand characters and the third in English. The matter is current news of the mission, sermons, prayers, etc. It is multiplied by the mimeograph and distributed among the priest's widely scattered parishioners. The paper on which the printing is done is blue, green, pink or yellow, according to the taste of the people who give it to the good father. The periodical is delivered free of charge, Mr. Pilling being in all probability the only paying subscriber.

The jargon was started by the early white explorers who visited the Pacific coast. Lewis and Clark, the first adventurers in that direction, were followed by the people of the American Fur company, sent out by John Jacob Astor. The passing of these commercial travelers among the tribes of Indians resulted in a composite vocabulary, which is now used by people who speak 20 different languages, not one of them like unto another. Yet they understand this common business tongue, which in a manner corresponds to the Asiatic "pigeon English." Every Washington and Oregon man talks Chinook.

One Way.

Lawley saw the following advertisement in a newspaper: "Send a shilling, and we will inform you how you can make half a sovereign a day."

He sent his shilling, and this was the information he received in return for his money, "Insert an 'ad.' like ours in the papers and get ten fools like yourself to answer it."—London Million.

Conjugal Bliss.

(After six months.) "My dear, you drive me to desperation with your jealousy."

(After a couple of years.) "Charles, you drive me to desperation with your indifference."—Parti National.

How They Are Recovered at the Postoffice—An Interview With a Man Who Is the Most Patient Listener and Explainer In the Metropolis.

"Dropped into a letter box by mistake?" the bureau of information man in the postoffice repeated. "Room 14, second floor."

"Is that the regular course for the public?" he was asked. "If any citizen drops an article into a letter box accidentally, must he go to room 14 to recover it?"

"Yes, sir. You're on the right track," the information bureau replied. "The man naturally comes here first to make inquiries, and I direct him to room 14, and there he finds out all about it and recovers his lost article."

Room 14 is under the charge of Mr. A. Firmin, who is probably the most patient listener to explanations and answerer of questions in the city of New York. He has need of great patience, for it is a poor business day when 100 persons do not open his door and ask how they are to recover something that has been dropped into a letter box. The number is more likely to be 200.

"It is absentmindedness that makes this department necessary," Mr. Firmin said, "absentmindedness on the part of the public. Give a busy man a cuspidor at one side of his desk and a wastebasket at the other side, and how many times a day will he throw his lighted match into the wastebasket and toss scraps of paper into the cuspidor? Possibly you may have noticed that with a bottle of red ink and a bottle of black ink before you side by side the black pen steals into the red bottle more than half the time. It is just so in mailing letters. A man holding in one hand a letter to be mailed and in the other hand carrying a small parcel to be taken home approaches a letter box. He is almost certainly thinking of something else, and he mails the parcel and walks off with the letter.

"That happens 50 times a day in this city," Mr. Firmin continued. "The first thought is that the parcel is irretrievably gone, for the letter box can be opened only by the carrier, but if it is a valuable parcel, worth the trouble of a journey to the postoffice, the absentminded man soon concludes that there must be some way to recover it. He applies at the bureau of information and is directed to me, and within a few hours he has his parcel again.

"You saw the account a few days ago of an office boy who accidentally dropped a $900 check belonging to his employer into a letter box? That was not an exceptional case at all. Such things are happening every day. The boy was frightened because he lacked experience. If it had been the employer himself, he would merely have come here and made his statement, confident that in a short time his check would be returned to him.

"We had a much more important case than that a short time ago. At 2:30 in the afternoon a carrier brought in a certified check for $10,000 that he had found loose in a letter box. Five minutes later an almost crazy man rushed in to see me. He explained as soon as he was able that he had carried the check in the same hand with a letter to be mailed and had thoughtlessly dropped them both into the box. He had no fear of losing the check. It was time that worried him. His affairs, he said, were in such a state that it was positively necessary for the check to be deposited in bank before the close of banking hours. He had then about 20 minutes left. He gave an accurate description of the check and identified himself fully, and he got it into the bank in time.

"One night a sailor who was doing the town found the Bowery whisky overcoming him and dropped his silver watch into a letter box for safe keeping. Soon afterward he was comfortably asleep in the gutter, but when he got through with the police court next morning he came down to the postoffice, described his watch and got it. Watches are frequently found in the boxes; so are rings and other articles of jewelry. Money is found oftener than anything else, except loose stamps. They drop out of letters that have been mailed. We average about ten letters a day that have been mailed without any address and 20 postal cards.

"Many inquiries are made for money supposed to have been lost in the mails that has never been mailed. It is a very easy matter to write 'inclosed please find so many dollars' and then forget to inclose the dollars. The addressee comes here post haste to make inquiry and complaint and often learns by the next mail that his money was not sent. These instances of absentmindedness, one would think, could not possibly happen in a metropolitan newspaper office, but the newspaper offices have to thank us for a great many lost articles returned. Work is done in a hurry in a newspaper's mailing room just before daylight, when the wrapped papers are flying into mailbags. Small articles must keep out of the way, or they are likely to be mailed with the papers. You would be surprised to see how many mucilage bottles, pairs of scissors, balls of cord, rulers, even hats, come to us every week in bags of newspapers from publication offices. But we know where they come from, and of course they are always returned.

"Recovering an article from a letter box is easily managed if application is made here at once before the carrier goes out again. Sometimes the article escapes even the carrier's eye as he pours the letters from the box into his bag. When the application is made in time, it is no trouble to warn the carrier of the route and have him recover the lost article. But when the application is made after the carrier has gone out and after the contents of his bag have become part of a few hundred tons of other mail matter the clerks are given a great deal of extra labor."—New York Times.

The National Game In Florida.

They were doing their best, certainly they made noise enough, but circumstances were against them. When the ball came to the ground, from no matter what height or with what impetus, it fell dead in the sand. If it had been made of [illegible], it could not have rebounded. "Base running" was little better than base walking. Sliding was safe, but by the same token impossible. Worse yet, at every "foul stroke" or "wild throw" the ball was lost, and the barefooted fielders had to pick their way painfully about in the outlying saw palmetto scrub till they found it. None but true patriots would have the heart to try it. The first baseman, certainly, who had oftenest to wade into the scrub, should have received a consolation at the very least.—"A Florida Sketchbook," Bradford Torrey.

MYSTERIOUS RUBY.

SOME PECULIARITIES PRESENTED IN ITS STRUCTURE.

Corundum Crystals Which Form the Bases of Many Gems—Extraordinary Facts Connected With the Color of the Ruby as Explained by Professor Judd.

In an address before the Royal institution in London Professor Judd said that all the romance associated with famous jewels and their history is of insignificant interest compared with the fascinating actualities which science has discovered in regard to the wonderful gem family, the aristocrats of the mineral kingdom. Eight years ago England was excited over the annexation of Burma, and there were great expectations of what was to happen when the British capitalist got his hands on the celebrated ruby mines of that kingdom. Somehow or other these expectations have not been gratified.

The rubies are not forthcoming, but it is not to be presumed from this that Burma has enjoyed a false reputation for those remarkable stones of price. Professor Judd showed that, while the ruby and its near relations are found in many parts of the globe, it is in Burma alone that the gem is unearthed in its purest and most fiery form. The intense "pigeons' blood" color and peculiar "fire" of the Burmese ruby give it extraordinary value as compared with other red stones which come into rivalry with it, for under the name of "rubies" a great variety of gems not truly entitled to the name have in ancient and modern times passed muster.

The only substance which can truly be called "ruby" is pure, limpid, fiery red corundum. This mineral, corundum, is crystallized oxide of aluminium and forms the basis of nearly every gem (except, of course, the diamond) which we value for hardness, brilliancy and color. A crystal of pure red corundum we call a "ruby," a crystal of the blue variety is prized as a "sapphire," a green variety we know as an "emerald," and other tints are known as aquamarine, topaz and so on.

Corundum is found very widely distributed in the east, especially in Ceylon, Tibet and Afghanistan, and in the United States big masses of impure blood red corundum are found, from which isolated crystals can be cut and thus entitle the Americans to claim the ruby as a native product. There are a great many red rivals to the Burmese ruby, but with the exception of the red diamond none is so hard. They include the red spinel, the rose topaz, red zircon, rubellite—a form of tourmaline more prized in China than the ruby—and the various garnets. This quality of hardness is one of the most valuable features in the ruby, for it enables the gem to take a high polish. The diamond is of course harder, and it is interesting to note that one of the first products evolved from the electric furnace—a crystallized compound of carbon and silicon—is only less hard than the diamond itself.

The chief scientific interest of the ruby corundum flows from the extraordinary peculiarities of structure that it presents as well as from the mysterious qualities that determine its striking color. It is found in crystals of a great variety of shapes, but all having a tendency to the peculiar habit of growth known to crystallographers as "twinning." By testing crystals of corundum with polarized light its structure is found to be wonderfully complex, and under the microscope its exterior face is covered with a strange network of sculpture, indicative of molecular changes.

But probably the most interesting thing about the corundum crystal is the fact that it is nearly always found to have inclosed and surrounded some foreign body or other which lies imprisoned in it. Stranger still is the fact that these included foreign bodies lie generally disposed of in planes meeting each other at an angle of 60 degrees, the result being to produce the phenomenon of asterism, which is the term given to the white star of light which is observable on certain jewels cut with a rounded surface. Very frequently the imprisoned body is a minute bubble of gas or drop of liquid, containing sometimes little crystals of its own.

The microscopic cavities containing these things are often very numerous. For a long time the nature of the gas and fluid contained in the cavities remained a mystery. The English philosopher, Brewster, was induced to investigate the subject by hearing that a ruby which an Edinburgh jeweler had placed in his mouth had exploded while in that position, with unpleasant results. Other investigations followed, and it has now been made certain that the fluid is no other than liquid carbonic acid gas reduced to that condition by being under great pressure.

The color of the ruby is another of its mysteries, and one which Professor Judd was only able to touch upon slightly in his lecture. The color is distributed most irregularly, and some corundum crystals show in patches the tints of the ruby, the sapphire and the emerald all mixed up together. These colors are of course due to the special way in which the structure of the crystal deals with the light passing through it, the ruby absorbing all the rays except those which emerge to give it its characteristic color.

How greatly these colors depend on molecular and chemical changes going on in the crystal is obvious from the strange way some gems behave under light and heat. Professor Maskelyne mentions a diamond which, when taken out of the warm pocket and allowed to cool on the table, turned a beautiful red. Professor Judd startled his audience by declaring that the green glass panes used in the conservatories at Kew gradually changed through various shades of yellow to a distinct purplish hue under the prolonged action of light.

Rubies change their color in a curious way under the action of heat. Bluish rubies turn perfectly green, and on cooling regain their original tint. The blue sapphire turns white, and the yellow corundum crystal becomes green. Then there is the strange property of "pleochroism" in the ruby family and its kindred. They exhibit different tints, according to the size of the crystal you are examining.—Mineral Collector.

Will Know Better Hereafter.

It was Mr. Tankersley's first nomination for office, and he was unfamiliar with some of the time honored customs and traditions that pertained to the position he occupied before the community.

Hence it was that, when he had invited all the loungers in the saloon, numbering a dozen or so, to take a drink at his expense, he carelessly handed a $10 bill over the bar.

"Thank you, Mr. Tankersley," said the bartender, dropping the greenback into the till, placing his elbows on the counter and regarding the luckless candidate with amiable condescension.—Chicago Tribune.

TELLTALE TEETH.

Their Mute Evidence Brings Punishment to the Guilty Ones.

Late one evening a man walking along a lonely highroad was attacked by a ruffian. A tussle followed, and the man in his despair bit his assailant's left hand, while his small dog took a mouthful of the man's calf. Thanks mainly to the efforts of the valiant terrier, the ruffian had to release his victim.

The latter immediately informed the police what had happened, and two days afterward a suspicious character was arrested on a charge of highway robbery. The man denied everything, and as the night of the attack had been pitch dark he could not be identified by his looks. But there was a small wound in his left hand which looked as if it were the mark of a tooth. No, it was not, the accused man said stolidly.

"If he is the man," the victim suggested, "he ought to have the mark of my terrier's teeth in his leg." Three tiny wounds were discovered in the man's calf. He still denied the charges and told the story of a large watchdog that had bitten him. But the terrier's teeth were examined and found to match the wounds exactly. Whereupon the man was convicted.

A man who was accused of murder had wounds in his left hand. On being examined they proved to have been caused by human teeth of a rather peculiar shape. The murdered man's mouth was opened, his teeth examined, and the murderer stood convicted.

When the corpse of the Widow Cremieux, who was murdered at Neuily, was being examined, it was noticed that she had only one tooth in the upper and three in the lower jaw. A cast was taken of her mouth, and the four teeth were found to correspond exactly to the wounds in the left hand of the man who had been arrested on the suspicion of having committed the murder, but who so far had denied the charges brought against him.

When the mystery of the Gouffe murder was the one subject of conversation in Paris, a box arrived at the house of the murdered man's daughter at Lyons containing a corpse which was supposed to be that of Gouffe, but which was so far decomposed that it would have been impossible to identify it had not the daughter recognised her father by the unusual formation of his teeth.

A rich banker had been found murdered in his house at St. Petersburg. There was no clew whatever, but in the room where the murder had been committed was found a cigar mouthpiece containing part of a cigar of so expensive a kind that the detectives were led to believe the banker had been smoking it just before the crime had been committed. On closer examination it appeared that the mouthpiece was worn away at the end by the teeth of its owner.

The murdered man's teeth did not fit the curious indentation, but when the servants were one by one examined the cook was arrested on the strength of the hollows in the mouthpiece corresponding exactly to the formation of his front teeth. No suspicion had fallen on the man before this discovery was made, but he confessed to the murder soon after Physiology and Fatness.

Mr. Veryfresh—I weigh 154 pounds, and do you know that in a person of that size analysis has shown that there are 96 pounds of water, 3 pounds of albumen, less than 1 pound of pure glue, 34½ pounds of fat, 8½ pounds of phosphate of lime, a pound of carbonate of lime, 3 ounces of sugar and starch, 7 ounces of fluoride of calcium, 6 ounces phosphate of magnesia and a little salt. What do you think of that?

Miss Keene—I think it is all right except in this instance in the matter of the last item.—Detroit Free Press.

A Rhine Custom.

A custom that has existed for several centuries is still maintained in some towns on the lower Rhine. On Easter Monday—auction day—the town crier or clerk calls all the young people together and to the highest bidder sells the privileges of dancing with the chosen girl, and her only, during the entire year. The fees flow into the public poor box.

MAN AND BOY.

The Chief of Police Roughly Handled by a Youth of Twenty.

Peterborough's Chief of Police, a man supported by the corporation, and who himself supports a "corporation" indicative of much strength, but which, seemingly, is misleading, made a fine record for himself yesterday. He made a record and also broke a record, the latter feat being evidenced by the fact that he actually went alone, absolutely unattended by any of his staff, to make an arrest.

Sometime yesterday J. Steele, barber, made complaint at headquarters that a pair of clippers, used in cutting close to the cranium refractory hair, had been surreptitiously taken from his shop. Early in the morning two young men had entered his shop, and after they had left he missed his hair mower. Mr. Steele's tonsorial emporium is located adjacent to the Carew House, and upon enquiries he learned that the same youths had been in that hostelry shortly before entering his place, and that the Carew House was minus a bottle of seven-year in-the wood whiskey, the disappearance of which could only be connected with the young men.

The brave chief immediately essayed to track and capture the thieves, and, strange to say, soon located them in a hotel where they were imbibing unlimited quantities of corn-juice. They were recognized as Fred Baker and Frank Tully, well-known youths about town. Tully immediately bolted, and the chief turned his attention to Baker, whom he endeavored to arrest and take to the cells.

And then happened an encounter that called forth the jeers of the crowd which soon gathered. Baker, who is only 20 years of age, and slimly built, proved the toughest customer the chief ever tackled. He fairly walloped the street with the big burly man of 220 lbs avoirdupois, and the latter realizing that his strength was inadequate to the task, called for assistance in the name of the Queen, and in Her Majesty's name a by-stander interfered and Baker's arrest was accomplished. Then Right Bower Stewart appeared and took the lad in charge, landing him safely in the cells. Tully was captured later on and both will have a hearing this morning.

The chief's coat was badly torn in the fray. Baker used his tongue pretty freely and hurled taunts at the big policeman. "It will be something for me to say," he said "that I, a boy, prevented you from arresting me," and Baker is right.

WEDDING BELLS.

A Norwood Young Lady Well-Known in Peterborough.

Uptergrove, Ont., was the scene of a very pretty wedding on the 16th, when Miss Carry B. Renwick, formerly of Norwood, was united in the bonds of wedlock to J. P. Thomas, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. The groom was supported by the Rev. Dr. Crawford, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Miss Barbara Thompson assisting the bride. Rev. Dr. Bell welded the link that made them man and wife, after which he made a few well-chosen remarks. The bride and bridesmaid looked extremely pretty, and were, of course, the central point of attraction to the admirers of well-gowned womanhood.

After a very excellent entertainment at which the forty guests satisfied their inward craving for a manifestation, the wedding party drove away to Atherby Station and from there took the train for Toronto. The popularity of the bride and groom was well indicated in the many pleasant and handsome rememberances of which they were the recipients. They will make their home in Niagara Falls, where the best wishes of the Register and the bride's friends will follow them.—Norwood Register.

A PROSPEROUS CONCERN.

In another column appears a synopsis of the annual report of the Temperance and General Life Assurance Company, one of the most prosperous assurance company's in existence to day. The progress of this company during the year 1894, has been phenomenal, considering the prevailing hard times, and the managers and directors are to be congratulated upon the most excellent showing made. A perusal of this interesting report will show that the company's assets are of such a favorable character that it had not one dollar's worth of interest in arrears nor one dollar's worth of real estate on hand at the close of the year. The company has steadily and largely increased its business in every important respect, and its experience has justified it in paying one-third larger profits to total abstainers than to non-abstainers. The officers of the Temperance and General are: Hon. Geo. W. Ross, president; Hon. S. H. Blake, Q. C., and Robt. McLean, Esq., vice-presidents; H. Sutherland, manager; J. G. Begg, secretary.

Is it this Kelleher?

A few days ago THE TIMES published a letter from A. C. Schnell of Guthrie, Oklahoma, stating that one John Kelleher had died and left considerable property, which was waiting claim by his relations who were supposed to reside somewhere in the vicinity of Peterborough. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Whelan, of Lakefield, armed with the copy of THE TIMES, called at the police station for further information. She remembers a cousin named John Kelleher who left Canada years ago when a mere lad, and went to the States. He had not been heard from since. She believed his father to be the late Denis Kelleher, of Otonabee. She thinks he has two brothers in California, and she intends writing to them.

A Dangerous Spot.

There is a hole in Ashburnham bridge sufficiently large to admit a horse's hoof. It should be attended to at once. An accident was narrowly averted last night, a horse stepping into the aperture. It is a dangerous spot.

To Meet on February 21st.

The Ontario Legislature has been called together to meet on Thursday, February 21st next. The date was decided on at a meeting of the Council on Wednesday afternoon, and a proclamation will be immediately issued to that effect.

Dr. Ryerson Coming.

Dr. G. S. Ryerson, the well known eye, ear and throat specialist, of Toronto, will be at the Grand Central hotel on Saturday, February 16, where he may be consulted by those suffering from any affliction of those organs. Remember the date, Saturday, February 16th.

Married at Twilight.

On Wednesday evening, at the residence of Mrs. Bates, Stewart st., the marriage of Mr. Charles N. MacWilliams to Miss Jessie Bates was solemnized, the Rev. A. MacWilliams, of St. Andrew's church, officiating. A large number of friends of the bride and groom were present. Following the ceremony the party sat down to an enjoyable wedding dinner. The young couple received many costly presents.

A Good Tobacco.

Mr. W. R Fish, representing The George E. Tuckett & Son Co., tobacco and cigar manufacturers, Hamilton, is in town circulating among friends and calling on the many customers of his firm. Mr. Fish is introducing the Orinoco smoking tobacco, a new brand, which is fast becoming popular with smokers as an excellent tobacco. The product of this firm are all first class tobaccos giving splendid satisfaction and therefore find a ready sale.

A Dangerous Habit.

Some people have the habit when they go to the depot to see their friends off of accompanying them on board the train and remaining on board until the train is in motion and then having to jump off. The practice is a most absurd as well as a dangerous one, especially if there is a crowd. One evening lately a gentleman at Port Hope accompanied a lady friend on board and remained on board until the train was in motion, and in jumping off slipped and fell, and had one arm taken off by the train. Several other accidents of the same nature have occurred quite recently and should prove a warning to those who indulge in the silly habit.

"Henry B" Won

News was received last night that "Henry B," owned by Mr. H. LeBrun, won first money in the principal event at the Port Perry races yesterday, winning a purse of $150. There were 11 horses faced the wire, but they weren't in it with "Henry B" who made a clean run from start to finish, spurting in the stretch in a manner that won the admiration of the spectators. The track was in fine condition, very fast, and there was a big crowd in attendance. This was the first race and first time "Henry B" ever trotted for money. His owner is justly proud, but took it coolly—as he was not there. The horse trots again today.

MR. GARVIN DISMISSED.

HIS ENGAGEMENT AS INSPECTOR OF PETERBOROUGH SCHOOLS WILL TERMINATE APRIL 30.

Lack of Harmony Between the Teachers and the Inspector the Reason Assigned for His Dismissal—The Inspector Given a Hearing in Committee.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held last night, the Committee on Appointments brought in their report recommending the dismissal of Inspector J. W. Garvin, and put to a vote, it was adopted unanimously. Inspector Garvin's engagement will terminate on the 30th of April next.

There were present at the meeting Dr. Burnham, in the chair, and Trustees Hill, Hartley, Boucher, Ferguson, Hamilton, Edgecombe, McBain, Law, Wrighton, Denne, and Hayes.

Chairman Hill read the report immediately after the Board was called to order. He moved its adoption, and was seconded by Trustee Denne. The report read as follows:—

FRICTION IN THE SCHOOLS.

To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education :—

GENTLEMEN,—Your Committee on Appointments beg leave to report that a meeting of the Committee was held on the 18th day of January, inst., for the purpose of considering the relations at present existing between the Board of Education and Inspector Garvin.

It was felt by the Committee that it was absolutely necessary, in the interest of the public schools, that the Inspector and the Board should be able to work together in harmony, and that the constant friction which has existed for a very considerable time, and which has now become chronic, can only be terminated by Mr. Garvin's resignation.

The chairman of the committee was therefore directed to ask Mr. Garvin to hand in his resignation by the 31st instant, to take effect upon the 30th of June next.

A subsequent meeting of your Committee was held this evening for the purpose of further considering the matter, when it was decided, that whereas the Inspector has not handed in his resignation, though requested to do so by an all but unanimous decision of this committee, composed of the whole Board, that the Board be recommended, and the Committee accordingly do now recommend, that the engagement of Inspector Garvin be terminated upon the 30th day of April next and that notice to that effect be given to him according to the terms of his contract.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. H. HILL,
Peterborough, Jan. 31st. Chairman.

Before the report was passed Mr. James Stevenson moved an amendment in effect that owing to the necessity for cutting down expenses and a more economical course, Inspector Garvin be dismissed.

"I don't think economy has anything to do with this report," said the chairman.

"But I do," retorted Mr. Stevenson, independent of any opinion you may have, Mr Chairman. I think I am doing an act of justice in trying to place this amendment on the minutes, and if I can get a seconder, I want it put to a vote.

The amendment failed to find a seconder, and consequently was lost. The report was submitted to a vote and carried unanimously.

GIVEN A PATIENT HEARING.

Before the Board met in regular session, and at about 7.30 o'clock, the Committee on Appointments convened in the board room and gave Inspector Garvin a patient hearing. The latter spoke earnestly for nearly an hour, defending his course and the work he had done in the schools. This meeting was private and the reporters being excluded, the text of Mr. Garvin's remarks could not be learned, nor the deliberations of the committee. It is presumed, therefore, that the only charge against the Inspector is embodied in the committee's report.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

By Mr. H. Denne:—That the school account be offered to the Bank of Toronto for two years on the following terms, namely, That this Board shall have all necessary accommodation required either by over draft or otherwise at option of the Board. That the rate of interest charged shall not exceed five per cent. per annum, this offer shall be given by the secretary in writing and open for three days for acceptance after such notice. In case the Bank of Toronto does not accept them, the same offer shall be made to the Bank of Commerce in the same way and on the same terms and condition. In case either bank accept this offer the secretary and chairman of this Board shall be fully authorized to take all necessary steps to transfer the account and sign any or all documents or cheques necessary to complete the transfer.

The Board then adjourned.

A Metal Breadboard

THE WOMAN WHO HAS BEEN USED to kneading dough on the old fashioned wooden breadboard knows what a bother it is to get them clean and how cumbersome and heavy they are. When they begin to crack or check it is almost impossible to thoroughly cleanse them, and they may easily become dangerous conveyances of disease. It was left for a woman, of course, to remedy this state of affairs, and Mrs. M. M. Everhard, of St. Joseph, Mich., has patented a metal bread board, which is one of the greatest labor-savers imaginable. It is light, does not absorb grease, dough does not adhere to it, and while it possesses all the advantages of the marble bread board it is much cheaper and, of course, far lighter and easier to handle. If readers want to confer a favor upon their wives that will be forever appreciated, let them send $1 to the manufacturers, 101 Bay street, Toronto, for one of those boards.

ALL HOPE IS GIVEN UP

THAT THE ELBE'S SECOND LIFE-BOAT AND PASSENGERS ARE SAFE.

No Trace of It Can Be Found—The Number that Went Down is 303—The Crathie's Captain Tells of the Collision—Other Vessels Founder.

Special to the Times.

LOWESTOFT, Eng., Feb. 1.—It is still blowing hard and the terrific weather of the past forty-eight hours continues along the east coast of England.

Visits made this morning to all of the various life saving and coast guard stations show that no additional news has been received in regard to the loss of the North German Lloyd steamship Elbe, and no trace has been found of the missing life-boat supposed to contain survivors of that ill-fated steamer.

However, the sea is so rough that many of the fishing smacks are unable to make port, and are beating up and down the coast waiting on some chance to run into some harbor.

HOPE NEARLY GIVEN UP.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—At the North German Lloyd steamship offices this morning there was no more news of the Elbe.

Hope was all but given up for the people on the second boat. The officials do not think that the small craft could live in such a heavy gale or that the passengers could survive the cold and exposure.

The only hope was that they had been picked up by a fishing vessel.

THE CRATHIE'S CAPTAIN.

ROTTERDAM, Feb. 1.—Captain Gordon, of the British steamer Crathie, which is generally admitted to have been the vessel which ran into and sunk the Elbe, has made a statement to Lloyd's agent here in which he says he was knocked down by the force of the collision and that when he regained his feet the two ships were some distance apart and the Crathie was so damaged that he expected her to sink at any moment.

In spite of this, Captain Gordon added, he followed the other steamer but found that she went faster than the Crathie and so he thought the vessel she had collided with was safe.

ANOTHER HOPE SHATTERED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The custom of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, to which the steamer Elbe belonged, of selling tickets in Europe for America, which may be used on any of their steamers, gave rise to the hope here that some of the passengers who booked to sail on the Elbe might have taken passage on the Ems of the same line which sailed from Bremen on January 22 and arrived here last night. A careful comparison of the names on the Ems' passenger list, however, with those reported on the Elbe proved this hope to have been without foundation.

HAVE GIVEN UP ALL HOPES.

LOWESTOFT, Feb. 1.—In reply to a message of sympathy from Queen Victoria, the agent of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company has telegraphed to Her Majesty from here saying that no hopes whatever are entertained of any more of the passengers or crew of the steamship Elbe having been saved.

THE FULDA GROUNDED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The ship Fulda sailed from New York on January 22, bound for Southampton and Bremen. She arrived at the former port on Wednesday, January 30th, and, after landing the English mails and passengers, proceeded to Bremen and grounded while going up the river.

Tugs are alongside of her and she will probably float at the next high tide. There is no danger.

The Fulda was floated without any damage having been sustained and she proceeded to Bremen.

FOUNDERED OFF THE AZORES.

ST. MICHAEL'S, Azores, Feb. 1.—The British steamer Ituni, Captain Smith, grounded and foundered off this port.

The Ituni sailed from London November 20, for Demerara and put into St. Michael's in distress. Repairs were made and she proceeded on her voyage December 16, arriving at Barbadoes on December 28. She was probably on her return trip to London when the present disaster occurred.

The Ituni was a screw steamer of 779 tons net register. She was built at Newcastle, England, in 1884, and was 237 feet long, had 32.2 feet beam and was 15.5 feet deep. She hailed from London and was owned by the Demerara and Berbice Steamship Company (Limited.)

CARRIED HER PILOT ACROSS.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 2.—The Cunard line steamship Lucania, Capt. McKay, arrived this morning from New York and reports that light to strong gales and rough seas were encountered throughout the entire voyage.

Pilot Lyons, of New York, who could not be transferred from the Lucania to the pilot boat after the steamship cleared Sandy Hook bar on account of the dense fog which prevailed on the day the Lucania left New York, will return on the Umbria from this port on Sunday.

THE RIFONDO STRANDED.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 1.—The Norwegian bark Rifondo, Captain Olsen, from Savannah November 30th, stranded when entering twenty minutes after a collision with British on the North Sea.

Garston Harbor. A portion of her cargo is damaged.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The British tank steamer Beacon Light, Captain Anderson, from New York January 12th, arrived in the Downs today in tow for London. The Beacon Light had lost her propeller.

Quebec's New Treasurer.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—J. M. McDougall, of Hull, has been taken into the Quebec Government in place of John Hall, who resigned some time ago. He will contest Ottawa County, Mr. Tetreau retiring for a Government position.

Suffocated by Snow.

MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—Charles Gingras, a lad 13 years of age, was playing with several young friends in a snow hut, when the hut caved in. Gingras was a corpse when rescued.

Native Uprising in Africa.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 1.—Advices have been received here that the natives have plundered the town of Akassa, the headquarters of the Royal Niger Company in Africa.

Would Have Big Hats Illegal.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 1.—People laughed when Assemblyman Cutler introduced a bill aimed at the custom of wearing big hats at theatres. When first introduced the measure looked very much like a joke, but today the committee will report the bill favorably to the House.

DIAMONDS FOR PADEREWSKI.

The Steinways Paid for Cigarettes for the Celebrated Pianist.

Special to the Times.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The hearing in the Steinway injunction suit by which Henry T. W. Steinway seeks to enjoin the piano manufacturing concern of Steinway & Sons from using its funds for any purpose other than the piano-manufacturing business, is going on in the supreme court in this city. The plaintiff testified that excessive sums of money had been paid by the company for the improvement of property outside their piano business.

The company's books were introduced in evidence to show in what manner the expenditures complained of by the plaintiff had been made. After considerable argument some of the items were read and then the hearing was adjourned until tomorrow. Among the items read were these:

Cigarettes for Paderewski, $41.30.

"Dec. 31, 1891, two diamond studs for Paderewski, $270."

A CHIEF APPOINTED.

Hamilton's New Chief is Sergeant-Major Smith, of that City.

Special to The Times.

HAMILTON, Feb. 1.—The Board of Police Commissioners today unanimously appointed Sergt.-Major Smith, of this city, to succeed the deposed McKinnon as Chief of Police.

The other applicants were: Mayor A. D. Stewart, Sergt. Prentice, Major Van Wagner, Major Stoneman, Capt. W. G. Reid, Capt. E. G. Zealand, Capt. W. O. Tidswell, all of Hamilton; Capt. F. W. Brown, Sergt. Seymour, Geo. Tyler and James Macready, of Toronto; Stephen Burton, Belleville; Chief Rose, Brockville; Chief Vaughan, Brantford; Chief Randall, Guelph; Major Campbell, Collingwood, and Colonel Villiers, Winnipeg.

The salary was not fixed. Mr. McKinnon got $2,000.

SEVERE BLOW TO CHINA.

THE NAVAL STRONGHOLD WEI-HAI-WEI TAKEN BY THE JAPS.

The Celestials Trained by English Officers and Led by a Norwegian Officer Fought With Desperation.

Special to The Times.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Times correspondent in Tien Tsin says that all the southern ports of Wei Hai Wei were captured yesterday and that the telegraph wires were cut.

Wei Hai Wei, China's principal naval depot is situated in the province of Shan Tung, about fifty miles east of the treaty port of Chee Foo and thirty miles west of San Tung. It is a strongly fortified bay, sheltered on the north by Cape Cod and on the northwest by the Island of Liu Kung. Tao Wei-Hai Wei was at the beginning of the war the principal recruiting station for the men of the northern fleet. Lieut. Bouchier, formerly of the British navy, has been in charge of the recruiting and gunnery depots, and a Mr. Flerscher, superintends the torpedo practice, both afloat and ashore. The Chinese forces were carefully trained under rules laid down by Capt. Lang when he was the chief instructor of the Chinese navy.

The straits of Pee Chili, which are about fifty miles across in the narrow, adjoins the peninsula of Liau Tong from the northeast coast of Shan Tung and from the entrance to the Pee Chili and Tiau Tung, Peking, Tien Tsin and Taku are situated on the east coast of the former.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Daily News says: The commandant at Wei Hai Wei is Peter Neilsen, a Norwegian Naval Officer 31 years old.

MORE SMALLPOX.

A Three Year Old Girl Stricken With the Dread Disease.

Special to the Times.

GUELPH, Feb. 1.—Still another case of smallpox has developed here. Little May Macdonald, a three-year-old daughter of William Macdonald, dry goods man of this city, has contracted it.

Symptoms of the disease were shown on her yesterday and she was accordingly removed to the same quarters as Miss Mills, the other smallpox patient.

It appears she contracted the disease while visiting with her mother near the college at the time Swartz first took sick, and since then both have been quarantined there.

Dr. Bryce is still in the city assisting the health authorities.

PLANTA IN THE WITNESS BOX.

He Denies any Irregularities in His Department.

Special to the Times.

NANAIMO, B.C., Feb. 1.—Police Magistrate J. P. Planta, was brought back from Seattle, Wash. Territory, last evening, and was at once admitted to bail in $6,000. The commission of inquiry then proceeded with Planta in the witness box. It was anticipated that he would make a full confession of all, if any, irregularities, but he took an entirely different stand, combatting every charge and holding his own with great success. The commission closed shortly before midnight, nothing further being done after Planta made his statement. Planta will come up for preliminary hearing on the charge of embezzlement, today week.

AFTER MEXICO'S SCALP.

Guatemala Invoking the Aid of Other Central American Republics.

Special to the Times.

GUATEMALA, via City of Mexico, Feb. 1.—Military preparations are being made here hurriedly.

Special envoys are coming and going between this city and other Central American republics continually, which gives the opinion that Barrios, President of Guatemala, is playing for time, and at the same time doing all in his power to form an alliance of countries in Central America against Mexico.

It is rumored that Barrios is trying to secure the services of officers of prominence in foreign countries to come to Guatemala.

Chinese Lose Heavily.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—A despatch from Chee Foo says the Chinese lost 2,000 men in the operations at Wei-Hai Wei which resulted in the capture of that place by the Japanese. None of the Europeans in the city were injured. The Chinese still hold the island Lingkurti, near Wei Hai-Wei, upon which are a number of Government warships, defended by strong fort works. A despatch from Hiroshima says Premier Ito will receive the Chinese peace envoys today.

NINE PERSONS DROWNED.

ON THEIR WAY TO A RELIGIOUS FEAST AT THE TIME.

A Quebec Woman Run Over by a Train—A New Post Office Inspector—Walked to His Death—Bessie's Body Found.

Special to the Times.

PANAMA, Feb. 1.—A despatch from Valparaiso, Chili, states that while a large number of people were on their way to attend a religious feast at Los Angeles nine of them were drowned in attempting to ford the River Duquco, which had become much swollen from the recent heavy rains.

NON-UNION MEN ATTACKED.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 1.—At 6 o'clock this morning a gang of strikers caught an unprotected car, No. 303, of the Third avenue, at Fifty-second street, and gave the non-union conductor and motorman a terrible beating. The mob broke all the windows in the car and hammered the heads of the two men with the sharp edges of stones. Policemen rescued the non-union men, but did not arrest their assailants.

MANGLED FRIGHTFULLY.

SUTTON FALLS VILLAGE, Que., Feb. 1.—Mrs. William Bates, a resident of this place, after returning home last night on the six o'clock C.P.R. express from the south, carelessly started for home down the railway track and was struck by the same train which was backing up for water, and was mangled frightfully, dying in about an hour.

NEW POST OFFICE INSPECTOR.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 1.—Henry Merrick, of Merrickville, has been appointed post office inspector for Ontario, to succeed F. D. Barwick, Toronto.

Mr. Merrick was formerly a member of the Legislative Assembly for Ontario, and is high up in the councils of the Orange Order. His family has resided for many years in Merrickville, and he is well known in that locality. The new inspector will, in all probability, have his headquarters at Kingston. At the time of Mr. Barwick leaving the service he was situated at Toronto. Mr. Barker was brought from London to fill his place, Mr. Spry went from Barrie to London, and Mr. Jones left Kingston to fill Mr. Spry's position. This left the Kingston office vacant.

BESSIE'S BODY RECOVERED.

MERRITON, Ont., Feb. 1.—Diver Saunders today recovered the body of Kenneth Bessie, who was drowned in the Welland canal here on Monday.

SWALLOWED STRYCHNINE.

A Widow Puts an End to Her Existence by Taking Poison.

Special to the Times.

KINGSTON, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Hannah McCall, a widow, who lived near the village of Verona, committed suicide on Monday night by taking strychnine. It is said that she and her son Henry did not live happily together, in consequence of some trouble over some property. Her son had procured strychnine for the purpose of poisoning foxes. On Monday night the son was awakened by agonizing screams of his mother, and hurrying to her room found her writhing in pain. A doctor was summoned, and he found she was suffering from poisoning by strychnine. She died soon after the doctor's arrival. A coroner's inquest was held, and a verdict returned in accordance with the above facts.

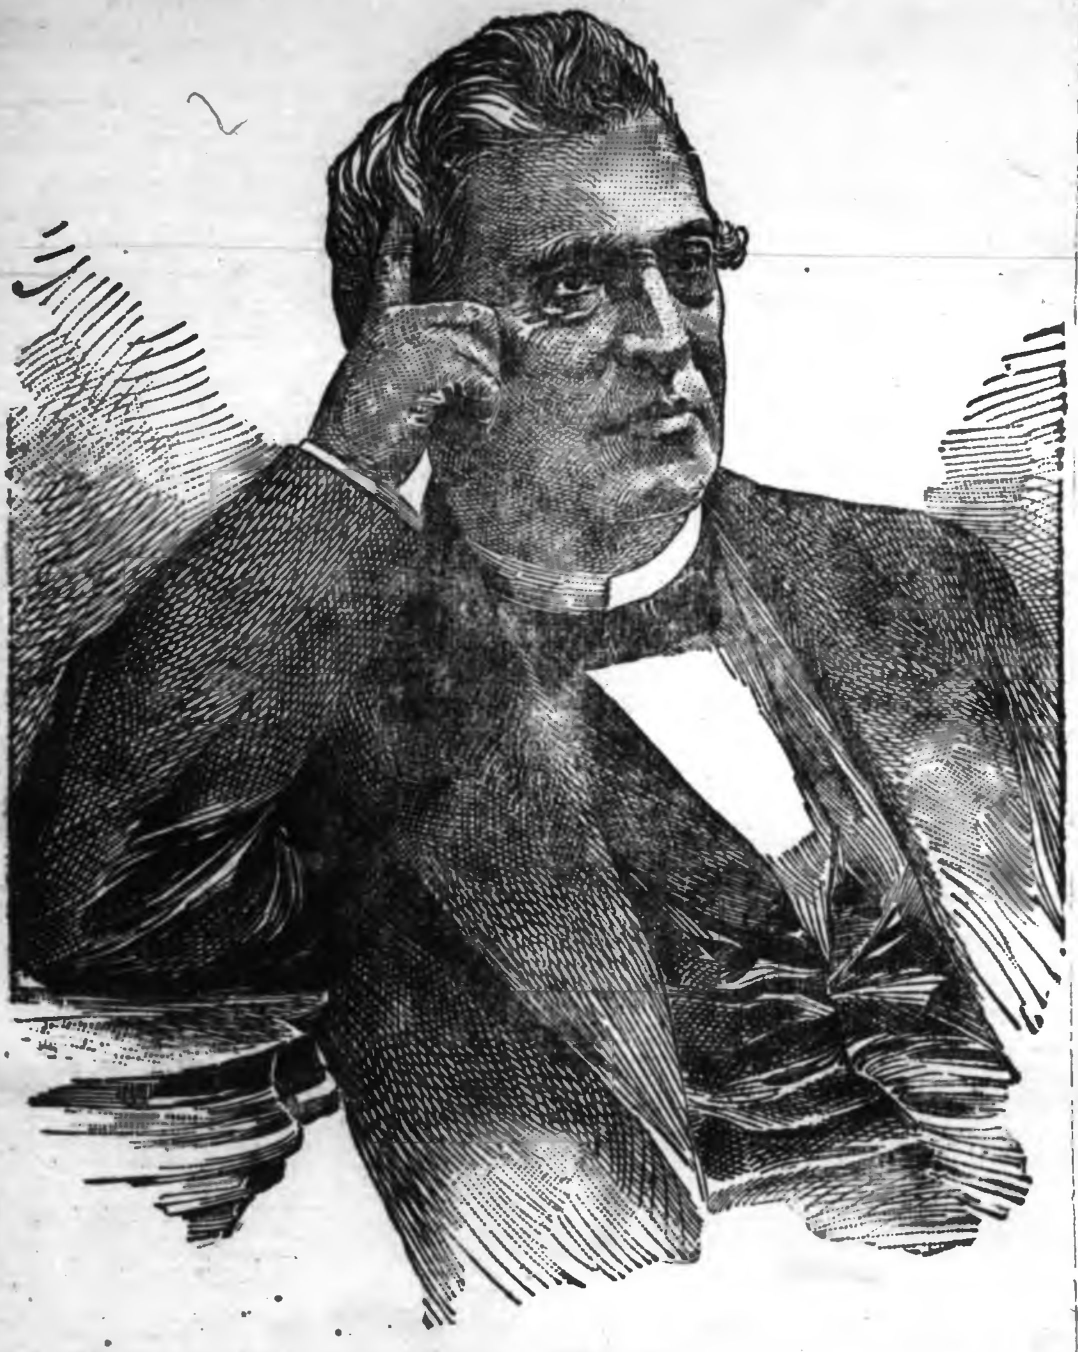
His Reputation Has Made Dartmouth College Famous in Every Town and Village in the Country. Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., Who First Gave to His Profession Paine's Celery Compound, the Wonderful Remedy That Makes People Well.



PROF. EDWARD E. PHELPS, M.D., LL.D.

With the exception of a few eminent statesmen and world-renowned scientists, the people of Canada and the United States owe more to Dartmouth's physician-teacher than any other man.

In every walk of life—amongst the highest official dignitaries, in the homes of the richest people of large cities, among the every-day folk of the country; families in good circumstances and "families that live from hand to mouth," and could not, if they wished, afford the services of any but the ordinary physician—there are thousands to whom Paine's Celery Compound has brought the great blessing of health.

The story of the life-work of this giant among men has been often told and is familiar to most readers. The likeness above is probably the best portrait of him yet printed.

It was the world-famed discovery of Prof. Phelps of an infallible cure for those fearful ills that result from an impaired nervous system and impure blood which has endeared the great doctor to the world, and made his life an era in the practice of medicine.

Professor Phelps graduated with highest honors in medicine at Yale University, and his unusual talent soon brought him reputation and prominence among his professional brethren. First he was elected to the professorship of anatomy and surgery in the Vermont university. Next he was appointed lecturer on material medica and medical botany in Darmouth college. The next year he was chosen professor of the chair then vacated by Prof. Robby, and occupied the chair, the most important one in the country, at the time when he first formulated this most remarkable prescription.

In view of the overwhelming testimony to the value of Paine's Celery Compound that has recently appeared from men of national reputation, the picture of Prof. Phelps is particularly interesting.

Statesmen, members of Parliament and Congress from time to time have spoken of the wonderful curing virtues of Paine's Celery Compound.

Among the prominent people who have publicly testified in favor of earth's best medicine are:

Ex American Minister to Austria, John M. Francis.

New York's State Treasurer, Hon. Addison B. Colvin.

Hon. David P. Toomey, publisher of Donohoe's Magazine.

Hon. James McShane, ex-Mayor of Montreal.

Miss Mabel Jenness.

General John A. Halderman, ex-American Minister to Siam.

Marie Tempest, the talented and popular actress.

Rev. J. G. Laird, London Ont.

Rev. Dr. Wilson, St. John, N.B.

Rev. A. Ouellet, Shediac, N.B., and a host more of well-known men and women are among the thousands of gateful people who have recently sent to the proprietors of this wonderful remedy their expressions of its unequalled value—men and women who can well afford, and do command the highest medical advise in the country.

And then also from the "plain people" there come thousands of honest, straightforward, heartfelt letters, telling how Paine's Celery Compound has made them well.

Their testimony simply goes to show what a noted writer has so aptly said, that Paine's Celery Compound is not a patent medicine; it is not a sarsaprilla; is not a mere tonic; it is not an ordinary nervine—it is as far beyond them all as the diamond is superior to cheap glass.

It makes people well. It is the one true specific recognised and prescribed to-day by eminent practitioners for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system. Prof. Phelps gave to his profession a positive cure for sleeplessness, wasting strength, dyspepsia, billiousness, liver complaint, neuralgia, rheumatism, all nervous diseases and kidney troubles. For all such complaints Paine's Celery Compound has succeeded again and again where everything else has failed.

It is as harmless as it is good, and it was the universal advice of the medical profession that the compound be placed where the general public could secure it, and thousands of people have every year proven the wisdom of the good advice.

Only a truly great and effective remedy could continue as Paine's Celery Compound has done to hold its high place in the estimation of the ablest physicians and of the thousands of busy men and women whose only means of judging is from the actual results in their own homes or among their friends. No remedy was ever so highly recommended, because none ever accomplished so much.

To day Paine's Celery Compound stands without an equal for feeding exhausted nerves and building up the strength of the body. It cures radically and permanently. The nervous prostration and general debility from which thousands of women suffer so long that it finally gets to be a second nature with them—all this suffering and despondency can be very soon removed by properly feeding the nerves and replacing the unhealthy blood by a fresher, more highly vitalized fluid. A healthy increase in appetite and a corresponding gain in weight and good spirits follow the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

Paine's Celery Compound is the most remarkable medical achievement of this last half of the nineteenth century.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Jan. 30.—An explosion occurred at the Orphans Home last night, in which Willie Bush, a boy aged nine years, lost his life, and his brother, aged eleven, was fatally burned.

The boys attempted to light a fire with gasoline, when an explosion occurred. The report caused a stampede among the other children, but order was finally restored.

Willie Bush's clothes were burned from his body, and his body burned to a crisp.

AWFUL OCEAN TRAGEDY.

THE STEAMSHIP ELBE SUNK WITH 350 LIVES.

Shocking Struggle for Life—A Survivors Story—Rescued by Plucky Fishermen—A Missing Boat—Passengers Supposed to be on Board.

Special to the Times.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The North German Lloyd steamer Elbe bound from Bremen for New York, was sunk in a collision with a small steamer fifty miles off Lowestoft early this morning. She carried 380 souls and but 21 survivors have been landed, but a few others may still be afloat in one of the ship's small boats. At 10 o'clock this evening the number of lives lost was given out as 350. The survivors of the wreck were landed at Lowestoft by the fishing smack Wildflower at 5.40 o'clock this evening. They are Stollberg, third officer; Neussel, first engineer; Weser, paymaster; Schultsees, Linkmeyer and Sitting, assistant paymaster; first chief and vice steward, Wenning, Singer and Seibert, sailors; Batko, ordinary seaman; Debarde, German pilot; Greenham, English pilot; Hoffman, of Nebraska; Lugen Schlegel, of Cleveland; Vera, Boltben and Miss Anna Bueckert, passengers. Hoffman's wife and boy went down with the ship. All of the rescued were in a pitiable condition. The passengers were but half clothed, and their few garments were frozen stiff. Their hair was coated with ice. Anxiety and effort had exhausted them so completely that they had to be helped ashore. The officers and sailors were fully dressed, but their clothes had been drenched and frozen, and they had been almost paralyzed with the cold, and they had been ashore three hours before they had recovered sufficiently to

TELL THE STORY OF THE WRECK.

Their accounts agreed with the following points: The Elbe left Bremen on Tuesday afternoon. The few hours of the voyage before the disaster was uneventful. At 4 o'clock this morning the wind was blowing very hard and a tremendous sea was running. The morning was unusually dark. Numerous lights were seen in all directions showing that many vessels were near by. The captain ordered therefore that rockets should be sent up at regular intervals to warn the craft to keep out of the Elbe's course. It was near 6 o'clock and the Elbe was some fifty miles off Lowestoft, coast of Suffolk and the lookout signalled a steamer of 100 tons approaching. He gave the word and as a precaution the number of rockets was doubled and they were sent up at short intervals. The

WARNING WAS WITHOUT EFFECT.

The steamer came on with unchecked speed and before the Elbe could change her course or reduce speed notably, there was tee terrific crash of collision. The Elbe was hit aft her engine room, when the smaller steamer wrenched away. An enormous hole was left in the Elbe's side. The water poured through and down into the engine room in a cataract and the room filled almost instantly. The engines were stilled and the big hulk began to settle. The passengers were in bed. The bitter cold had prevented an early rising and only the officers and crew on duty were on deck when the ship struck.

TERRIBLE SCENE.

The shock and crash roused everybody. The steerage was in a panic in a moment, and men, and women and children, half dressed in their nightclothes, came crowding up the companion ways. They had heard the sound of the rushing water as the other steamer cracked off, and had felt the Elbe lurch and settle. They had grasped the fact that it was then life or death with them, and almost to a man had succumbed to their terror. They clung together in groups, facing the cold and storm, and cried aloud for help or prayed on their knees for deliverance. The officers and crew were calm for a few moments. They went among the terror-stricken groups trying to quiet them and encouraging them to hope that the vessel might be saved. It was soon apparent, however, that the Elbe was settling steadily. The officers were convinced that she was about to founder and gave orders to lower the boats. In a short time three boats were got alongside, but the seas were breaking over the steamer with great force, and the

FIRST BOAT WAS SWAMPED

before anybody could get into it. The other two boats were lowered at about the same time, and were filled quickly with members of the crew and some passengers, but the number was small, as the boats held only 20 persons each. The boat carrying the 21 persons who were landed at Lowestoft put off in such haste from the sinking steamer that nobody in it noticed what became of the other boat. The survivors believe, however, that she got away safely. They say that they tossed about in the heavy seas for several hours before they sighted the Wildflower. The little smack bore down on them at once and took them aboard. They were exhausted from exposure, and several of them were in a state of collapse and had to be carried and dragged from one boat to the other. Miss Anna Baucker,

THE ONLY WOMAN IN THE PARTY,

was prostrated as soon as they got clear of the Elbe. She lay in the bottom of the boat for five hours with the seas breaking over her and the water had been half covering her body. Although her physical condition was gone she showed true pluck, however, and did not utter a word of complaint, and repeatedly urged her companions not to mind her but look after themselves.

Hoffman's leg was hurt severely while changing boats. The survivors can't say too much in praise of the Wildflower's crew, who gave them every possible attention. Upon landing, the survivors were taken in charge by Bradbeer, the German consul at Lowestoft, who sent some of the sailors home and others to the Suffolk hotel. Miss Bucker, who took passage on the Southampton, will probably be able to go to London in a day or two.

AN OFFICER'S VERSION.

The third officer, Haltberg, says that he cannot explain the collision, and that it is unlikely that any adequate account will be obtained, as all the deck watch on duty at the time were drowned. The captain was on the bridge when the collision occurred, and Officer Stollberg heard him shout in a loud, firm voice that the women and children were to be saved first. The captain's voice reached a considerable distance. His order was repeated by the chief officer and must have been heard by everybody on board. Officer Stollberg expressed the firmest gratitude to Skipper Wright and the crew of the Wildflower. The roughness of the sea, he said, made the work of rescue extremely perilous. The fishermen gave the survivors the use of everything aboard the smacks and fed and clothed them. There is some hope that the missing boat has been rescued, inasmuch as there were several smacks in the vicinity of the collision. Probably some women and children got into the missing boat. A number of persons were waiting in Southampton to take passage on the Elbe for New York. The Steamship Company has deferred until morning its decision as to sending the survivors to New York. The passengers on the steamship Fulda were intensely excited when informed at Southampton of the loss of the Elbe.

THE COLLISION.

The exact place of the collision is forty-seven miles southwest of the Hook Light ship. Mr. Neussell, the first engineer, told a Daily News reporter that it was only the position the vessel assumed when the water made its volume felt that prevented the launching of the boats. Despatches from Germany say that Bremen is in a state of consternation and the whole country is excited by the news of the wreck. The passengers come from all parts of the Empire. A steamer has been ordered sent from Lowestoft by the North German Lloyd to search for the other life boat.

THE UNKNOWN VESSEL.

A despatch from Amsterdam says the steamer Crathie, from Rotterdam for Aberdeen, has returned to Waasluis with her stern stove in. Her captain reported that about five o'clock this morning she collided with a vessel whose name he could not learn, some 30 miles from the Hook of Holland. It is supposed that the Elbe is the steamer in question. The Crathie was not leaking when she entered port.

DR. SMYTHE NOT IN IT.

Harty Gets a Majority in Every Ward But One—A Large Vote Polled—No Returns Available Yet from West Algoma.

Special to the Times.

KINGSTON, Jan. 28.—The election held here today was one of the most exciting that Kingston has ever witnessed. It resulted in the return of Hon. Wm. Harty by a large majority. The total vote polled was 4134, which is the largest number of votes ever polled in an election in Kingston.

Every subdivision in the city and suburbs, with the exception of two, gave Harty a majority. The vote by wards was as follows:

HARTY MAJORITIES.

Sydenham ward, 66; Ontario, 62; St. Lawrence, 49; Cataraqui, 80; Frontenac, 73; Rideau, 54; Portsmouth, 51; total, 434.

SMYTHE MAJORITIES.

Victoria ward, 2.

Total majority for Harty, 432.

IN WEST ALGOMA.

VOTERS TRAVEL MANY MILES IN DOG SLEIGHS TO THE POLLS.

Up to 12 o'clock last night no returns had been received at Toronto from any of the polling places of West Algoma. It may be several days before the result is known.

RAT PORTAGE, Jan. 28.—This is a great day throughout West Algoma. Both sides are confident of victory. Much depends on the Rainy River district. King, the Conservative candidate, has done good work up there, but the Conmee party are hopeful.

The snows are deep and the weather is bitterly cold. Many voters have to travel by dog sleighs 10 to 25 miles over frozen streams and lakes to vote.

As in the last election, the result may be in doubt some days, as returns will come in slowly.

A CUSTOMS SENSATION.

CHARGES AGAINST A PROMINENT DEPARTMENTAL OFFICER.

The Allegation is Misappropriation of Rather an Insignificant Sum of Money—Mr. T. J. Watters Served with a Warrant.

OTTAWA, JAN. 31.—If a bomb had exploded at his feet as he sat in his office in the west block at five o'clock last evening Mr. Thos. J. Watters, the acting commissioner of Customs, could not have been more astounded than when he was confronted with a warrant for his arrest.

Nor would the news that Mr. Watters had been the victim of a fatal explosion have caused a more painful sensation in the community than did the report of the arrest. For like all ill news it travelled apace, and in a few hours was the subject of discussion in club, social and business throughout the town.

The warrant was served upon the Commissioner by Inspector O'Leary, of the Dominion police. It was based upon information formally attested to by his chief, as is usual in such cases. The information set forth the charge that the Acting Commissioner of Customs had appropriated to his own use something in the way of $500 of the money of that institution.

Mr. Watters telephoned to his counsel, Mr. A. Ferguson, Q. C., and the three proceeded to the office of Magistrate O'Gara, where bail bonds were made out. The sureties were the Commissioner himself in $2,000 and Messrs. James Isbester and Joseph Kavanagh in $2,000 each.

THE CHARGE.

To understand the nature of the charge it is necessary to state that for some years past Canadian customs officials have been stationed at different points in the United States for the convenience of Canadian railways having termini there. For instance two officers are stationed at Chicago, one at the Grand Trunk depot and the other at the C. P. R. (the Wabash). These officers do the work which would otherwise be done at the frontier, that is they examine the baggage of passengers destined for Canada and obviate the necessity of the travelling public having often to be awakened from their sleep at night in order to open their baggage. The scheme works well and has been found to be of great convenience and advantage.

THE OFFICERS' SALARY.

Inasmuch, however, as this is done for the convenience of the railway people and their patrons and has necessitated the duplication of custom officials, it has been held that the salaries of these officers stationed at Chicago should be paid by the railway companies. The officers, however, being Canadian custom officials, are paid directly by the department, not by the railway companies. The railway companies remit the amounts to the department and the specific charge against Mr. Watters is that since January, 1894, he has appropriated to his own purpose, or failed to account for, certain cheques forwarded to the department by the Wabash Railway Company, the United States agents of the C.P.R. The total sums amount to $543.

Mr. O'Gara, police magistrate, was at his office until after six o'clock last night, when Mr. Hogg, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Watters, Mr. J. Kavanagh and Mr. J. Isbester waited upon him. Mr. Watters offered bail in $2,000 himself and Mr. Isbester and Mr. Kavanagh $1,000 each. The bonds were considered satisfactory, and this morning Mr. Watters will appear in the police court to answer to the allegations made against him.

WHAT MR. WATTERS SAYS.

Seen last evening by a Citizen reporter, Mr. Watters said: "The whole affair has come upon me as an utter surprise. I have simply to say that I deny the allegations most emphatically. Every dollar of Government money which I have received has either been deposited to the credit of the Receiver General or at any amount was available for deposit. If the Government can show that they have ever lost a dollar there, I am at fault; but they cannot show it.

"I have handled thousands upon thousands of dollars of Government money, and it cannot be supposed for a moment, surely, that it would be considered worth the while of a man in my position to take $500 or $600 of government money. But," he added with just a slight touch of bitterness, "I quite appreciate what is behind it all."

Except this, Mr. Watters said, he did not wish to say anything further.

The assistant commissioner will be at his office as usual today. It was said last night that an order for his suspension had been made by the Controller of Customs, but that Mr. Watters would not recognize such an order from any other than the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Of the six cheques aggregating the amount of $534 alleged to be in default three of them, it is said, were deposited with the Receiver General, some time subsequent to their receipt. This would leave three cheques for about $80 each to be accounted for, according to the allegations of the accusation.

TEMPERANCE & GENERAL

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Synopsis of the Annual Report Which Was Submitted at its Annual Meeting on 23rd inst.

(Detailed reports can be had on applicauion at head office or to any agent of the Company.)

The report shows an income from premiums after deducting payments for reinsurance of $129,199.34, and from interest of $13,475.72, being an excess in total income of $16,020.84 over the previous year's income.

The net death losses were 16 for $22,099, which was a loss rate of 3.8 of the average number of lives at risk, and $4.02 per $1,000 of the average amount of insurance in force.

Briefly stated, the company's cash income for the year was $142,675.06, while its net death losses, payments for surrendered policies and expenditures for all other purposes amounted to $86,881.92, leaving the handsome sum of $55,793.14 from current cash income for permanent investment.

Referring to its assets, the report says: "We did not have a single dollar's worth of real estate on our hands or a single dollar of interest overdue and unpaid.

"Our assets at the end of the year amounted to $365,566.71, being an increase of $67,144.38 over what they were at the end of the previous year."

The liabilities were $284,826.99, being an increase of 47,467.03 over the previous year. This was an increase of 41.5 per cent. more in assets than in liabilities.

One thousand eight hundred and thirteen applications for $2,100,000 of insurance were received, and 1,634 for $1,883,725 were approved.

At the close of the year the Company had 4,793 policies in force on 4,519 lives for $5,877,958.51 as follows: There were 3,650 policies in the Temperance Section for $4,256,879.51 and 1,143 policies in the general section for $1,621,079.

A division of surplus to the amount of $6,726.44 was recommended to take place amongst the policies entitled thereto, those in the Temperance Section being entitled, according to the experience of the Company, one-third more on similar policies than those in the General Section.

A dividend of 5 per cent. was declared on the paid-up capital.

The concluding sentences of the report are as follows:

So far this year, not only has the payment of our outstanding and deferred premiums been more prompt and satisfactory than in any previous year, but the amount of new insurances applied for has also been in excess of any previous year's record.

We have pleasure in referring again to the loyalty and efficiency of all the members of our office and field staff. They have our fullest confidence and deserve our highest commendation.

Independent audits have been regularly made by the Company's Auditor, and by the Auditing Committee of the Board, whose certificates are attached to the Finance Statement, and are warrants for its correctness, and for the correctness of our accounts.

By Section 9 of our Act of Incorporation, all the Directors retire, but are eligible for re election.

Five Weeks for 10 cents.

A Trial Subscription for

THE NEW YORK LEDGER

Just to convince everybody before subscribing of the true merits of our beautifully illustrated journal, we will send the New York Ledger for

FIVE WEEKS FOR 10 CENTS.

These five numbers will contain the opening chapters of Paul Kemble's powerful and interesting story, "The Killules of Killail," also the opening chapters (with synopsis) of Seward W. Hopkin's story of the great strike in the Pennsylvania coal mines, "On a Criminal Charge." The other continued stories in these numbers are by Hall Caine and Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. In addition to the continued stories, these five numbers of the New York Ledger, contain short stories, poems, articles on the topics of the day, a brilliant editorial page, a children's column, a correspondence and scientific department, a Woman's World page devoted to everything of interest to women including a pattern department worth to any woman many, many times the price of the Ledger. The following is a partial list of the authors who contribute to these five numbers:

Hall Caine, Seward W. Hopkins, Paul Kemble, Effie Adelaide Rowlands, Elizabeth Olmis, Mary Lowe Dickenson, Amy Randolph, Hon. Henry L. Dawes, Mary Kyle Dallas, Prof. W. W. Kennedy, William Elliott Griffis, D. D., Lieut. Frederick Schwatka, Oscar Wilde, W. Thompson and others.

This vast quantity of delightful reading matter of interest to all members of the family goes to make the New York Ledger the most perfect National Family Journal ever offered to the American people. Your Postmaster, your Subscription Agent or your Newsdealer will receive your 10c. for us for your Trial Subscription and send us the money—or you can send the money direct to us. Try it, and judge for yourself what a great paper the New York Ledger is.

The Times.

PETERBOROUGH, FEBRUARY 1, 1895.

Good morning!

If this's not an old-fashioned winter we are having, it is the finest imitation of one that can be produced at short notice.

The man who thought that the old fashioned winter was a thing of the past has had his telephone taken out.

There ought to be a hot campaign up in South Huron. At all events the Liberals there have chosen as their president A. Mustard.

What has become of the curfew by-law. It should at least prevent children from sellig newspapers on the streets at a late hour.

Dozens who came to our office on Saturday for a copy of the paper became permanent subscribers. From all parts of the midland districts subscriptions are pouring in.

The Toronto Star says: "It will be an outrage if with the material at hand the Council goes outside of Toronto for a chief for the fire brigade." And yet in Peterborough a few years ago we imported a bran new chief of police, while scores of better men were anxious to take the job for hundreds of dollars less. All of which goes to show that home production is the best.

Uncle Sam's financial condition is one of chronic disorder nowadays, and there seems to be good ground for the fear that if he doesn't keep a sharp eye on himself he will wake up some of these mornings to find that he is being sold out by auction. With the politician pulling in various directions as a result of sectional interests there is not much hope of the U. S. currency system being put on a satisfactory basis for some time at any rate.

Massachusetts is struggling with a novel question relating to the durability of the ink recently furnished the various state departments. The best ink was contracted for, but the article furnished is found to ferment in the inkstand and to evaporate rapidly, leaving a sediment. One report is that the ink has been tampered with by a disappointed firm of contractors. The state chemist has been on to make an analysis, and the manufacturers also have employed an analyst, so a battle of the experts is the next thing in order.

The new magnet constructed by Col. King will hold 24 tons weight. It is 17 feet long and four feet in diameter. All iron within its magnetic field becomes magnetized, and five cannon balls, each weighing 325 pounds, are held suspended from its muzzle, one clinging to the other. Iron chains hanging near became rigid, and a swinging block a few feet off, by reason of its suspended iron hook, was drawn to the magnet and held against all efforts of the workmen to remove it. The heaviest crowbar brought near will at once fly to the magnet, and drag with it the strongest man if he persists in clinging to it.

It might not be possible to find a more temperate body of men than the locomotive engineers. Of course temperate habits are required on all railroads, but there are many engineers who, though they may never have taken any pledge, are more than temperate—they are teetotalers from personal choice.

The Greek crisis, which have culminated in the resignation of the Ministry, is due to popular discontent against high taxes. Greece, like the United States, is suffering from a currency problem the difficulties of which are increased by a deficiency.

If the Conservatives desire to coin the next election the Government must shew that it means business in respect to the immediate completion of the Trent Valley Canal. The people who are mainly interested in this enterprise have lost all faith in the promises of ministers.

The doctor who pulled the old Ameer of Afghanistan through his late illness is a young lady of Ayshire, Scotland, Miss L. Hamilton, M. D., who took her medical degree three years ago in Brussels and practiced in Calcutta before she went to Afghanistan.

The Sons of God, a crank set in Fredona, Calhoun county, Michigan, attempted to cure a diphtheria patient by faith. The patient died, other members of the family came down, and now the county authorities have turned down the Sons of God, taking charge of the matter themselves.

The Farmer's Sun figures that the maintenance of the Senate represents an annual cash outlay equivalent to the produce of 11,000 acres of wheat, yielding twenty bushels to the acre and selling at sixty cents a bushel. This is a striking way of calling attention to a great waste.

Reducing expenses is the watchword in nearly every municipality in the Province. In Toronto the police force has been largely reduced, and many of the officials dispensed with. We are patiently waiting to see what Peterborough Council will do.

The change in Presidency of the "P. P. A." ends any hope the Conservatives may have had of capturing that organization. The new leader is a McCarthyite, has been engaged in stumping North Bruce for Potts, the McCarthyite candidate, and in the last two local contests there worked for McNaughton, the Patron.

Thursday and Friday of next week will be interesting days for our local politicans. The first named will see a number of Dominion cabinet ministers here, who will tell the people all about the prosperous times we are having. Friday Dalton McCarthy will visit Peterborough in his official capacity as leader of the Third Party, and will address the electors.

"Some men seem to able to stand horrible sights in one way and not in another," said a veteran soldier. "I new a man once, a soldier, who was never disturbed in the slightest degree by the sight of men killed or wounded in action, but who could not bear to see an amputation. I've known him to faint at the mere story of one. That's curious, isn't it?"

A bill for the abolition of capital punishment has been introduced in the New York assembly by Mr. Blake. The measure provides for a new trial of persons imprisoned for life provided new evidence of importance be discovered. The author of this bill recognizes the fact that there is as much danger of imprisoning for life an innocent man as there is of killing such an one by legal process.

The Patrons demand, among other things, the reduction of the cost of the Mounted Police to $200,000 a year, the abolition of the bars in the Ottawa Parliament buildings, withdrawal of the grant for the maintenance of Rideau hall and closing up of the Canadian Senate. These are all sound planks and are of the kind that the people of Canada are just now clamoring for.

Fruit Commissioner Rufus Bronson says the "yellows" is spreading rapidly among peach trees in western Michigan, and thousands of orchards may have to cut down. Unless radical steps are taken at once, peach culture is doomed, as one diseased tree in a thousand will exterminate all the rest within four years. Colomon, Watervliet and Hartford orchards particularly are in danger.

The New York Journal says: "How to pass the winter months and enjoy every moment of the fine, clear, cold weather has been reduced to a science a Canada. These people welcome the cold weather and give a sigh of regret when the blustery winds of March give warning that another winter has come and gone." They do, do they? If the cheerful idiot who wrote that paragraph would dwell for a space in Canada, he would find that the sighs of regret are heaved when the furnace requires poking and the coal bills have to be paid and the snow has to be shovled off the sidewalk. When the blustery winds begin to blow, blow, blow we order out the band and looked forward yearningly for the coming of the rose-scented days of happy June.

In referring to the vacancy at the head of the Police force, the Hamilton Herald says: "Surely there is one among the 50,000 people of Hamilton who is qualified to be a chief of police!" Hamilton may follow Peterborough's example and employ a stranger and a non-resident, and then be poorly suited.

Of twenty yearling race horses sold for $5,000 or over apiece in England in 1893, only three won races last year. The combined cost of the horses was $160,500, while the winnings were only $24,302. In the ten years, from 1883 to 1892, 292 yearlings sold at $5,000 or over, cost $2,415,000, and won $929,000. Last year 22 yearlings brought that sum or more, the highest price being $20,500 paid for the Duchess of Montrose's Roquebrune, a daughter of Saint Simon, by Saint Marguerite.

The war fever seem to be pretty well aroused in Mexico. President Diaz has sent an ultimatum to Guatemala and troops are being hurried rapidly toward the frontier. Mexico has not had a foreign war since the French were driven out, but there have been enough civil wars to keep the people in good fighting trim. It is believed that the other Central-American States are back of Guatemala, in which case the result of the war may be the practical incorporation of Central America with Mexico.

India is getting nearer to England year by year. New and faster steamers have been put upon the P & O. line and letters are now delivered in London 12 days after their departure from Bombay. The mail, of course, travels across the continent by rail to Brindisi, a route which would not be available for the transportation of troops in the event of war. The troops could be carried from Great Britain to India, it is believed in 18 days.

Prof. R. T. MacDougal of the Minnesota University is going to make a study of the influence of electricity upon growing plants. Currents of electricity from the weakest (registered by a galvanometer) to the full strength of the city electric light current will be sent through the earth in which plants are growing, and the effects will be minutely observed. Prof. MacDougal is merely doing in a modern way what has been attempted from time to time for a century.

The plea that Canada should take in Newfoundland to prevent the United States obtaining the island that commands the entrance to the St. Lawrence is shattered by the knowledge that Great Britain's interests will never permit her to surrender such an important possession, to the advantages of which England is fully alive.

Sir Roger Tichborne has been discovered again in Australia. This time he is a lunatic, named William Creswell, in the asylum at Paramatta. Jean Line, who figured in the trial, tells a story of Tichborne's sailing from Rio Janiero in 1854 on the ship Bella for New York, of the ship's being stolen by captain and crew, changed in appearance, called the Osprey, and taken to Australia, where she was sold. He identifies Creswell as the lost baronet. On the other hand, a Catholic priest asserts that Tichborne died in an asylum for the improvident at Geelong in 1853.

La Grippe has taken a hold on New York city, and it is probable that the entire country will have to undergo another epidemic. Now is a good time to be especially careful in avoiding excesses in eating and drinking and to guard against draughts of cold air in the office or home. One of the worst things a person can do is to take a bath and go out into the cold air before the natural oils have got to working through the pores. If any reader feels that he really must bathe, let him bathe at night and at once jump into a warm bed. Those who have had "the grip" once don't want it again, but they will be very apt to get it unless they are very careful indeed. If there is a weak spot in a person's anatomical machinery "the grip" will find it, and for this reason it is particularly dangerous to old people.

Dubuque county, Iowa boasts the possession of the most unique subterrenean lake in the world—an underground body of water with a bottom formed throughout of pure crystals of lead. The farm upon, or rather under, which this curious lake is situated is near the city of Dubuque, in the heart of the lead regions which made that portion of the Northwest Territory famous before the opening of the present century.

A system of watch insurance is a new scheme of a firm of watchmakers in the United States. For $2 the insured's watch is put in good running order and kept so for one year. The insurance covers all ordinary risks of minor accidents, but of course, is hardly held to cover damages to a watch run over by a cable car. The scheme is the same as that of typewriter insurance, which has been in successful operation for several years. One company doing this business keeps in repair thousands of typewriting machines, cleaning them monthly, and supplying all worn or broken parts of the machine.

THE MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

The report cabled to this country as to the probable decision of the Imperial Privy Council in the Manitoba Schools case have turned out to be well founded. The decision was made public on Tuesday morning, and the effect of it is that the Dominion Government has the right to grant remedical legislation, the Council having sustained the appeal of the Roman Catholics without costs. This brings the Government face to face again with a very embarrassing question.

Ontario has no direct concern in the matter. In this province most of us have long since made up our minds to regard Separate Schools as a necessary evil. We do not like them but we see the wisdom of making the best of them and we make the best of them accordingly. The people of Manitoba are less philosophical, and in all fairness it must be said that they have good reason to be so. When Manitoba entered the confederation the establishment of Separate Schools in that province was not made part of of the bargain, and one would think that the Legislature of the province would have every right to deal with the issue finally in its own way. The Privy Council however, thinks diferently, and as the Privy Council is the highest court of appeal in the British Empire, there is nothing for it but to submit to the decision with the best grace possible.

The chief interest here will be in watching the course of the Dominian Government now that the burden of the matter has been thrown upon its shoulders. The question is a most complex and annoying one for the politicians to handle, and they would gladly shirk it if they could. Whichever way they move, there is sure to be trouble. If they grant the remedial legislation the Roman Catholics are seeking, there will be a wild howl from the Protestants, and if they refuse it, the Roman Catholics will make a disturbance. If ever there was a case of the Government being clearly between the devil and the deep sea this is it.

Market Reports.

PETERBOROUGH.

During the past week the market attendance has been only fair, the result, no doubt, of the roads being more or less blocked with snow-drifts. The highways are now pretty well cleared, and being in a fairly good condition for sleighing, a large market may be expected to-day.

FARMERS' MARKET.

Feb. 1.—The receipts of grain on the local street market to-day were small; prices were steady.

Wheat—Steady, 300 bushels selling at 60½c to 61c for goose, 61c to 62c for red and 63c to 64c for white.

Barley—Steady, 300 bushels selling at 43c to 46c.

Oats—Easier, 300 bushels selling at 35c.

Hay and Straw—The receipts to-day were large; there was a fair demand, but the market was easier, 60 loads of hay selling at $10 to $11.50 for timothy and $8 to $9.50 for clover, and 10 loads of straw at $7 to $8.

Dressed Hogs—The receipts were more liberal; there was a good demand and the market was easier at $5.25 to $5.50.

THE LIME JUICE CLUB.

REGULAR WEEKLY MEETING OF THIS CHASTE SOCIETY.

Large Attendance at the Hall of Wisdom—Some Very Interesting and Important Business Transacted.

There was the usual crush as the doors leading to the Hall of Wisdom were unbarred last night a few minutes previous to the hour for opening the regular weekly session of the Lime Juice Club. In fifteen minutes every seat was occupied, and the wings attached to the main building were comfortably filled.

A NEW MEMBER.

The meeting had no sooner been called to order than the Janitor entered with a telegram from Johnny Brown, Port Hope, asking that his name be presented to the club as well as the name of Allen Adams, for membership. Mr. Brown is known throughout the country as the only man in Canada who can whistle eight different tunes on his thumb nail, while Mr. Adams is a great linguist and can make chicken rhyme with kitchen when writing poetry.

A LECTURE OFF.

Bro. Talkaway Foulweather broke his left suspender square in two in his haste to read the following letter which he had just received from Lakefield:—

SIR RICHARD MCBRIDE,—Prof. Snellgrove will arrive in Peterborough, via Fobert's Hotel, Mud Lake, on the 6th of next month. He will deliver his great lecture "Wonders of the Atmosphere" for the benefit of the toothpick factory which he proposes to establish in Labrador."

Bro. Talkaway was proceeding to make a speech 27 feet long, in favor of the Professor, when the President called him down.

"Your friend may arrive in Peterborough," observed Sir Richard, as he nodded to Bro. Ed. Brown to stir up the fire, "but won't lecture before this club. If there is anything about the atmosphere to wonder over, no member of this club would be apt to hear about it, and it was likewise voted by this great club not long ago to let the atmosphere strictly alone. If the Professor can tell why our weather should change 40 degrees in 24 hours without anybody having petitioned for it, he can walk right up to the front here and I will see that he is made the guest of the club during his stay in our midst."

AGRICULTURE.

Bro. Frank Fairen, chairman of the committee on Agriculture, submitted the following report:

"Your committee, to whom was referred the query—"why are apples scarce?" beg to state they opened out correspondence with several persons, amongst whom were Brother Buckey Ostrom and Brother Pineapple Oke, who know all about the fruit business, and the impression seems to be that the trees didn't bear many apples last season. Why they didn't bear is on account of the scarcity and that's all we can find out about it, except that it is much cheaper to eat potatoes at 50 cents per bag than apples at 30 cents a peck. You don't have to throw away cores when you eat potatoes, and your committee will ever pray, &c."

COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY.

This committee had been instructed to gather statistics relative to the past and present habits of the Canadian people and to report as to whether the present generation is an improvement on last or not.

The chairman reported that they had travelled scores of miles, interviewed dozens of people, read several books, and had sought to thoroughly investigate the subject given them. He reported that there had been considerable change in the habits of the people. A great many people now cut pie with a fork, instead of taking the whole piece in their hand and biting of what he could handily chew at once. Women who used to do their own washing and grow healthy over it, now keep three servants and endeavor to look pale and languid. Men who used to be satisfied with a house dog, and a poor one at that, must keep at least three trotting horses and be six months behind in settling up with the grocer and the butcher—(Wild cheers by Bro. Talkaway, who was promptly fined $400 and costs.) Boys who would have been tucked away in their trundle beds at dark thirty years ago, were now met on the streets at night smoking cheap cigars and talking about the old man's childishness. Other changes were mentioned, but the committee could not say whether the innovations had greatly increased the number of murders or added to the population of the prisons.

"As to the imprvements spoken of," continued the speaker, as he tramped on For-ypercent Dunsfort's corns, "this committee is divided. Some of us believe that the good clothes and the good grammar to be found all around us to-day is a powerful boast of the present generation, while others put their finger on the list of scandals, robbers, murders, and skips to the states, as an offset. The committee have, therefore, concluded to report that the country is doing as well as could be expected, and that the present generation can't help what it don't know."

INTERNAL ECONOMY.

Bro. Anvil W. Phelan, chairman of the committee on Internal Economy and Physiology, submitted the following report:

"1. Plain lemonade should be taken slowly and deliberately, the chin well wiped off with a red napkin as soon as possible afterwards, and the victim should beware of mental excitement or physical exhaustion for an hour or two.

"2. Sodawater with a stick in it should be paid for in advance. This gives the barkeeper a chance to look at the money and find out if it is all right, and saves the customer any fear of having to take to his legs and outrun anybody. We don't specify as to the quantity which can be safely surrounded. Some persons can hold a barrel, while others can stop at a gallon."

"3. Apples and bananas have slayed ten of thousands of innocent people. While we don't beleive either harmful, it will be well to eat slowly, chaw the rinds and cores very fine, and sit in the woodshed half an hour after eating.

"4. We don't recommend too much washing and cleaning. The Indian is the dirtiest person on this earth, and nobody ever knew an Indian to have cholera or small-pox. Wash up now and then, and scrub up a little extra on Sundays, and trust the rest to carrying an onion in your pocket."

IS WAS CARRIED.

Henroost Bell moved that the report be adopted, and the suggestions printed for gratuitous distribution.

Bro. Carese LeBrun objected. He would not feel safe from yellow fever without instructions from the Board of Health. He would cast no slur upon the honorable committee, but what did a man like Talkaway Foulweather, who drove a fast horse, Tiedup Garley, who used to sell codfish, or Anvil Davis, who mends bob-sleighs, know about epedemics? Any man in this club was liable to be attacked with cholera at any moment, and not ten minutes before he had witnessed a sample case of cholera morbus in the blue anteroom. Fortypercent Duncefort had mixed apples, oranges, ice water, ginger ale, some old cabbage, old strawberries, and the cocoanut crop of 1893 together, and the result was that he was still calling for some lawyer to come and make his will.

"Bro. LeBrun," replied Sir Richard, "the matter was given to that committee to investigate They are supposed to have performed their duty. Until the cholera lifts some member of this club we have no moral right to go back on the report. It is therefore adopted."

SOME LETTERS.

Applications were received from 391 members, for the position of Superintendent of the Museum.—Referred to the Committee on Economy.

A letter was read from Bro. Cripes Mulcahey, explaining that he was not able to be present on account of having to play off a tie in the curling tournament with Bro. Harry LeBrun, for a bag of unions.

Bro. Talkaway, Chairman of the Committee on Electrical Phenomena and Astronomy, wrote to say that he had discovered a bran new comet, and he and Bro. Tom Hamilton were making thorough investigations through smoked glass from the sky window of the Chemong Park Hotel. He would not present his report until after he followed up his discovery.

Bro. Whalebone Weir, of Keene, wrote stating that he had discovered a sure remedy for cholera-morbus, and that if the club would forward him $1.25 he would send along three barrels by Conductor Morris's fast freight.

Bombshell McNaughton moved that the money be forwarded at once.

"The money will not be sent, not just yet," said the President. "We will wait till the green fruit season comes in; besides three barrels will barely pull us through—let the Secretary offer him $1.50 for four barrels.

POLITICAL.

The President announced that he had been invited to a seat on the platform at the meeting in the Opera House on the 7th, when the Cabinet Ministers are to speak, but had refused to do so. By-law 41,692 of the Club prohibits any of its officers taking part in any political demonstration, and he intended to obey that rule. "If the Cabinet Ministers," continued Sir Richard, "want the President of this great Club to sit beside them at this meeting, simply as an advertisement for their show, they are going to be badly left. The Janitor will now unbar the door and we will all gamble to our homes for one week."

OUR ELIGIBLE BACHELORS

ANOTHER BATCH OF FIRESIDE ORNAMENTS WITHOUT FIRESIDES.

Men of Position and Wealth who so far Have Refused to Take Upon Themselves a Most Important Duty—A List of Good "Catches."

Everybody is on the qui vive this week to see THE SATURDAY TIMES' list of eligible bachelors. There will be a rush for the paper this morning. The young men are having any amount of fun, and the young ladies are evincing great interest. Names of prominent bachelors have been sent in by the dozens, with the request: "Do put Mr. So-And-So in the list please." Many of these have been sent in by young ladies, who, no doubt, are becoming tired waiting to hear the old, old story, and take this means of administering a gentle hint. The eligible bachelor's list has proven a success. It was not the intention of THE SATURDAY TIMES to continue it with this frequency, but the public and popular demand must be regarded. There are some choice "catches" in the appended list, and any number left over for future publication. Every bachelor in town will be exposed, and none need hope to escape.

Hall, Dickson—22 years of age; $75,000. Here is a splendid "catch" for some young lady. Mr. Hall is the junior member of the firm of Hall, Gilchrist & Co. He is quiet and unassuming, home loving and affectionate. Even at his early age, Mr. Hall has given evidence of excellent business qualities, and he will, without doubt, be one of the coming business men of the next decade. He is submitted as an admirable catch.

Casement, William, of Lakefield—42 years of age; $25,000. This gentleman is the mayor and postmaster of our thriving suburban village. None of the fair ones of that place have been able to capture this plum, so he is respectfully brought to the notice of the young ladies of Peterborough. He may prove an invulnerable foe, for he is a confirmed bachelor, and it will take more than ordinary blandishments and very delicate angling to land him in the matrimonial fish basket. Mr. Casement is good-looking and wealthy, and he would make an excellent husband. It is to be hoped he will soon come to time.

Connal, James—25 years of age, $15,000. Here is a very happy and amiable gentleman. He is well known in town, being with Peter Connal & Co., grocers. It is said that Mr. Connal has been "promised" for several years, but of course until the ring is bought, he can still be considered in the market. He belongs to the famous curling organization, the "colts," and skips a rink with great skill. He is really a good catch and the "boys" will be delighted to hear of any approaching wedding in which he will figure as groomsman. We publish his name at the request of seven young ladies.

Gough, Richard—32 years of age; $20,000. Here is the makings of a fine old bachelor if he doesn't mend his ways. Mr. Gough is one of Peterborough's most successful and enterprising business men. He is one of the best "chances" in town, but up to going to press has shown no indication of entering the blessed relation. However, it is hardly possible that nature endowed a man with so many estimable qualities to remain single for any great period.

Dumble, Fred—22 years old; $3,000. This popular young gentleman is with Dumble & Johnston, law office, and is a rising young legal light. He is well known in town, very popular with the "boys," and a favorite with the other sex. Mr. Dumble would make a good husband if taken in hand in time.

Fanning, John—40 years of age; $5,000. A sad case of chronic bachelorism is this gentleman. He was formerly with T. Kelly & Co., but is now a gentleman of leisure, and from all accounts is having an excellent time. Mr. Fanning has always applied himself so assiduously to business that he hadn't time to contemplate matrimony. Now that he has a little more time on his hands, THE SATURDAY TIMES won't be responsible for the results. However, he is a good catch, and the making of a good husband.

Fitzgerald, Dr.—25 years of age; $7,000. A recently graduated M.D. is always a good matrimonial "risk," for there is no telling what future is before them. They are liable to rise meteor like to fame, wealth and affluence. Dr. Fitzgerald is a recent graduate and his prospects are roseate. With a careful helpmate his future would be certain. He is a capital catch, would make a good husband and parent, and will doubtless in the near future make success in life certain by getting married.

Goldsmith, Perry G.—22 years of age; $1,000. Although a young man Mr. Goldsmith has been exhibiting alarming symptoms, and his name is rushed in this list in order to get it in before he marries, for there is no telling at what moment the event may occur. Mr. Goldsmith is a medical student with fine prospects of graduating, and is worth while looking after.

Conway, Wm. E.—23 years of age; $10,000. Here is a nice young man, steady, good natured and a splendid catch. He is manager for the firm of Grafton & Co., a position which is an honor for a man of his years, and a tribute to his exceptional business ability. He has been showing the symptoms for several months. In every important respect he is a good catch and is cheerfully recommended as such.

Mosley, A. E.—30 years old; $10,000. A vista of unlimited buggy drives opens up to the young lady who secures this prize package. Mr. Mosley is one of the leading liverymen in town, and has a stable of good-breed horses. Courtship with him would be much less expensive than to others, as he has numerous equipages at his disposal with which to take out the one of his choice. In this respect Mr. Mosely has been showing the symptons, and as there is nothing that so facilitates marriage as this pastime, they can be said to be alarming. He would make a good husband.

Perry, Frank—40 years, good measure; $7,000. Here is a timid little bachelor whom some nice young lady ought to "coach" a little. Mr. Perry is so timid that he has become a confirmed bachelor. He will never propose in person, that is certain, and he is afraid to trust the mails. It's too bad, because Mr. Perry has been exhibiting matrimonial inclinations recently, and if the affair was rightly generalled, it might come out all right. He would make an excellent husband, too, and is an excellent chance.

Turner, Albert—35 years of age; $5,000. Mr. Turner is head clerk in the establishment of Robt. Fair. He is a bass singer of note, and warbles in the choir of George street Methodist church. There has been some angling for Mr. Turner, and while he has been nibbling lately, he has not yet swallowed the matrimonial hook. His rating is all right—taken from Bradstreet's—and he is a "catch."

Laidlay, Andrew—30 years old; $5,000. The head clerk, assistant cutter in A. Mercer & Co's., is well able to keep a wife, as he gets a fine salary. Although near the bottom of this list, he is none the less a good chance for any young lady. The best plums are not always on top of the basket. From what can be learned Mr. Laidlay has never yet stayed out later than 2 o'clock, and for Peterborough this is an excellent record

McKay, F. D.—32 years of age; $6,000. Mr. McKay is editor of the Review, and is one of the best known and popular young men in Peterborough. Although an ardent admirer and seeker after the fair sex, Mr. McKay has studiously avoided matrimony. A bohemian life seems to suit most newspaper men, but it is to be hoped that this brainy and talented young man will forsake it for the blessings and comforts of a home.

Meredith, W. H.—35 years of age; $10,000. If this gentleman had a dollar for every time he has been asked why he did not marry, his rating would be nearly double. He invariably answers: "Life is too short." Mr. Meredith is the leading merchant tailor of Peterborough, and has always been characterized as a steady, stick-to business kind of a man. Lately, however, he has been circulating more freely in society circles, and it is to be hoped he has come to the conclusion that life is too long to live alone. He is a plum if he will only drop.

Christie, J. R.—27 years old; $5,000. Mr. Christie has a fatherly, kindly air, and would make an elegant hubby. He is assistant ticket agent of the C.P.R. and also handles the telegraph key. He is matrimonially inclined, if report be true. At present he is boarding at the Phalen House. He is a steady-going young man, of excellent habits, and pleasing, accommodating manners.

Montgomery, W. J.—25 years of age; $7,000. The ladies at the rink accord Mr. Montgomery generous applause and cast many admiring glances his way. He is a hockey player of skill and strength, and one of the strong points in the Peterborough team. Mr. Montgomery is with the Ontario Bank. He is nothing if not a lady's man, and he is one of those young men, who, in the hands of a good, strong-minded woman, would make an excellent husband.

Clegg, Abram—42 years of age; $15,000. Here is a good man, but a "hardshell" bachelor if ever there was one. He is well able to support a wife but hasn't the least intentions in that direction, as far as appearances go.

Dolan, James—49 years of age, but well preserved; $35,000. This is the genial proprietor of the City Hotel. He is as much out of his latitude in the company of ladies, as can be imagined. This is a hard case—hard shell bachelors all are. He is very popular with the boys, and in his bohemian way enjoys life pretty well. It will take a daisy to catch him.

Allen, W. L.—26 years of age; $15,000. He is of the firm of Kingan & Allen, hardware merchants. Mr. Allen is an enthusiastic curler and football player. He would make one of the nicest husbands we know of. Lately he has been showing the symptoms, and if he doesn't veer off, may soon reach Hymen's port. He is a desirable match.

Burrows, Robert—30 years; $6,000. This gentleman is foreman of the construction department of the Bell Telephone Company. He is a lady's man from the word go, a regular sport, and a dancer from Orillia. He is good value.

Kennedy, Thomas—29 years of age; $20,000. Here is an old Peterborough boy, now with the Pullman Co., of Chicago, and at present home on a visit. He is a first rate fellow, not too set in his ways to take kindly to double harness. It is said that he came to Peterborough for a purpose. It is to be hoped that the Peterborough young ladies will not allow their big-footed sisters of that bad town Chicago, to get ahead of them.

Green, Wm. F.—27 years of age; $7,000. Mr. Green is a window blind manufacturer. The boys call him "the boss," because of a propensity to prowl about at nights. Doubtless when Mr. Green gets married, he will forsake this habit. He is, otherwise, a young man of excellent habits, and would make a good husband.

Fortye, Thomas H.—40 years of age; $10,000. Here is a noted bachelor. He is a traveller for the lock factory, and has many friends both here and on the road. He is very fond of ladies' society. His business frequently takes him to Windsor, and it is learned that on these trips he never fails to cross over to Detroit. It is, therefore, inferred that he has an eye on some Detroit damsel. His friends will be pleased to receive cards.

Sim, John—38; $15,000. Mr. Sims is express agent for the G.N.W., and is a great favorite with the ladies. He is well known in town, very popular. He is an admirer of blondes, and has been showing symptoms lately. Although the last on this week's list, he is by no means least, but is a very desirable catch and would make a careful, kindly husband.

Elliott, David—20 years of age (you would not think it); $10,000. Now here is a prize. He is a very industrious young gentleman, holding a very responsible position in the Canadian General Electric Company's works. He is also a firm believer in true amateur sport and it is only necessary to mention the fact of his holding high positions in no less than eleven of our amateur organizations to show the esteem in which he is held where known. Dave possesses many of the charms that should endear him to the ladies, being a composer and musician of no mean ability, displaying great care and taste in dress, and possessing a genial disposition, he should make a model husband.

NOTES.

Since the last issue Mr. Peter Corkery is in receipt of a letter from a Chicago lady who read his name in THE SATURDAY TIMES. The description of his suite at the Balmoral caught her eye. She pleaded for an exchange of photographs and correspondence. It is understood the exchange has taken place and the correspondence is going on. Immediate results may be expected. This instance goes to show that THE SATURDAY TIMES circulates everywhere and is widely read.

The rating of Mr. Earnest Wasson is lowered to $3,000 until further notice, on suspicion. Too much Chemong Park.

A communication from Councillor John Smith, of Ashburnham, requesting his name to be left out, is respected. While Councillor Smith is a desirable catch and all that, we have no desire to publish anybody's name against their will. A similar request from Mr. W. A. Buchanon, who states that it would be sure to be copied in the Norwood Register, is also granted.

The list of eligible old maids is almost completed and will appear later on.

Piles! Piles! Itching Piles!

SYMPTOMS—Moisture, intense itching and stinging most of the night; worse by scratching. If allowed to continue tumors form, which often bleed and ulcerate, becoming very sore. SWAYNE'S OINTMENT stops the itching and bleeding, heals ulceration, and in most cases removes the tumors. At druggists, or by mail, for 50 cents. Dr. Swayne & Son, Philadelphia. del6
